Safeguard Against Dyspeptic Tendencies

To enjoy perfect health you must possess strong digestion.

This is only possible under certain conditions.

FIRST, Your bowels must be regular, you must avoid constipation, which is the beginning of sick kidneys, weak stomach, and of course dyspepsia.

SECOND: Give your diet careful study, and commence at once a treatment with Dr. Hamilton's Pills; "do this, and you'll soon be well.

Never was a remedy more successful than Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and simply because they correct the conditions which lead up to dyspepsia.

No better evidence can be given than the case of Mr. Michael Miller, of 153 Kent street, Ottawa, who says:

"Last winter I was very sick, I had measles and was left in a run-down miserable condition. My stomach seemed all wrong. Food fermented, caused me great distress, and I couldn't keep strong. I had dyspepsia of the worst kind, and my bowels were constantly constipated. When I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills I was helped. I continued the treatment and was restored to a condition of health and strength that I never knew before. Dr. Hamilton's Pills are wonderful medicine, and I recommend them to everyone, sick or well."

Nothing invigorates and freshens like a treatment of Dr. Hamilton's Pills; they put new life and vim into those who feel run down and ailing. Simply one or two pills before retiring; perfectly safe and unsurpassed in the benefits they surely do accomplish. Sold in yellow boxes, 25c. each, or five for $1.00, at all dealers.

Wind Up of Hockey Season

A meeting of the officers and representatives of the City Hockey League will be held next Monday evening at 7.30 o'clock at the Examiner office for the purpose of making arrangements for the annual banquet and to wind up the season's affairs.

Cheques due to the various teams will be handed out.

Remember that when the stomach nerves fail or weaken, Dyspepsia or Indigestion must always follow. But, strengthen these same weak inside nerves with Dr. Shoop's Restorative, and then see how quickly health will again return. Weak Heart and Kidney Nerves can also be strengthened with the Restorative, when a Heart pains, palpitation, or Kidney weakness is found. Don't drug the Stomach, nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys. That is wrong. Go to the cause of these ailments. Strengthen these weak inside nerves with Dr. Shoop's Restorative and get well. A simple, single test will surely tell. All dealers.

Anticipating Spring Thaws

The city authorities are evidently anticipating high water or floods this spring and very wisely. Yesterday the drains dug, or rather hacked out of the solid ice along the street sides, which have since been filled with snow, was cleaned out. This precaution is well taken, as, on account of the unusually deep snow, consequent high waters may be expected with the first real and prolonged thaw.

$100.00 paid by Dr. Shoop for any recent case of Grippe or acute Cold that's 25 cent box of Preventics will not break. How is this for an offer? The Doctor's supreme confidence in these little Candy Cold Cure Tablets—Preventics—is certainly complete. It's a $100 against 25 cents—pretty big odds. And Preventics—remember, contain no quinine, no laxative, nothing harsh nor sickening. Pneumonia would never appear if early colds were always broken. Safe and sure for feverish children. 25 Preventics 25c. All dealers.

Marriages, Births and Deaths

During the month of February 35 births were registered with the city clerk, or 23 more than for the same month last year. There has been an increase of marriages during February of this year, the figures being 11 to 9. The death rate is not so satisfactory, the records showing seven more deaths in February, 1908, than in the same month of 1907. Following are the figures:

"The Blood is The Life."

Science has never gone beyond the above simple statement of scripture. But it has illuminated that statement and given it a meaning ever broadening with the increasing breadth of knowledge. When the blood is "bad" or impure it is not alone the body which suffers through disease. The brain is also clouded, the mind and judgement are affected, and many an evil deed or impure thought may be directly traced to the impurity of the blood. Foul, impure blood can be made pure by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It enriches and purifies the blood thereby curing, pimples, blotches, eruptions and other cutaneous affections, as eczema, tetter, or salt-rheum, hives and other manifestations of impure blood.

In the cure of scrofulous swellings, enlarged glands, open eating ulcers, or old sores, the "Golden Medical Discovery" has performed the most marvelous cures. In cases of old sores, or open eating ulcers, it is well to apply to the open sores Dr. Pierce's All-Healing Salve, which possesses wonderful healing potency when used as an application to the sores in conjunction with the use of "Golden Medical Discovery" as a blood cleansing constitutional treatment. If your druggist don't happen to have the "All-Healing Salve" in stock, you can easily procure it by inclosing fifty-four cents in postage stamps to Dr. R. V. Pierce, 663 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y., and it will come to you by return post. Most druggists keep it as well as the "Golden Medical Discovery."

You can't afford to accept any medicine of unknown composition as a substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery," which is a medicine of KNOWN COMPOSITION, having a complete list of ingredients in plain English on its bottle-wrapper, this same being attested as correct under oath. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels.

What they offer at 25c per Share for a short time

The property is situated at Mancos, Colo., and consists of 160 acres, fully paid for. The Company expects to secure at least 400 acres or more, we are negotiating for it now and the terms are satisfactory and there is coal on the same, and they also intend to secure some Coal Mines of which they have the refusal. Some of the best coal mines in Colorado are in this district, as well as some of the richest gold and silver mines. In fact this is one of the richest parts for mineral in the State of Colorado, and the Company has the refusal to several prospects on reasonable and easy terms.

In our opinion the prospects of the Company are very bright, and a rapid advance in the price of the stock is sure to take place in the near future. Full information can be had by calling at our office.

In moving the adoption of the Report, the President referred in feeling terms to the loss sustained by the Company in the death of Mr. Chas. P. Slater, who, for many years, had filled the important position of Secretary with credit to himself and satisfaction to the Board of Directors. He was succeeded by Mr. Wm. H. Black, in whose appointment to the position, the Company could not possibly have done better. In Mr. W. G. Slack the Company had secured the services of a most efficient Treasurer. The vacancy on the Board was filled by the election of Mr. Theodore N. Vail.

A short time ago the Company received overtures from the Government of the Provinces of Saskatchewan and Alberta to purchase the local plant and business as had been done recently by the Province of Manitoba. After due deliberations arrangements were completed for accepting these offers, and the shareholders present would be requested to ratify them.

A resolution to this effect was carried unanimously.—Other by-laws defining the functions and guarantees of the recently appointed officers, specifying the dates of meetings, signing of cheques and undertakings, etc., were also adopted on motion of Mr. Abner Kingman, seconded by Mr. Geo. Greene.

The meeting throughout was of a most harmonious character, as was to be expected with such excellent progress for the year, the absence of watered stock, and the receipt of quarterly dividends at the usual rate of 5 per cent. per annum. The customary complimentary resolutions were unanimously voted to the President, Mr. C. F. Sise, the Directors and officers of the Company.

The Report was unanimously adopted. The balloting for Directors resulted in the re-election of the old Board, safe one, as follows:—C. F. Sise, Hon. Robert Mackay, Theo. N. Vail, Robt. Archer, Wm. R. Driver, (of Boston), Hugh Paton, Charles Cassils, Thos. Sherwin, and H. D. Warren, of Toronto.

At a subsequent meeting of the Board, Mr. C. F. Sise was re-elected President, and Hon. Robert Mackay Vice-President.

Train and Track.

It is estimated that New York city requires 1,000 more cars on its railways to accommodate the traveling public.

The Fryeburg (Me.) horse railroad bears the distinction of being the shortest as well as the only horse railroad in the state. The railroad was originally built to accommodate a Methodist association which established a place of meeting about three miles from the Maine Central railroad station in Fryeburg.

Normal Schools Soon to Open.

The normal schools which are being built at North Bay, Hamilton, Peterboro and Strafford will shortly be opened. The contractors have practically completed their work. For entrance into these institutions, the obligatory subjects at the July examinations have been reduced from ten to seven. A higher standard, however, will be exacted.

The Minister of Education lays great stress on the personality of the teacher, and he hopes that the success of the scheme which he has inaugurated, will justify him in extending it still further in both high and public schools. Toronto University has also adopted new regulations along these lines.

February, 1908, is here and so is

The Pacific Fruit Cooling and Vaporizing Company, Incorporated for the purpose of cooling deciduous fruits and removing moisture from citrus fruits and keeping under cold storage such fruits and other food products from the time of receiving them from the fruit growers until loaded on car and taken away by the Railroad Company for Eastern shipment

STUBBORN FACTS UNIMPEACHABLE

The loss in shipping deciduous and citrus fruits is enormous. The orange crop of Southern California alone is valued at $30,000,000. The government experts estimate that about 25 per cent. or $7,500,000, is lost every year by rough handling in packing and decay of fruit in transit to the Eastern markets. What a revenue of profit this loss would be to the shipper if it could be saved. Our process will save it. The same is true of the deciduous fruits of Northern California.

GREAT FORTUNES ARE MADE BY INVESTING IN NECESSITIES

Fruit is one of the necessities of our civilized life, and the company that can place the fruit in the markets of the world in the best shape, in the quickest time, at the lowest rate, has a fortune within its grasp. The Armour Company in ten years made $5,000,000 net handling California fruit in refrigerator cars. Our process is as necessary to the fruit grower as the refrigerator car. Therefore we ought to receive as large a revenue for handling the same commodity.

GET IN WHILE THE ENTERPRISE IS NEW

No wiser words were ever spoken than these: "The chief point about getting rich is to invest in a new enterprise that is being managed by successful men, who have some of their own money in the deal." "One good investment is worth a lifetime of labor". Think over this sentence. A man's daily labor will never make him rich. He must have some money at work for him. Money invested never gets sick, keeps no holidays, never goes on strike. There are three things that ought to guide you: first, invest with honest men; second, invest with men of sound judgment; third, invest under conditions where you get your full share of profits the business yields. Get into a company whose destiny is guided by men of this stamp with the future before and not behind it. Here is the secret of fortune. Plant the seed of your investment in the soil of opportunity, at the season of greatest promise when the enterprise is new. Every ounce of labor in the hearts of the men managing this company is pledged to give

A SQUARE DEAL FOR EVERY INVESTOR

There will be no preferred stock. Every dollar invested will be worth 100 cents on the dollar. Our Directors, as honourable business men, will not allow any tricks of trade by which the small investor can be frozen out. Their commercial standing proves they are not "grafters". The poor man's $50 or $60 shares will have the same standing in court as the rich man's 10,000, and they will draw the same proportionate dividend. We court investigation.

EVERY RICH MAN IN THE WORLD WAS ONCE POOR, OR HIS GRANDFATHER WAS.

THE OPPORTUNITY OF A LIFETIME

To get into a company that has the certainty of growth, the assurance of large and quick returns, a rapid advance in the price of stock, to make it an exceptional chance for big profits on a small investment. This is an ideal investment for the wage earner as well as the rich man. Moderate sums invested now will bring splendid returns in the near future. The logic of all this is

DON'T WAIT

Time is the essence of this proposition. The stock will certainly double in a short time. Jay Gould once said: "When you see a good investment don't wait to see if it pans out well, for by that time other people see it, too, and you have lost your opportunity."

WOMEN AS INVESTORS

Some of the heaviest stockholders in our company are women of keen business instincts. One lady in Los Angeles bought 5,000 shares. In a few days she returned and bought 5,000 more. This lady has never made a mistake in her business ventures. Women are good investors because they have courage to follow their convictions. Their intuitions are keener and truer than men's logic. Men may prevent her voting, but they can't prevent her drawing dividends on her investments. This is one branch of trade where sex, culture, or color does not count.

MANAGEMENT

The affairs of this company are in the hands of men of honesty, ability, courage and good business judgment—men who have made a success of their own business—men whose business reputation is A1 in the commercial circles in which they move.

These men are "square" and "shrewd". They will not deceive you nor will they be deceived themselves. Because of the promise of growth, permanency and profit this business offers they have united their money, energy, time and business experience to make this enterprise a grand success.

Judge Killan's Successor

The lamented death of Judge Killan has left an important position open, namely, the Chairmanship of the Board of Railway Commissioners. This position was formerly filled by Hon. A. G. Blair, who was subsequently succeeded by Judge Killan. In filling this important vacancy, no wiser choice, nor one more acceptable to the people of both of the great political parties of Canada could be suggested or made than by offering this position to the Hon. H. R. Emmerson. This talented politician has the admitted ability, integrity, and honesty, to eminently fit him for the position. His experience as a minister of the Crown and his connection with the Intercolonial Railway are also important factors pointing to the advisability of his being offered the Chairmanship. There is no doubt but what every section of the Dominion and more particularly this part of Ontario would hail with pleasure the appointment of Mr. Emmerson as Chairman of the Board of Railway Commissioners.

THIRTY PASSENGERS IN CAR WERE ALL THROWN OUT

Accident Near Sydney Will Cause Death of One Man--A Number were Injured

Car Turned Over

Glace Bay, March 3.—A car operated by the Sydney and Glace Bay Railway Company left the track at 12 o'clock last night, at Birdgeport, jumping off the road about ten feet. It was going at a fast rate of speed. One man, Fred Mills, was thrown out the window and his head struck against the pavement. His skull was fractured, and he was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital, where he is still unconscious. He will recover. Another man, Neil McMullen, is also in the hospital.

The place where the accident happened is on a very sharp curve, and when the car left the track all the passengers, thirty in number, half of whom were women, went through the windows. All were more or less injured, but not seriously. J. W. Madden, a prominent barrister, was among the number hurt.

Lashes Bride with Whipping Machine

Husband Applies Knout Every Three Days--Kicks About Cooking

Pittsburg, March 4.—Believing a woman is better for being whipped, John Hortz, of Munhall, a Homestead suburb, rigged up a whipping machine, his wife says, and with it castigated her every third day, whether she needed it or not.

He has been arrested and after a hearing to-day before Justice of the Peace George Giles, was held in $300 bail for court.

Mrs. Hortz says they have been married only three months and that her husband told her she would be better if whipped.

He said at the hearing his wife did not cook his meals the way he wanted them and that is why he chastised her.

Mortz's machine is made of two straps at the end of which are two leaden knots, something similar to a knout. The straps are attached to a wooden handle, while another strap goes around the wielder's wrist.

Policeman Stopped Doukhoubor Funeral --Strange Procession

Fort William, March 4. — John Chlan, one of the Doukhobor pilgrims, died on Monday night and the band yesterday assembled to carry out the funeral services in a manner that soon had them in conflict with the civic authorities, and which ended with the police taking possession of the corpse and turning it over to one of the local undertakers for burial. Old age, starvation and lack of medical treatment is what caused death of the man who, according to reports, has been lying around the house in a half-dead and dying way for some time past while those of his sect looked on in perfect indifference to his fate, their wild belief leading them to think that no earthly power could benefit him.

The funeral procession was a very striking one, the body being wrapped in a blanket and drawn on a hand sleigh by six of the men, while about thirty followed behind chanting their quaint dirge.

Jas. Cooney Stabbed With Butcher Knife

The township of Cavan has a mystery involving nothing less than a stabbing affray. The affair which is being religiously hushed up is that on Monday last James Cooney, of Drummond Station, about 7 a.m. was struck on the side of the head with a heavy butcher knife. An ugly wound was caused and a small artery severed. Cooney was rendered very weak from loss of blood, and before medical assistance could be procured from Keene, became almost unconscious. The details of the stabbing are shrouded in mystery, but circumstances point to the wound being received in a family argument.

Cutter Badly Smashed

Early yesterday afternoon a man driving a cutter across Hunter street bridge attempted to steer his horse between two heavy sleighs at the end. He was going at a pretty fast gait, and the dashboard of the cutter struck the extended shafts on one of the sleighs, and a large portion of it, including the steel trimmings, was knocked off. The cutter was jolted sideways, but no one was hurt.

Campbellford After Trent Valley Canal

The midnight train of Tuesday contained a deputation from Campbellford en route to Ottawa, including Mayor Doxsee. Messrs. Charles Fielding, Engineer Richard Weston of the Weston Shoe Co., James Dickson of the Dickson Bridge Works, William and F. J. Smith of the flour mills. The deputation have gone for the purpose of interviewing the Government concerning the possibility of having the Trent Valley Canal pass through their town.

SCORES OF CHILDREN LOSE LIVES IN FIRE PANIC IN SCHOOL IN COLLINGWOOD--POSSIBLY 150 ARE DEAD

Seventy-Five are Reported Burned to Death and a Great Many Injured

500 Pupils in Building

Cleveland, March 4.—Up to one o'clock this afternoon sixty bodies had been recovered from the ruins. Of this number 42 were females. The bodies of 12 boys and 11 girls are at the morgue. Some more bodies and Michael Sousa Undertaking Company's stock and are buried beyond recognition.

Of the total number of the school seven are accounted for. The two missing are Anthony Wester of Cleveland, and Grace Peake, of East Cleveland.

Principal Frank P. Whitney, of the school, put down the number of dead from 75 to 150. The pupils were mostly little children, ranging in age from 9 to 12 years.

Cleveland, Ohio, March 4.—In a fire which completely destroyed the common school building in Collingwood, a suburb, to-day, seventy-five children lost their lives. The fire was started by an overheated furnace. The flames quickly spread, but a panic ensued when the building filled with smoke and the 400 children attempted to escape.

PILED UP IN DOORWAY.

There were but two exits in the building that were available. One soon became choked with the children, who madly raced for the open air. Those who fell in the doorway were trampled upon by those behind and soon the doorway was impassable.

The frightened and panic-stricken children turned to get out through the windows and any other means that could be found. Escape was cut off by the flames which, by this time, had spread throughout the rooms. The building was of brick, yet this did not retard the progress of the fire.

SCORES FELL INTO BASEMENT.

In a few minutes the lower floor fell, precipitating scores of children to the basement among the burning debris.

The scene about the building was heartrending. Quickly the news of the terrible catastrophe spread throughout the village and hundreds of parents were crowded about the building in search of their girls and boys.

TWENTY BODIES REMOVED.

In a few minutes twenty bodies had been taken from the ruins. Plainly the writing or silhouette forms of dozens of others could be seen in the debris.

Nearby factories dismissed their men and instructed them to assist in the rescue. They braved the fire and made heroic efforts to save the ones who were not dead.

SOME OF THE DEAD.

Among the known dead are:
Edna Mahrer, 12 years old.
Bernie Schubert, 10 years old.
Willie Wentworth, 7 years old.
— Mayers, 8 years old.

AMONG THE MISSING.

The missing include:
Lizzie Lyon.
Emma McGee.
Peter Hessmer.

Injured: Glen Barber, 10 years old. Mildred Schmidt, 10 years old.

25 BODIES OUT NOW.

At 11.30 twenty-five bodies had been recovered from the ruins and were taken to the shops of the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Railway Company, where the company's physicians are attending the injured.

Practically every ambulance in the eastern part of Cleveland was called, as well as every available physician.

SCORES IN HOSPITALS.

Many children rescued are believed to be fatally injured, either by fire or by being trampled upon.

Scores of children have been taken to city hospitals.

Three little girls met instant death in attempting to jump from the third floor. They were Mary Ridgeway, Anna Roth and Gertrude Davis.

PULLED HER ARMS OFF.

A man named Joern, who arrived upon the scene early when the children were crowded in the front door, discovered his little girl among the mass of injured and crushed. He caught the girl by the hands and in his frantic efforts to save her pulled her arms from her body.

The last four, who were children of the janitor of the building, lost their lives together.

The greatest loss of life was caused by one of the exits being closed, to which point scores of the children rushed. Their escape was blocked by a door that opened inward. In this manner they were delayed in reaching the other door and windows.

It is said that as a result of this stampede alone scores of children lost their lives. Reports as to the number of dead vary.

SOME SAY 200 DEAD.

The first estimates placed the number as high as 200. Reports are conflicting at this time. In the excitement it was impossible to form a reasonable estimate. Judging from the number of bodies that have been recovered and the number missing, together with the number that can be seen in the morning, it is safe to say that 75 have perished. The list may grow as such truth is revealed.

Cleveland, O., March 4.—The panic that had such fearful results made the tragedy spread to the hapless crowd unaware, but only for a brief time. Organized efforts at rescue were soon under way. Firemen played streams upon the piles of bodies in the doorways and tried to drag out bodies with rake and other implements.

Ambulances and automobiles were soon available to take the wounded to hospitals.

BODIES 5 FEET DEEP.

After the fire had been controlled somewhat piles of charred bodies were still visible in the doorways. In the rear door bodies burned beyond recognition lay piled five feet deep.

A man who reached the scene shortly after the fire broke out declared that the back door was locked. He attempted to break it down, but failed. He then smashed in the windows with the aid of others, and rescued a number of children.

The flames rapidly shot up through the central halls. It is stated that the children were terrified beyond all control, and the teachers, although they struggled bravely to marshal their children out of the building, were utterly helpless.

No Charge to Poor Citizens

Havelock, March 4.—The doctors of this place, who recently refused to treat patients unless they have the ready cash, have now added a clause that those patients too poor to pay will be treated free. They say it is the same thing as treating free to attend some of them on credit. Residents are now figuring out which class they are in.

Boy Killed, Another Injured, When Ice-boats Collided

Kingston, March 4.—In a collision of iceboats at Clayton, N.Y., on the River St. Lawrence, Ray O'Brien, a steamboat engineer of Thousand Island Park, was almost instantly killed, and Roswell Herman, aged 13, was badly injured.

The boats were going fifty miles an hour when they struck.

O'Brien's skull was crushed by hitting the mast.

Both boats were smashed into bits, and the sailors were thrown far out upon the ice.

The accident was one of the worst which has happened on the river in years.

Broke Nearly Every Bone in His Body

Snow Shoveler Scrambling to Safety Fell Back on Track

Was Cut to Pieces

Lindsay, Ont., March 4.—This morning about half-past seven, Fred Stubbins, one of a gang of snow shovelers working in a cut a mile half mile outside of the corporation of Lindsay, met a horrible death by falling under the wheels of a passing locomotive and caboose. It seems that the gang of shovellers rode out to their work on a plow with a double-header, and, when they reached a cut a short distance from William street north, the men were put off to clear out the snow, while the engine went on to try to clear the line beyond, and about ten minutes late, unknown to the men, another engine with a flanger was sent out to follow the first. When she was seen, all scrambled up the high snowy banks of the cut to safety. Stubbins, however, did not reach the top before the engine passed and his hold broke and he slid and rolled down against the step of the last caboose. He was almost instantly killed. Nearly every bone in his body was broken and his head was also split open.

His Resignation was Accepted

The deacons of the Park Street Baptist church interviewed the pastor, Rev. A. H. Brace, at the close of the morning service on Sunday last relative to his resignation. Mr. Brace replied that the step was final, and desired the deacons to accept the resignation. The responsibility was not truly his own, and he took the step with a view to the advancement of the church.

The question was brought before the church at the close of the evening service, and the resignation was accepted, to take effect the first Sunday in May.

KINGSTON NOT TO PLAY VARSITY.

Toronto, March 4.—Manager Seacy of the 14th Regiment team of Kingston notified the O. H. A. to-day that the senior O. H. A. champions would not be able to play Varsity this season.

The Kingston team play Queen's on Friday night, and are of the opinion that this will be enough hockey for them this season.

Consequently they decline to accept Varsity's challenge, and the students have been so notified.

Runaway Upsets a Milk Sleigh

Yesterday morning the driver of a grocery sleigh left his horse standing on Charlotte street while he was delivering an order. The horse became frightened and started eastward along Charlotte street. It dashed across the market and up Water street. Between Simcoe and Hunter street it ran into a milk vendor's sleigh and upset it. The horse was finally stopped by Mr. Green. The sleigh was not damaged, but parts of the harness were broken.

No Trace of Hog

—Mr. Stabler asked yesterday by The Times, said he has not yet recovered or heard the whereabouts of the dressed hog belonging to him and taken from the market weigh scales platform last Saturday. Mr. Stabler thinks this only hope now of recovering the porker is that some of his friends of jocular proclivities about the scales office have got it hidden for a joke. If so the joke has been carried on too long.

One Hundred and Forty Six Bodies Have Been Recovered

LATER.

Cleveland, March 4.—At 2.30 p.m. 146 bodies had been removed from the burned building, including that of Miss Fisher, one of the teachers. The list of missing numbers 108.

Cleveland, March 4. — In the most terrible holocaust in the history of this section of the country over 100 children lost their lives to-day in a fire which destroyed the three-storey brick school building on Collamer avenue in Collingwood, a suburb just outside the city limits.

Fire started in the basement of the building just after school commenced. It was caused from an overheated furnace.

The smoke from the fire quickly filled the building and alarmed the children and teachers. A panic ensued. No fire drill was used in rescuing the children. They rushed pell mell for the doors and windows.

Walter C. Kelley, a newspaper man, two of whose children were in the building, was one of the first on the scene. He stated that the rear door, one of the two exits, was locked. The children rushed for the front and rear doors. The front exit soon was jammed full of fighting and panic stricken humanity. Many who reached the exit first escaped, but those — the greater number — who followed choked the doorward. Those who fell were trampled upon and many are supposed to have thus been killed. Those behind turned and made for the windows. Some upon the second and third floors jumped to the ground.

The school was of the common grade, and contained 300 children, ranging in age from six years to fourteen. One teacher is known to have perished, and it is feared several others have met a similar fate.

The fire from the basement, in addition to filling the school rooms with smoke, which caused the first alarm, leaped up the stairway to the first, second and third floors. When the children dashed from the rooms they rushed into a fiery furnace. It was in the hallways and at the main exit where the greatest number met death. The passages were narrow and could not accommodate the crowd that attempted to rush through them to the main door.

FIRE DRILL FORGOTTEN.

County Coroner Burke immediately after the fire said:

"The construction of the schoolhouse was an outrage. The hallways were narrow, and there was practically but one mode of exit. The children were caught like rats in a trap."

The school building was supposed to be modern. The school children had been given fire drills, and were thought to be in training for just such an emergency. When the crucial moment arrived, however, the drill was forgotten; not the slightest effort to effect an orderly or prompt escape was made.

Those who were familiar with the structure and were early on the scene believe that most of the loss of life was due to the fact that all of the rooms were dismissed at once.

HUMAN WEDGES.

Pupils pouring down the stairs made for the doorways already full of children escaping from the lower floors. The exits were soon choked. The desperate ones behind pushed and struggled for their lives, driving the human wedges the tighter in place.

Neighbors living across the street who were the first to reach the burning building, said the lower halls were already filled with flames when they arrived. They helped out such

PRINCE OF WALES TO PAY A WEEK'S VISIT TO CANADA

Ottawa, March 4.—Events were made at the Dominion yesterday when Sir Wilfrid Laurier read a letter from Earl Grey announcing, as indicated some weeks ago, that the Prince of Wales was ready to come to Canada for the Quebec Tercentenary celebration. The Earl's letter said:

"It gives me great pleasure to inform you that his Royal Highness, the Prince of Wales, in response to your invitation, has graciously signified his willingness to attend the tercentenary celebrations of the founding of Quebec by Champlain, provided they can be held during the last week in July.

"The prearranged movements of the Atlantic fleet, which will accompany the Prince of Wales to Quebec, make it necessary for his Royal Highness to arrive on the 22nd July and to depart on the morning of the 29th July.

"His Royal Highness regrets that for this reason his stay in the Dominion must be curtailed so as to make it impossible for him to visit places other than Quebec on this occasion.

"Lord Elgin, who is anxious to do everything in his power to make the tercentenary a success wishes to congratulate the Dominion on the important announcement which it is my privilege to request you to make to Parliament of his Royal Highness' approaching visit. Joining most sincerely in those congratulations, I remain."

Moving the second reading of the bill to raise $500,000 for the celebration of the tercentenary, the Premier said the bill provides in its first section that a commission of five members should be appointed. He might announce at once the names of those whom they propose to form the committee. Mr. George Garneau, the present mayor of Quebec; Sir George Drummond, of Montreal; Mr. Byron Walker, of Toronto; Col. George T. Denison, of Toronto, and M. Amedee Turgeon of the city of Quebec, Ex-Premier was provision in the bill that if any Province contributed $100,000, it should be entitled to be represented on the commission. There was also a provision that if the Government of the United Kingdom or any of the Governments of the colonies contributed a similar sum they should be entitled to be represented on the commission. The powers of the commission were first to make a plan for the celebration of the ground, and then to carry out such work as they might deem advisable. Such work might be of great magnitude or of smaller magnitude. There was a plan which would involve an expenditure of perhaps two millions, but as to this he had no opinion to offer at this moment. It has to be left to the commission to determine.

It was decided that the commission should be known as the National Battlefields Commission. During the discussion, Sir Wilfrid Laurier said he had hopes that the British Columbia and Ontario Governments would contribute to the reclamation scheme. The Quebec Government would, of course, and he would be glad if he could hear that all the Provinces would do so.

DREADING THE FUTURE

Mr. Bernard Shaw thinks it not impossible that the day may come when the property interests in Great Britain will compel the King to put himself at the head of a movement to suppress the democracy, by repealing the franchise laws and establishing a dictatorship. He makes it plain that his reference is not to His Majesty Edward VII., but to some one of his successors, and he thinks that the only solution to the crisis that will thus be created will be by the democracy resorting to the expedient of which history furnishes so many examples, and of which Charles I. and the late King of Portugal were striking illustrations. In other words, he looks forward to a time when "Kill the King" may be the war cry of the British democracy. Mr. Shaw is a brilliant man, who is apparently under a strong sense of conviction that what he does not know is not worth knowing, and that what he cannot think out is insoluble. Combined with this is a passion for the spectacular, and the result is that his conclusions are safest when taken with all the contents of the salt-cellar. The property interests of Great Britain may determine to try conclusions with the proletariat, the artizans and that great body of people who are neither identified closely with property nor yet with the wage-earners, but we take leave to doubt it. There are great social problems that must be worked out in Great Britain, but their solution ought to be possible without violence. If the time ever comes, when the refusal of the minority to meet the reasonable views of the majority leads to a contest between the property-owning class and the multitude of landless people, there will be very little doubt as to the outcome. Times have changed. Appliances of destruction are available to rich and poor alike. A few men on horseback can no longer terrorize whole communities. If there is ever a class between property interests and the democracy, the former will certainly suffer, whatever the ultimate consequences to the latter may be. We are not so pessimistic as to suppose that the British people will be unable to find a peaceful solution of the problems created by the evolution of our civilization. Perhaps Mr. Bernard Shaw understands the situation much better than we do, and perhaps he is only frightened by ghosts which his imagination has conjured up.

ONTARIO WHEAT

Facts are constantly multiplying that tend to prove that Ontario wheat is going to be a mighty profitable crop to grow. The demand for Ontario wheat is increasing every year. As people get better acquainted with Manitoba wheat flours, they find that Ontario blended flours are better for bread as well as for pastry. It has been proven, time and time again, that blended flours yield more bread, pastry, etc., to the barrel than any others.

In the face of such proof it seems astonishing that some of our farmers still persist in buying Manitoba wheat flours. They do not seem to realize that it was the coming of Manitoba wheat, which lowered the price of Ontario wheat. It was the introduction of western flour which drove many of our millers out of business, and sent up the price of bran and shorts. It is the wide use of western patent flours by Ontario farmers themselves, that helps to keep Ontario wheat out of the market. Every farmer in the province ought to be raising Ontario wheat, and ought to be eating bread and pastry made of Ontario blended flours. Then the money, which is now going to enrich the western wheat growers, would stay right here at home where it belongs. The price of wheat would go up, and the price for bran and shorts would go down.

THE SQUARE ROOT OF 2

No One Has Yet Succeeded In Extracting It Accurately.

SOME IMPOSSIBLE PROBLEMS

The Effort to Cultivate a Blue Rose, the Search For Absolute Zero, the Perpetual Motion Phantom and the Squaring of the Circle.

There died in the year 1902 in St Felix, a small village in the department of Haute Garonne, in France, a wealthy octogenarian horticulturist, who spent the last forty-five years of his life and a sum variously estimated at from £12,000 to £15,000 in attempting to produce by artificial cultivation a blue rose.

He failed, and for the best of reasons—the task is one impossible of accomplishment. As De Candolle, a great authority on this subject, has pointed out, yellow and blue are the fundamental types of color in flowers, and the colors are antagonistic, mutually excluding each other. Yellow by culture may be changed into red or white, but never into blue. On the other hand, blue will pass into red, but never into yellow. We have a yellow rose; hence there is no blue.

The pursuit of the absolute zero point is to chemists what the discovery of the north pole is to geographers. Ever since Fahrenheit in 1724 broached the problem scientists innumerable have striven to reach the goal in vain, although each, in turn, has succeeded in outdistancing the other.

Thus Fahrenheit boasted that no one could ever attain artificially to a greater degree of cold than he produced with salt and ice—seven degrees below zero—although, of course, he did not suppose that cold ended there. Yet, within a few years of his death, over 100 degrees below had been obtained, and Professor James Dewar, whose researches in the field of low temperatures have brought out so many new and startling facts, succeeded by cooling down the rare gas helium by the aid of liquefied hydrogen in registering the almost inconceivable temperature of 422 degrees below zero F. But this is not absolute zero, and the problem remains unsolved.

Here and there, in odd corners of the earth, gray, bent men still pore over crucibles seeking the philosopher's stone—that mysterious and wonderful substance which will, they believe, when found change the baser metals into gold. It never will be found, of course, for such a substance, in the nature of things, can have no concrete existence. Nevertheless for hundreds of years the best brains and keenest intellects in Christendom sought it early and late.

Nor were their labors wholly wasted, for it was while searching for this mythical treasure that Bottcher stumbled on the secret of the manufacture of porcelain; Roger Bacon on that of the composition of gunpowder; Geber on the properties of acids; Van Helmont on the nature of gas, and Dr. Glauber on the "salts" which bear his name. After a similar fashion, too, the three century long hunt for the elixir of life bequeathed to us a whole host of valuable remedial drugs and was the means indirectly of saving or, at all events, prolonging literally millions of lives.

So also, as the result of the vain search after perpetual motion, there was evolved the greatest of all the generalizations of modern physical science, the principle of the conservation of energy, and even now more or less important discoveries are being constantly stumbled on by seekers after the same perennial will-o'-the-wisp. For let it be by no means imagined that the perpetual motion cranks are all dead and gone. On the contrary, they are probably fully as numerous and as sanguine today as they were in the time of Leibnitz or Newton.

Of course the thing is impossible and has been proved so over and over again, but that does not deter them. Only the other day a man turned up at the office of a well known patent agent with a model of a perpetual motion machine which depended for its proper working upon the interception of gravitational attraction.

The principle of the invention, the inventor was good enough to explain, was simplicity itself. The only thing that remained to be done, he ingenuously remarked, was to find the proper material for an interceptor. Is it possible to conceive of human folly going further than this?

Among mathematicians the two most famous unsolvable problems are the trisection of the angle and the duplication of the cube. Men have toiled at one or the other, sometimes at both, of these for fifteen, twenty, thirty years, only to retire at last baffled and beaten. Their calculations and methods of work have in many instances been published to the world, but the subject is too abstruse to attempt to do more than merely touch upon it in a popular article of this kind.

It is somewhat startling, however, to find that even figures, just plain, ordinary arithmetical figures such as are easily understandable by any modern board school boy, have given rise to problems quite as incapable of solution as any of those springing out of the higher mathematics.

No one, for instance, has yet succeeded in extracting the square root of 2, although Dr. W. H. Colvill, a civil surgeon of Bagdad, succeeded in working it out to no fewer than 110 places of decimals, and, moreover, his titanic sum has been proved to be absolutely correct, so far as it goes. Here is the result, in case some reader should be seized with an irresistible desire to carry it a stage or two further:

Undoubtedly, however, of all the now admittedly unsolvable figure problems which have from time to time occupied the attention of mathematicians the most famous is that generally known as squaring the circle. The time and energy thrown away upon it in days gone by are simply amazing. A Dutch professor, Jacob Marcelis by name, worked at it for forty-three years and came at last to the conclusion that the circumference contained the diameter exactly times. He was wrong. Another notable computer, one Ludolph van Ceulen, continued his calculations as long as he lived and at his death had the result inscribed on his tombstone at St. Peter's church, Leyden.

Yet a third enthusiast worked out the calculation to more than 700 places of decimals and even then did not get so near as Peter Metius, who guessed at his answer. This latter lucky gentleman asserted that the diameter is to the circumference as 113 is to 355. This is so nearly right that the error would be less than a foot in a circle with a 2,000 mile radius.

For a long time this approximation was as near as any one got, but in 1863 a lady mathematician went one better. Here is her formula: "From three diameters deduct eight thousandths and seven millionths of a diameter, and to the result add 5 per cent." We have then not quite enough, but the shortage is only at the rate of about an inch and a sixteenth of an inch in 14,000 miles. Finally, an Englishman named Shanks succeeded in reducing by more than one-half even this well nigh infinitesimal error, and there for the present the matter rests.

It may be of interest to note, however, that some little while back a man made a great hubbub in London because he had not obtained the reward which he alleged had been offered for the discovery of the correct solution, although he claimed to have arrived at it. He said he did it by actual measurement, and it was found on investigation that he had constructed a boxwood disk of twelve inches in diameter which he rolled along a straight rail. The man was a joiner by trade and evidently knew well what he was about when he measured, for his answer, 3.140625, is wrong by less than one in 3,000.

INDIA'S WHITE ANTS.

Insects of various kinds are a perennial plague to Indian dwellers, tea growers and others.

The tea bushes in the Assam gardens have no less than four destructive enemies, from which no means of escape has yet been devised by man. These are the bark eating borer, the sandwich caterpillar, the mosquito and the white ant, all of which attack the bush and do immense damage.

By far the worst of these plagues is the white ant, the mosquito merely attacking the leaves and causing a blight. The ants, however, begin at the roots and eat upward, reducing the wood to powder and leaving only the bark to support the top, which soon topples over by reason of its own weight.

There is no Indian wood which would resist the ants' insidious attack except sandal. It delights in reducing pine and white wood to a powder. It cannot work in the light, but must get at the wood from some dark recess and work within a shell.

In some mysterious way the white ant gets indoors and has a particular penchant for penetrating into a veneered or lacquered picture frame, and in a short time nothing will remain but the veneer or lacquer, nothing else being left but a small portion of the powder, the rest being consumed or removed.

The method of attack is by emitting a kind of acid, which destroys the wood. And this ant has been known to bore holes through the sheet iron bottoms of trunks. Several long, supporting joists in a consular building in Calcutta were eaten out so completely that they had to be replaced with steel ones.

While these destructive white ants do not seem to possess much literary taste, they sometimes attack books and destroy them by boring holes through leaves and cover from side to side.

An English resident in an Indian city had a fine set of upholstered furniture, which he protected by some covering as well as he could before leaving his home for an absence of some months on business, and when he returned he sat down in a chair, which collapsed under him like a framework of cardboard.

Literary Coincidences.

Tennyson said of a strange literary coincidence, "A Chinese scholar some time ago wrote to me saying that in an unknown untranslated Chinese poem there were two whole lines of mine almost word for word." Byron in his monody on the death of Sheridan, where he says there will never be another Sheridan, the mold being broken up, employs, word for word, terms in which an ancient Sanskrit document refers to the death of Maru, notwithstanding that Byron could never have seen the document. Shakespeare's passage about love and lightning in "Romeo and Juliet," ii, 2, is almost identical with a quotation from "Malati and Madhava," an Indian poem by Bhavabuti, written nine centuries before and not translated up to Shakespeare's time.

The Spanish Duchess.

A duchess enters a shop. Do you imagine she will be more courteously received than a little milliner? Not at all, for both are instantly made at home and treated to the hidalgo's finest manner. But she will never be the less a duchess because she and the shopkeeper are on the best of terms. Her unconsciousness of her rank in everyday relations, which would stupefy an English duchess, comes from the fact that she belongs to a prouder race. Had she a mind to sport her coronet in a shop the owner and his attendants would speedily make short work of her decorative dignity. To them it would simply mean an underbred and foolish exhibition, for impertinence and vulgar haughtiness are not defects the Spaniards will tolerate.

CONTINUED.

Mr. Jabez Pash went to the sitting room, where he found the lovers seated on a sofa near the window. Sylvia was in Paul's embrace, and her head was on his shoulder. Beecot had his arm in a sling and looked pale, but his eyes were as bright as ever, and his face shone with happiness. Sylvia also looked happy. To know that she was rich, that Paul was to be her husband, filled the cup of her desires to the brim. Moreover, she was beginning to recover from the shock of her father's death and was feverishly anxious to escape from Gwynne street and from the house where the tragedy had taken place.

"Well," said Mr. Pash, drawing a long breath and sucking his cheeks, "you lose no time, young gentleman."

Paul laughed, but did not change his position. Sylvia, indeed, blushed and raised her head, but Paul still held her with his uninjured arm, defying Mr. Pash and all the world. "I am gathering rosebuds while I may, Mr. Pash," said he, misquoting Herrick's charming line.

"You have plucked a very pretty one," grinned the monkey. "But may I request the rosebud's attention?"

Sylvia extricated herself from her lover's arm, with a heightened color, and nodded gravely.

"I wish Mr. Beecot to listen in any case," continued Pash dryly, "if he is to marry my young and esteemed client."

"We are engaged with the consent of my poor father," said Sylvia, taking Paul's hand. "I shall marry no one but Paul."

"The will," Pash said, looking at the writing, "consists of a few lines. It leaves all the property of the testator to 'my daughter.'"

"Your daughter!" screamed Deborah. "Why, you ain't married."

"I am reading from the will," snapped Pash, coloring, and read again, "I leave all the real and personal property of which I may die possessed to my daughter."

"Sylvia Norman!" cried Deborah, hugging her darling.

"There you are wrong," corrected Pash, folding up the so called will, "the name of Sylvia isn't mentioned."

"Does that make any difference?" asked Paul quietly.

"No. Miss Norman is an only daughter, I believe."

"And an only child," said Deborah, "so that's all right. My pretty, you will have them jewels and five thousand a year."

"Oh, Paul, what a lot of money!" cried Sylvia, appalled. "Whatever will we do with it all?"

"Why, marry and be happy, of course," said Paul, rejoicing not so much on account of the money, although that was acceptable, but because this delightful girl was all his very, very own.

"The question is," said Mr. Pash, who had been reflecting and now reproduced the will from his pocket, "as to the name?"

"What name?" asked Sylvia, and Deborah echoed the question.

Sylvia looked amazed; Deborah uttered her usual ejaculation "Lor!" but Paul's expression did not change. He considered that this was all of a piece with the murder and the mystery of the opal brooch. Undoubtedly Mr. Lemuel Krill, alias Aaron Norman, must have had good reason to change his name and to exhibit terror at the sight of the brooch. And the reason he dreaded, whatever it might be, had been the cause of his mysterious and tragic death. But Paul said nothing of these thoughts, and there was silence for a few minutes.

Paul addressed the lawyer. "I know little about the legal aspect of this affair, but I should like to know if there will be any difficulty in proving it?"

"I don't think so. I have not gone through all the safes below and may come across the marriage certificate of Miss Krill's—I beg pardon, Miss Norman's—mother and father. Then there's the birth certificate. We must prove that Miss Sylvia is the daughter of my late esteemed client."

"What'd that?" shouted Deborah. "Why, I knowed her mother as died. She's the daughter right enough, and"—

"There's no need to shout," chattered Pash angrily. "I know that as well as you do. I must act, however, as reason dictates. I'll prove the will and see that all is right." Then, dreading Deborah's tongue, he hastily added, "Good day," and left the room. But he was not to escape so easily. Deborah plunged after him and made scathing remarks about legal manners all the way down to the door.

Paul and Sylvia, left alone, looked and smiled and fell into one another's arms. The will had been read and the money left to the girl, thereby the future was all right, so they thought that Pash's visit demanded no further attention.

"I tell you what, Sylvia," said Paul reflectively, "after this will business is settled and a few weeks have elapsed we can marry."

"Marry me next month," persisted Paul. "You can't stop here in this dull house, and it will be awkward for you to go about with Deborah, faithful though she is. No, darling, let us marry, and then we shall go abroad for a year or two until all this sad business is forgotten. Then I hope by that time to become reconciled to my father, and we can visit Wargrove."

Sylvia reflected. She saw that Paul was right, as her position was really very difficult. She knew of no lady who would chaperon her, and she had no relative to act as such. Certainly Deborah could be a chaperon, but she was not a lady, and Pash could be a guardian, but he was not a relative. Paul as her husband would be able to protect her and to look after the property, which Sylvia did not think she could do herself. These thoughts made her consent to an early marriage.

"You are an angel," Paul said, embracing her. "But there's one thing we must do"—and his voice became graver—"we must see Pash and offer a reward for the discovery of the person who killed your father. I suggest that we offer a reward of £500 for the discovery of the murderer of Lemuel Krill."

PAUL'S reason for advertising the name of Lemuel Krill was a very natural one. He believed that in the past of the dead man was to be found his reason for changing his name and living in Gwynne street. And in that past, before he became a secondhand bookseller and a secret pawnbroker, might be found the motive for the crime. Therefore, if a reward was offered for the discovery of the murderer of Lemuel Krill, alias Aaron Norman, something might come to light relative to the man's early life. Once that was known the clew might be obtained. Then the truth would surely be discovered. He explained this to Hurd.

"I think you're right, Mr. Beecot," said the detective in his genial way and looking as brown as a coffee bean. "But now that business is ended and you know what you are to do, will you tell me plainly why you warned me against Grexon Hay?"

"To be particular, Hay is one of those well dressed blackguards who live on mugs. He has no money"—

"I beg your pardon, he told me himself that his uncle had left him a thousand a year."

"Pooh! He might as well have doubled the sum and increased the value of the lie. He hasn't a penny. What he did have he got through pretty quickly in order to buy his experience. Now that he is hard up he practices on others what was practiced on himself. Hay is well bred, good looking, well dressed and plausible. He has well furnished rooms and keeps a valet. He goes into rather shady society, as decent people, having found him out, won't have anything to do with him. But he is a card sharper and a fraudulent company promoter. He'll borrow money from any Juggins who is soft enough to lend it to him. He haunts Piccadilly, Bond street and the Burlington arcade and is always smart and bland and fascinating. If he sees a likely victim he makes his acquaintance in a hundred ways and then proceeds to fleece him. In a word, Mr. Beecot, you may put it that Mr. Hay is Captain Hawk, and those he swindles are pigeons."

Paul was quite startled by this revelation, and it was painful to hear of an old school friend. "He does not look like a man of that sort," he remonstrated.

A BOWL OF BITTER TEA.

Himalayan Hospitality in a Snow Enveloped Hovel.

In spite of a poverty which limits their good intentions the inhabitants of central and south central Asia display a charming hospitality. Such, at least, is the impression gained from Mr. Ellsworth Huntington's book, "The Pulse of Asia."

At Matayan, a village in the province of Ladakh, the habitable portion of the upper Indus valley, a friendly villager invited Mr. Huntington to dive down from the crust which covered eight or ten feet of snow into a one story house. This was at an elevation of 10,500 fee'

Although it was April 11, the snow, even on a level, was higher than the tops of the houses. Where it had been shoveled off the flat roofs it formed high banks, protecting them from the wind and making them the favorite sitting room at that season and even in winter, for the sunshine is always warm in that dry, cloudless climate.

When the little black cows had been driven and pulled out of the way Mr. Huntington descended to an almost closed shed used for the two or three hardy sheep and goats and was ushered, stooping, into a dark stable containing a little pony, shaggy, like all the animals. Bending low once more, he climbed over a high sill and was in the warm, close family living room.

Light and air came in through a hole in the roof a foot square surmounted by a chimney pot a foot high, made of three stones set up to keep out the snow. A few bits of ragged cloth on the mud floor for sleeping purposes, a half dozen metal utensils and an iron pot full of Himalayan tea, kept warm over some embers, comprised all the visible equipment for housekeeping.

After the host had persuaded Mr. Huntington to take a seat on the floor a half palsied old woman insisted upon ladling out for him a bowl of tea. It was surprisingly good in view of the fact that a poor grade of tea leaves had been steeped half an hour or more with milk, butter, salt and soda. In richer houses Mr. Huntington was often served with tea which had been improved by being churned violently in a slender, greasy black churn, twenty inches long by four in diameter, in order to mix the rancid butter well into the compound before it was turned into the drinking bowls.

The Antique She Bought.

In Cologne a few blocks from the great cathedral there is a little shop where one may buy old books, prints and curios of all kinds. An American tourist and his daughter bought some trinkets there a few months ago and were leaving the place when a little, apparently antique crucifix attracted the attention of the girl. She examined it, found that it was bronze, somewhat corroded, and was told that it was "very old." The emblem was purchased and brought home with other souvenirs of the voyage, and last week the evidences of antiquity were removed when the bronze was polished. The owners were surprised to find on the reverse side, scratched with a sharp point, "S. C." and parts of another indistinguishable letter and under these the words, "New York."—New York Tribune.

Guests Fix the Price.

According to a publication devoted to the interests of hotel keepers, a novel scheme is to be tried by a boniface who, to quote his advertisement, possesses "a house of the first order—modern comforts, central heating, exquisite French cooking, superb view."

The proprietor will fix no prices either for the rooms or meals, and visitors only have to call at the office before their departure and pay "according to their judgment, conscience and sense of equity."

The new scheme will have a year's trial.—London Cable to New York Times.

Camp For Wolf Hunters.

The wolf hunters who recently returned to Montreal from the wilds about Kippawa, Que., caught two poisoned wolves and one Canadian lynx, says a Montreal despatch to The New York Sun. The hunters say that weather conditions were against them, the snow not being sufficiently deep or the weather cold enough. However, the members had a good outing.

A result of the excursion will be the establishment of a permanent camp in Algonquin park for the special purpose of wolf hunting during the cold period. This camp, L. O. Armstrong says, will be established next autumn and operated through out the winter.

Weak Women

To weak and ailing women, there is at least one way to help. But with that way, two treatments must be combined. One is local, one is constitutional, but both are important, both essential. Dr. Shoop's Night Cure is the Local.

Dr. Shoop's Restorative, the Constitutional.

The former—Dr. Shoop's Night Cure—is a topical mucous membrane suppository remedy, while Dr. Shoop's Restorative is wholly an internal treatment. The Restorative reaches throughout the entire system, making the repair of all nerve, all tissue, and all blood ailments.

The "Night Cure", as its name implies, does its work while you sleep. It soothes sore and inflamed mucous surfaces, heals local weaknesses and discharges, while the Restorative, eases nervous excitements, gives renewed vigor and ambition, builds up wasted tissues, bringing about renewed strength, vigor, and energy. Take Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—as a general tonic to the system. For positive local help, use as well

The system becomes contaminated with poisons that destroy vitality and leave the body prey to disease.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills cause the liver to throw off its bile, the, flush out the stomach and bowels, purify the blood and free the entire system of all disease-producing matter.

Colds, rheumatism, the aches and pains of winter ills are swept away. Every injured tissue is repaired, every weak spot is strengthened, and highly vitalized blood which Dr. Hamilton's Pills so abundantly make, is a guarantee of freedom from sickness of any kind.

CURED COLDS AND RHEUMATISM

Mr. John Whatley, of Seanwood, P. O., Ont., knows the merit of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and says. "I wouldn't be alive today had it not been for Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Last winter I was sick with grippe, and when spring came I was weak, bilious and rheumatic. I used enough medicine to cure twenty times, but I didn't get any help till I tried Dr. Hamilton's Pills. They purified my blood, took the yellow color out of my face, put new tone in my stomach, and increased my appetite. The bilious attacks and rheumatic pains gradually departed, and Dr. Hamilton's Pills made a new man of me. I proved their merit, and proclaim them a medicine for all men."

John Hagley, employed at the brass department of the Canadian General Electric Works on Tuesday evening, received a bad cut on the hand. His thumb was accidentally cut with a knife, which will give him considerable inconvenience. Dr. Young, physician of the works, dressed the injured member.

$100.00 paid by Dr. Shoop for any recent case of Grippe or acute Cold that a 25 cent box of Preventics will not break. How is this for an offer? The Doctor's supreme confidence in these little Candy Cold Cure Tablets—Preventics—is certainly complete. It's a $100 against 25 cents—pretty big odds. And Preventics—remember, contain no quinine, no laxative, nothing harsh nor sickening. Pneumonia would never appear if early colds were always broken. Safe and sure for feverish children. 48 Preventics 25c. All dealers.

He had lived for the past two years at Trent Bridge, where he has a daughter, Mrs. Bridge. He was an expert hunter and trapper.

Took French Leave at Market Office

Some talk was current yesterday about the market weigh scale office concerning a maid who on Tuesday night took the law in his own hands. It seems that shortly after six o'clock a man entered the office and weighed a load of something, and when through, drove away, leaving the gates leading to the scales open. He was seen entering through the south window after he had driven his horse on to the scales. A page of the weigh book was found missing yesterday morning, but no twenty-cent piece left. The market clerk had gone home about six o'clock and this man was evidently in a hurry to get his goods weighed.

Lowest Fines for Selling Liquor

Yesterday morning at 10.30 his worship County Magistrate Geo. Edmison held court in the County Council Chamber. Before the trial opened the first defendant, Henry Smith, a Havelock hotelkeeper was called to the rostrum and had a consultation with the Magistrate and High County Constable Cochrane. Smith was told that a case could easily be proven and that witnesses were present who had sworn that a minor had procured liquor from him. The Magistrate said he would inflict the lowest penalty. The defendant pleaded guilty. Mr Cochrane said he had to prosecute but was willing to have a nominal fine imposed as it was Smith's first offence. The defendant told the Magistrate he himself did not sell the liquor but his Worship said if the bar tender supplied the liquor, the proprietor was responsible. Smith pleaded guilty, without the case being tried and got the lowest fine, $10 with $6.35 costs.

On Tuesday evening three other Havelock men saw the Magistrate and pleaded guilty to the same offence. They were each fined $10 and costs.

Local Lady Scared by a Burglar

A few days ago a young lady of this city, who is practising her profession as professional nurse in New York city, had an extremely unpleasant adventure. The lady in question is nursing a sick baby in a house just next to the mansion of Mr. Andrew Carnegie, the steel trust multi-millionaire. About three o'clock in the morning [illegible] her patient was sleeping and in other careful hands, the young lady was at rest. After taking a short sleep she awoke with undoubtable sensation of "feeling" that some one was in the room. Without turning on her light she listened for a time and then fell asleep again. Once more she awoke and again thought some one was near her. She became very frightened, in fact, almost to the point of screaming, but lay quietly listening. Still as nothing was audible with any degree of certainty, the nurse, at last fell asleep, only awaking at her usual hour in the morning. It transpired next morning that a burglar had been through the house next door, that of Mr. Carnegie, where he stole $1,500 worth of silverware and jewellery. After robbing Mr. Carnegie's house, the thief had broken into the house where the Peterborough lady was nursing and had evidently, as shown by missing articles, been through the whole place, including the room where the nurse slept. In this latter house he only stole some small amount of silverware, and had evidently been frightened away before taking more. He entered through a pantry window off the kitchen, which he had forced with a jimmy and left the same way. It was proven next morning that he had been and watched a light carried by the nurse, whilst passing through the house on her professional duties. The lady's name, by request, is omitted.

children as they could reach, but were forced to see many die beyond their aid.

The doors and windows were packed with terrified little ones, whose panic left them helpless to escape. Many children descended the fire escapes, but feared to jump on reaching the bottom. These were pulled down to make room for others.

PARENTS RAVED AND CURSED.

Fearful scenes were enacted around the burning school house. Fathers and mothers raved, cursed or prayed. Many tried to break through the crowd, and some got far enough to dash towards the flaming doorways. One big man in overalls and jumper was restrained by force. Explaining in broken English that his "kinder" were in the building, he struggled desperately with the three men who held him. Finally they threw him to the ground, and sat on him, forcing his great form down in the ankle deep mud.

The building was completely destroyed, only the outside brick walls remaining standing. The floors and roof fell into the interior early in the fire, making the rescue of intact bodies absolutely hopeless.

BODIES INCINERATED.

As soon as firemen and volunteers could get close enough attempts were made to pluck bodies from the death traps at the doors. It was found that the flames had practically incinerated the bodies.

Miss Anna Moran, principal of the school, who escaped, says that the children made a mad rush for the door as soon as the alarm of fire was sounded, but were driven back by the choking smoke. Later the flames prevented their escape.

The Pacific Fruit Cooling and Vaporizing Company, Incorporated, for the purpose of cooling deciduous fruits and removing moisture from citrus fruits and keeping under cold storage such fruits and other food products from the time of receiving them from the fruit growers until loaded on car and taken away by the Railroad Company for Eastern shipment

The loss in shipping deciduous and citrus fruits is enormous. The orange crop of Southern California alone is valued at $30,000,000. The government experts estimate that about 25 per cent. or $7,500,000, is lost every year by rough handling in packing and decay of fruit in transit to the Eastern markets. What a revenue of profit this loss would be to the shipper if it could be saved. Our process will save it. The same is true of the deciduous fruits of Northern California.

GREAT FORTUNES ARE MADE BY INVESTING IN NECESSITIES

Fruit is one of the necessities of our civilized life, and the company that can place the fruit in the markets of the world in the best shape, in the quickest time, at the lowest rate, has a fortune within its grasp. The Armour Company in ten years made $5,000,000 net handling California fruit in refrigerator cars. Our process is as necessary to the fruit grower as the refrigerator car. Therefore we ought to receive as large a revenue for handling the same commodity.

GET IN WHILE THE ENTERPRISE IS NEW

No wiser words were ever spoken than these: "The chief point about getting rich is to invest in a new enterprise that is being managed by successful men, who have some of their own money in the deal." "One good investment is worth a lifetime of labor". Think over this sentence. A man's daily labor will never make him rich. He must have some money at work for him. Money invested never gets sick, keeps no holidays, never goes on strike. There are three things that ought to abide you: First, invest with honest men; second, invest with men of sound judgment; third, invest under conditions where you get your full share of profits the business yields. Get into a company whose destiny is guided by men of this stamp when its future is before and not behind it. Here is the secret of fortune. Plant the seed of your investment in the soil of opportunity, at the season of greatest promise when the enterprise is new. Every ounce of donor in the hearts of the men managing this company is pledged to give.

A SQUARE DEAL FOR EVERY INVESTO

There will be no preferred stock. Every dollar invested will be worth 100 cents on the dollar. Our Directors, an honourable business men, will not allow any tricks of trade by which the small investor can be frozen out. Their commercial standing proves they are not "grafters". The poor man's 500 or 100 shares will have the same standing in court as the rich man's 10,000, and they will draw the same proportionate dividend. We court investigation.

EVERY RICH MAN IN THE WORLD WAS ONCE POOR, OR HIS GRANDFATHER WAS.

THE OPPORTUNITY OF A LIFETIME

To get into a company that has the certainty of growth, the assurance of large and quick returns, a rapid advance in the price of stock, to make it an exceptional chance for big profits on a small investment. This is an ideal investment for the wage earner as well as the rich man. Moderate sums invested now will bring splendid returns in the near future. The logic of all this is

DON'T WAIT

Time is the essence of this proposition. The stock will certainly double in a short time. Jay Gould once said: "When you see a good investment don't wait to see if it pass out well, for by that time other people see it, too, and you have lost your opportunity."

WOMEN AS INVESTORS

Some of the heaviest stockholders in our company are women of keen business instincts. One lady in Los Angeles bought 5,000 shares. In a few days she returned and bought 5,000 more. This lady has never made a mistake in her business ventures. Women are good investors because they have courage to follow their convictions. Their intuitions are keener and truer than man's logic. Men may prevent her voting, but they can't prevent her drawing dividends on her investments. This is one branch of trade where sex, culture, or color does not count.

MANAGEMENT

The affairs of this company are in the hands of men of honesty, ability, courage and good business judgment—men who have made a success of their own business—men whose business reputation is A1 in the commercial circles in which they move.

These men are "squares" and "shrewd". They will not deceive you nor will they be deceived themselves. Because of the promise of growth, permanency and profit this business offers they have united their money, energy, time and business experience to make this enterprise a grand success.

JAPS ARE TRYING TO BULLY CHINA-- FLAG LOWERED

Refuses to Let British Admiral Act as Arbitrator in Dispute--Unconditional Surrender

Pekin, March 5.—Japan is threatening force to recover the Japanese steamer Tatsu Maru, which is still retained by China at Huang Pu, on the Wen River. This vessel was seized at Macao Feb. 7, by Chinese customs officers, on the charge that the cargo for arms and ammunition was intended for Chinese revolutionists, although consigned to a merchant of that place. The cargo of the vessel is still on board. Chang Jen Chun, Viceroy of Canton, before taking action, is said to be awaiting proof that the vessel and its cargo should not be confiscated.

The coercion of China is feared here on account of the weakness of the Government and because of the doubtful legality of Chang Jen Chun's action in seizing the Japanese steamer.

WHAT JAPAN DEMANDS.

Baron Hayashi, the Japanese Minister to China, yesterday handed to the Chinese Government Japan's refusal to accept China's proposal to appoint a joint Japanese and Chinese commission to examine all the charges; to the meantime releasing the Tatsu Maru under bonds. Japan's demands are: First, the unconditional release of the vessel, and second, an arrangement to protect the shippers from loss. This second provision means that China must buy the cargo on board the Tatsu Maru.

To-day China proposed arbitration by Vice-Admiral Sir Arthur William Moore, commander in chief of the British-China station, but Japan refused these overtures also, and has warned the Foreign Board that such proposals are unwelcome. She again expressed her desire for the release of the vessel, failing which she said she would take the necessary steps to secure this release.

Japan resents only the fact that Chang Jen Chun's soldiers boarded the Tatsu Maru and hauled down the Japanese flag, when, according to the Japanese, the steamer was waiting off Macao for a turn of the tide. The steamer's papers show that she was on her way to Macao. Subsequently, Chang Jen Chun, claiming authority under a former treaty between China and Portugal (Macao is a Portuguese dependency), had the vessel arrested in Macao waters. This is according to the Viceroy's statement, but whether the steamer was actually in Macao waters or not is doubtful.

STOPPED A COMPROMISE.

It is understood that the Pekin authorities would have released the Tatsu Maru because of the reasonable basis as to the legality of the Viceroy's proceedings coupled with the unrest of Japan, provided that Japan would make no claim for indemnity, but it is contended here strongly Chang Jen Chun prevented this course.

China believes that she has fully established her charge of violation of neutrality by reports that have come in here showing arrests of other vessels for carrying contraband cargo in the same waters where the Tatsu Maru was seized, and over which the maritime customs have jurisdiction.

Up to the present time the Chinese and Japanese authorities have failed utterly to come to an agreement on even the principles of a settlement of this question.

JAPAN SELLING RUSSIAN RIFLES

The internal question in the Liang Kuang district also is threatening. There is chronic rebellion continually fed by an active trade in contraband rifles and ammunition, in which various foreigners are taking part.

It is understood that Japan has decided to sell the arms and ammunition captured from the Russians during the late war, and that she has handed over to shippers for the Chinese market no less than 80,000 rifles.

Another thing that is distressing the Pekin Government is the alleged wholesale counterfeiting by Japanese of the paper currency of China, which has debased the copper coinage.

Bank Clerks Attacked by Hoodlums

A disgraceful row took place on George street between midnight Wednesday and one o'clock yesterday morning. The scrap took place a few doors south of the Kennedy meat market on the east side of George street. It seems that some local bank clerks who had been spending the evening at some friend's house decided to enter the Chinese restaurant for a lunch before going home to bed. Some hoodlums standing across the street on the pavement began to hurl insulting remarks, including most blasphemous and filthy words, to the bankers. One of the latter answered the hoodlums, whereupon the latter crossed the street and proceeded to assault the bankers. In defence, the latter had to put up a fight. The row lasted for nearly an hour, but strange to say was not heard by the police. Eye-witnesses to the affair say that the attack was entirely unprovoked, and that, apart from the fight which ensued, the hoodlums should have been run in for the language they used on the public street alone.

"There's a Reason"

Husband is Held on the Charge of Neglect

Tweed, March 5.—The coroner's inquest into the death of Mrs. Dick Lindsay was concluded at Bridgewater late last night. They found that the unfortunate woman had died while giving birth to twins, and they recommend that the husband be held on a charge of criminal neglect.

Twenty witnesses were heard by Crown Attorney Anderson of Belleville, who conducted the inquiry, and evidence was put in that Lindsay had not even provided necessaries for his wife during her sickness, and that he was away from home at the time of her death.

Lindsay, in his own defence, said that he did not think his wife was so ill, and that he had planned to secure a rig and take her into Bridgewater to see a doctor, and that she had died while he was away on this errand.

The jury did not agree with this view of the matter, and had Lindsay brought before Magistrate James of Bridgewater, who remanded the prisoner to Tweed jail until Saturday in order that he could secure legal advice.

Little Child Badly Bitten by Bull Dog

On Wednesday as Teresa, the five year old daughter of Mr. Frank Larone, Victoria avenue, was passing along the street, a vicious bull dog, belonging to a man living on the same street, snapped at her and inflicted a deep cut in one of her hands. The child screamed loudly and some persons who were in the vicinity came to her assistance. Dr. McNulty was called and put several stitches in the cut. The child suffered great pain, but was better yesterday. The dog will, or anyway, should be destroyed.

Will Present System be Changed?

Editor Times:

Sir,—I see that the Hattney Government has practically decided to reduce the price of school books from twenty to seventy per cent. below current prices. Should the Ontario Government really do this, will it make any difference to the pockets of those children attending the schools here? Under the system in vogue here the father of a large family has to pay a fixed price per month for school supplies, including books and very indifferent lead pencils, etc., instead of the younger children being able to use the books used by their elder brothers or sisters. If the Government does reduce the prices of books as promised, surely the Board of Education will either charge less per month or change the plan for children's supplies to the old, and I think, cheaper system.

FATHER OF FIVE.

POLICE

It has been decided by His Worship, Magistrate Dumble, that the little girl, Lily Armitage, although only fourteen years old, is incorrigible and beyond parental control. This girl, it will be remembered, figured prominently in a most unsavory police court case, and has herself been before the magistrate on several occasions. The girl has now been given a term not exceeding four years in the Alexandra Reform School at Toronto by Magistrate Dumble. His Worship deemed it the only advisable thing was to send her away.

At yesterday's police court a boy named John Lasure pleaded guilty to stealing eleven dollars and a revolver from James Lasure and eight dollars from Arthur Lasure on Wednesday.

The Lasure brothers called at the police station on Wednesday evening, asking that the money be recovered. The boy was arrested on Water street by P. C. Newhall. He told several conflicting stories regarding the money, but two of his companions gave him away, telling where the money could be found. P. C. Meharry found fifteen dollars and three tickets to Port Hope concealed under a Parnell street sidewalk. The money was taken from trunks and the three youths had intended to leave for Port Hope.

His Worship allowed him to go on suspended sentence, but said that as the two brothers had treated the court with disrespect by not attending, they would have to pay the costs, $3, to be paid in three days.

Death of Mrs Thomas Wood

The many friends of Mrs. Thomas Wood will regret to learn of her death, which occurred in Nicholls Hospital on Thursday, March 5th, at the age of 58 years.

The funeral will leave the family residence, Benafort, on Sunday, at 10.30 Interment in Benafort Cemetery.

MANY CHILDREN DIED A FOOT FROM ABSOLUTE SAFETY

Children Became Wedged in Front Vestibule Because Only One-Half of Door was Open --165 Known to be Dead

Cleveland, March 5.—At six o'clock 168 bodies had been recovered from the ruins of the Lakeview school at Collingwood. The exact number of fatalities from yesterday's conflagration is not known, but is expected to reach 180. Firemen are still at work in the expectation of extracting more victims from the smouldering wreckage.

So far 112 of the slain have been identified, but it is generally admitted that few of the others will be distinguished one from the other. Their names can be ascertained from the list of missing, but which is a mystery that will probably never be solved. The arrangements for a great public funeral are being rapidly perfected. This will likely take place to-morrow or Saturday.

County Coroner Dr. T. A. Burke began an investigation to-day of the cause leading to the terrible loss of life in the burning of the school building, this work being supplementary to the investigation by the Board of Education and Village Council. So far no definite conclusion as to the cause of the fire or where to place the blame, has been reached.

TRY TO KILL JANITOR.

The janitor, although he is largely cleared, has been made to bear the major portion of the blame. Yesterday one father, crazed by his grief, even made an attempt upon his life, and Hurter is now being guarded by the police.

Brandon Leads by Asking Pupils to Help Reclaim Battlefield

Canadian Clubs Get Busy but Public Has Not Yet Been Much Interested

Buy Plains of Abraham

Port Arthur, March 5.—The Canadian Club of Port Arthur has passed a resolution endorsing the idea of creating a national park of the Plains of Abraham at Quebec. James Conmee, M.P., was appointed delegate to act with the central committee of Canadian Clubs at Ottawa for the furtherance of the project. Local sentiment is very strong in support of it, and it is likely at the next meeting of the Canadian Club something material will be done in the way of aiding it.

FUND OPEN AT BRANDON.

Brandon, Man., March 5.—The tercentenary celebration and the scheme for the creation of a national park of the Quebec battlefields are heartily favored here. The School Board on Tuesday night approved of the suggestion of Principal White for a school children's fund of five cents each. If all avail themselves of the chance there are fifteen hundred. A subscription list has also been opened to all the citizens of Brandon, and the different boards are invited to assist. Local promoters of the scheme are confident that Brandon will respond in a substantial manner to the request.

SOME CASH FORWARDED.

Edmonton, March 5.—Sentiment here is very strong in favor of the scheme to nationalize the Plains of Abraham and other battlefields. The Canadian Club of Edmonton has taken the lead and guaranteed to furnish five hundred dollars towards the project, one hundred of which have already been forwarded to Ottawa.

REGINA TO DO ITS PART.

Regina, March 5.—While local sentiment is undoubtedly in favor of a national scheme in connection with the Plains of Abraham, no definite steps have so far been taken in respect of material assistance. An effort is being made to induce William Whyte to address the newly organized Canadian Club on the subject at an early date.

CLUB IS MOVING.

Saskatoon, March 5.—Regarding the Plains of Abraham national park scheme the matter has been taken up here by the Canadian Club, but the committee has not yet reported.

She was married to the late George Johnston, for many years chief of police of this city, in the year 1851. She went to California with Mrs. Wallace in the year 1888.

Mrs. Johnston leaves to mourn her loss one daughter, Mrs. W. J. Wallace, and two grandchildren, Charles and Mina, of Detroit, children of the late Sidney Johnston.

Mrs. Edward Green is a sister of Mrs. Johnston.

City Temperance League Met

A public meeting of the City Temperance League was held at eight o'clock last night at the Y. M. C. A., Rev. J. G. Potter, president of the league, occupying the chair. Reports of the representatives to the Alliance Convention were read by Rev. A. H. Bruce and others. An interesting musical programme was given.

COLONIZATION OF THE GREAT WEST

Montreal, Feb. 5.—A large block of land in Alberta, known as the "Irrigation Block," and containing in all three millions of acres, which is expected in time to support a population of two hundred thousand people.

Such is the present idea of the Canadian Pacific Railway, which is now at work on a big project of colonization for this part of the West, and on which they are expending a large sum of money in order to make this land one of the best farming districts of the west.

Mr. John S. Dennis, the Commissioner of Irrigation of the company, is in Montreal at the present time, and at the C. P. R. offices this morning gave a reporter some interesting information regarding the work that is now in progress in Alberta.

The work, which was started about a year ago, includes the irrigating of a million and a half acres of land in the block. This will take some ten years to finish, and from this statement an idea of the immensity of the project may be gained. Last year some three hundred and sixty-five miles of canals and ditches were constructed, and it is expected that before the end of the present season the mileage will be over seven hundred, while the ultimate total will be over three thousand.

This land is being sold to settlers in blocks of one hundred acres and already a large number of people have taken up sections. The irrigated land in the area is sold at about twenty-five dollars an acre, while that not improved in this way brings from eight to fifteen dollars. The settler can pay for it by the instalment plan in from six to ten payments.

Last year a large number of settlers came into this country, some from the United States and many more from the British Islands and other parts of Europe.

EUROPEANS ARE INTERESTED.

At the present time there is in the country a delegation of Dutch farmers, who are looking over the land and the possibilities are that a colony of the thrifty Dutch farmers will come over and settle there in the near future. Delegations are also expected shortly from Denmark and from German Poland. The company maintains immigration offices in Europe, where the advantages of the country are pointed out to the prospective settler.

Mr. Dennis states that the outlook is that the number of new settlers who will come into the country during the coming season will be even larger than that of last year. Many are preparing to come from the United States, some of whom have already had experience in working irrigated land. The total area taken up at present is about four hundred and fifty thousand acres and last fall fifteen or sixteen thousand acres were broken ready for the putting in of a crop this spring.

TOWNS RAPIDLY GROWING.

It is estimated that the irrigible land will support fifteen thousand farmers, and the non-irrigible three thousand. This with the population of the towns that are now in the district, and that are rapidly growing would give the block a population of two hundred thousand. Calgary is the principal town in the district now, while there are many other smaller places where there are now or soon will be elevators and facilities for shipping.

The Province of Alberta is considering the question of establishing a Provincial Agricultural College, and the C. P. R. has offered to donate the land if it is built in this section. Mr. Dennis states that the irrigible land will grow crops that the ordinary land will not. Among these is alfalfa, the sugar beet and malt barley, and he says that three-fourths of the food-stuffs of the world are now grown on irrigated land, a fact that foretells the great future that is coming for this country.

Port Hope Gas Co. Found Itself Without Incorporation

Toronto, March 6.—Port Hope has a gas company, which isn't a company, and the town owns the built of the capital stock therein.

Away back in 1857, on Feb. 26, of that year, the Port Hope Gas Company was incorporated for half a century. That half century elapsed last year. The original charter, it seems, has been long since lost. The early books have gone, too. At any rate, nobody noticed that the charter had expired. Nobody though about it. Then the fact came out by accident, and the company, in which the town owns 678 1-2 shares, learned to its dismay that it has been doing business since Feb. 26, 1907, without a charter.

There was considerable doubt as to how to proceed. It was feared that if a new application for a charter were to be made, the town's shares in the concern would be wiped out. Finally, it was decided to ask the Legislature to revivify the old company, and legalize its transactions since the charter expired. This decision resulted in a bill which Mr. Preston of Durham introduced in the Private Bills Committee of the Legislature this morning.

The Canada Life

Its Operations were Successful in 1907

The fluctuations in securities last year have had an undoubted effect on the statements of the life companies, as market values at the end of the year were abnormally low. However, after adjusting securities to these abnormal values, the Canada Life was still able to show a substantial increase in surplus for the year, and an increase in assets to the extent of $1,715,000.00. The total funds now held on policyholders' account aggregate $33,905,431.25.

The report points out that the intrinsic values of securities owned by the company are materially greater than those shown, and as the company is under no necessity to part with them at unfavorable prices the increase in value to which their worth entitles them will later on be enjoyed by the policyholders. In the meantime their interest-earning power is in no wise affected.

The new business for the company for 1907 was eminently satisfactory. The policies paid for aggregate $10,491,332.00, thus being an increase of about $280,000.00 over the previous year. The total business of the Canada Life now stands at $117,581,827.00 and nearly half of this is valued by the stringent 3 per cent. reserve table. The balance of $61,725,763.00 being valued by the 3 1-2 per cent. table. This, the report states, enables the company to take rank as to relative strength among the leading life offices of the British Empire.

The income of the year, $5,059,794, was greater than that of 1906 by $140,060.00. At the same time the expense ratio was reduced and the percentage of lapsed policies was also less.

Taking it altogether, both policyholders and shareholders of the Canada Life have good reason for congratulation as to the outcome of its operation in the year just closed, and now that the unrest as to proposed legislation has nearly subsided there seems every prospect of still greater gains in the year on which they have just entered.

Four Persons Killed By Building Collapse

Chicago, March 5.—The coroner's office has been notified that four persons have been killed in the collapse of a building at 936 North Leavitt street to-day. Ambulances are on their way to the scene.

Respected Citizen Has Passed Away

Death of Mr. J. L. Hughes in the Nichols Hospital

Peterborough has lost one of her oldest and most respected citizens in the person of Mr. James Louis Hughes, 301 Park street, who passed away Wednesday night in the Nichols Hospital. He has been ailing for some months past, but was not thought seriously ill until last Saturday when he took a turn for the worse. Unfortunately the illness that has been troubling him became acute and he was removed to the hospital, only to die Wednesday night between 11 and 12 o'clock, at the age of 75 years.

The deceased was born in Prince Edward county, near Picton, and later on moved to Port Hope, where he was married to Miss Mary Smith, who predeceased him by about two years. Mr. Hughes in 1862 removed to Peterborough, where he has been an honored and useful citizen. He was a builder by trade and built many bridges and stations on the old Midland Railway. He was also concerned in the erection of many of the more important buildings of Peterborough, including the old Drill Shed, George Street Methodist Church and many of the present structures on George street. Mr. Hughes always took a warm interest in the welfare of the town. The little triangular park at the intersection of Downie, Charlotte and Park streets, was presented by him to the city, after he, by his own personal care and work, had brought it to its present state of beauty. He retired from active business some years ago. Mr. Hughes was a member of the Town Council for two terms, and for a time a member of the Board of Education.

Mr. Hughes leaves behind him to mourn his loss a family of five sons and three daughters. The sons are Andrew Sloan Hughes, British Columbia; Fred Hughes, Spokane, Washington; James Franklin Hughes, Butte, Mont.; E. Howard Hughes, Montreal, and Gordon Bruce Hughes, Peterborough. The daughters are Minnie, Mrs. Rev. R. W. Sharp, Edmonton, Alta.; Lizzie, Mrs. J. Colin Grant, Toronto, and Ada, Mrs. W. T. Spencer, Marshall, Texas.

In religion the late Mr. Hughes was a Methodist, he having been a member of that church from the age of twenty years. He was associated with the George Street Methodist Church till the establishment of the Charlotte Street Church, of which he was a consistent member.

The funeral will take place from the family residence, 304 Park St., to-morrow afternoon, March 7th. Service at the house at 2.30. Funeral at 3.30. Interment in Little Lake Cemetery.

The Story of a Medicine.

Its name—"Golden Medical Discovery" was suggested by one of its most important and valuable ingredients — Golden Seal root.

Nearly forty years ago, Dr. Pierce discovered that he could, by the use of pure, triple-refined glycerine, aided by a certain degree of constantly maintained heat and with the aid of apparatus and appliances designed for that purpose, extract from our most valuable native medicinal roots their curative properties much better than by the use of alcohol, so generally employed. So the now world-famed "Golden Medical Discovery," for the cure of weak stomach, indigestion, or dyspepsia, torpid liver, or biliousness and kindred derangements was first made, as it ever since has been, without a particle of alcohol in its make-up.

A glance at the full list of its ingredients, printed on every bottle-wrapper, will show that it is made from the most valuable medicinal roots found growing in our American forests. All these ingredients have received the Hearty Endorsement from the leading medical writers and practitioners in all the several schools of practice, who recommend them as the very best remedies for the diseases for which "Golden Medical Discovery" is advised.

A little book of these endorsements has been compiled by Dr. R. V. Pierce of Buffalo, N. Y., and will be mailed free to any one asking same by postal card, or letter addressed to the Doctor as above. From these endorsements, copied from standard medical books of all the different schools of practice, it will be found that the ingredients composing the "Golden Medical Discovery" are advised not only for the cure of the above mentioned diseases, but also for the cure of all catarrhal, bronchial and throat affections accompanied with catarrhal discharges, hoarseness, sore throat, lingering, or hang-on-coughs, and all those lingering affections which, if not promptly and properly treated are liable to terminate in consumption. Take Dr. Pierce's Discovery in time and persevere in its use until you give it a fair trial and it is not likely to disappoint. Too much must not be expected of it. It will not perform miracles. It will not cure consumption in its advanced stages. No medicine will. It will cure the affections that lead up to consumption, if taken in time.

A Frantic Crowd Stood Helpless as Little Ones Perished

Mrs. Kelly, Who Lost Her Little Ones, Describes the Terrible Scene

Piled Almost Breast High

Cleveland, March 5.—The statement that the back door of the Collingwood Public School building was locked was made by Walter C. Kelly, the editor of the sporting and marine departments of the Cleveland Leader, two of whose children were killed.

Mrs. Kelly was one of the first to reach the school house after the start of the fire. She gave a vivid description of the horror.

"As long as I live I will remember the corridor scene that confronted me, the despairing little children, arms outstretched, begging for protection from the awful wall of fire that was sweeping down on them," declared Mrs. Kelly yesterday, as she turned heartbroken from the long line of dead at the improvised morgue where she and her husband were searching for the bodies of their two sons.

Mrs. Kelly was on her way to Willoughby with a contractor whom Mr. and Mrs. Kelly had engaged to build a summer bungalow. Mr. Kelly recently moved into Collingwood and their children had now been long attending the ill-fated school. As Mrs. Kelly was about to cross Collamer avenue, a little girl rushed up to her. "There, school, fire!" was all the breathless and frightened little one could say.

PILED ALMOST BREAST HIGH.

"I took a look at the schoolhouse," said Mrs. Kelly, "saw smoke, and knowing my children were in danger I ran to the building and joined a frantic and screaming crowd of men and women at the rear of the building, who were trying to rescue some of the pupils.

"I pushed my way to the front and found the children jammed in a mass in front of the door. There they stood, arms outstretched, the flames beating down upon their heads and swirling about their bodies.

"They were silent, most of them. The heat had become so intense when I arrived that they were stifling and their agonized screams were stopped still. The outside doors of the vestibule were wide open, but the inner doors were closed. The panels had been broken out, and we could reach through and seize the children. The lower part of the doors were intact, and in back of them, piled almost breast high, were the children. It was terrible to think that we could reach them with our hands, and yet were unable to drag any of them out. The little ones looked up into our faces, and the most appalling agony expressed in their countenances I never will forget. I seized one little girl by the hands and pulled. Her hands were blistered and burned and presented the appearance of raw beefsteak. I exerted all my strength, but she was wedged so fast in the mass of children that her flesh slipped through my hands. Despite every effort, those who were frantically trying to rescue the children failed utterly.

FORCED TO WATCH CREMATION.

"The last of most of the children was burned off, their clothes were afire, their faces, up turned, were glazed over by the furious blast of flame which poured over their heads. With hearts wrung by agony, we were forced back from the door, and stood idly by as the little ones perished. It was awful — a terrible sight. I know that while I stood there trying ineffectually to aid the doomed tots, my Richard was there. I could not see him, but I am sure he saw me."

Late in the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Kelly identified the body of Walter C. Kelly, jr., aged 7, their youngest child. The body of the older boy, Richard Dewey Kelly, 10 years old, also was found at the morgue.

Fitzgerald--Smith

A quiet wedding was solemnized yesterday afternoon at the residence of Mr. Wm. Smith, 80 4th [illegible] avenue, when his daughter, Miss Ettie Halton, was united in marriage to Mr. Clarence Walker Fitzgerald, son of Mr. George Fitzgerald, of this city. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Robt. A. Pogue, in the drawing room in the presence of only the immediate friends and relatives of the contracting parties. After the ceremony a sumptuous repast was partaken of, and hearty congratulations bestowed upon the happy couple.

Mr. and Mrs. Fitzgerald left on the 4.45 train for Vancouver B.C., where they will in future reside.

NAVAL MATTERS

A London despatch says that after Lord Charles Beresford retires from the command of the Channel squadron he will return to the political arena for the purpose of combatting the naval policy of Mr John Fisher. He claims that the condition of the navy is such as to call for a thorough investigation. The despatch says that Lord Charles feels very keenly a letter which has appeared from Lord Esher. The latter is a very close friend of the King, and is perhaps, His Majesty's most trusted adviser on all matters relating to the forces, and although the King cannot constitutionally interfere with the work of the Admiralty, there is a pretty general idea that what Lord Esher says he approves of. Lord Esher declines to admit that there is any need for an inquiry into the state of the navy. It is intimated that his letter was directly inspired by the King, and, however this may be, we are pretty safe in assuming that the views expressed in it are those held by him. Naturally Lord Beresford does not care to be severely criticised by one having such close relations with the King, and it is therefore anticipated that he will take the earliest possible opportunity of placing his views before the people from a place in Parliament.

Lord Charles has been a conspicuous figure ever since that memorable day twenty-five years ago, when, by his gallant conduct at Alexandria he exhibited in splendid fashion the best traditions of the British navy. He holds a warm corner in the British heart, and while his views may be extreme on some points, the general disposition will be to hear what he has to say with at least a very friendly interest. We quote from the despatch referred to the following interesting particulars as to his public career:

Every since he commanded the Condor in the bombardment of Alexandria in 1882 and had charge of the naval forces in the subsequent battles of Abu Klea and Abu Kru, where he won the bronze star of Medjidieh, third class, and was constantly mentioned in Lord Wolseley's despatches for conspicuous gallantry, although ignored by Sir Edward Seymour in his, Lord Charles has been a thorn in the side of the Admiralty. At one time it seemed that he was on the point of realizing his strenuous efforts for naval reform, for, in 1886, in the full time of parliamentary favor due to his achievements in Egypt, he was made a Lord Commissioner of the admiralty. Two years later, however, he was obliged to resign because the recommendations that he had made on "the strength of the fleet" were not complied with. Later he visited China under the auspices of the Associated Chambers of Commerce, and on his return was made commander of the Mediterranean squadron, from which command he retired in 1902 in order to enter Parliament and fight out on the floor of the House of Commons the naval questions he had always had near to his heart.

As a debater, he was not a success and in the following year, having vainly tried to prove to the English people that the Mediterranean squadron, and, in fact, the whole of His Majesty's fleet, was as inefficient and as poorly prepared for hostilities as had been the British Army at the beginning of the South African war, he returned to the service with the intimation of the Admiralty to keep his mouth shut in the future. Such was his popularity and such had been his distinguished services in action, as well as in time of peace, as a naval strategist, however, that the Admiralty did not dare to refuse him the most conspicuous command within its gift, that of the Channel squadron, which was, moreover, his by right of seniority.

THE MAXIM GUN.

Curious Origin of This Terrible Engine of Destruction.

The origin of the Maxim gun was somewhat curious. Mr. Maxim (Sir Hiram) after the close of the great civil war in America was visiting one of the southern battlefields. He picked up a Springfield rifle and began firing at a target. He soon discovered, to his amazement, that his shoulder was all black and blue with the recoil. This set him thinking, and he soon conceived the idea of utilising this force in a gun which would fire automatically.

He went to London full of his idea, but no one would listen to him. In Birmingham the chief man in a factory refused to make a bolt gun.

In despair Mr. Maxim packed up his trunks and went to Paris. In two weeks the work was done. This gun Mr. Maxim exhibited in London in 1885. He spoke of it then as the gun of the future. It is now the gun of the present. It is a wonderful gun and a deadly one. By adjusting the indicator it will fire bullets at any rate from one per minute to 600.

This terrible weapon is started by the firing of the first shot. After that it works itself and will keep going as long as cartridges can be fed into the machine. When one belt of 333 is exhausted, all that is necessary is to hook on another.

When the British government gave an order for the gun they stipulated that it should not weigh more than a hundred pounds and should be capable of firing a thousand rounds in four minutes. Mr. Maxim produced a gun which weighed thirty-five pounds and fired 2,000 rounds in three minutes.

AN IRREGULAR VERB.

One That Made a Frenchman Despair of Learning English.

"What does 'Beat it!' mean?" asked the man of an inquiring frame of mind of his well informed friend.

"Why," was the reply, "that means to go, depart, be off, take your leave, and don't be slow about it. I don't know what it came from unless it is a bit of policeman's slang for 'Get off my beat!' or 'Clear out unless you want me to beat you!'"

"I am reminded of a line in one of Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes' amusing poems, scattered through the pages of his delightful 'Autocrat of the Breakfast Table.' It runs:

"'Depart! Be off! Exceed!
Evade! Evampe!'

But it takes a Latin scholar to discover the derivations of all his verbs of motion.

"There is a story of a Frenchman who on his way to England was made the victim of a practical joke in regard to the verb 'go,' whose 'went,' 'going,' 'gone,' are irregular enough, goodness knows. He was found to be struggling with this variation: 'I go; then departest; he clears out; we cut stick; you make tracks; they abaquatulate,' and as he read it he exclaimed: 'Mercy! What irregular verbs you have in your English language!'"

Getting His Own Back.

An ironworker, having had the worst of an argument with a friend, decided to get even with him.

Waiting, therefore, until his enemy had retired to rest one night, he approached his street door and knocked loudly in order to wake him.

Opening the bedroom window, the other hurriedly inquired what the noise was all about.

"Why," replied the outside one, "one of your windows is wide open."

"Which one?"

"Why, the one you have your head through," chuckled the other as he went away satisfied with the success of his plot.

Must Charge to Get Crowd.

The ladies' guild of an uptown church had planned an evening entertainment and reception and asked the rector to make announcement of it on the Sunday preceding.

"This is all right," he said, "but you must charge admission."

"Why, this is just a social evening," they protested. "We are inviting people."

"They won't come," said the rector, "because they will think it is not worth while. But charge a small admission and you will have a good crowd." So the women gave in, and subsequent events proved the rector was right.

They Made Her.

A grandmother was reproving her little grandchildren for making so much noise.

"Dear me, children, you are so noisy today! Can't you be a little more quiet?"

"Now, grandma, you mustn't scold us. You see, if it wasn't for us, you wouldn't be a grandma at all."

One For Each Life.

"I want a good revolver," began the determined looking man.

"Yes, sir," said the salesman. "Six chambers?"

"Why—er—you'd better make it a nine chamber. I want to use it on a cat next door."—London Express.

A Poor Corner.

When a girl puts a man off by saying she will keep a little place in a corner of her heart for him he may be sure that it is a corner for which she doesn't expect to have much use.

The wholesome green leaves and tender stems of a lung healing mountainous shrub give the curative properties to Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. It calms the cough, and heals the sensitive bronchial membranes. No opium, no chloroform, nothing harsh used to injure or suppress. Demand Dr. Shoop's. Take no other. All dealers.

FINE PRINTS.

Care With Which They Are Treated by Amateurs and Collectors.

How careful collectors and amateurs of fine engravings are of their treasures is illustrated by a written agreement that a local firm of dealers in such things had to sign recently when they wanted to borrow several particularly rare engravings for an exhibition they were to have in their galleries. The owner of the prints insisted that from the time the box in which the prints were sent to the dealers was opened in the shop no hands but those of the junior partner of the firm were to touch them. The owner stipulated expressly that the member of the firm was to take them out of the box, frame them himself, hang them on the walls and when the show was over follow the prints back through these various stages until a porter was ready to screw the cover of the packing box on again. The prints were so rare and fine that the junior partner cheerfully agreed to all of these conditions for the sake of showing the engravings.

That the prints were extremely rare may be appreciated from the fact that before two of them in particular came into the private collector's possession he made a special journey to Stuttgart, Germany, to see them, and when he looked at them he left an open order to a dealer in that city to buy them, no matter what they cost. He got them, but he paid the highest price ever known for such engravings to bring.

CRANKY METAL.

Moods and Mystery That Are Embodied in a Piece of Steel.

A cutlery company will make a hundred razors from the same piece of steel by the same process, and part of the razors will be good and part of them bad. It may be fifty of one kind or seventy-five or twenty-five—nobody knows. The maker doesn't know; the buyer doesn't know. Barbers say that even the price doesn't seem to make much difference. You may get a good razor for a quarter or a bad one for $5. And the same razor will get a contrary edge today, so that you can hardly shave with it, and tomorrow, without additional sharpening, it will work like a charm.

One tap will go on a bolt easily and stay there. Another tap will hardly go on at all. A third may be screwed on tight and snug and yet keep coming off in spite of all that can be done.

Sometimes men that work with machines have a premonition of coming disaster, as do the men that sail on the seas or thread the winding paths of the big woods. Nature as well as pieces of mechanism seems able to communicate to man why they are in a calamitous and threatening mood.

Madrid and Its Climate.

Along the Mediterranean shore Spain presents a narrow ribbon of fertile, delightful country. The region is often called "the garden of Spain."

It is a great contrast to pass from these tropical shores to the wind swept plains of interior Spain. The level country inclosed by the Guadarrama and the Cantabrian mountains forms in the west an extensive wheat growing region. Toward the east as the rainfall decreases pasturage encroaches upon arable culture. In New Castile, on the south of the Guadarrama and in about the center of Spain, the political capital has been placed. The level country in which it has been dropped, as if by accident, is for the most part a waterless plain, swept in winter by the piercing winds from the naked mountains of the north, sweltering in summer under the effect of the sun's rays on bare rock and soil.

The climate of Madrid has been tersely described by its inhabitants as "three months of winter and nine of hades."

Honey Ants.

Certain Mexican ants are selected by their kindred as storehouses of honey. They are fed with honey until the abdomen speedily becomes smooth and round and so filled with honey that the skin is transparent. These ants are doomed to pass the remainder of their lives as mere honey cells, from which their kindred extract the honey when it is required. There are several specimens of these ants in the British museum with the honey still within their transparent bodies. The Mexicans raid the nests of these ants for the sake of the honey that their bodies contain, and the ants are eaten raw as sweetmeats.

The Full Particulars.

The other day a lady who lives in our town entered a grocery store and asked to be shown a good kind of breakfast cereal.

The clerk took down a package and said:

"Madam, this is a predigested food."

"Oh, is that so?" she returned. "And by whom?"

Good For an Appetite.

"You must have a good appetite," remarked the thin man enviously. "What do you take for it?"

"In all my experience," replied the plump one, "I have found nothing more suitable than food."

The Spanish Duchess.

A duchess enters a shop. Do you imagine she will be more courteously received than a little milliner? Not at all, for both are instantly made at home and treated to the nihilgo's finest manner. But she will never be the less a duchess because she and the shopkeeper are on the best of terms. Her unconsciousness of her rank in everyday relations, which would stupefy an English duchess, comes from the fact that she belongs to a prouder race. Had she a mind to sport her coronet in a shop the owner and his attendants would speedily make short work of her decorative dignity. To them it would simply mean an underbred and foolish exhibition, for impertinence and vulgar haughtiness are not defects the Spaniards will tolerate.

In an old diary bearing the date of 1775 several pages are devoted to cash accounts. On one of these is a quaintly worded statement, duly witnessed and dated.

CONTINUED.

"You are rich now through your promised wife, and Hay will find it out."

"Miss Norman's money has nothing to do with me. And I may mention that as soon as the case is in your hands Mr. Hurd"—

"When it is now," interpolated the detective.

—"I intend to marry Miss Norman, and then we will travel for a time."

"That's very wise of you. Give Hay a wide berth. Of course if you meet him you needn't tell him what I have told you. But when he tries to come Captain Hawk over you, be on your guard."

"I shall, and thanks for the warning."

So the two parted. Hurd went away to have the bills printed, and Paul returned to Gwynne street to arrange with Sylvia about their early marriage. Deborah was in the seventh heaven of delight that her young mistress would soon be in a safe haven and enjoy the protection of an honorable man. Knowing that she would soon be relieved from care, she told Bart Tawsey that they would be married at the same time as the young couple and that the laundry would be started as soon as Mr. and Mrs. Beecot left for the continent. Bart, of course, agreed—he always did agree with Deborah—and so everything was nicely arranged.

Meanwhile Pash worked to prove the will, pay the death duties and to place Sylvia in full possession of her property. He found in one of the safes the certificate of the girl's birth and also the marriage certificate of Aaron Norman in the name of Lemuel Krill. The man evidently had his doubts of the marriage being a legal one if contracted under his alias. He had married Lillian Garner, who was described as a spinster. But who she was and where she came from and what her position in life might be could not be discovered. Krill was married in a quiet city church, and Pash, having searched, found everything in order. Mrs. Krill, or Norman, as she was known, lived only a year or two after her marriage and then died, leaving Sylvia to the care of her husband. There were several nurses in succession until Deborah grew old enough to attend alone on her young mistress. Then Norman dismissed the nurse, and Deborah had been Sylvia's slave and Aaron's servant until the tragic hour of his death. So, everything being in order, there was no difficulty in placing Sylvia in possession of her property.

Pash was engaged in this congenial work for several weeks, and during that time all went smoothly. Paul paid daily visits to the Gwynne street house, which was to be vacated as soon as he made Sylvia his wife. Deborah searched for her laundry and obtained the premises she wanted at a moderate rental. Sylvia basked in the sunshine of her future husband's love, and Hurd hunted for the assassin of the late Mr. Norman without success. The handbills with his portrait and real name and a description of the circumstances of his death were scattered broadcast over the country from Land's End to John O'Groat's, but hitherto no one had applied for the reward. The name of Krill seemed to be a rare one, and the dead man apparently had no relatives, for no one took the slightest interest in the bills beyond envying the lucky person who would gain the large reward offered for the conviction of the murderer.

Then one day Deborah, while cleaning out the cellar, found a piece of paper which had slipped down behind one of the safes. These had not been removed for many years, and the paper, apparently placed carelessly on top, had accidentally dropped behind. Deborah, always thinking something might reveal the past to Sylvia and afford a clew to the assassin, brought the paper to her mistress. It proved to be a few lines of a letter, commenced, but never finished. But the few lines were of deep interest.

"My dear daughter," these ran, "when I die you will find that I married your mother under the name of Lemuel Krill. That is my real name, but I wish you to continue to call yourself Norman for necessary reasons. If the name of Krill gets into the papers, there will be great trouble. Keep it from the public. I can tell you where to find the reasons for this, as I have written"— Here the letter ended abruptly without any signature. Norman apparently was writing it when interrupted and had placed it unfinished on the top of the safe, whence it had fallen behind to be discovered by Deborah. And now it had strangely come to light, but too late for the request to be carried out.

"Oh, Paul," said Sylvia, in dismay, when they read this together, "and the bills are already published with the real name of my father."

"It is unfortunate," admitted Paul, frowning. "But, after all, your father may have been troubled unnecessarily. For over the fortnight the bills have been out and no one seems to take an interest in the matter."

"But if there should be trouble, Paul"—

"You will have me to take it off your shoulders," he replied, kissing her. "My dearest, do not look so pale. Whatever may happen you will always have me to stand by you. And Deborah also. She is worth a regiment in her fidelity."

So Sylvia was comforted, and Paul, putting the unfinished letter in his pocket, went round to see Pash in his Chancery lane office. He was stopped in the outer room by a saucy urchin with an impudent face and a bold manner. "Mr. Pash is engaged," said this official, "so you'll 'ave to wait, Mr. Beecot."

Paul looked down at the brat, who was curly headed and as sharp as a needle. "How do you know my name?" he asked. "I never saw you before."

"I'm the new office boy," said the urchin, "wishin' to be respectable and leave street 'awking, which ain't what it was. M' name's Tray, an' I've seen you afore, mister. I 'elped to pull you out from them wheels with the 'aughty gent as gev me a bob fur doin' it."

"Oh, so you helped," said Paul, smiling. "Well, here is another shilling. I am much obliged to you, Master Tray. How did you get this post?"

"I talked myself int' it," said Tray importantly. "Newspapers ain't good enough, and you gets pains in wet weather. So I turns a good boy"—he grinned evilly—"and goes to a ragged kids' school to do the 'oly. The superintendent sez I'm a promising case, and he asked Mr. Pash, as is also Sunday inclined, to 'elp me. The office boy 'ere went, and I come." Tray tossed the shilling and spat on it for luck as he slipped it into the pocket of quite a respectable pair of trousers. "So I'm on m'waly to bein' lord mayor turn agin Wittington, as they sez in the panymine."

"Well," said Beecot, amused, "I hope you will prove yourself worthy."

Tray winked. "Ho! I'm straight as long as it's worth m'while. I takes m'oath 'ome to gran, and don't play pitch an' toss n'more." He winked again and looked as wicked a brat as ever walked.

Paul had his doubts as to what the outcome of Mr. Pash's charity would be and, being amused, was about to pursue the conversation when the inner door opened, and Pash, looking troubled, appeared. When he saw Paul he started and came forward.

"I was just about to send Tray for you," said he, looking cautious. "Something unpleasant has come to light in connection with Krill."

Beecot started and brought out the scrap of paper. "Look at that," he said, "and you will see that the man warned Sylvia."

Pash glanced hurriedly over the paper. "Most unfortunate," he said, folding it up and puffing out his cheeks; "but it's too late. The name of Krill was in those printed bills—a portrait also, and now"—

"Well, what?" asked Paul, seeing the lawyer hesitated.

"Come inside and you'll see," said Pash and conducted Beecot into the inner room.

Here sat two ladies. The elder was a woman of over fifty, but who looked younger, owing to her fresh complexion and plump figure. She had a firm face, with hard blue eyes and a rather full lipped mouth. Her hair was white, and there was a great deal of it. Under a widow's cap it was dressed a la Marie Antoinette, and she looked very handsome in a full blown dowery way. She had firm, white hands, rather large, and, as she removed her black gloves, these, Paul

A LESSON IN GERMAN.

Follow It Closely and You Will See How Really Simple It Is.

Among the Hottentots (Hottentoten in German) the kangaroos (Beutelratte) are found in great numbers. Many of them wander over the country free and unmolested; others, less fortunate, are taken by hunters and put into cages (Kotter) provided with covers (Lattengitter) to keep out the rain. These cages are called in German Lattengitterwetterkotter, and the kangaroo after his imprisonment takes the name of Lattengitterwetterkotterbeutelratte. One day an assassin (Attentater) was arrested who had killed a Hottentot woman. Hottentotmutter, the mother of two stupid and stuttering children in Straettertrottel. This woman in the German language is entitled Hottentotenstraettertrottelmutter, and her assassin takes the name Hottentotenstraettermuttertaeter. The murderer was confined in a kangaroo's cage — Beutelrattenlattengitterwetterkotter—when a few days later he escaped, but fortunately he was recaptured by a Hottentot, who presented himself at the mayor's office with beaming face.

"I have captured the Attentaeter," said he.

"Which one?" replied the mayor. "We have several."

"The Attentaeterlattengitterwetterkotterbeutelratte."

"Which Attentaeter are you talking about?"

"About the Hottentotenstraettertrottelmutterattentaeter."

"Then why don't you say at once the Hottentotenstrattelmutterattentaeterlattengitterwetterkotterbeutelratte?"

The Hottentot fled in dismay.

THE AWKWARD "MRS."

Single as Well as Married Women Once Carried This Title.

A curiously awkward word, if it be a word, is "Mrs." It is not spelled as it is pronounced—no one but a Welshman or a Pole would be equal to pronouncing it as it is spelled—and its pronunciation is a clumsy contraction of the good old English designation "mistress."

In the days of old, when leisure had not become, as it is now, almost a forgotten luxury and people were less anxious to clip their speech, the full pronunciation was often used, and "mistress" was not altogether allowed out of existence by the vulgar "missis." But nowadays "mistress" has dropped out, and consequently the contracted pronunciation of "Mrs." has prevailed and holds the field.

Another point worth noting in the history of the designation is that about 150 years ago and earlier "Mrs." was applied quite impartially to unmarried as well as married ladies. Even children were sometimes styled "Mrs."

The burial of an infant daughter of John Milton, who died at the age of five months, is recorded in the parish register of St. Margaret, Westminster, and her name is entered as "Mrs. Katherine Milton," followed by a small "c," to indicate that a child is meant. But this may be regarded as an exceptional use of the title.—St. James' Gazette.

A Sabbatarian Dog.

"Tip was an Irish setter—his name was really Tipperary and Tip for short," said a New York clubman. "He knew when it was Sunday, and he kept the day. He was the only Sabbatarian dog I ever knew. He used to sleep on a rug in my room. I had to keep early hours in those days, and every morning at 7 o'clock Tip would put his cold nose against my face and remind me that it was time to go to work. Then while I was dressing he would go to the village postoffice and bring home the mail. On Sunday morning he never stirred off his rug until I was good and ready to get up, which was usually quite late, and nothing could induce him to go to the postoffice on that day. And the best part of the story is it is absolutely true."

No Plot.

The actor, rounded up in Russia with a bunch of others, retained his composure while his companions in misfortune were giving way to despair.

"I can prove my innocence of complicity in any conspiracy to the complete satisfaction of the authorities," he said.

"How can you do that?" one of his companions asked. "You will always be suspected of being connected with a plot."

He smiled confidently.

"Not when I tell them that for years I have been playing in musical come-

PAIN

Pain in the head—pain anywhere, has its cause. Pain is congestion, pain is blood pressure—nothing else causally. At least, so says Dr. Shoop, and to prove it he has created a little pink tablet. The tablet—called Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablet—causes blood pressure away from pain centers. Its effect is charming, pleasingly delightful. Gentle, though safely, it surely equalizes the blood circulation.

If you have a headache, it's blood pressure.

If it's painful periods with women, same cause.

If you are sleepless, restless, nervous, it's blood congestion—blood pressure. That surely is a certainty, for Dr Shoop's Headache Tablets stop it in 20 minutes, and the tablets simply distribute the unnatural blood pressure.

Bruise your finger, and doesn't it get red, and swell, and pain you? Of course it does. It's congestion, blood pressure. You'll find it where pain is—always. It's simply Common Sense.

We sell as 25 cents, and cheerfully recommend

Wild ducks are already on their way towards the northern marshes to breed. Stole Money from His Own Father

A sad case of depravity was aired in yesterday's police court, when a young man named Isadore Vinette, pleaded guilty to stealing $40 from his own father, and giving it to a girl employed in a local hotel to take care of for him. Vinette has been watched by the police for some days to see if he would change a large bank bill, as he has not been working to earn money, but the fact of the girl holding the money prevented the means of detection for some time. A week ago last Sunday night his father, Edward Vinette, reported to the police that while he and his family were away, his house on Lisburn street, Auburn, had been entered and forty dollars stolen from a small chest. P. C. Adams at once went to the place.

The father of the prisoner had not suspected the latter, but the thief was caught by the girl in his company changing a $10 bill in a George street grocery store. The girl was seen by P. C. Newhall and returned $7. Vinette had a $20 and a $10 bill on him when arrested. The young man's poor old father while telling his story in court to the magistrate was visibly affected and wept over the disgrace. He said the young man had not been working.

"You ought to be sent to gaol," said his Worship to the prisoner, "but I am going to give you another chance. Behave yourself and do not try to live off your father's hard earnings. You will be allowed out on suspended sentence, and you must report each month to the Chief of Police.

He was not hurt and managed to hold his horses.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

TO THE POLICYHOLDERS OF THE Canada Life Assurance Company

The affairs of life companies are at the present time of greater interest to the insuring public than probably ever before in this country, and while a detailed statement as to the present position and accomplishment during 1907 of our company will in due course be sent each policyholder, it is desired to lay before you at the earliest opportunity a summary of its most important features.

THE YEAR'S BUSINESS.

The new policies paid for in 1907 aggregated $10,491,332, an increase of $279,998.00 over the previous year notwithstanding the closing of several branches which it was not considered desirable to continue. The total assurances now in force amount to $117,500,827.02, an increase during the year of $4,928,798.62.

STRONG RESERVES.

The one consideration of paramount importance in the affairs of a life company is the absolute safety of every contract. It was decided in 1900 that all new business should be written on the stringent 3 per cent. basis, thus ensuring that the older policyholders should have no burden to carry except in connection with their own assurances. The wisdom of this action will be recognized when it is stated that our new assurances written since then, amounting to no less than $55,775,063.35, are valued by the Hm. 3 per cent table, while the remaining older assurances, amounting to $61,725,763.67, are now valued by the Hm. 3½ per cent. table. This standard of valuation enables the company to take rank, as to relative strength, among the leading life offices of the British Empire.

While our surplus over all liabilities on our own stringent valuation basis is $1,066,861.13, it is shown to be $2,709,503.33 by a valuation made on the United States standard.

THE INCOME.

The premiums received of $3,622,015.56, and interest of $1,437,778.98, make the total income of the year $5,059,794.54.

THE PAYMENTS.

The payments to policyholders during the year totalled $1,992,225.08. It is, of course, to be expected that the death claims in a company sixty-one years old would be large in amount, and those of the Canada Life, exclusive of Bonuses, were $1,312,437.15. This amount, however, fell below the expectation of the mortality table, so the company effected a saving through the superior class of lives on its books.

Aside from the amounts of policies which became claims by death as above, and the matured Endowments for $319,738.00, the total payments to policyholders were $260,049.88, and of this amount $188,448.92 was by way of profits to them.

The liberal provision made in our contracts whereby our clients can quickly and without expense obtain loans on their policies was taken advantage of in 1907 to the extent of $1,300,120.08.

From time to time the company has disposed of securities bearing a low rate of interest, and advantage was taken of the recent low market prices to replace them by securities bearing a higher rate of interest and having long periods to run. The position of the company has therefore been improved, and its earning power increased through the recent stringency in the money market.

EXPENSES.

The ratio of expenses to income was still further reduced in 1907.

ASSETS.

The assets show an increase of $1,714,868.66 for 1907, after revaluing and readjusting them to the unusually low market prices which prevailed at the end of the year. The intrinsic values of the securities owned by the company are materially greater than the values shown, and as the company is under no necessity to part with them at unfavorable prices, the increase in value to which their intrinsic worth entitles them will later on be enjoyed by our policyholders.

WHAT POLICYHOLDERS HAVE RECEIVED.

Reference has been made in a previous paragraph to the payments to policyholders during 1907, but as that was not a quinquennial dividend year, the accomplishment of the company for its policyholders was not adequately shown. A comparison of the amounts received from policyholders by way of premiums from the inception of the company to the present time, with the total amounts paid or credited to policyholders and their representatives during the same period, shows that the company has paid or credited its clients with $8,089,622.36 more than they have paid in.

Such a record will be recognised as unique in the history of life assurance in this country.

GEO. A. COX, President.

What they offer at 25c per Share for a short time

The property is situated at Mancos, Colo., and consists of 160 acres, fully paid for. The Company expects to secure at least 400 acres or more, we are negotiating for it now and the terms are satisfactory and there is coal on the same, and they also intend to secure some Coal Mines of which they have the refusal. Some of the best coal mines in Colorado are in this district, as well as some of the richest gold and silver mines. In fact this is one of the richest parts for mineral in the State of Colorado, and the Company has the refusal to several prospects on reasonable and easy terms.

In our opinion the prospects of the Company are very bright, and a rapid advance in the price of the stock is sure to take place in the near future. Full information can be had by calling at our office.

Suddenly Expired While Sawing a Stick of Wood

Between the hours of four and six o'clock last night, Mr. James Clarksworthy, of this city, expired very suddenly while sawing wood at his home on George street north.

At four o'clock Mr. Clarksworthy went to the woodshed to saw a stick of wood. About 6.30 his sister, who keeps house for him, became alarmed at his long absence, and went to the shed, only to find him lying cold in death. He had partly finished sawing the stick of wood, when it is supposed he became ill and went to stand against the wall of the shed, when he fell forward, striking his face on the sharp edge of a stick, and expired.

Coroner Gray was at once summoned and it was thought at first he had met with foul play, owing to the cuts on the face and forehead, but upon further investigation it was found that this had been done by the fall.

The deceased was 77 years of age and leaves two sisters to mourn his loss.

MOTHERS OF DEAD CHILDREN DRIVEN INSANE BY ANGUISH

Scenes During Identification of the Dead --Mothers Faint at Morgue

The Janitor Goes Insane

Cleveland, March 7. — Investigations were started to-day to fix the responsibility for the fire by Coroner Burke, State Factory Inspector Morgan, the State Fire Marshal's Office, Sheriff Matjory, the Collingwood Council and the Collingwood School Board.

Witnesses were examined by Mr. Coroner Burke's investigation, Dr. W. J. Williams of the Lake Shore, the first person from outside to reach the scene, stated that in his opinion the fire was of incendiary origin, having started in a closet removed from any furnace pipes, electric wires or other source of combustion.

JANITOR GOES INSANE ON STAND

Cleveland, March 7.—Janitor Hines, under examination by Deputy Fire Marshal Morgan this afternoon, collapsed. He began to shout and scream, and it was necessary to give him medical attention. He lost three children in the fire and was himself badly burned.

Cleveland, O., March 7.—One hundred and sixty-two bodies have been recovered from the ruins of the North Collingwood school.

The accounts for all the missing. According to City Engineer Gould of Collingwood, who was in charge of the search during the night.

The total number of dead will probably reach 170.

Of these 132 have been positively identified. Thirty more are mutilated beyond recognition.

The successful search of this morning was started by Gould, who rang the fire bells and blew the fire whistle, to summon all the volunteer firemen in the town to assist in the work.

MOTHERS GO INSANE.

In addition to this frightful list of dead, fresh grief came to a number to-day with the announcement that several women, mothers of children, lost in the fire, have lost their reason.

Mrs. Bertha Robinson, of No 50 Forest avenue, attempted to kill herself early to-day. She will recover. Her two little girls, her only children, Fern, 12 years old, and Juanita, 7 years old, were burned to death.

An investigation into the fire is to be begun by the State Fire Marshal.

Mayor Westaway of Collingwood announced that in all probability a public funeral, held in the open, because no Collingwood church can accommodate the audiences, will be held Friday. The Town Council met yesterday to make arrangements.

City Engineer Gould, of Collingwood, rang the fire bells at 7 o'clock this morning, calling out the volunteer firemen to assist in a new search of the ruins.

Gould thinks it quite likely he may have to-day after working all night. Of the unrecovered dead, 150 have been taken to the temporary morgue at the Lake Shore storehouse. The three recovered to-day were sent to the morgue at once.

Coroner Burke, who is in charge of the work of identification, believes his belief that at least thirty dead will never be identified. The bodies are so badly burned, he says, that there is nothing left to disclose their identity.

To assist in the work of burying the dead the local Board of Trade has appropriated $5,000 and the Town Council an additional $5,000. This will be used to help those unable to provide proper funerals for their loved ones.

The Collingwood Board of Education is investigating the cause of the fire. There has been nothing disclosed to offer the slightest proof that the fire was of incendiary origin. In just what part of the basement the fire originated is still a mystery. Testimony at the School Board's meeting showed that the flames were first seen near the front door, coming up from the basement steps. This adjoins that over the closet in which some girls were hiding while playing a game. The architect scout the theory that the flames crawled to the front of the building from the furnaces.

Janitor Hines testified that the first knowledge he had of the fire was from a young girl in the basement. Hines said:

"I ran upstairs and gave the signal for fire drill — three taps on the gong. Then I threw open all of the doors leading to the outside of the building. These consisted of two double pairs of doors in the front and rear of the building. After that I did all in my power to aid in rescuing the pupils."

The testimony as to which way the rear doors opened is very conflicting. The plans of the school show the rear doors opened out—not in. Whether they were built according to the plan is very much in dispute. The evidence is, of course, destroyed.

The flames were shooting out of the woodwork and from the flooring around the front door when the children reached the lower hall. One of the teachers rushed her pupils through the flames to safety.

Crazed with fright, crying madly, for help, the other children, however, rushed to the rear of the building in the hope of making their way out in safety through the wide doorway there.

Lakeview school had 373 pupils enrolled. Probably 350 or more attended school on Wednesday morning.

Senator Ferguson Addresses Big Gathering in the Young Conservative Club Rooms

Gives Masterly History of Iniquities of P.E.I. Government

Interesting Address

Last night the Young Conservative Club's commodious and snugly furnished rooms were crowded by a large audience, who came to hear Hon. Senator Ferguson address the meeting. Among those present were Messrs. W. Butler, president of the club, R. E. Layton, P. Gardiner, secretary; M. Mowry, financial secretary; W. Adamson, treasurer; W. Gibson, 1st vice; Sam Medley, W. Hesselgrave, J. H. Burnham, Councillors Robert Beall, Willard Crotford, John Wilson, Dawson (Keene), Mr. Ferguson, manager Bank of Nova Scotia in this city, William A. Gibson, Capt. W. H. White, Chas. Brown, W. S. Clarke, J. McClelland, B. Lasker, John Thompson, Charlton, E. Mackell, Kit Rutherford, Sam Mellon, Thos. Wilson, W. H. Vanevery, Ed. Gibson, Ferguson, Wesley Crotford, Capt. Carson, and many others.

The evening's proceedings began by a piano solo by Mr. W. E. Green, after which the president, Mr. Green, took the chair. The chairman introduced Mr. J. H. Burnham, who said it found he was getting into the habit of being used as a stopgap, so fill in with a few words, how ever, if the audience could stand it, he could. (Laughter). A short time ago he spoke to a prominent politician and ask him in confidence how the New Brunswick elections would go. The N. B. politician said, "If we can pull out even we will do well." However, the party had pulled everything in sight. Hence were on to show how the great victory in New Brunswick was a great blow to the Liberal party of the Dominion. New Brunswick has now got a good clean administration. He thought the whole country, both Dominion and the Provinces, would go Conservative.

Mr. Gardiner next gave a well rendered recitation entitled "Tam o' Shanter," in a correct and natural broad Scotch accent. Much applause.

Senator Ferguson then arose, amid applause, and expressed the pleasure it gave him to speak here on current political matters. Coming from the seaside, whilst Peterborough is centrally located. Still we have the same ground to traverse and the same political gun to crack. Here in Ontario we are called on now to consider both Provincial as well as nearly by approaching elections. "You ought," he said, "to see that the grand Conservative party sweeps both elections, and the Peterborough Club looks as though Peterborough will do her duty. He has opportunities to mix with politicians of both parties, and all unite in agreeing that Mr. Whitney has kept his promises and given clean government. Under the former administration it was almost impossible to get clean elections or government. He did not say that his good friend, Mr. Ross, was altogether personally to blame, but the machine had control. Even Whitney's bitterest opponents cannot and do not point to one single act of corruption in administering the political affairs of the grand and noble Province of Ontario. It would be a crying disgrace to the Province if the grand government now in charge of Provincial government were allowed to be defeated. Too much confidence, however, is dangerous. Go ahead and roll up even a larger majority for Mr. Whitney. He thought and hoped that a large majority would be rolled up for Mr. R. L. Borden. He did not think that the Conservative party was not without some crooked men. This would be looking for something superhuman. The true test of a party is not to be found by mixing up individual members of the party. If the party shields the worst element in it and hides their work, that party is wrong and must be defeated. When the Conservatives were in power, scandals crept in, charges were made. Hon. Israel Tarte made serious charges concerning Mr. McGreevy as to crooked contracts. The great Chieftain, Sir John Macdonald, had passed away, and Sir John Thompson, Minister of Justice, instead of shielding the one charged, paid high priced men, including Mr. Osler, of Toronto, to ferret out the truth, and then McGreevy was expelled from the house as publicly as possible. It was the Liberal-Conservatives who expelled him. The party was thoroughly vindicated in the McGreevy matter. Sir Hector Langevin, whilst not personally at fault, had helped to shield wrong-doing, and he, although a leading Conservative, had to leave the party and return to private life. The speaker then went on with the Yukon charges, where Clifford Sifton's accusor offered to forfeit his place in Parliament if he could not prove every charge. What was the result? Was Sir Hibbert Tupper's challenge taken up and a committee of investigation named? No, gentlemen; although Sir Hibbert Tupper offered to pay his way if necessary to the Yukon and give all aid to assist in showing the truth the matter was voted down. Mr. Sifton in the House simply picked up the documents concerning hundreds of charges, kind picking out one or two, said, "Oh, the whole charges are of similar weight," and Sir Wilfrid Laurier's Government voted the investigation down. In the dying days of the Ross Government the party then in power was anxious to get rid of Mr. Donald Sutherland. Every kind of charge was trumped up. The man Jackson held a private interview in which he said that he (Jackson) was anxious to unseat Sutherland by fair means or foul. He put up $600 and promised $400 more. Fortunately the had been suspected and witnesses, hidden beforehand, overheard the whole conversation. The result was that the judge before whom the case was tried, gave Jackson a terrible verbal castigation. What was the result? Jackson, who should be breaking stone in the penitentiary, got a good government position, and Sir Richard Cartwright practically said that Jackson was wrong, but so much for what he did in the way of attempted bribery, but for being caught. The speaker then went on to quote other cases of corruption by Liberals. Another man is engaging the spending of thousands of Canadian dollars in Japan, who was almost as bad as Jackson. He then spoke of Mr. Leach in connection with the elections in Manitoba. It was thought this Province would go overwhelmingly Conservative. The voters' lists were handed over to Leach, who ran "the red line through some 9,000 Conservative names and these men cheated out of their votes. This deed was only made public on election day, so the Conservatives could no vote. This man Leach now has a grand Liberal office in charge of all the Northwest grain. Again the man taking the ballot boxes out to Prince Albert simply sat down by the wayside and after opening the boxes stuffed them with ballots marked for the Grit candidates. These men afterwards took an oath and swore that Prince Albert had had an honest and true election. Mr. Ferguson then took up the far western mineral and timber lands. Alberta and Saskatchewan had been deprived of the handling of their coal and mineral lands. A great many grants of coal and timber lands had been made to private companies. Hon. Clifford Sifton is a member of a company affected. It is graft, steal and corruption in the far west by the Dominion Government, particularly in the Department of the Interior. The Marine Department has a terrible record also, and this session will show more. The steamer Arlo matter was treated by the speaker. This steamer accomplished nothing, and she was loaded to the gun water with luxuries bought at graft prices. Reliable authorities swear that much stuff was bought at extravagant prices that could not possibly be loaded on the steamer. The ice-breaker Montcalm did. She is a good vessel, up to Prince Edward Island, but thousands of dollars were spent on luxurious fittings deliberately so that the Minister could have a grandly furnished private yacht for himself and family at Canada's expense. The treaty made with France will do little good for Canada. It was simply a bid for support in Quebec. Two Ministers, Messrs. Brodeur and Fielding, went to make this treaty. Mr. Fielding put in a bill for $1,800 for his expenses. No complaint was made over this. Mr. Brodeur, however, put in a bill for $8,700. A gang of men was brought from the United States to get out a new set of books for a department at Ottawa. This has cost the country $17,000. The Conservative party demanded that every penny of Mr. Brodeur's extravagant expenses bill must be shown. Mr. Brodeur would not bring down the papers until after the long session and then the Grits had to admit defeat. Instead of giving a free, impartial investigation, the Reform Committees try to get witnesses out of the country, or lawyers will obstruct and not allow questions to be put, and the chairmen, who should be impartial, back up such proceedings. Such things cannot go on forever. The investigations by the House of Commons Committees are a travesty on justice. He would not say but what all the Ottawa departments are rotten. The Department of Railways is mad, and instanced the Southport bridge. The bridge was to cost $750,000, of which the Province was to pay half. The Dominion Government later said the bridge would cost $900,000. The Province refused to pay its share. After the bridge was finished it cost $1,800,000, of which Prince Edward Island will have to pay about $500,000, and the people of Canada the balance. Crooked work on the Intercolonial Railway was then illustrated. Crooked contracts are given to friendly contractors. The Laurier Government came in pledged to economy and to reduce the great expenditure of the Tory Government who then spent $36,000,000. Since then the Laurier Government's annual expenditures have raised and raised until now it amounts to ONE HUNDRED AND ONE MILLION DOLLARS a year. The Liberal party were always for free trade, but the Liberal party are using the National Policy, introduced by the late Sir John A. Macdonald. (Cheers.)

The Grit party are opportunists when they are not corruptionists. In the county of Westmoreland, N.B., where the I. C. R. works are located, and where they are under the hand of the Minister, their highest candidate was only 64 ahead of the Conservative. In Colchester, N. S., where the Liberals have carried the polls for two past elections, a Conservative has swept the riding. The Government made a great blunder in the Japanese Treaty. Speaking a horoscope of the present political situation, Ontario will do better for the Conservative party than ever before. Quebec is the only Province that Laurier is sure of, and Quebec is being worked for all it is worth. Mr. Ferguson thanked the large audience for their hearing. This was his first political speech for many months, but there was life in the old dog yet. He congratulated the Young Conservative Club on their large meeting and the evident interest they showed and their manifest determination to carry the coming election. He was glad the party here had chosen such good candidates and hoped to see them roll up large majorities.

A hearty vote of thanks was passed, amid loud cheers, to the speaker of the evening.

The balance of the evening was spent in music and some short addresses by President Butler and others.

LONDON IS A WONDERFUL CITY

London is a wonderful city, just how wonderful it is one gathers from the seventeenth volume of London Statistics, recently issued by the County Council.

In the first place, it is a much-governed city. Its affairs are administered by the city corporation, the London County Council, twenty-eight borough councils, thirty-one boards of guardians, four boards of school district managers, two boards of sick asylum district managers, the Metropolitan asylum board, the central unemployed body, twenty-nine distress committees, the water board, the Thames conservancy board, the Lea conservancy board, and the commissioners of police, who are under the authority of the Home Secretary.

Thus it will be seen that there are 101 public bodies, a committee of members elected by the people of London, posing after some piece of public affairs. These bodies consist of 3,783 members, but in many cases men belong to more than one public authority, and it is estimated that the government of London is carried on by about 2,800 separate individuals.

THE JAPANESE TREATY

We do not mean the commercial treaty of which we have heard so much lately, but the treaty of alliance. The London correspondent of the New York Tribune has been sending his paper some facts regarding this international agreement, and he places it in a light somewhat different from that in which most of us have been accustomed to regard it. He says that it is an agreement primarily designed to preserve peace in Asia, and especially in Eastern Asia and India. The correspondent thinks that the world was never so profoundly at peace as now, neither was the prestige of Britain ever as great as it is under "Edward, the Pacificator". Nevertheless, he notes with alarm the feverish activity everywhere to increase naval strength. Relating to the Japanese treaty itself, the following extract from the correspondent's despatch is of interest:

There is a preamble reciting the objects for which the convention was formed, and that does not bear out the assumption that Vancouver will be converted into a naval base for operations against "a common enemy" if Japan be suddenly involved in war. The alliance has been formed for the maintenance of peace and territorial rights in India and Japan and for the protection of the common interests of all the powers in China through the preservation of its integrity and independence, and of the principle of equal opportunities for commerce and industries. It is when these rights or interests are in jeopardy that the two governments will take to heart for mutual defence. It is when he or the other of the contracting powers is compelled by unprovoked attack or aggressive action to go to war in defence of the territorial rights and special interests in Asia specifically mentioned in the convention that its ally is under obligations to join forces with it against the "common enemy".

When the agreement is closely scrutinised its real character as an instrument of rational peace is clearly and unmistakably disclosed. The optimists were wiser when the text was first given to the world as a guarantee against aggressive wardare in Eastern Asia and India than the pessimists who now croak about entangling alliances and convert Vancouver into a naval rendezvous for a coalition armada against imaginary disturbances of the world's peace. The risks of war are diminished by the Anglo-Japanese alliance, even if the naval martinets do not appear to understand it, but are plumping for Dreadnoughts and conjuring with two-nation standards.

A HARD JOB IN BAD WEATHER

Each Man, With His Feet and Legs Bare, Scrubs His Own Clothes and Gets Them Ready For Inspection. "Jimmy Legs" and the "Lucky Bag."

Have you ever noticed how clean and well dressed a sailor lad looks when on shore leave, how white his clothes look when you board the ship on visiting days? But did you ever realize that he was his own washerman?

With a shrill blast of his silver whistle the chief boatswain's mate will pipe, "Scrub and wash clothes!" and every man hurries to his bucket, gets his soiled clothes, salt water soap, draws a bucket of briny or fresh water, as the case may be, and begins his washing.

He is generally barefooted at this time, so that he will not wet his shoes and stockings. He wears his trousers very bell shaped at the bottom in order that he may roll them up over the knee.

After scrubbing and rubbing his clothes until clean he turns them inside out and with "stops" proceeds to get them ready for hanging up. These stops are short pieces of twine, twisted and with whipped ends, that he uses in lieu of clothespins. They are fastened in eyelets placed at the side seams and bottom of his shirts and the waistband of his trousers. He turns all his washed clothes inside out to prevent the right side getting soiled.

They are then hung on a line which, says the Youth's Companion, is run from the bow to the topmast or upper top of a fighting mast. The well informed man now usually puts his clothes to soak the night before in a bucket half full of water into which he has either sprinkled a handful of soap powder or a small piece of salt water soap. In the morning a little rubbing and his clothes are clean and hang up, while the "landlubber" has just begun.

When they have been thoroughly dried, the chief boatswain again pipes, "Scrub and wash clothes!" and every man rushes for the clothesline to claim his own. If he fails to secure them within a reasonable time, the master at arms, or "Jimmy Legs," takes them down, and they go into the "lucky bag." Then the only recourse the unlucky owner has is to go to the mast, or the "stick," as the court on board ship is commonly called, and petition the "first lieff," or executive officer, to order them released.

As a rule, Jimmy Legs, who has charge of the cleanliness of the decks, always has extra cleaning, painting and so forth in mind, and the man whose clothes get into the lucky bag receives so many hours' extra duty as a gentle reminder to be more careful in the future. His name goes on Jimmy Legs' time book, and when there is any extra labor to be performed he is called upon to assist.

This is usually the lot of the "landsman" who has not been aboard long enough to "learn the ropes."

After they are taken from the line the stops are taken out and the clothes rolled in such a manner that they need no ironing. These rolls are then tied at each end with the stops and are stowed away in the clothes bag. In this way all his clothes, both blue and white, are kept clean, and when Sunday morning comes and there is general inspection on the quarter deck he has no fear of being reprimanded for having on a soiled uniform.

The hardest things of a sailor's outfit to wash are his blanket and hammock. The hammock forms part of his equipment, but belongs to the ship. He is, however, required to keep it clean. His mattress and blanket are lashed into the hammock and stowed in the nettings or crates provided for that purpose.

Every day a couple or more men are detailed to stow them away and at night to break them out. It is this handling so much that gets them fearfully dirty, especially while a ship is coaling. When washing his hammock, a sailor lays it flat on the deck and uses a wire brush to get it clean, with the assistance of soap and lots of "elbow grease."

In visiting a foreign port and before the ship has come to anchor it will be surrounded by "bumboats," generally bringing out washerwomen, who are usually negresses and who clamor for any work in the laundry line. They do good work and charge very little for it. They always show their references from the last ship and always want a new one to add to their already long list.

It is in wet and stormy weather that the sailor has his own troubles trying to dry his clothes. Round the uptakes of the smokestack there is a drying room in which clothes may be hung, but as they grow yellowish when hung there often this room is used as little as possible. In the newer men-of-war there are installed washing and drying machines which greatly facilitate the laundry work, making it inexcusable for a sailor to have soiled clothes. This machine, which dries clothes by centrifugal motion, does the work rapidly and well.

These machines, which are being added to all the new ships, will in time do away with all hand work. The old familiar sight of a long line of clothes strung from bow to masthead will no longer be seen, and the boatswain's mate will forget how to pipe, "Scrub and wash clothes!"

Much interest is being taken in the proposed athletic revival at the Y. M. C. A. The meeting of the members is called for to-night to organize for the coming season. Several important matters will be considered and every member, especially the younger men, are asked to be in attendance. The meeting is called for 7.45 o'clock, and promises to be a most enthusiastic one.

THE DRAGON FLY.

Singularly Adapted to Its Life of Aerial Piracy.

No one could fail to be struck with the singularly perfect adaptation of the dragon fly's structure to a life of aerial piracy. The four wings are large and in proportion to their weight enormously strong. Each is supported by a wonderfully arranged network of slender ribs, which give the necessary rigidity to the thin, transparent membrane forming its basis. The muscles by which the wings are moved are massive and powerful and are so arranged among themselves that the animal is capable of steering its course with an unerring accuracy which any bird might envy. In this power it is largely aided by a marvelous keenness of sight, for in addition to the two great, gorgeously colored compound eyes which make up so much of the head the insect possesses three smaller "simple" eyes, making five eyes in all. The prey when overtaken is seized and devoured by means of powerful, sharply toothed jaws.

An animal which lives such an active life naturally requires a very perfect breathing apparatus, and this is amply provided by a system of holes on the sides of the body which open into an elaborate network of air tubes, supplying every part of the system. The air in these tubes is constantly renewed by the regular compression and dilatation of the body by special muscles.—Chambers' Journal.

HIBERNATION.

How and Why Some Animals Exist All Winter Without Food.

The philosophy or nature of hibernation and why and how it is that the hibernating creatures can go so long without food are interesting studies.

In the first place, the creature in order to enable it to sustain life throughout the long winter during which it hibernates is endowed with the capacity of accumulating within its body a large quantity of fat. This fat is to the animal what a well stocked coal cellar is to a fire, and until the whole of it has been consumed the tissue of the body proper remains untouched. It has been ascertained that animals can endure the waste of tissue until it amounts to 40 per cent of their normal weight. Should the weight be reduced beyond that point the result is death. But nature comes to the rescue of the hibernating creatures in another way. When the hibernation begins, respiration and digestion almost cease (in some cases they cease absolutely), and the circulation is only just active enough to sustain life. As a consequence of this the wear and tear is reduced to the minimum, and the creature is enabled to pull through.

Horses and Music.

Regimental horses have been the subjects of musical tests, and nearly all enjoyed the experience, only a very small percentage of the animals remaining indifferent to sweet harmonies, while equally few showed active dislike. The great majority were soothed, inspirited or excited by music. Most of the horses, like the war chargers one may suppose them to be, enjoyed the bugle above any other instrument and neighed gallantly when it was sounded, but thoroughbreds and colts generally were found to prefer the shrill treble of the fife, which roused them to great and sometimes unmanageable enthusiasm. This was the more significant because the fife was an unfamiliar instrument to them, not being generally used, as is the bugle in the French army.—Paris Cor. London Telegraph.

Model of Economy.

A certain farmer who lives out in the county and who is noted for his closeness in money matters has a twelve-year-old son, who is as industrious as his father is penurious.

Recently the father and son made a compact whereby the latter would receive 10 cents for every cord of wood he sawed and piled in the wood shed. Immediately the boy became very busy at the wood pile, and his earnings have been piling up at a rapid rate, his mother keeping her son's hard earned savings for him.

"What are you going to do with all your money?" the thrifty youth was recently asked.

"Goin' to buy a new maw with it," was the reply.

Benjamin Constant.

Benjamin Constant, having sided with Napoleon during the hundred days, felt the need of justifying himself when Louis XVIII. returned to power. He wrote the king a letter with that end in view and called upon Mme. Recamier to discuss the subject. She asked him quietly:

"Have you finished your letter?"

"Yes."

"Are you satisfied with it?"

"Entirely satisfied. I have almost persuaded myself."

Marrying.

Everybody is expected to marry once, and there is not much talk when you marry the first time, but people look wise when you marry the second time and roar when you marry the third time.

Very Interesting.

"What do you find so very interesting about society?" asked the ordinary person.

"Watching people trying to get in," answered Miss Cayenne.

IT WAS JUST THIS WAY.

How the Street Car Passenger Lost His Sixty-five Dollar Roll.

"Sir," said the tall man as he rose up and glowered down at the short man, "when I entered this car I had a roll of money amounting to $65 in my pocket."

"Yeth, thir," lisped the short man in reply.

"And now I have only this nickel."

"Thath all, thir?"

"Then some one must have picked my pocket."

"Thath don't follow, thir."

"Don't follow? Of course it does. You have been sitting right beside me ever since I got on."

"It ith just your way, thir—just your way. Thath all, thir."

"What in the devil do you mean by saying it's just my way?" demanded the tall man.

"Why, thir, when the conductor came for your fare you handed him the roll instead of the nickel, and he's out there counting it over now. He thinks it's a present."—Chicago News.

How It Happened.

A certain member of the fashionable Metropolitan and Chevy Chase clubs at the national capital has all his life borne many quips because of his exceedingly diminutive stature.

Last spring the diminutive clubman took unto himself a wife, the daughter of a well known federal official, who is said to be as witty as her father.

"Mrs. Blank," said a friend one day recently, "I have just seen your husband for the first time since his marriage. Do you know, he seems shorter than ever."

"Why not?" asked the wife, with a smile. "He's married and settled down."—Harper's Weekly.

"But," interrupted the rich man's son, "what do you consider the best exercise of memory?"

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST
HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

Any even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Application for entry must be made in person by the applicant at a Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the district in which the land is situate. Entry by proxy may, however, be made at an Agency on certain conditions by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

The homesteader is required to perform the homestead duties under one of the following plans:

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each on and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) A homesteader may, if he so desires, perform the required residence duties by living on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of his homestead. Joint ownership in land will not meet this requirement.

(3) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of a homesteader has permanent residence on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of a homestead, or upon a homestead entered for by him in the vicinity, such homesteader may perform his own residence duties by living with the father or mother.

(4) The term "vicinity" in the two preceding paragraphs is defined as meaning not more than nine miles in a direct line exclusive of the width of road allowances crossed in the measurement.

(5) A homesteader intending to perform his residence duties in accordance with the above while living with parents or on farming land owned by himself must notify the agent for the district of such intention.

Six months' notice in writing must be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa, of intention to apply for patent.

February, 1908, is here and so is

The Pacific Fruit Cooling and Vaporizing Company, Incorporated for the purpose of cooling deciduous fruits and removing moisture from citrus fruits and keeping unde cold storage such fruits and other food products from the time of receiving them from the fruit growers until loaded on car and taken away by the Railroad Company for Eastern shipment

STUBBORN FACTS UNIMPEACHABLE

The loss in shipping deciduous and citrus fruits is enormous. The orange crop of Southern California alone is valued at $30,000,000. The government experts estimate that about 25 per cent. or $7,500,000, is lost every year by rough handling in packing and decay of fruit in transit to the Eastern markets. What a revenue of profit this loss would be to the shipper if it could be saved. Our process will save it. The same is true of the deciduous fruits of Northern California.

GREAT FORTUNES ARE MADE BY INVESTING IN NECESSITIES

Fruit is one of the necessities of our civilized life, and the company that can place the fruit in the markets of the world in the best shape, in the quickest time, at the lowest rate, has a fortune within its grasp. The Armour Company in ten years made $5,000,000 net handling California fruit in refrigerator cars. Our process is as necessary to the fruit grower as the refrigerator car. Therefore we ought to receive as large a revenue for handling the same commodity.

GET IN WHILE THE ENTERPRISE IS NEW

No wiser words were ever spoken than these: "The chief point about getting rich is to invest in a new enterprise that is being managed by successful men, who have some of their own money in the deal." "One good investment is worth a lifetime of labor". Think over this sentence. A man's daily labor will never make him rich. He must have some money at work for him. Money invested never gets sick, keeps no holidays, never goes on strike. There are three things that ought to guide you: First, invest with honest men; second, invest with men of sound judgment; third, invest under conditions where you get your full share of profits the business yields. Get into a company whose destiny is guided by men of this stamp when its future is before and not behind it. Here is the secret of fortune. Plant the seed of your investment in the soil of opportunity, at the season of greatest promise when the enterprise is new. Every ounce of honor in the hearts of the men managing this company is pledged to give

A SQUARE DEAL FOR EVERY INVESTO

There will be no preferred stock. Every dollar invested will be worth 100 cents on the dollar. Our Directors, as honourable business men, will not allow any tricks of trade by which the small investor can be frozen out. Their commercial standing proves they are not "grafters". The poor man's 500 or 100 shares will have the same standing in court as the rich man's 10,000, and they will draw the same proportion of dividend. We court investigation.

EVERY RICH MAN IN THE WORLD WAS ONCE POOR OR HIS GRANDFATHER WAS.

THE OPPORTUNITY OF A LIFETIME

To get into a company that has the certainty of growth, the assurance of large and quick returns, a rapid advance in the price of stock, to make it an exceptional chance for big profits on a small investment. This is an ideal investment for the wage earner as well as the rich man. Moderate sums invested now will bring splendid returns in the near future. The logic of all this is

DON'T WAIT

Time is the essence of this proposition. The stock will certainly double in a short time. Jay Gould once said: "When you see a good investment don't wait to see if it pans out well, for by that time other people see it, too, and you have lost your opportunity."

WOMEN AS INVESTORS

Some of the heaviest stockholders in our company are women of keen business instincts. One lady in Los Angeles bought 5,000 shares. In a few days she returned and bought 5,000 more. This lady has never made a mistake in her business ventures. Women are good investors because they have courage to follow their convictions. Their intuitions are keener and truer than man's logic. Men may prevent her voting, but they can't prevent her drawing dividends on her investments. This is one branch of trade where sex, culture, or color does not count.

MANAGEMENT

The affairs of this company are in the hands of men of honesty, ability, courage and good business judgment—men who have made a success of their own business—men whose business reputation is A1 in the commercial circles in which they move.

These men are "square" and "shrewd". They will not deceive you nor will they be deceived themselves. Because of the promise of growth, permanency and profit this business offers they have united their money, energy, time and business experience to make this enterprise a grand success.

Notwithstanding the Financial Crisis, Investments made Six Months ago have Advanced

150 PER CENT

The next six months promises to far exceed the past six months
If you investigate this proposition you will surely invest.

CHAPTER XI.

"I DON'T know what you mean," said Beecot.

The lawyer assumed himself to make a concise statement of the case. "So far as I understand," he said in his nervous, irritable way, "these ladies claim to be the wife and daughter of Lemuel Krill, whom we know as Aaron Norman."

"And I think by his real name also," said the elder woman in her deep, smooth contralto voice and with the display of an admirable set of teeth.

"Norman was not your husband, madam," cried Paul indignantly.

"I agree with you, sir. Lemuel Krill was my husband. I saw in the newspapers, which penetrate even into the quiet little Hants village I live in, that Aaron Norman had been murdered. I never thought he was the man who had left me more than twenty years ago with an only child to bring up. But the bills offering the reward assured me that Norman and Krill are one and the same man. Therefore," she drew herself up and looked piercingly at the young man, "I have come to see after the property. I understand from the papers that my daughter is an heiress to millions."

"Not millions," said Pash hastily. "The newspapers have exaggerated the amount. Five thousand a year, madam, and it is left to Sylvia."

"Who is Sylvia?" asked Mrs. Krill in the words of Shakespeare's song.

"She is the daughter of Mr. Norman," said Paul quickly, "and is engaged to marry me."

Mrs. Krill's eyes traveled over his shabby suit from head to foot and then back again from foot to head. She glanced sideways at her companion, and the girl laughed in a hard, contemptuous manner. "I fear you will be disappointed in losing a rich wife, sir," said the elder woman sweetly.

"I have not lost the money yet," replied Paul hotly. "Not that I care for the money, but I do care for Sylvia Norman"—

"With whom I have nothing to do."

"She is your husband's daughter."

"But not mine. This is my daughter, Maud—the legal daughter of Lemuel and myself," she added meaningly.

"Good heavens, madam!" cried Beecot, his face turning white. "What do you mean?"

Paul sat down and concealed his face with a groan. He was thinking not so much of the loss of the money, although that was a consideration, as of the shame Sylvia would feel at her position. Then a gleam of hope darted into his mind. "Mr. Norman was married to Sylvia's mother under his own name. You can't prove the marriage void."

"I have no wish to. When did this marriage take place?"

Beecot looked at the lawyer, who replied, "Twenty-two years ago," and he gave the date.

Mrs. Krill fished in a black morocco bag she carried and brought out a shabby blue envelope. "I thought this might be needed," she said, passing it to Pash. "You will find there my marriage certificate. I became the wife of Lemuel Krill thirty years ago. And, as I am still living, I fear the later marriage"— She smiled blandly and shrugged her shoulders.

Throwing back his head, Paul retorted, "You forget, madam, there is a will."

Mrs. Krill's fresh color turned to a dull white and her hard eyes shot fire. "A will," she said slowly. "I shall dispute the will if it is not in my favor. I am the widow of this man and I claim full justice. Besides," she went on, wetting her full lips with her tongue, "I understood from the newspapers that the money was left to Mr. Krill's daughter."

Paul rose and flung back his head again. "You have not got the money yet, madam," he said defiantly.

Not at all disturbed, Mrs. Krill smiled her eternal smile. "I am here to get it. There is a will, you say," she added, turning to Pash. "And I understand from this gentleman," she indicated Beecot slightly, "that the money is left to Mr. Krill's daughter. Does he name Maud or Sylvia?"

Pash slapped down the certificate irritably. "He names no one. The will is a hasty document, badly worded, and simply leaves all the testator died possessed of to—my daughter."

"Which of course means Maud here. I congratulate you, dear," she said, turning to the girl, who looked happy and flushed. "Your father has made up to us both for his cruelty and desertion."

Seeing that there was nothing to be said, Paul went to the door. But there his common sense left him and he made a valedictory speech. "I know that Mr. Krill left the money to Sylvia."

"Oh, no," said the widow, "to his daughter, as I understand the wording of the will runs. In that case this nameless girl has nothing."

The old man shook his head and sucked in his cheeks. "I am sorry, Mr. Beecot," said he in a pitying tone, "but as the will stands the money must certainly go to the child born in wedlock. I have the certificate here," he laid his monkey paw on it, "but of course I shall make inquiries."

"By all means," said Mrs. Krill graciously. "My daughter and myself have lived for many years in Christchurch, Hants. We keep the inn there—not the principal inn, but a small public house on the outskirts of the village. It will be a change for us both to come into five thousand a year after such penury. Of course, Mr. Pash, you will act for my daughter and myself."

"Mr. Pash acts for Sylvia," cried Paul, still lingering at the door. The lawyer was on the horns of a dilemma. "If what Mrs. Krill says is true I can't dispute the facts," he said irritably, "and I am unwilling to give up the business. Prove to me, ma'am, that you are the lawful widow of my late client, and that this is my late esteemed client's lawful daughter, and I will act for you."

Mrs. Krill's ample bosom rose and fell and her eyes glittered triumphantly. She cast a victorious glance at Beecot. But that young man was looking at the solicitor. "Rats leave the sinking ship," said he bitterly; "you will not prosper, Pash."

"Every one prospers who protects the widow and the orphan," said Pash

"Rats leave the sinking ship," said he.

in a pious tone, and so disgusted Paul that he closed the door with a bang and went out. Tray was playing

A LESSON IN GERMAN.

Follow It Closely and You Will See How Really Simple It Is.

Among the Hottentots (Hottentoten in German) the kangaroos (Beutelratte) are found in great numbers. Many of them wander over the country free and unmolested; others, less fortunate, are taken by hunters and put into cages (Kotter) provided with covers (Lattengitter) to keep out the rain. These cages are called in German Lattengitterwetterkotter, and the kangaroo after his imprisonment takes the name of Lattengitterwetterkotterbeutelratte. One day an assassin (Attentater) was arrested who had killed a Hottentot woman, Hottentotmutter, the mother of two stupid and stuttering children in Strauttertrottel. This woman in the German language is entitled Hottentotenstrauettertrottelmutter, and her assassin takes the name Hottentotenstrauettermuttertaeter. The murderer was confined in a kangaroo's cage — Beutelrattenlattengitterwetterkotter—when a few days later he escaped, but fortunately he was recaptured by a Hottentot, who presented himself at the mayor's office with beaming face.

"I have captured the Attentaeter," said he.

"Which one?" replied the mayor. "We have several."

"The Attentaeteriattengitterwetterkotterbeutelratte."

"Which Attentaeter are you talking about?"

"About the Hottentotenstraetter-trottelmutterattentaeter."

"Then why don't you say at once the Hottentotenstrattelmutterattentaeriattengitterwetterkotterbeutelratte?"

The Hottentot fled in dismay.

THE AWKWARD "MRS."

Single as Well as Married Women Once Carried This Title.

A curiously awkward word, if it be a word, is "Mrs." It is not spelled as it is pronounced—no one but a Welshman or a Pole would be equal to pronouncing it as it is spelled—and its pronunciation is a clumsy contraction of the good old English designation "mistress."

In the days of old, when leisure had not become, as it is now, almost a forgotten luxury and people were less anxious to clip their speech, the full pronunciation was often used, and "mistress" was not altogether obsolete out of existence by the vulgar "missis."

But nowadays "mistress" has dropped out, and consequently the contracted pronunciation of "Mrs." has prevailed and holds the field.

Another point worth noting in the history of the designation is that about 150 years ago and earlier "Mrs." was applied quite impartially to unmarried as well as married ladies. Even children were sometimes styled "Mrs."

The burial of an infant daughter of John Milton, who died at the age of five months, is recorded in the parish register of St. Margaret, Westminster, and her name is entered as "Mrs. Katherine Milton," followed by a small "c," to indicate that a child is meant. But this may be regarded as an exceptional use of the title.—St. James' Gazette.

A Sabbatarian Dog.

"Tip was an Irish setter—his name was really Tipperary and Tip for short," said a New York clubman. "He knew when it was Sunday, and he kept the day. He was the only Sabbatarian dog I ever knew. He used to sleep on a rug in my room. I had to keep early hours in those days, and every morning at 7 o'clock Tip would put his cold nose against my face and remind me that it was time to go to work. Then while I was dressing he would go to the village postoffice and bring home the mail. On Sunday morning he never stirred off his rug until I was good and ready to get up, which was usually quite late, and nothing could induce him to go to the postoffice on that day. And the best part of the story is it is absolutely true."

No Plot.

The actor, rounded up in Russia with a bunch of others, retained his composure while his companions in misfortune were giving way to despair.

"I can prove my innocence of complicity in any conspiracy to the complete satisfaction of the authorities," he said.

"How can you do that?" one of his companions asked. "You will always be suspected of being connected with a plot."

He smiled confidently.

"Not when I tell them that for years I have been playing in musical comedy."

Indigestion

Stomach trouble is but a symptom of, and not in itself a true disease. We think of Dyspepsia, Heartburn, and Indigestion as real diseases, yet they are symptoms only of a certain specific Nerve sickness—nothing else.

It was this fact that first correctly led Dr. Shoop in the creation of that now very popular Stomach Remedy—Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Going direct to the stomach nerves, alone brought that success and favor to Dr. Shoop and his Restorative. Without that original and highly vital principle, no such lasting accomplishments were ever to be had.

For stomach distress, bloating, biliousness, bad breath and sallow complexion, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—and see for yourself what it can and will do. We sell and cheerfully recommend

Some of the best coal mines in Colorado are in this district, as well as some of the richest gold and silver mines. In fact this is one of the richest parts for mineral in the State of Colorado, and the Company has the refusal to several prospects on reasonable and easy terms.

In Palmer, Neb., it cured a lady 64 years old. In Bennington, Vt., it cured an old gentleman who had been lame for 20 years. In Stayner, Ont., it enabled a lady to abandon her crutches. In Englewood, Ohio, it cured a gentleman of 67, who had suffered 18 years.

No matter whether your rheumatism is chronic, muscular or sciatic, nor mind if other remedies have disappointed you, write me without fail, and by return mail you will receive the trial package absolutely free and also free a book on rheumatism which is illustrated with many stippled drawings from actual life, and which will tell you all about your case.

Never before has a remedy for rheumatism been so highly endorsed as this. Among the eminent people who have endorsed it is Eugene H. Plumacher, United States Consul, Maracaibo, Publisher of "Health", London, England. Doctor Quintero, of the University of Venezuela. Stevenson Mac Adams, F. J. C., F C. To Get Rid of Local Garbage

At the last meeting of St. Thomas City Council, Ald. Roche will introduce a motion to have the city engineer instructed to prepare an estimate of the cost of erecting a Meldrum incinerator in connection with the light, heat and power plant of sufficient capacity to dispose of all city garbage and refuse, the estimate to be prepared as speedily as possible. What about such a plan in Peterborough hitched on to the waterworks plant?

County Reeves at Deer Bay Creek

Reeve Brown of North Monaghan, Reeve Scott and Deputy Reeve Graham of Smith, have returned home from a tour of inspection of the county. Mr. Brown is chairman of the Roads and Bridges Committee of the County Council. The party visited the Burleigh bridge, and let the contract of filling in the approaches to Mr. John McFarlane. Accompanied by Reeve Ingram, of Harvey, these gentlemen went to Deer Bay Creek and decided to replace the present wooden bridge, now in bad shape, with a new bridge as soon as weather conditions allow.

Port Hope Brigade Time Test

The Port Hope Fire Brigade a few days ago were called out purposely on a false alarm to test their speed and efficiency. They got out and had a hose on in three minutes. This trial trial was made on an alarm sent from one of the local factories. The next test will be made at the Highland Spring Brewery. Without casting any meanly meant insinuations, we will bet the box of cigars our wife gave us last Christmas against 50 cents that the fire laddies get there in half their last record time, and also that the return trip will take 17 1-2 times as long as the outward one.

DOCTORS MISTAKES

Are said often to be buried six feet under ground. But many times women call on their family physicians, suffering, as they imagine, one from dyspepsia, another from heart disease, another from liver or kidney disease, another from nervous prostration, another with pain here and there, and in this way they present alike to themselves and their easy-going or overbusy doctor, separate diseases, for which he, assuming them to be such, prescribes his pills and potions. In reality, they are all only symptoms caused by some uterine disease. The physician, ignorant of the cause of suffering, keeps up the treatment until large bills are made. The suffering patient gets no better [illegible] of the wrong treatment, but probably worse. A [illegible] Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was [illegible] directed to the cause of the disease, thereby [illegible] all those distressing symptoms, and instituting comfort instead of prolonged misery. It has been well said that "a disease known is half cured."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a scientific medicine, carefully devised by an experienced and skillful physician, and adapted to woman's delicate system. It is made of native American medicinal roots and is perfectly harmless in its effects in any condition of the female system.

As a powerful invigorating tonic "Favorite Prescription" imparts strength to the whole system and to the organs distinctly feminine in particular. For overworked, "worn-out," run-down," debilitated teachers, milliners, dressmakers, seamstresses, "shop-girls," house-keepers, nursing mothers, and feeble women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the greatest earthly boon, being unequaled as an appetizing cordial and restorative tonic.

As a soothing and strengthening nervine "Favorite Prescription" is unequaled and is invaluable in allaying and subduing nervous excitability, irritability, nervous exhaustion, nervous prostration, neuralgia, hysteria, spasms, St. Vitus's dance, and other distressing, nervous symptoms commonly attendant upon functional and organic disease of the uterus. It induces refreshing sleep and relieves mental anxiety and despondency.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets invigorate the stomach, liver and bowels. One to three a dose. Easy to take as candy.

Astronomy Lecture was Postponed

Rev. Mr. Marsh telephones in from Springville yesterday afternoon that the roads were completely blockaded and that it would be impossible for him to reach the city. As the reverend doctor has the plates that were to be used in connection with the lecture on the moon to be given by Mr. Collier at the proposed lecture of last night, so it was decided to postpone the meeting until Monday evening.

Pe-ru-na Saved Me."

"I THANK DR. HARTMAN FOR PE-RU-NA."

"I hardly know how to thank you for the good Peruna has done me.

"I suffered five years with pain in the stomach. About a year ago it became so bad I could hardly bear it. I coughed day and night and grew weaker and weaker. The pain extended through my body and I also had difficulty in breathing, which made me cough. Everyone thought I had consumption.

"My husband heard of Peruna and bought five bottles. This treatment virtually cured me and now I recommend Peruna to every one who is suffering.

"I thank Dr. Hartman for this excellent remedy."

Ste. Julie de Vercheres, P. Q., Canada. —Mrs. Mois Parizeau.

Women are especially liable to colds. These colds occur more frequently during the wet, sloppy weather of winter and spring than any other time of the year. Often they are not considered serious and are allowed to run on, or they are treated in such a way as to only palliate the symptoms, while the cold becomes more deep-seated and the patient finally awakens to the fact that she has a well-developed case of catarrh.

WOMEN SHOULD BEWARE OF CATCHING COLD.

By reason of their delicate structure, the lungs are frequently the seat of a cold, especially if there is the slightest weakness of these organs. The treatment of catarrh of the lungs is also more difficult and discouraging than catarrh of any other organ of the body.

Peruna has been found the most reliable of all remedies for coughs, colds and catarrh, by reason of the fact that it goes at once to the very seat of the trouble.

It searches out every crevice, every duct of the body. It quickens and equalizes the circulation of the blood, thus relieving the congested mucous membranes. It exercises a healing and soothing effect upon the mucous membranes, no matter whether they are the more exposed membranes of the head and throat, or whether they line the remotest cells of the lungs.

PE-RU-NA THE REMEDY FOR CATARRH OF THE LUNGS.

Mrs. Jaschob, 1681 Hicks St., Toledo, Ohio, writes:

"When I wrote to you for advice, I had been sick for three years. I had trouble with my throat. Often I could not breathe through my nose. I also had pains in my chest and a cough. I took Peruna according to directions and it has cured me."

HAND TERRIBLY MANGLED.

Doctor Withdrew his Remedies in favor of Zam-Buk with Marvellous Results!

Mr. Ab. Wheeler, Marine and Stationary Engineer, of 145 Front St., Belleville, Ont., says: "Two months ago, while employed in a steam laundry in this city, my left hand became caught and was accidently drawn into a hot mangle. As soon as possible the machinery was stopped and my hand was extricated, but not before the flesh on the palm of the hand was literally cooked to the bone and the fingers flattened out of shape. However, quite soon after the accident my hand and arm became frightfully swollen to the elbow and the hand presented a shocking sight. No one can imagine what I now suffered and endured. Not only was it hard to bear on account of the cruel pains, but it was a great shock to my nervous system. It was some time after the injury before the cooked flesh could be removed from the palm and then only a very little at a time. As soon as all this had been well removed, healing balms were applied, but as the improvement seemed so slow I obtained permission from the Doctor for Zam-Buk to be used exclusively, as several of my men friends (having previously used it for severe injuries) spoke in the highest terms of its unusual healing qualities and urged me to give it a trial. From the commencement Zam-Buk soothed and relieved the pains and drew out the soreness. I now began to enjoy a good nights rest and sleep, as up to this time I had not had much rest or sleep either day or night. In about three weeks time the palm of my hand was nicely healed over thro' daily application of this wonderful remedy Zam-Buk, and all inflammation and swelling was thoroughly banished from both hand and arm. I feel so grateful for my cure, I shall do my best to make known to other sufferers the value of Zam-Buk as a healing balm."

MR. AB. WHEELER, Belleville, Ont.

ZAM-BUK'S WONDERFUL WAY!

Whoever watches the healing of a wound, chronic sore, or diseased surface of skin with Zam-Buk, is face to face with one of Nature's greatest wonders. The healing process thus set in motion is nothing but a phenomenon of regeneration—a natural process of replacing destroyed tissues by new ones. The antiseptic substances contained in Zam-Buk, first attack and kill off the microbes or germs that are the cause of the inflammation or disease, and then the healing ingredients proceed to build up new tissue to replace that which has become damaged or diseased. New cells appear like a builder extending a new row of houses; the whole of the wounded area is gradually overlapped; and soon it is difficult to tell where the injuries or sores have been, so perfect and complete is the growth of the new skin.

Zam-Buk has more than fulfilled the expectations of its discoverer, and many medical men to-day freely extol its merits. It possesses a wide range of usefulness, being especially recommended for eczema, psoriasis, bad legs, blind and bleeding piles, running sores, ulcers, pimples, boils, rashes, raw chapped hands, scalp diseases, dandruff, barber's rash, raw chin after shaving, chilblains, sore and aching feet, cold sores, festering sores, poisoned wounds, weak ankles, swollen joints, and all diseased, injured and inflamed or irritated conditions of the skin. Rubbed well in, Zam-Buk kills muscular and nerve pains. Of all druggists and stores, 50c. box or postpaid from the Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

Marmora Farmer Drank Poisoned Whiskey

Marmora, Ont., March 6. — Frank Myers, farmer, residing in Marmora township, committed suicide at the Royal Hotel here yesterday. He purchased strychnine from a local druggist, and mixed with it whiskey, which he drank. He then went to the hotel stables and asked to be allowed to lie down on the hay, as he was feeling sick. The hostler covered him up with robes, and left him, and on returning shortly after found him unconscious. A doctor was summoned, but the man died before he arrived.

Coroner MacKechnie held a post-mortem examination. Deceased had been ailing for some time, and his mind was affected. A wife and six children survive.

Lacoste to Lead The Conservative Party in Quebec

Montreal, March 7. — New Brunswick converted to progressive conservatism, has caused much glee among certain Montreal promoters of Conservative prospects. These "promoters" have but one badge, and that is "Get into power." Not for them loyalty to leaders, old or young. They are prepared to wear any principles and promise, so long as the result, getting in, can be reached.

Their latest "propaganda" concerns the re-organization of the Federal Opposition in Quebec. They propose to use any weakness for a Conservative party in the province so long as it is led by E. D. Monk, M.P., J. H. G. Bergeron, M.P., and Mr. Ames, and so long as Sir Wilfrid Laurier owes the French-Canadians by his overpowering personality.

These aforesaid promoters now suggest that Sir Alexander Lacoste be persuaded to come again into public life from the secluded retirement his long services to the public has entitled him to. They see in his personality some thing to fire the vivid imagination of French-Canadians. How to get him back into public life and how to get the present leaders to acquiesce in his leadership, do not puzzle these promoters. They say, let R. L. Borden, M.P., who has follows into line behind Lacoste.

Besides this provincial aspect of the federal situation, these "promoters" have visions of a grand re-organization encompassing the Dominion. They are urging on Mr. Borden the wisdom of introducing Premier Hazen of New Brunswick, Premier McBride of British Columbia, Hon. Rob Rogers of Manitoba, Premier Whitney of Ontario, to join forces with him at the next general election. They declare that they have assurances that such a scheme would be acceptable to those mentioned. When questioned as to what inducements they could offer Premier Whitney to join certainty for an uncertainty, they speak of having Mr. Borden speak in his favor and of the possibility of knighthood for the Prime Minister of Ontario.

Rector of St. John's Hands over Temporary Control

Arrangements in Detail for Lenten Services

In St. John's Church yesterday morning as soon as the processional hymn had been sung and the members of the choir had taken their respective places in the chancel, the rector, Rev. Canon Davidson, after announcing the meetings of the various societies of the church during the coming week, read to the congregation a formal letter of approval from the Archbishop of Toronto in connection with the undertaking now in progress, the "mission" which commenced yesterday and will continue until Wednesday, the 18th next. Canon Davidson then handed over the control and management of the mission into the hands of Mr. Hervey and the missioners, Revs. C. Ensor Sharpe, M.A., F. L. Bartley, Rev. E. A. Langfeldt, Ph.D., W. B. Hervey, B.A., Salisbury Lloyd and H. R. Mockridge, B.A.

Mr. Hervey conducted the service in the morning, which was one marked by great enthusiasm, departing from the customary morning service in certain particulars. At even evening prayer was said, and at half-past seven the mission service held. During the coming week the services are as follows: Tuesday and Thursday, at 10 a.m., Holy Communion will be celebrated; Monday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday, morning prayer at that hour. On Saturday afternoon at 4.15 a special service will be held, this hour being chosen as specially convenient for the school children. At 8 p.m. evensong each day. The Lenten services as usual, Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday at 5 p.m., and Wednesday at 8 p.m., with addresses by Revs. W. T. Hallam, H. C. Aylwin, J. Ferguson, Harold Eastman and Mr. Lambert H. Fotheringham and Canon Coly.

This evening the men of the congregation are urged to meet in the school house at seven o'clock to assist in the street services, which will be held each evening at 7 p.m.

Ladies' Choral on the Tapis

Peterborough is rapidly becoming a musical as well as a manufacturing centre. Those versed in current local musical matters say that a ladies' choral society will be formed here in the near future. A preliminary meeting was held at the Y. W. C. A. when the question was considered. Mr. McCann, organist of the George Street Methodist Church, is interested in the idea, and will lead the ladies of the society is formed. The choirs of the city will be asked to assist in the scheme, and a meeting next Friday night will be held to determine the progress of the undertaking.

EATING WITH HIS STOMACH

This is particularly true when he uses soft, starchy foods, which seldom get the necessary digestion by the saliva, as nature intended, because most people swallow such foods as quickly as possible. This leads to weakened digestive organs, fermentation, imperfect nutrition, and sometimes appendicitus.

Grape-Nuts

must be chewed, and for this as well as other reasons, this food has saved many from chronic intestinal troubles and all the misery that means. If there's one thing about Grape-Nuts of greater interest than its scientific food qualities, it is its remarkable practical adaptability to all weakened conditions of the digestive organs and and its power to build them up quickly.

Serious Accident to a Local Lady

The many friends of Mrs. De Cosmos Smith, sister of Mrs. Matius Clements, Simcoe street, will regret to learn that this lady is confined to her bed as the result of a very serious accident. Leaving this on Saturday Mrs. Smith was descending the stairs on Hunter street leading from the dental parlors of Dr. Wagaman, and fell heavily. There is a landing part of the way up the stairs, with a single step leading thereto. Mrs. Smith, not noticing this single step, stepped over it and lost her balance, and fell on her side. The shock and pain rendered her almost unconscious, but fortunately she was able to call for assistance. Her call was heard by a gentleman in the dental parlors, who came to her assistance. A friend of Mrs. Smith's was telephoned for, and on arrival helped the lady down into Macdonald's drug store. The Dix Spence ambulance was sent for and conveyed the sufferer home, accompanied by Miss Clements, who happened to be up town. Dr. Greer was called in and found the patient suffering so badly that anæsthetics had to be administered several times. Owing to the painful state of the bruised hip, a full medical examination is not yet practicable, but it is feared that the thigh bone is fractured. As it is, Mrs. Smith will probably be confined to bed for some weeks. Her many friends will hope for a speedy and full recovery.

One Held on Saturday Evening on Hunter Street

Interesting Meeting

On Saturday evening a few minutes after eight o'clock what might be almost described as a "march" scene was enacted on Hunter street, when the Salvation Army and other religious bodies who hold street corner services were augmented by the rector of St. John's church, accompanied by a large number of young men, marched from the church along the above mentioned street to the Post Office corner, chose in the line of March singing "Onward, Christian Soldiers."

The grand old hymn was rendered by male voices unaccompanied by musical instruments. On arrival at the corner, a movable pulpit, carried by some members of the procession, was halted for a minute or two, and then placed in the roadway in front of the Higgins Hardware Co., and here made ready for the evening's proceedings. This street pulpit was a frame work covered by a red flag bearing a white cross. The proceedings attracted quite a considerable amount of curiosity and interest, the ubiquitous small boy soon spied the unusual sight, and remarks of different kinds and significance were audible on all sides.

However, these seemingly flippant remarks ceased when it was seen that some members of the church, defying possible criticism, were out to do good and advance the good cause in the way they thought expedient. This open air fight on the public streets waged against lukewarm Christianity and to capture the citadel of infidelity, sin and neglect of duty did more than attract curiosity, it attracted people who listened with interest to this the first gun fired in this week's mission work. Rev. Canon Davidson has taken great interest in the arrangements for the week's proceedings, and his work, as usual, has been characterized by great zeal. Similar meetings will be held in one or two other parts of the city during the evening by other members of the church.

QUAKERS GO WEST

The Quakers will journey to the Coast and have a try for the Peoples' Shield games for the championship of Canada. The delay in the meantime has been a search for the wherewithal to pay expenses, but now the players are putting up and rely somewhat on their share of the gate. A telegram has been sent to William Ellis, the secretary of the Shield Committee, at Vancouver, notifying him of the decision, as all entries had to be in by Saturday.

The team will travel by C. P. R., and may secure a private car. The tournament begins on the 18th of April. They will meet seven of the best elevens in the Dominion, among them being the Calgary Caledonians, the present champions of Canada.

Among those who will constitute the team are Percy McFadden, James Doris, F. Grimshaw, Thos. D'Forge, Percy Fitzgerald, Ray Beer, James Archibald, Jack Crough, Wm. Boycott, Fred Doherty and W. Hagley. Dr. Morgan, the president, may accompany the team.

Farmers and Daring Robbers Have a Pitched Battle

Camden, N.J., March 7.—A pitched battle between farmers and three robbers, in which two of the latter were wounded, following the daring robbery early to-day of the post office at Pedricktown and Bridgeport, near here. Two of the men were captured, but the third succeeded in eluding the farmers. He is being closely followed, and his arrest is expected at any minute.

The robbers first appeared at Pedricktown shortly after midnight and stole a team of horses from a livery stable. They then went to the post office, blew open the safe, and stole $250 in money and stamps. The force of the explosion wrecked the building and the place took fire.

The robbers then fled, and nothing further was heard from them until two hours later, when they appeared at Bridgeport, eight miles from Pedricktown.

The bandits took $300 in stamps and $50 in cash from the Bridgeport post office and escaped.

A posse was organized and the desperadoes were traced to a clump of woods and both sides opened fire. One of the robbers fell and the second threw up his hands and surrendered. The third held his ground for some time, but fled further into the bush.

The two men captured were locked up in jail. When arraigned before Mayor Ladd at Woodbury they gave the names of William McCoy and John Burns. Both prisoners were committed to jail under the care of a physician.

Eloquent Speakers for the Week's Work

As a number of visiting clergymen will take part in the mission services in connection with St. John's Church this week, it might be noted that these gentlemen are without exception distinguished in their profession and able speakers.

Rev. W. H. Hervey is of Irish extraction, and whilst at Christ Church, Belleville, was greatly admired. For some time he had a church in New York State, afterwards being appointed rector of Barrie, Ont. Mr. Hervey was appointed travelling secretary of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew some years ago. He preached at St. John's dedication festival last November.

Rev. C. Ensor Sharpe is a graduate of Oxford University, and a highly cultivated man. He was naval chaplain at Esquimalt, B.C., until the removal of the British squadron, when he went to Toronto, and was appointed on the staff of St. Thomas church, of which the late Mr. King was rector. On the latter's death he was made rector.

Mr. Salisbury Lloyd is a Welshman and was several years a clergyman in the Free Church. He joined the Church of England, and devoted himself up to mission work in this country. He was actively identified with the great Welsh revival.

Rev. F. C. Barber is an Englishman, for many years connected with mission work in Liverpool, and other cities in England, acting as lay evangelist. He came to Canada to engage in mission work, and was ordained some time ago in Toronto.

Rev. Hamilton R. Mockridge is the youngest son of Rev. Dr. Mockridge, the late rector of Christ Church Cathedral, Hamilton, and is a young man of much promise and comes as assistant to Rev. C. E. Sharpe.

Rev. C. E. Wilkinson was ordained a week ago yesterday at St. John's. He has rendered very valuable assistance during the preparatory work for the mission. He will give an address this afternoon at 4.15 o'clock.

THE FIRE ENGINE'S HORSES WERE DRAGGING ROAD SCRAPER

Hose Wagon was Taken to Fire by Horses Borrowed from Undertaker--Not an Ax Could be Found to Batter Down Door and Free Children

Cleveland, March 7.—Anguish and anger were Collinwood's yesterday.

The day of horror past, the townspeople turned to the reckoning. Directly they placed the blame against the faulty construction of the inner door, wickedly against the local fire department, more bitterly against the policies that made such inadequate protection possible.

When the alarm sounded the only team at the horses the town owned was dragging a road scraper, more than a mile away. While frantic men and pitiful women were wasting their little strength trying to break down the door and the partition on both sides, the axe that would have saved many lives was lying idly in the fire station, and the town's-all-work was plowing through mud knee deep on its way to where it should have been.

MANY LIVES SOLD CHEAPLY.

It would have been a simple matter, say those who were first on the scene, to have broken down the door, cut away the partition, and released at least part of the mass of children that clogged the passageway — if there had been an axe at hand. Several men ran to near-by houses in quest of one but they came back empty-handed.

At last the fire department reached the school. First came the hose waggon, drawn by horses borrowed from the undertaker for the occasion. Frail and antiquated, it squeaked and rattled as it struck the numerous ruts in the mire of the road. It would have been a laughable sight under other circumstances. In time, followed the wheezy gasoline engine, and the hook and ladder, for even such a long run could not kill the team-of-all-work. The engine, once in action, spluttered and halted, the hose leaked, and the water pressure was admittedly abnormally low.

And this was the fire department depended upon to protect a town of 7,000 inhabitants, forty-three miles of streets, and property worth several millions.

ANNEXATION LONG DELAYED.

For months Collinwood has talked of becoming a part of Cleveland. Under the administration of Mayor Sherman, who preceded Mayor Westropp, the town voted to become a part of Cleveland. But the Sherman regime was not to be ousted without a fight. It had a month of life after it was sentenced to fall and after the people had declared their wish to be taken into the larger city. In that month the anti-annexationists devoted themselves to obstructing the carrying out of the plan and perpetrated a successful political trick, delaying action.

In this situation Collinwood has stagnated. No money has been spent on fire protection that could be saved, for once on Cleveland the town no longer would have to depend upon its own resources. The dust and rot have been allowed to gather on the superannuated fire apparatus.

"We have little money, and we must economize," says Mayor Westropp.

As was only a week or so ago that an appeal was made to the Council for better protection in the north end of the town, in which the ill-fated school building was located. The petition was "placed on file."

And now, in its grief, Collinwood is recalling all this. "If we had had our way this would never have happened," is the lament of the mourning.

The total of deaths in Wednesday's fire last night was 164. The bodies of twenty-seven of these lay on the floor of the engine house and town hall, unidentified heaps of burned flesh and bone. All day sorrowing parents came to this rude morgue, making another search for the missing. The corpses, huddled in blankets and lined along the walls, marked an aisle through the narrow room.

IRONY IN HALL OF DEAD.

What irony there was in the bringing of the dead to this place, dedicated to the housing of the town's fire department.

"Protection No. 1" was the legend in gilt letters on the little old hose waggon in the rear of the room. "Protection No. 1." Stricken fathers and mothers looked at this and then at the pathetic rows of bodies.

Leaning unsteadily on the arm of a friend, a little woman in black came to the morgue late yesterday afternoon. She was looking for her child. All night, until the building was closed, she had moved up and down in the chill warehouse where the bodies first were taken, seeking among the dead. When her tears finally were dried yesterday, she began the hunt again.

"I would know her by her shoes," she said, "and by a darn in the heel of her stocking."

They drew back the blanket from a charred form. The mother stooped and examined the little shoes. A button of one was missing.

IDENTIFIED BY MISSING BUTTON.

"That's she, that's Mary Alice," she cried. She pulled the button off just before she went to school."

Then, to make sure, the shoe was removed and the stocking examined. There was no darn. "Take off the other one," the mother directed. The coroner hesitated; it was not a sight for a mother to see.

"Go on, don't think I'm a baby because I'm a woman. I won't faint," the woman said. The coroner tugged at the shoe and the body trembled. A shudder passed through the little woman. It was her child.

Fearfully yet eagerly she bent over the form and felt of the heel of the stocking. The darn was there.

How many mistakes in identification were made no one will ever know. How many parents are burying as their loved ones the children of others no one can ever tell. What bodies are left unidentified by Monday will be confined to graves in Lakeview cemetery as one big funeral.

MOTHERS WON'T FORGET AS THE CROWD WILL

Cleveland, March 7.—A year from now, if reminded of the Collinwood disaster, you will perhaps say, "Oh, some schoolhouse burned down—did it not?—and some children died in the flames," in the sum up stunning terms that you would to-day call the Slocum disaster, or any other great disaster that has shocked the world in recent years.

You are shocked, you feel a real, if impersonal grief, but it is easy to forget.

All day yesterday a crowd that congested the street pressed against the police cordon which surrounded the Collinwood Town Hall. The crowd was added to as the cars came in from the city loaded on the running boards. Police Captain Schmunk had to send back for more men to keep the people back.

CURIOUS MOVED TO GRIEF.

The bodies of the first victims of the fire had been removed to the night from the Lake Shore warehouse to the town hall, and such of them as had not been claimed lay on the floor.

Stolidly, patiently, the crowd waited—for what? A glimpse of a row of corpses.

Morbid curiosity? You may call it that. But there were real tears on many eyes. And they talked in hushed tones, reverencing the dissolute, in all its phases — discussing rumors, judging, condemning, criticising, sympathizing.

And did a policeman but turn his back or for an instant leave his post, and they surged against the rope and craned their necks and had their free born American feelings hurt when the policeman thrust them back.

"I have as good a right to see as anyone," they said, and wanted for another chance.

MOTHER ENDS CHATTERING.

"If I had my way," a man said to all that cared to hear, "I wouldn't rest until the fellow who is responsible for this was in jail."

"What I want to know," said another, "is where is the janitor?"

"No fault of his," said a third. "The doors opened inward — that's how it happened."

"Well, anyhow," said the first speaker, "somebody's to blame, and if I had my way —"

It cannot be known what he would do if given his way, for he did not tell. A woman, his wife probably, had tugged at his arm, whispering excitedly:

"Jim! Jim! Look!"

A thrill went through the crowd, and it charged in a body. It was about to indulge itself in the luxury of woe.

A woman came from the town hall, weeping. Her face was hidden in her hands. A man supported her, his arm about her waist, his lips whispering broken words of comfort in her ear. They had found their little daughter.

It was worth waiting for. It was what the crowd had come for. Some had waited for six solid hours, in a muddy street for this one thrill of impersonal grief.

They settled down and waited. Presently a new and different diversion was introduced here in the day, when a man ran out of the town hall, which is also the village's fire headquarters, shouting "Fire!"

The horses were hitched to the engine and hose waggon amid breathless and cheerful excitement.

"Where?" shouted the crowd.

It swept over the police cordon, questioning "Where?" Then it scattered in every direction, looking for the fire. It shouted and laughed. It wanted to see a fire.

A man appeared and said to the firemen, "Unhitch. It was a false alarm.

Hartley Did Not Make Expenses

David Hartley, Peterborough's representative at the great six-days' walking match in Kansas City, is home and in good health. Mr. Hartley yesterday said that the match was a financial failure. Although the great Convention Hall, in which it was held, would easily hold 15,000 people, it was not at any time half filled. Although Hartley, by getting fifth place in the race, got part of the money, his share falls over $75 below his actual outlay for going to Kansas City. His expenses, including a high priced trainer, were heavy. Hoagland, who took first money, only got about $160, whilst some of the walkers went broke.

Hartley speaks in high terms of the treatment accorded him at Kansas City. He thinks he can beat Hoagland in a six days' walk under ordinary conditions, and hopes to have a match arranged with him

Remember that when the stomach nerves fail or weaken, Dyspepsia or Indigestion must always follow. But, strengthen these same weak inside nerves with Dr. Shoop's Restorative, and then see how quickly health will again return. Weak Heart and Kidney Nerves can also be strengthened with the Restorative, when Heart pains, palpitation or Kidney weakness is found. Don't drug the stomach, nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys. That is wrong. Go to the cause of these ailments. Strengthen these weak inside nerves with Dr. Shoop's Restorative and get well. A simple, single test will surely tell. All dealers.

UNCLE SAM'S LAMENESS

Ex-Secretary of the Treasury, Leslie M. Shaw, has been making a speech and, as his habit is, has been saying things that his fellow countrymen will not like to read. He told them that "over three hundred thousand freight cars are standing idle on the tracks, eight thousand locomotives are out of business, and ten per cent. of the population of large cities is idle, and for the first time under a Republican administration free soup kitchens are open in every industrial centre." This is certainly not a very pretty picture, and there seems to be only too much truth in it. He blames it all on Roosevelt. On the other hand there are those who say that this depression was engineered and is maintained by interests which desire to make the country sick of the policy of Roosevelt towards accumulated wealth. Whatever the cause may be, it is certainly a very serious state of things.

Then Mr. Shaw had something to say about the preparedness of the country to go to war, and he told his hearers that they were paying at the rate of a million dollars every thirty days for the hire of foreign steamers to carry coal for the use of the fleet, which Admiral Evans is leading around the world. He added that, if the fleet was on a warlike mission, it would have to get along without coal, for foreign ships could not be employed to transport it and the United States could not furnish the vessels from its own mercantile marine.

Then he told that if all the powder factories in the United States should work twenty-four hours a day they could not produce in thirty days more than enough to last the fleet two hours in case of war, and that there is at least one European power that can produce as much powder in a day as the United States can produce in twelve months.

To lend further interest to his statements, he said that all the powers in the world know the lameness of the country in the above particulars better than it is known to the people of the United States. This is rather startling reading but it is of the kind which is calculated to prevent any yearly breach of the peace on the part of Uncle Sam, and perhaps this is not a very bad thing. Possibly when our jingo neighbors realize the condition of things they may moderate their obstreperousness a little.

$100.00 paid by Dr. Shoop for any recent case of Grippe or acute Cold that a 25 cent box of Preventics will not break. How is this for an offer? The Doctor's supreme confidence in these little Candy Cold Cure Tablets—Preventics—is certainly complete. It's a $100 against 25 cents—pretty big odds. And Preventics—remember, contain no quinine, no laxative, nothing harsh nor sickening. Pneumonia would never appear if early colds were always broken. Safe and sure for feverish children. A Preventics 25c. All dealers.

A BRIGHT BOY.

But He Lacked the Necessary Qualification and Lost the Job.

"So you have called in answer to my advertisement for an office boy, eh?" asked the head of the firm.

"Yes, sir," replied the youth. "You will find me a neat penman, sir."

"That's what we want."

"And good at figures."

"Yes."

"And always on time."

"Yes."

"And always willing to work."

"Yes."

"And a rapid messenger, as I know my way around the city."

"Yes."

"And I'm pretty fair at typewriting in case your stenographer gets sick."

"Splendid, my boy—splendid! Now, are you handy with your fists in a fight?"

"In—in a fight, sir?"

"Yes. Can you put it all over a boy your size if necessary?"

"I—I never fight, sir."

"But you look like a chap who could give a good account of himself in a scrimmage. I don't want you to go around looking for trouble, you understand, but if it comes along can you take care of yourself?"

"It's—it's wicked to fight, sir."

"Hum! Well, we need talk no further, I guess," said the head of the firm with a sign of disappointment. "You see, Smith, down the hall, is continually bragging about the fighting qualities of his red headed office boy, and I'm going to get one this time who can thrash that lad out of his boots. Sorry, son, as you seem to be a bright young fellow. Sure you weren't fooling?"

"Y-yes, sir."

"Well, it's too bad, but I can't have that old pudding head blowing all the time about the scrapper he has. Take a look at his boy as you go out, and if you think you can beat him in a scrap come back and the job is yours."

But the youth never returned.—A. B. Lewis in Judge.

The Easier Way.

"How I hated work in those days!" said Mark Twain, recalling his boyhood in Hannibal, Mo. "One morning my father led me into the garden and pointed to a bed of flowers that had a considerable number of weeds in it.

"'I want you,' said my father, 'to weed out this flower bed.'

"I examined the task ahead of me, and the more I looked at it the bigger it seemed to grow. Certainly I had never seen so many weeds in my life.

"'Wouldn't it be a simpler operation,' I said to my father, 'to flower out the weed bed?'"—Woman's Home Companion.

The Race as It Was.

"I see you are here," said the tortoise.

"Yes," replied the hare. "Are you going to race?"

"No; what would be the use? People would only say we were nature fakirs."

And while they stood there arguing a man came along and threw a bag over the head of the hare and took the tortoise along to make fashionable hairpins out of his back.—Detroit Tribune.

Whew!

"Ah," exclaimed Miss Patience Gonne, whom Mr. Staylate had been boring with silly conundrums, "that reminds me of the best thing going."

"What's that?" he asked unsuspectingly.

"A man who has stayed too long."—Philadelphia Press.

Question Far Question.

"Do you know how to cure a cold?"

"If I did," inquired the sarcastic citizen, "would I be offering free advice on the street, or would I be occupying handsome offices and catering to a waiting list a mile long?"—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

The Ruling Passion.

"I want a postal order, please, and, as I haven't any money, will you please swap it for this rabbit?"

Had Her Shot Off.

"Does your wife ever exasperate you by referring to the excellent qualities of her first husband?"

"I should say not. His income wasn't half as big as mine is."—St. Louis Republic.

The Stone of Destiny.

"The Stone of Scone was a sort of seat, wasn't it?" asked the smatterer.

"Yes," replied the student, "a sort of a rock-in-chair."—Kansas City Times.

A Graduate's Peculiar Spelling

Two young lady students at the Collegiate Institute were yesterday engaged in a street corner confidential chat, which happened to be partly overheard. One of the girls said, "Say, Bell, I had a letter from Min the other day and do you know her spelling was just terrible. She wrote, in reply to a letter of mine, about Tom and said that he had been her fancy for several weeks, and do you know she spelt fancy F-i-a-n-c-e. What do you think of that for a girl that graduated at the Institute.

LINES TO LOUISA.

[The same being our forty-seventh maid who has gone to smash elsewhere.]

A week ago we had a maid
Whose memory will never fade.
You should have seen Louisa!
She piled the plates on which we dined
So very high they called to mind
The leaning tower of Pisa.

At other times they did not lean
When carried by our kitchen queen
(Whose other name was Dennis),
But rose as straight as spire or tree,
And then her model seemed to be
The campanile, Venice.

The leaning tower was first to go,
And when it hit the floor below
The havoc was appalling!
At once another crash occurred,
And then, alas, we knew we heard
The campanile falling!

I see its shattered remnants yet.
'Twas half our wedding dinner set—
The other half was Pisa.
My chatelaine her protest filed.
"Pray leave," she cried, "ere I go wild,
For Pelion on Ossa piled
Would be your next, Louisa!"
—Earle Hooker Eaton in Harper's Weekly.

Evidently.

She—This wine doesn't seem to go to your head as quickly as it does to mine.

He—No. That is probably because it has farther to go.

Modern Archaeology.

Pat was having an argument with a friend who was well posted in ancient history.

"How foolish of you to contend that the ancient Irish were more advanced than the ancient Egyptians," said his friend. "Why, the Egyptians must have even understood electricity, as wires corresponding to our own telegraph wires have been found in Egypt."

"That may be," answered Pat, "but the fact that no wires have been found in Ireland proves beyond a doubt that the Irish were in the habit of using wireless telegraphy."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Prejudice.

"Robert, this spelling paper is very poor," complained the small boy's teacher. "Nearly every word is marked wrong."

"It wouldn't have been so bad," protested Robert, "but Annie corrected my paper, and she's mad at me, and for every little letter that I got wrong she crossed out the whole word."—Lippincott's.

Accounts For It.

As Times Change.

"Politics is getting to be wonderfully interesting," said the observer.

"Yes," answered Senator Sorghum, "it is mighty interesting; but, between you and me, it isn't near so much of an investment as it used to be."—Washington Star.

Hiram Ryetop—So the checker club argued here on the Panama canal, hey? How long did they argue, Jeff?

The Storekeeper—Let's see. Half a wedge of cheese, peck of prunes, pint of dried peaches and a pound of crackers.

"All right, Mr. Slopey," replied Mrs. Borden. "We'll just give you two looks in future."—Kansas City Times.

The Canadian Magazine

Mr. Cy. Warman the well known author and journalist, writing on "Prince Rupert" in The Canadian Magazine, says:—

"Prince Rupert is new and attractive. It is to be a model city in every sense of the word. It guards what is said to be the finest natural harbor on the coast, if not in the world. It is the terminal town of a transcontinental railway which bids fair to surpass anything ever yet attempted in the way of railway construction on this continent, crossing from ocean to ocean without a single mile of mountain grade or grade that can by any stretch of imagination be considered an obstacle to the economical operation of the road. Prince Rupert is also at the end of the long portage on the shortest route around the world. Any scheme which has for its ultimate object the swift circling of the sphere must reckon Prince Rupert on its right-of-way. The mineral wealth of all that vast mountain region, the forest products of Northern British Columbia, as well as the food products of the Prairie Provinces and the far of the far north—that is to say, all the export wealth of this resourceful Dominion originating north and west of the South Saskatchewan, bound for the Orient by the Occidental route—will funnel down and pass out by way of Prince Rupert."

Lecture on Advertising

The Stratford Beacon of last issue devotes several columns to the report of a lecture given before the Canadian Club of London, Ont., by Professor Sheldon, of Chicago, on the "Psychology of Advertising." The report is comprehensive and interesting, but for local purposes in Peterborough in particular could be condensed as far as practical purposes go into five words, "Advertise in the Peterborough Times." This will bring results to merchants and manufacturers at small proportionate cost.

Application for entry must be made in person by the applicant at a Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-agency for the district in which the land is situate. (2) A homesteader may, if he so desires, perform the required residence duties by living on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of his homestead. Joint ownership in land will not meet this requirement.

(3) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of a homesteader has permanent residence on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of a homestead, or upon a homestead entered for by him in the vicinity, such homesteader may perform his own residence duties by living with the father or mother.

(4) The term "vicinity" in the two preceding paragraphs is defined as meaning not more than nine miles in a direct line exclusive of the width of road allowances crossed in the measurement.

(5) A homesteader intending to perform his residence duties in accordance with the above while living with parents or on farming land owned by himself must notify the agent for the district of such intention.

STUBBORN FACTS UNIMPEACHABLE

The loss in shipping deciduous and citrus fruits is enormous. The orange crop of Southern California alone is valued at $20,000,000. The government experts estimate that about 25 per cent. or $7,500,000, is lost every year by rough handling in picking and decay of fruit in transit to the Eastern markets. What a revenue of profit this loss would be to the shipper if it could be saved. Our process will save it. The same is true of the deciduous fruits of Northern California.

GREAT FORTUNES ARE MADE BY INVESTING IN NECESSITIES

Fruit is one of the necessities of our civilized life, and the company that can place the fruit in the markets of the world in the best shape, in the quickest time, at the lowest rate, has a fortune within its grasp. The Armour Company in ten years made $6,000,000 net handling California fruit in refrigerator cars. Our process is as necessary to the fruit grower as the refrigerator car. Therefore we ought to receive as large a revenue for handling the same commodity.

GET IN WHILE THE ENTERPRISE IS NEW

No wiser words were ever spoken than these: "The chief point about getting rich is to invest in a new enterprise that is being managed by successful men, who have some of their own money in the deal." "One good investment is worth a lifetime of labor". Think over this sentence. A man's daily labor will never make him rich. He must have some money at work for him. Money invested never gets sick, keeps no holidays, never goes on strike. There are three things that ought to guide you: First, invest with honest men; second, invest with men of sound judgment; third, invest under conditions where you get your full share of profits the business yields. Get into a company whose destiny is guided by men of this stamp when its future is before and not behind it. Here is the secret of fortune. Plant the seed of your investment in the soil of opportunity, at the season of greatest promise when the enterprise is new. Every ounce of rhonor in the hearts of the men managing this company is pledged to give

A SQUARE DEAL FOR EVERY INVESTO

There will be no preferred stock. Every dollar invested will be worth 100 cents on the dollar. Our Directors, as honourable business men, will not allow any tricks of trade by which the small investor can be frozen out. Their commercial standing proves they are not "grafters". The poor man's 500 or 100 shares will have the same standing in court as the rich man's 10,000, and they will draw the same proportionate dividends. We court investigation.

EVERY RICH MAN IN THE WORLD WAS ONCE POOR OR HIS GRANDFATHER WAS.

THE OPPORTUNITY OF A LIFETIME

To get into a company that has the certainty of growth, the assurance of large and quick returns, a rapid advance in the price of stock, to make it an exceptional chance for big profits on a small investment. This is an ideal investment for the wage earner as well as the rich man. Moderate sums invested now will bring splendid returns in the near future. The logic of all this is

DON'T WAIT

Time is the essence of this proposition. The stock will certainly double in a short time. Jay Gould once said: "When you see a good investment don't wait to see if it pans out well, for by that time other people see it, too, and you have lost your opportunity."

WOMEN AS INVESTORS

Some of the heaviest stockholders in our company are women of keen business instincts. One lady in Los Angeles bought 5,000 shares. In a few days she returned and bought 5,000 more. This lady has never made a mistake in her business ventures. Women are good investors because they have courage to follow their convictions. Their intuitions are keener and truer than man's logic. Men may prevent her voting, but they can't prevent her drawing dividends on her investments. This is one branch of trade where sex, culture, or color does not count.

MANAGEMENT

The affairs of this company are in the hands of men of honesty, ability, courage and good business judgment—men who have made a success of their own business—men whose business reputation is A1 in the commercial circles in which they move.

These men are "square" and "shrewd". They will not deceive you nor will they be deceived themselves. Because of the promise of growth, permanency and profit this business offers they have enlisted their money, energy, time and business experience to make this enterprise a grand success.

chuck farthing at the door and keeping Mr. Grexon Hay from coming in.

"You there, Beecot?" said this gentleman coldly. "I wish you would tell this brat to leave eater."

"Brat yourself, y' toff!" cried Tray, pocketing his money. "Ain't I a-doin' as my master tells me? He's engaged with two pretty women"—he leered in a way which made Paul long to box his ears—"so I don't spile sport. You've got tired of them, Mr. Beecot?"

"How do you know Mr. Beecot's name?" asked Hay calmly.

"Lor', sir, didn't you and me pull him from under the wheels?"

"Oh," said Grexon, suddenly enlightened, "were you the boy? Since you have washed your face I didn't recognise you. Well, Beecot, you look disturbed."

"I have reason to. And since you and this boy pulled me from under the wheels of the motor," said Paul, glancing from one to the other, "I should like to know what became of the brooch."

"I'm sure I don't know," said Grexon quietly. "We talked of this before. I gave it as my opinion, if you remember, that it was picked up in the street by the late Aaron Norman and was used to seal his mouth. At least that is the only way in which I can conjecture you lost it."

"You never saw it drop from my pocket?"

"I should have picked it up and returned it had I seen it," said Hay, fixing his eyeglass. "Perhaps this boy saw it."

"Saw what?" asked Tray, who was listening with both his large ears.

"An old blue velvet case with a brooch inside," said Beecot quickly.

Tray shook his head vigorously. "If I'd seen it I ha' nicked it," he said impudently. "Catch me givin' it back t' y', Mr. Beecot!"

"Why don't you ask the detectives to search for the brooch," said Hay, smiling.

"It is in the detective's possession," said Paul sullenly; "but we want to know how it came to pin Norman's lips together."

"I can't imagine, unless he picked it up. If last at all it must have been lost in the street the old man lived in, and you told me he wanted the brooch badly."

"But he wasn't on the spot?"

"Wot," cried Tray suddenly, "the one eyed cove? He, yust, but warn't he? Why, when they was a-gittin' the ambulance, an' the p'leece was a-crowdin' round, he come dancing like billee out of his sharp."

Beecot thought this was strange, as he understood from Deborah and Bert and Sylvia that Norman had known nothing of the accident at the time. Then again Norman himself had not mentioned it when he paid that visit to the hospital within a few hours of his death. "I don't think that's true," he said to Tray sharply.

"Oh, cuse it," said that young gentleman, "wot d' I care. Th' ole cove come an' danced in the mud, and then he gits int his sharp again. Trew is trew, only wot y' like, mister—he."

Beecot turned his back on the boy. After all, he was not worth arguing with and a liar by instinct. Still, in this case he might have spoken the truth. Norman might have appeared on the scene of the accident and have picked up the brooch. Paul thought he would tell Hurd this, and, meantime, hold out his hand to Hay. In spite of the bad character he had heard of that young man, he saw no reason why he should not be civil to him, until he found him out. Meantime, he was on his guard.

"One moment," said Grexon, grasping the outstretched hand. "I have something to say to you," and he walked a little way with Paul. "I am going in to see Pash on business which means a little money to me. I was the unfortunate cause of your accident, Beecot, so I think you might accept £20 or so from me."

"No, thank you all the same," said Paul gratefully, yet with a certain amount of caution. "I can struggle along. After all, it was an accident."

"You are a hard hearted sort of chap," said Hay coldly, but rather annoyed at his friendly advances being flouted. "Well, then, if you won't accept a loan, let me help you in another way. Come dine at my rooms. I have a young publisher coming also, and if you meet him he will be able to do something for you. He's under obligations to me, and you may be certain I'll use all my influence in your favor. Come, now—next Tuesday—that's a week off. You can't have any engagement at such a long notice."

Paul smiled. "I never do have any engagements," he said, with his boyish smile, "thank you. I'll look in if I can."

"Then I count on you," said Hay. "This publisher will do a lot for you. By Jove, what a good looking girl!"

He said this under his breath. Miss Maud Krill appeared on the doorstep where the two young men stood and stumbled against Grexon in passing. His hat was off at once, and he apologised profusely. Miss Krill, who seemed a young woman of few words, as Paul thought from her silence in the office, smiled and bowed, but passed on, without saying a "thank you." Mrs. Krill followed, escorted by the treacherous Pash, who was all smiles and hand washings and bows. Apparently he was quite convinced that the widow's story was true, and Paul felt sick at the news he would have to tell Sylvia. Pash saw the young man and, meeting his indignant eyes, darted back into his office like a rabbit into its warren. Mr. Grexon came out in her calm, serene way, without a look at either Paul or his companion. Yet the young man had an instinct that she saw them both.

"That's the mother, I expect," said Hay, putting his glass firmly into his eye. "A handsome pair. Gad, Paul, that young woman—eh?"

"Perhaps you'd like to marry her," said Paul bitterly.

Hay drew himself up stiffly. "I don't marry stray young women I see on the street, however attractive," he said in his cold voice. "I don't know either of these ladies."

"Pash will introduce you if you make it worth his while."

"Why the deuce should I?" retorted Hay, staring.

"Well," said Beecot impulsively telling the whole of the misfortune that had befallen him, "that is the wife and that is the daughter of Aaron Norman, Miss Krill. The daughter inherits five thousand a year, so marry her and be happy."

"But your Dulcinea?" asked Grexon, dropping his eyeglass in amazement.

"She has me and poverty," said Paul, turning away. Nor could the quiet call of Hay make him stop. But at the end of the street he looked back and saw Grexon entering the office of the lawyer. If Hay was the man Hurd said he was, Paul guessed that he would inquire about the heiress and marry her, too, if her banking account was large and safe.

CHAPTER XII.

WHEN Paul reached his garret he found a letter from his father and opened it with some trepidation. It proved to contain joyful news. Mr. Beecot thanked heaven that Paul was not such a fool as he had been of yore and hinted that this sudden access of sense which had led him to engage himself to a wealthy girl had come from his father and not from his mother. He—Beecot senior—was aware that Paul had acted badly and had not remembered what was due to the best of fathers, but since he was prepared to settle down with a rich wife, Beecot senior nobly forgave the past and Paul's many delinquencies (mentioned in detail) and would be glad to welcome his daughter-in-law. Then Beecot, becoming the tyrant again, insisted that the marriage should take place in Wargrove and that the fact of Sylvia's father being murdered should be suppressed. In fact, the old gentleman left nothing to the young couple, but arranged everything in his own selfish way, even to choosing, in Wargrove, the house they would inhabit.

Paul, facing the situation, bravely wrote to his father and explained how the fortune had passed from Sylvia, but declared with all the romance of youth that he intended to marry the girl all the same. If Beecot senior, said Paul, would permit the marriage and allow the couple a small income until the husband could earn enough to keep the pot boiling, the writer would be grateful. If not, Paul declared firmly that he would work like a slave to make a home for his darling. But nothing in the world would make him give up Sylvia.

Barbers After Scalp of Moler Et Al

The following letter received by us at the strong meeting of the above barbers' union, shows that the combine is going to fight all the way through, and quickly and squarely with the non-union men. Moler's Barber College and similar institutions are doing quick work and turning out many quick pupils. It is thought that Moler's Barber College, at Iowa, as it is known to be operated in Chicago, its original starting place, from which branches have spread, is as follows: A young man goes and advertises to the effect that by attending the "College," he, for a certain fee, will be taught the trade in a very few weeks. The "College" consists of a large room with many chairs and a few "demonstrators." The pupil pays his fee and is shown how to handle a razor so as to pass it over the faces of a small army of dupes who daily or monthly call for a free shave. How the boys fare during the operation is not known, nor as the amount of efficiency gained by these college taught barbers. The letter reads as follows:

Journeymen Barbers' International Union of America.
London, March 3.

Dear Sir and Bro.:

After due consideration and advice received from different labor men and also from some of our sister locals, we think it would be advisable to proceed, and have Mr. J. O'Donohue, labor lawyer, draft out a license law for us and try and get it passed in Ontario.

We think that this would be the most effective way with barber schooles and other shops that make a practice of turning out men, tradesmen as they say, in from two to six months. We think if we can get this law through, as no doubt we can, that prospective learners will think twice before they enter such places and pay their good money to learn a trade in two months when the law will require them to serve three years before they can apply for a license.

Now, brothers, it will cost a little money to get this law drafted up and put through, but if we all join together it will be a small item to each local.

Hoping you will give this matter your earliest possible attention and notify me as to what action you take, I remain,

Yours fraternally,
Secy. Local 368.
713 Richmond St., London, Ont.

The matter will be discussed by the local Knights of the Razor and Shears next Monday night.

POLICE

At yesterday's session of the police court one case was tried which necessitated the presence of witnesses of several merchants and others not usually seen at this headquarters of the Labor Loathing League. Two young men, Thomas Clark and George Bowman, were charged with having created a disturbance in a public place, to wit, on George street, between Brock and Murray streets, on Monday night last.

As the offence was proven, his Worship inflicted a fine of $2 on each defendant, and allowed them ten days in which to gather in the two sunoleons.

Transferred to Deseronto Branch

A complimentary notice is contained in the last issue of the Tweed Weekly News concerning a Peterborough boy, a son of Mr. Geo. Giroux, of the Trent Valley Canal office staff, and a brother of Mr. Giroux of the local branch of the Royal Bank. The notice referred to is as follows:

"Mr. C. O. Giroux, of the Bank of Montreal staff, has been transferred to the Deseronto branch of the bank. He will be greatly missed in Tweed, where he has made himself quite popular. As a member of the local hockey team his brilliant playing did much to bring credit to the local club. Mr. H. B. Kenny, of Deseronto, will be given the position in the local bank."

Weak Kidneys

Weak Kidneys, usually point to weak Kidney Nerves. The Kidneys, like the Heart, and the Stomach, and their weakness, not in the organ itself, but in the nerves that control and guide and strengthen them. Dr. Shoop's Restorative is a medicine specifically prepared to reach these controlling nerves. To doctor the Kidneys alone, is futile. It is a waste of time, and of money as well.

If your back aches or is weak, if the urine scalds, or is dark and strong, if you have symptoms of Brights or other distressing or dangerous kidney disease, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative a month—Taken or Lost—and see what it can and will do for you. Actors' Jealously—No Play

It has been said that among those affected by the green-eyed monster, jealousy on actors, girls in love and some parsons. The truth of this as regards the first mentioned is beyond peradventure or dispute. It is generally known that the Royal Alexandra Stock Co., which recently played here, contained at least two members between whom there was not that esprit de corps that should characterize people in the same body of men trying for a common success. The result was that on Saturday night no show was given.

The Canadian Magazine

Mr. Cy. Warman the well known author and journalist, writing on "Prince Rupert" in The Canadian Magazine, says:—

"Prince Rupert is new and attractive. It is to be a model city in every sense of the word. It guards what is said to be the finest natural harbor on the coast, if not in the world. It is the terminal town of a transcontinental railway which bids fair to surpass anything ever yet attempted in the way of railway construction on this continent, crossing from ocean to ocean without a single mile of mountain grade or grade that can by any stretch of imagination be considered an obstacle to the economical operation of the road. Prince Rupert is also at the end of the long portage on the shortest route around the world. Any scheme which has for its ultimate object the swift circling of the sphere must reckon Prince Rupert on its right-of-way. The mineral wealth of all that vast mountain region, the forest products of Northern British Columbia, as well as the food products of the Prairie Provinces and the fur of the far north—that is to say, all the output wealth of this resourceful Dominion originating north and west of the south Saskatchewan, bound for the Orient by the Occidental route—will funnel down and pass out by way of Prince Rupert."

Mr. Geo. Buskin on His Annual Visit

Geo Buskin, agent and missionary of the International Evangelical and Colporting Mission, is making his twenty-fifth annual visit to Peterborough. As agent of the work of circulating Biblical literature through the north and west of Ontario and the Dominion. More than 44,000 copies have been supplied by the mission agency in Peterborough, which account off, very many other have been supplied, and no account taken of them. The journeys in the work of last year were the Manitoulin Island, Nipissing, Muskoka and Parry Sound districts, which would have been further extended, but means were lacking to meet the costs. The Ogilvie and English Dictionary is publishing, and will soon be completed at a cost of $12. This is one of 80 editions published by the mission for its work in five languages. The donations of Peterborough to the work last year were $33, which is gratefully acknowledged. The Mission Depot is still at 20 Spring street, E., Toronto, Ont.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

The mind works with difficulty during the after-effects of coffee drinking.

The brain worker who drinks Postum—made from clear, hard, specially roasted wheat—has no "after-effects" to contend with.

In making Postum, the outer, bran-coat of the wheat (containing the phosphate of potash which nature places in the cereal, for replacing worn-out brain cells) is used with the wheat berry. It produces a health drink for the thinker.

"There's a Reason"

The Knock-out Blow.

The blow which knocked out Corbett was a revelation to the prize fighters. From the earliest days of the ring the knock-out blow was aimed for the jaw, the temple or the jugular vein. Stomach punches were thrown in to worry and weary the fighter, but if a scientific man had told one of the old fighters that the most vulnerable spot was the region of the stomach, he'd have laughed at him for an ignoramus. Dr. Pierce is bringing home to the public a parallel fact; that the stomach is the most vulnerable organ out of the prize ring as well as in it. We protect our heads, throats, feet and lungs, but the stomach we are utterly indifferent to, until disease finds the solar plexus and knocks us out. Make your stomach sound and strong by the use of Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and you protect yourself in your most vulnerable spot. "Golden Medical Discovery" cures "weak stomach," indigestion, or dyspepsia, torpid liver, bad, thin and impure blood and other diseases of the organs of digestion and nutrition.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" has a specific curative effect upon all mucous surfaces and hence cures catarrh, no matter where located or what stage it may have reached. In Nasal Catarrh it is well to cleanse the passages with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy fluid while using the "Discovery" as a constitutional remedy. Why the "Golden Medical Discovery" cures catarrhal diseases, as of the stomach, bowels, bladder and other pelvic organs will be plain to you if you will read a booklet of extracts from the writings of eminent medical authorities, endorsing its ingredients and explaining their curative properties. It is mailed free on request. Address Dr. R.V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y. This booklet gives all the ingredients entering into Dr. Pierce's medicines from which it will be seen that they contain not a drop of alcohol, pure, triple-refined glycerine being used instead.

What they offer at 25c per Share for a short time

The property is situated at Mancos, Colo., and consists of 160 acres, fully paid for. The Company expects to secure at least 400 acres or more, we are negotiating for it now and the terms are satisfactory and there is coal on the same, and they also intend to secure some Coal Mines of which they have the refusal. Some of the best coal mines in Colorado are in this district, as well as some of the richest gold and silver mines. In fact this is one of the richest parts for mineral in the State of Colorado, and the Company has the refusal to several prospects on reasonable and easy terms.

In our opinion the prospects of the Company are very bright, and a rapid advance in the price of the stock is sure to take place in the near future. Full information can be had by calling at our office.

Local Option all Over the Province of Manitoba Except Cities

Toronto, March 9. — Prohibition all over Manitoba, except in the three cities of Winnipeg, Brandon and Portage la Prairie!

Mr. Edward Brown, Portage la Prairie, who led the Manitoba Liberals at the elections last year, says this is now quite possible as a result of local option legislation just passed.

Mr. Brown was interviewed in the King Edward this morning, and when asked as to the temperance situation in his province, he said:

"If the temperance people of Manitoba take time to get well organized I think they can carry local option all over the province, except in the three cities of Winnipeg, Brandon and Portage la Prairie. The old law required a vote of three-fifths of the names on the list, but the new legislation requires only a majority of the qualified voters. There is no doubt that before the end of the year local option by-laws will be submitted in the majority of the municipalities.

"The Roblin Government have really stood in our policy in the matter of temperance legislation," Mr. Brown continued. "They did not make this an issue in the election, but on the other hand, had the support of the whole liquor interest. Now, however, they have passed the most drastic temperance legislation in the Dominion. One of the restrictions is the prohibition placed on common carriers to bring liquor into local option municipalities."

"Is there any suggestion of cutting down the licenses in Winnipeg?" the reporter asked.

"No, that is entirely in the hands of the license commissioners, not of the Municipal Council, as in Ontario, and they have now shown themselves specially favorable to such a policy."

Disastrous Fire in Japanese City--1,500 Houses Burned

Tokio, March 10.—A fire at Niigata, which started at 6 p.m. yesterday, was extinguished at six o'clock this morning. In a district comprising twenty-one of the principal streets 1,500 houses were destroyed, the area being swept clean. There was some loss of life, but the number is not known.

Niigata, on the northwest coast of Japan, in the Province of Echigo, had a population of 53,366 at the last census.

SEVENTY-SIX GRITS WERE REMOVED

Toronto, March 9.—In the Legislature this afternoon, Provincial Secretary Hanna brought down a return requested as to the number of Division Court clerks and bailiffs resigning or removed from office since the inception of the Whitney Government.

Mr. Hanna said that sixty-four clerks had resigned and that thirty-seven had been removed, thirty-two for improper partisanship. Bailiffs had resigned to the number of ninety-one, and fifty-four had been removed, fifty-four for improper partisanship. This made a total of seventy-six bailiffs and clerks, removed as partisans.

Grave Only for the Dead

London, Feb. 10.—The prevention of premature burial is a gruesome subject which from time to time has found earnest advocates, but it has been allowed to slumber for several years. Now, however, the members of the Association for the Prevention of Premature Burial are in full activity, and the question will shortly be seriously discussed in parliament. A bill has been promoted with the object of preventing the burial of persons who only are apparently dead, and it will be backed by Sir Walter Foster, an eminent physician, and several other influential members of the house. The Association for Preventing Premature Burial is prepared with a mass of well authenticated facts in support of the measure.

They say that a cataleptic disease characterized by the sudden deprivation of sensation and voluntary motion is on the increase.

MANY BURIED ALIVE.

A prominent member of the association, Dr. W. Hawdon, claims to have proof of no fewer than 149 persons buried alive, 219 narrow escapes, 10 cases of persons dissected alive and 1 case of a person being cremated alive in recent years.

Medical men and others have for sanitary reasons advocated rapid processes of disposing of the dead which cannot offend the living and shall render the remains absolutely innocuous.

The British system of burial is often the subject of severe strictures, and there are many distinguished personages who suggest that inhumation should be abandoned altogether and that the ancient practice of cremation should be general, but, as stated above, the Association for the Prevention of Premature Burial claims to have authenticated information of at least one person being cremated alive.

The principal clause of the bill provides that no body shall be buried without a medical certificate of the fact of death given after personal inspection of the body and stating the signs from which death is inferred.

VERIFIERS TO BE NAMED.

Another clause provides for the appointment of death verifiers, to whom any person dissatisfied with a certificate of death may appeal. Magistrates are employed to order the exhumation of a body buried without a death certificate and the sanitary authorities will be obliged to provide waiting mortuaries where bodies are to be kept until the fact of death is conclusively ascertained.

During recent years many cases of catalepsy have been brought before the notice of the association.

In most of these cases the circulation and respiration were imperceptible. The attacks sometimes lasted for hours and often for days, consciousness generally returning with the same suddenness as it had left. The disease bears a great resemblance to the mesmeric state, and it is alleged that it is often feigned.

Give Up Islands

Proposal to Surrender Phillipines in 1913

Washington, March 10.—Senator Stone introduced a resolution in regard to the Philippines to-day, which reads in part as follows: "The President is requested on the 10th day of December, 1913—that is to say, fifteen years after the date of the treaty of Paris—to deliver the control and possessions of the Philippine Islands to the authorities representing the people thereof, including also all government property therein pertaining to the administration of such government and withdraw therefrom immediately thereafter the army and navy of the United States shall retain such suitable coaling and naval stations as in the judgment of the President may seem necessary."

Splendid Year for Mutual Life

Prominent among the strong financial institutions of the Dominion and one which carried the full confidence of both directorate and policyholders, stands the Mutual Life of Canada, with head offices at Waterloo, Ont. This company is one in which it is not so much the object to pay large dividends to shareholders, as there are no shareholders of stock as to operate business, so that policyholders shall receive the best and most favorable insurance compatible with business exigencies.

The Mutual Life at their thirty-eighth annual meeting received reports of a most encouraging nature from the management. During 1907 the company wrote $7,081,402 of new business, a fact testifying to the confidence placed in the Mutual System of Insurance and to the splendid administration of this company in particular. During the year past the company showed the following gains, in assets $1,271,255, in reserve $965,221, in income $171,147, and in surplus $300,341. The income from interest shows a large increase over the year preceding, though the securities are of the same high and conservative class. The management of this company takes particular trouble to see that the investment of their funds is confined to the safest channels, security being of more importance than high rates of interest. In the Mutual Life of Canada, as before noted, there are no shareholders; its policyholders reap the benefit of the splendid managed business, which is only confined to Canada and Newfoundland. The company has one of the most economically administered managements of any Canadian Company, a fact known to the general public and enjoyed by the policyholders.

The local representative of the company is Mr. W. S. Turner, whose offices are at 392 Water street, who will be pleased at all times to give information and particulars regarding insurance.

FAULTY DESIGN LET BRIDGE FALL --ESTIMATE OF LOSS

Commission of Enquiry Does Not Estimate Loss Occasioned at Quebec--Who will Pay Damages?

Ottawa, March 9.—The report of the Quebec Bridge Commission will, in all probability, be laid before Parliament this afternoon.

The three eminent engineers who investigated the collapse of the Quebec bridge, including Prof. Galbraith, of Toronto, have agreed that the fault was entirely in the design, but offer no opinion as to who shall bear the huge loss which the fall of the bridge involves.

On the face of the thing, it would look as though the Phoenix Bridge Co., which built the bridge, was responsible also in the design, and would have to pay the bill. But, on the other hand, the plans for the bridge, after being prepared under the supervision of the contractors, were submitted to the Quebec Bridge Co., and approved by the Dominion Government.

The engineering problems involved in this enterprise were entirely novel, as nothing on this scale had ever been before attempted in the history of bridge construction. The investigation has shown that the material supplied by the Phoenix Bridge Company was of the very best, and that it had nothing to do, therefore, with the disaster. For these reasons it is quite possible that the Canadian Government will be found disposed to effect a compromise with the Phoenix Bridge Co. on the settlement of the financial loss which is involved.

NO ESTIMATE OF LOSS.

The report of the Quebec Bridge Commission makes no calculation as to what this amounts to, but is concerned almost exclusively with the engineering problems which the collapse of the half finished bridge naturally presented.

LICENSE INSPECTOR'S GOOD WORK

Yesterday morning Chief Rossel read a letter he had received, to License Inspector Joseph Stewart. The letter in question was addressed to the Chief by the Board of the Charlotte Street Methodist Church, and contained an expression of approval of the way in which Inspector Stewart, the police magistrate and the local police force perform their duties in regard to enforcement of the liquor and gambling laws.

House to House Visitation Tomorrow

Notice has been sent to those taking active part in the house to house visitation as to where they are to report to-morrow.

The work will be done on the afternoon of that day between one o'clock and six, and it is hoped that all the people of the city will co-operate. It will greatly help if in each house at least one member of the family will remain at home to receive the visitors when they call.

A meeting of all the supervisors and visitors will be held in the Y.M.C.A. lecture hall to-night at eight o'clock, at which definite instructions will be given as to the methods of filling in the record cards and other details. Mr. Yellowlee will be present to explain how the work has been done in other places.

Presentation to Rev. Father McColl

Previous to his coming trip to Italy on the 14th, the members of the Young Ladies' Sodality to the number of about one hundred and fifty, gathered in the Cathedral and presented Rev. Father McColl with a bouquet of flowers, in the centre of which were five calla lillies. To the stems of the lillies were attached ten $5 gold pieces. The presentation was made by Miss O'Connell, the treasurer, and acknowledged in fitting terms by the reverend gentleman.

An address read by Miss K. McGrath, secretary of the society, was also presented to the reverend gentleman.

GREAT RESOURCES OF THE EMPIRE

400,000,000 People Inhabit 11,000,000 Square Miles

The Great Trade Growth

London, March 10.—A mass of information is contained in the statistical abstract for the British Empire, recently published.

The total population of the Empire is 387,991,000, and the total area 11,329,000 square miles, these figures being made up as follows:—

	Population.	Sq. miles.
United Kingdom	44,104,000	121,000
India	294,217,000	1,767,000
Other colonies and Possessions	49,670,000	9,435,000

Canada has an area of 3,746,574 square and a population of 6,983,564; while Australia, with an area of 2,974,581 square miles, has a population of 4,129,628.

Thus, while the United Kingdom has a population of 364.5 men to the square mile, Australia numbers under 1.5 men to the same area, and Canada under 1.6.

The following tables show the population of various large towns in England, compared with the largest Colonial towns:—

Town.	Population.
London	4,758,218
Liverpool	746,144
Manchester	643,148
Birmingham	553,156
Leeds	470,288
Sheffield	465,552
Bristol	367,979
Sydney	538,000
Melbourne	526,400
Montreal	405,000
Toronto	323,905
Hong Kong	211,000
Adelaide	174,400
Brisbane	132,468

Calcutta (with a black and white population of 966,926). Bombay (962,000), and Madras (648,000) are the largest towns in India. There are six other towns in the Dependency with a population of more than 300,000.

The total value of the foreign and inter-Imperial trade of the Empire amounts to £1,526,013,000. This huge volume of trade is made up as follows:

Foreign trade	£1,129,773,000
Inter-Imperial trade	396,240,000

With regard to imports and exports the following figures show the value of goods sent by the principal foreign countries into the British Empire and the value of goods sent out of the Empire:—

	Imports.	Exports.
United States	£49,187,000	£111,343,000
France	61,136,000	50,899,000
Germany	53,225,000	70,648,000
Holland	39,115,000	19,118,000
Belgium	34,684,000	27,986,000
Russia	30,250,000	19,118,000

WONDERFUL SHIPPING FIGURES.

In 1906, nearly 1,110,000 tons of steam vessels were built in the United Kingdom. Hong Kong is second on the list with 7,534 tons of new ships, while Canada is third with 6,822 tons.

How overwhelming is the preponderance of British shipping may be judged from the following table of vessels entered and cleared in the United Kingdom from and to all British Colonies and possessions in 1906:—

	Entered. Tons.	Cleared. Tons.
British	6,141,896	6,395,979
Norwegian	247,962	149,448
German	196,241	182,191
French	43,397	95,148

Other countries make up a grand total of 7,892,521 tons entered and 7,559,- tons cleared.

How many people are aware that Hong Kong is the second largest port in the world in point of tonnage of vessels entered? This fact is demonstrated in the following table showing the tonnage of British and foreign vessels, which entered the principle ports of the Empire:

	Tons.
London	11,223,542
Hong Kong	11,050,070
Liverpool	8,146,441
Singapore	6,466,411
Colombo	6,281,164
Tyne Ports	6,348,111
Cardiff	6,296,331
Glasgow	1,842,416

For vessels cleared Hong Kong heads the list with 10,990,211 tons; Cardiff is second, with 8,193,312 tons; and London third with 8,125,400 tons.

Appeal from Midland Local Option Decision Has Fallen Through

Ottawa, March 9.—In the Supreme Court to-day in the case of Duncan vs. Town of Midland, J. B. Mackenzie moved for special leave to appeal from the judgment of the Court of Appeal for Ontario refusing to quash a local option by-law. Duncan repudiated his retainer to the solicitor, and endeavoring to assert the appeal, and an alternative motion was also made for the substitution of a person named Hughes as appellant. The motions were opposed by Frank Hodgins, K.C. The court refused to entertain the motion for leave to appeal in the absence of authorization by the party appellant, and the motion to substitute Hughes not being pressed it was dismissed with costs against Hughes. On a motion for leave the court reserved the question of an order as to costs.

Judgement in Burke Case Today

This morning Charles Burke, already pronounced by his Honor, Judge Weller, as guilty of robbing Purser's store at Buckhorn of some $25, will appear for sentence. It will be remembered that after Judge Weller had given his decision as to Burke's guilt, the latter told his Honor that if he, Judge Weller, would get the register of a hotel in Norwood, he would find that the prisoner was in that village on the day of the Buckhorn robbery, when the Misses Purser and Higgins were held up at the point of a revolver. Judge Weller enlarged the case or withheld sentence until he had investigated the matter. This morning at 11 o'clock the result of his Honor's investigations will be made known.

Stanley Gorman also comes up for trial this morning on the charge of theft. Mr. G. N. Gordon will appear for the defence and Mr. E. R. Wood for the prosecution.

Fenelon Falls Hotelmen Fined

It will be remembered that on the 23rd of January last some hockey players from Coboconk drove to Fenelon Falls and put up at Twomey's hotel in that village. At about 7.30 p.m. two players named Ham and Hall respectively asked the proprietor for supper. The latter would neither give them a hot nor cold meal, claiming that the kitchen fire was out and his servants out or occupied. The young men then went to Aldou's hotel on a similar errand with the same result. Informations were sworn out under R.S.O., 1897, C. 245, S. 75, which says:

"Every tavern keeper failing or refusing either personally or through any one acting on his behalf, except for some valid reason, to supply lodging, meals, or accommodation to travellers, shall for each offence be liable on conviction, to forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding $20."

The case was tried before Police Magistrate Moon, of Lindsay. His Worship, after hearing the evidence, fined the hotelmen $5 each with $17.88 costs. Had it not been that the license inspector of the district testified to the excellent manner in which both hotels had otherwise been conducted, the penalties would have been heavier.

Lighthouse Keeper Gets King's Medal

Lieut.-Col. F. Gourdeau, of the department of marine and fisheries, has sent an imperial service medal to Port Hope Town Council, which His Majesty the King has been graciously pleased to award to Robert Roddick, for many years keeper of the Gull lights situated midway between Port Hope and Cobourg, in recognition of long and faithful service. The department requested that the medal be presented in a public manner, and this was done last week.

POLICE

At yesterday's session of the police court Robert Biggs was charged with harboring a vicious dog that, a few days ago severely bit a little daughter of Dr. J. Larose, Victoria avenue, the wound requiring several stitches of a gymnasium, who had to run several Mr. Biggs stated that he had sent the dog to the country. Mr. Dumble ordered the Mr. Biggs pay the doctor's bill, and enlarged the case until next Monday to allow a settlement.

Yesterday a young man named Charles Walsh called at the police court, just after a trial, the details of which are omitted by the local press, was concluded, and swore out an information against an old gentleman named Robert Redmond. It seems that Redmond has a dog of the yellow persuasion. With seemingly more height, length, tail, cussedness and general fitness for a canine vaillants than pedigree or usefulness, which had flown at the boy as he passed along Dowgal street, where Mr. Redmond resides. The dog bit Walsh on the wrist, inflicting a nasty wound. Dr. Young, who saw the dog attack the boy, came to the latter's aid, and with a heavy stick drove the brute off. The case will be tried to-morrow at 10 a.m. This yellow dog, which was sent to Mr. Redmond by a relative of the latter, is said to have turned out a different animal to what its parentage might have led them knowing to have anticipated. Instead of a nice little dog of a breed unknown to the writer, turned out, as months went by, to be a long, tall, lanky cur, which has itself, at the end of a cord, been dragged into the police court and also been the means of bringing its owner there. It came pretty near receiving its death warrant last time it was in the court, and to-morrow's trial may result in the confirmation and issuance of such warrant.

More Work Than Sense Used

That celebrated drain dug through many inches of solid ice on the west side of Water street, just north of Brock street, and since carefully covered of snow, is about filled up with ice again. Here was a sample of good work and little judgment. There is quite a fall in the street line towards the south here, and, although the drain was hacked out, no provision was made to allow the water, caused by the thaw of Saturday, to escape. Those digging out the drain did not even make an outlet for water to get under the crossing. Hence the dollars spent on this drain are mostly wasted and the condition of residents at the southwest corner of the streets is unchanged, and also pedestrians who have to pass that point, is as bad, if not worse, than ever.

Japan is Not Yet Satisfied with the Apology from China

Will Not Take Action Until China's Attitude is More Definite

Will Wait Two Days

Pekin, March 9.—The incident of the Tatsu Maru, the Japanese steamer which was held up by the Chinese authorities on February 7, off Macao, on the belief that the cargo of arms and ammunition on board were intended for Chinese revolutionists, has not yet been fully settled. Baron Hayashi, the Japanese Minister to China, had a conference to-day with Yuan Shih Kai, Grand Councillor of the Empire, but they failed to reach an understanding on the question of the release of the steamer, which is still held by China, and with regard to the indemnity. China has, however, given satisfaction regarding the hauling down of the Japanese flag, on the Tatsu Maru, by Chinese officers, and Baron Hayashi assured China that Japan would meet her desires.

He agreed to the Chinese proposal for the ultimate disposition of the cargo of the Tatsu Maru, after which he again set forth the final demands of his Government.

Influence had to be exercised on Yuan Shih Kai to get him to act in the matter. The Foreign Board reiterates its previous statements that the case cannot be settled without a thorough investigation. The viceroy of Canton is opposing the punishment of the Chinese naval commander, who boarded the Tatsu Maru and lowered the Japanese flag.

In view of the status of the negotiations final action by Japan will be deferred for two days.

TOO MUCH LOVEY-DOVEY FOR LEEDOM

Chicago, March 9. — Six kisses a day are the limit for Ora M. Leedom. He promised Detectives Stark and Johnston, who arrested him for deserting his affectionate wife, that he would stay with her on that basis. They found him in Springfield, Ill., where he went several weeks ago.

"It's a case of too much 'lovey-dovey' business," said Leedom, on the way back from Springfield. "My wife—she was married once or twice before—is a good woman and a fine housekeeper, but she is too strong on the love business to suit me.

"Now, I'm not a chilly guy, or anything like that, but I don't want a woman kissing me all the time. When I come home from work in the evening I like to sit down and read the paper. My wife would want me to hold hands with her and say foolish things.

"A few days before I jumped out of town some actress down in New York made a hit with a kiss that lasted 45 seconds. When my wife read about that in the paper she said she could beat it with one hand tied behind her back.

"The only fault I had to find with Annie was her loving nature. I'll agree to go back and live with her if she'll only cut out the kissing business. I don't mind a little kiss now and then, but I draw the line at more than six a day."

Pain can be quickly stopped. A 25 cent box of Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets will kill any pain, everywhere. In 20 minutes! Besides they are thoroughly safe. (Painful) periods with women, neuralgia, etc., quickly cease after one tablet. All dealers.

The Trouble in the Balkans

"Trouble in the Balkans" is a phrase that has passed into a proverb, and of recent years alarmist news from the south-east corner of Europe has caused but little more stir than the "Wolf, wolf!" of the Aesopian parable. However, it will be remembered that on one occasion the wolf did actually materialize, much to the surprise and trouble of the scoffers. The situation in the Balkans to-day, always restless, has been complicated for the Powers who seek to maintain a semblance of order in the troublesome states, by the looming on the international horizon of a cause of serious friction between Russia and Austria. The success of the latter in forcing through her railroad policy to the south, enfisting the co-operation of Turkey, and thus making certain of an influential sphere in Bosnia with its fringes touching Servia is regarded with a far from favourable eye by the Slav. A good deal of the brunt of his Porte, which, incidentally is playing into Russian hands by the operations on the western frontier of Persia, giving St. Petersburg the excuse of adopting intimidatory measures under cover of which it may tell the Sick Man what it thinks of his connivance with Austria's policy. The outlook is of considerable moment to Great Britain.

Home Fat Reducer

Works Rapidly and Safely—Requires No Exercising and Allows You to Eat What You Like—Cut This Out

For the benefit of those who wish to reduce their flesh quickly and safely, we will give the receipt and directions in full for a simple household remedy that can be obtained at trifling cost from any good drug store: 1-2 ounce Marmola, 3-4 ounce Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic and 4 3-4 ounces Syrup Simplex. All three are cheap and wholesome, but you should take care to get an unbroken package, so that you get Marmola and not a substitute. When you get home mix the three by shaking them together in a large bottle and take one teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime.

Follow these directions and you will have the best fat-reducer that money can buy. It will take off the flesh at the rate of at least two pounds a week without disarranging the stomach or causing wrinkles, while, best of all, no exercising or dieting is required to help it out. You can get results and at the same time take things easy and eat what you like,—as much as you like—and whenever you like.

William Warner, of Hamilton, when held up by a highwayman, turned on his assailant and gave him a sound thrashing and kicking.

PATRIOTIC SENTIMENTS

The papal delegate to Canada has approved the scheme for erecting a monument on the historic battleground of the Plains of Abraham, saying in his letter to Earl Grey:—

"The project which your excellency has conserved and the work you have undertaken of converting the two famous battlefields of the Plains of Abraham and of St. Foy into a national park appeals to my heartiest commendation and support; appeals to me both as an admirer of the Canadian people and as a Bishop of the Catholic Church and the representative of the Holy See in his country. Certainly it has been a happy and lofty idea to join in common honor the two places which witnessed the equal valor and bravery of the French and English armies, and where, so to speak, was laid the corner-stone of the liberties, not only of Canada, but of the whole North American continent. The park it is your Excellency's intention to make, with its beauty and significance, will teach all Canadians of every race and nationality that they have equal rights and obligations; that they should mutually respect those rights, and that they have to work in harmony, side by side, for the welfare and grandeur of their common country. Adorned, as Your Excellency proposes by the statue of an angel with arms outstretched towards Europe, it will tell the newcomers to this Dominion that this land is a land of peace, of liberty and that everyone is welcome who wishes to exercise his activity and take advantage, within the limits of law and order, of the great opportunities afforded by the immense resources of this country.

"The events which these battlefields recall have for us Catholics a deeper and even more important meaning. In the all-wise designs of Divine Providence they were destined for the protection of our church against the persecution and tyranny of oppressors, old and new, and for the maintenance of her sacred rights under the beneficent folds of the British flag. The Canadian hierarchy and the Catholic people have on many solemn occasions and in no equivocal manner, by word and deed, shown how much they appreciate this recognition and guarantee of their rights. The national park will be a perpetual reminder to future generations of their debt of gratitude and loyalty to the British Crown.

"I am glad, therefore, to express to Your Excellency the assurance that the Catholics of Canada are cordially with you, and are one with their fellow-citizens of all classes in support of your great undertaking. I hope and I feel confident you will meet with unbounded success.

When one takes sulphur internally it causes a gas, called sulphureted hydrogen, to be given off by the skin. This blackens silver; hence when taking sulphur it is wise not to wear silver trinkets.

Some of the fish and game were incrusted in gold.

Done to a Turn.

"Done to a turn" is said to have originated from the martyrdom of St. Lawrence. He was sentenced to be roasted alive on a gridiron. Cough Syrup.

This cough syrup is easily made and very good: Take a small handful of dried hops and a small handful of dried horehound and put into a cup of cold water. Let this steep until the strength of the herbs is drawn out, then strain through a cloth. Add to this one cupful of honey and two cupfuls of sugar. Let this mixture boil until thick. Pour into a wide mouthed bottle or small jar, and it is ready for use. One teaspoonful every half hour until the cough is relieved.

OUR TIMBER SUPPLY.

Need For Protection and Proper Treatment of Canadian Forests.

France is one of the greatest timber importing countries of Europe. Over $30,000,000 were paid in 1906 by this country for wood brought in from other countries, American and European. This includes over $20,000,000 worth of wood (mostly pine) used for building purposes, and $500,000 for mine props alone. The great amount of wood used for paper pulp and a few minor purposes brings the total up to the thirty million dollars.

On this timber another $10,000,000 was paid in freight—mostly to other countries, for the French flag is flown by only about ten per cent. of the ships in which this wood is carried. And import duties claim another sum of $6,000,000.

The quantity of wood exported from France, on the other hand, in 1906, did not amount to more than $16,400,000.

Yet the forests of France are by no means small. They cover an area of over 23,500,000 acres. Of this a little over a ninth (2,707,000 acres) is in the hands of the state, and is very carefully managed. Over a seventh of the area (3,472,000 acres) is under the control of the departments and communes and is not so carefully looked after. The rest is in private hands and often large tracts are sold to speculators and recklessly cut, everything of value being taken off them.

This state of affairs demonstrates the wisdom of the course pursued in almost the whole of Canada, namely, keeping the ownership of the forests in the hands of the crown, so that the Dominion and the different Provincial Governments may have the power to make regulations for the cutting, with the result that practically all of the forests may be so treated as to give continuous crops of wood and become a permanent asset of the people.

Canada at present is one of the few countries in the world that can export timber, having a surplus over that required for its own use. Such a surplus is a most valuable asset, and promises—far from decreasing in value—to increase rapidly and greatly in years to come, owing to the growing scarcity of wood.

It is for this country, therefore, to exercise great care both in protecting the timber it has and in providing for future supplies from the same ground. This will require the employment of a large number of men, many of them possessing a high degree of technical and scientific training. It is gratifying to note that already some steps have been taken to care for our timber and provide a staff of trained men to look after it. Much more remains to be done, and it is for the people of Canada to see that arrangements are made for the proper care of one of her most valuable resources.

LIKE FEAST OF THE WOLF.

Quebec Celebration Causes Friction in Eastern Province.

There is still a good deal of friction at Quebec over the participation of outsiders in the coming celebration. It is only just to say, however, that the following article from La Verite reflects the opinion of a very small portion of the population of the ancient capital.

La Verite claims that it will not be a Catholic celebration in August next, as the good people of Quebec expected, but the celebration of Canada as a whole. It is not the foundation of Quebec by the French, no; they want to celebrate the capture of the city by the English. It is not, so it appears, the three hundredth anniversary of the planting of the cross and the flag of our ancestors on Cape Diamond, but instead the 149th anniversary of the defeat of our heroes by the English troops.

"We wished to celebrate the commencement of our history, but they will instead celebrate the beginning of British domination in this country. The symbol which they propose to acclaim is the angel of peace, but to what peace do they refer. If it is the peace that the generosity of our people caused to reign around Quebec, so much the better, but it is the more extended peace which they are going to commemorate. It is the peace following the abolition of the French language in several of the provinces. It is the peace following the destruction of Catholic schools in New Brunswick, in Manitoba, in Alberta and Saskatchewan.

"In a word it is the peace which reigns after the wolf has eaten the lamb and sleeps after his bloody repast."

Preserving Niagara Falls.

Persistent efforts are to be made in Congress at Washington to prevent the re-enactment of what is known as the Burton law, passed in 1906, governing the disposition of the waters of the Niagara Falls. The object of the enactment was to conserve the waters of the falls against the encroachment of commercial enterprises. It was destined, as a purely temporary measure, to be supplanted by a general convention or treaty on this subject between the United States and Canada which is intended to cover also the disposition of other waters forming a boundary line between the two countries.

The Burton law expires in less than a year and a half. Those opposing its re-enactment for ten years, as is proposed in some quarters, declare this is a distinct advantage to the Canadians, who because such a large portion of the falls are on the Canadian side of the river, are content to let existing conditions remain, in preference to agreeing to a treaty which will restrict the privileges they now enjoy. The International Waterways Commission, which is made up of members from the United States and Canada, has turned in a mass of information on the whole question, which has been laid before the two Governments for their consideration. The United States Government is anxious that some disposition shall be reached in the whole matter, and that at an early date. It wants a treaty prepared and ratified at this session of Congress, if possible.

SAFETY OF ANAESTHETICS.

Less Dangerous Than Crossing the Road.

It is really safer for a patient to be placed under anaesthetics than it is for an ordinary person to attempt to cross one of our crowded thoroughfares.

This statement was made by a high official of the London Hospital while discussing some observations made by the city Coroner in reference to a death under anaesthetics at Guy's Hospital. The Coroner said such cases were extremely important to the public. During the past six-and-a-half years he held inquests on thirty-six persons who had died in Guy's Hospital while under anaesthetics.

"The public probably have no idea with what safety anaesthetics are now administered," commented the London Hospital official. "Here, on an average, fifty patients are placed under anaesthetics every day. In 1904 there were 15,143 cases, and of that number twenty-two died during the period of anaesthesia, but only four of the 15,143 died from the effects of the anaesthetic.

"The term, 'death under anaesthetics' is susceptible of many meanings. Here we adopt the strictest interpretation. For instance, a man may be brought in who has had both his legs cut off as a result of a railway accident. He may be at the point of death when he enters our doors, and, in fact die directly he is put on the operating table and the anaesthetic bag adjusted. We should regard that as a death under anaesthetics, although the anaesthetics had nothing whatever to do with his death.

"Last year 17,256 patients in this institution were placed under anaesthetics, and the results were as favorable as the figures I have given for 1904."

To Petition the King.

A party of the unemployed of Manchester are at present marching on London, carrying with them a petition which they hope to present in person to the King.

They show no impatience. They do not demand food. They are either so philosophically stoical or else so inured to cold, hunger and wretchedness that they appear not to feel their discomforts at all.

Hours of standing about do not seem to affect the stolid demeanor of these Lancashire lads. On the tramp they are wonderfully cheery. In advance goes a group of about a dozen singing or whistling every kind of air, from "Onward, Christian Soldiers," to "A Different Girl Again."

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

Any even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Application for entry must be made in person by the applicant at a Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-agency for the district in which the land is situate. Entry by proxy may, however, be made at an Agency on certain conditions by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

The homesteader is required to perform the homestead duties under one of the following plans:

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) A homesteader may, if he so desires, perform the required residence duties by living on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of his homestead. Joint ownership in land will not meet this requirement.

(3) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of a homesteader has permanent residence on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of a homestead, or upon a homestead entered for by him in the vicinity, such homesteader may perform his own residence duties by living with the father or mother.

(4) The term "vicinity" in the two preceding paragraphs is defined as meaning not more than nine miles in a direct line exclusive of the width of road allowances crossed in the measurement.

(5) A homesteader intending to perform his residence duties in accordance with the above while living with parents or on farming land owned by himself must notify the agent for the district of such intention.

Six months notice in writing must be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa, of intention to apply for patent.

W. W. CORY,
Deputy of the Minister of the Interior.

MONEY IN A SAFE DEPOSIT BOX OR AN OLD STOCKINGS DOES NOT INCREAE YOUR WEALTH

February, 1908, is here and so is

The Pacific Fruit Cooling and Vaporizing Company, Incorporated for the purpose of cooling deciduous fruits and removing moisture from citrus fruits and keeping unde cold storage such fruits and other food products from the time of receiving them from the fruit growers until loaded on car and taken away by the Railroad Company for Eastern shipment

STUBBORN FACTS UNIMPEACHABLE

The loss in shipping deciduous and citrus fruits is enormous. The orange crop of Southern California alone is valued at $30,000,000. The government experts estimate that about 25 per cent. or $7,500,000, is lost every year by rough handling in picking and decay of fruit in transit to the Eastern markets. What a revenue of profit this loss would be to the shipper if it could be saved. Our process will save it. The same is true of the deciduous fruits of Northern California.

GREAT FORTUNES ARE MADE BY INVESTMENT IN NECESSITIES

Fruit is one of the necessities of our civilized life, and the company that can place the fruit in the markets of the world in the best shape, in the quickest time, at the lowest rate, has a fortune within its grasp. The Armour Company in ten years made $5,000,000 net handling California fruit in refrigerator cars. Our process is as necessary to the fruit grower as the refrigerator car. Therefore we ought to receive as large a revenue for handling the same commodity.

GET IN WHILE THE ENTERPRISE IS NEW

No wiser words were ever spoken than these: "The chief point about getting rich is to invest in a new enterprise that is being managed by successful men, who have some of their own money in the deal." "One good investment is worth a lifetime of labor". Think over this sentence. A man's daily labor will never make him rich. He must have some money at work for him. Money invested never gets sick, keeps no holidays, never goes on strike. There are three things that ought to guide you: First, invest with honest men; second, invest with men of sound judgment; third, invest under conditions where you get your full share of profits the business yields. Get into a company whose destiny is guided by men of this stamp when its future is before and not behind it. Here is the secret of fortune. Plant the seed of your investment in the soil of opportunity, at the season of greatest promise when the enterprise is new. Every ounce of honor in the hearts of the men managing this company is pledged to give

A SQUARE DEAL FOR EVERY INVESTOR

There will be no preferred stock. Every dollar invested will be worth 100 cents on the dollar. Our Directors, as honourable business men, will not allow any tricks of trade by which the small investor can be frozen out. Their commercial standing proves they are not "grafters". The poor man's 500 or 100 shares will have the same standing in court as the rich man's 10,000, and they will draw the same proportionate dividend. We court investigation.

EVERY RICH MAN IN THE WORLD WAS ONCE POOR OR HIS GRANDFATHER WAS.

THE OPPORTUNITY OF A LIFETIME

To get into a company that has the certainty of growth, the assurance of large and quick returns, a rapid advance in the price of stock, to make it an exceptional chance for big profits on a small investment. This is an ideal investment for the wage earner as well as the rich man. Moderate sums invested now will bring splendid returns in the near future. The logic of all this is

DON'T WAIT

Time is the essence of this proposition. The stock will certainly double in a short time. Jay Gould once said: "When you see a good investment don't wait to see if it pans out well, for by that time other people see it, too, and you have lost your opportunity."

WOMEN AS INVESTORS

Some of the heaviest stockholders in our company are women of keen business instincts. One lady in Los Angeles bought 5,000 shares. In a few days she returned and bought 5,000 more. This lady has never made a mistake in her business ventures. Women are good investors because they have courage to follow their convictions. Their intuitions are keener and truer than man's logic. Men may prevent her voting, but they can't prevent her drawing dividends on her investments. This is one branch of trade where sex, culture, or color does not count.

MANAGEMENT

The affairs of this company are in the hands of men of honesty, ability, courage and good business judgment—men who have made a success of their own business—men whose business reputation is A1 in the commercial circles in which they move.

These men are "square" and "shrewd". They will not deceive you nor will they be deceived themselves. Because of the promise of growth, permanency and profit this business offers they have united their money, energy, time and business experience to make this enterprise a grand success.

Notwithstanding the Financial Crisis, Investments made Six Months ago have Advanced

150 PER CENT

The next six months promises to far exceed the past six months
If you investigate this proposition you will surely invest.

WE COURT INVESTIGATION

Investments can be made in amounts of from $25 to $1,000

CONTINUED.

As Paul spoke he heard a heavy woman plunge down the stairs and found his arm grasped by Deborah, very red faced and very furious, the moment he crossed the threshold. Bart could be heard knocking boxes together in the cellar, as he was getting Deborah's belongings ready for removal to Jubileetown, where the cottage and the drying ground for the laundry had already been secured through Pash. But Paul had no time to ask what was going on. A glance at the handmaiden's tearful face revealed that she knew the worst, in which case Sylvia must also have heard the news.

"Yes," cried Deborah, seeing the sudden whiteness of Paul's cheeks and shaking him so much as to hurt his injured arm, "she knows, she do—oh, Lor', bless us that things should come to this—and there she's settin' a-crying out her beautiful eyes for you, Mr. Beecot. Thinking of your throwin' her over, and if you do," shouted Deborah, with another shake, "you'd better ha' bin smashed to a jelly than face me in my present state. Seein' you from the winder I made bold to come down and ask your intentings, for if them do mean no marriage and the breaking of my pretty's 'eart, never shall she set eyes agin on a double faced Jonah, and—and"— Here Deborah gasped for breath and again shook Paul.

"Deborah," he said in a quiet voice, releasing himself, "I love Sylvia for herself and not for her money!"

Deborah threw her brawny arms in the air and her apron over her red head. "I knowed it—oh, yuss, indeed," she sobbed in muffled tones.

"I see you know all," said Paul, as soon as he could slip in a word.

"Know all," almost yelled Deborah, dragging down the apron and revealing flashing eyes, "and it's a mussy I ain't in Old Bailey this very day for scratching that monkey of a Pash. Oh, if I'd known wot he was, never should he 'ave got me the laundry, though the same may have to go, worse luck. He, yuss, he come, and she come with her kitting, as is almost as big a cat as she is. Mrs. Krill, bless her, oh, yuss, Mrs. Krill, the sneakin', smiling Jezebel!"

"Did she see Sylvia?" asked Beecot sharply.

"Yuss, she did," admitted Deborah, "me lettin' her in not knowin' her scratchin's. An' the monkey an' the kitting come, too, a-spyin' out the land, as you may say."

Paul nodded. "Calling names won't do any good, Deborah," he said sadly. "We must do the best we can."

"There ain't no chance of the lawr gettin' that woman to the gallers, I 'spose, sir?"

"The woman is your late master's lawful wife. Pash seems to think so and has gone over to the enemy"—here Deborah clinched her mighty fists and gasped.

Beecot was soon in the sitting room and found Sylvia on the sofa, her face buried in her hands. She looked up when she recognized the beloved footsteps and sprang to her feet. The next moment she was sobbing her heart out on Paul's faithful breast, and he was comforting her with all the endearing names he could think of.

"My own, my sweet, my dearest darling," whispered Paul, smoothing the pretty brown hair, "don't weep. You have lost much, but you have me."

"But Paul, though my mother may not have been married to my father"—

"She was, Sylvia, but Mrs. Krill was married to him earlier. Your father committed bigamy, and you, poor child, have to pay the penalty."

"And am I not his true daughter?" she asked, her lips quivering.

"You are my own darling, Sylvia," murmured Paul, kissing her hair. "Don't let us talk of the matter. I fear from the attitude of Pash that Mrs. Krill will make good her claim. Were there a chance of keeping you in possession of the money, Pash would never have left you so easily."

"I am so sorry about the money on your account, Paul."

"My own," he said cheerily, "money is a good thing, and I wish we could have kept the five thousand a year. But I have you, and you have me, and although we cannot marry for a long time yet"—

"Not marry, Paul! Oh, why not?"

"Dearest, I am poor. I cannot drag you down to poverty."

Sylvia looked at him wide eyed. "I am poor already." She looked round the room. "Nothing here is mine. I have only a few clothes. Mr. Pash said that Mrs. Krill would take everything. Let me marry you, darling," she whispered coaxingly, "and we can live in your garret. I will cook and mend and be your own little wife."

Beecot groaned. "Don't tempt me, Sylvia," he said, putting her away. "I dare not marry you. Why, I have hardly enough to pay the fees. No, dear, you must go with Debby to her laundry, and I'll work night and day to make enough for us to live on. Then we'll marry."

"To think that you should still wish to marry me. I am poor—I—I—have no name, and"—sobbed Sylvia.

"Dearest, you will soon have my name."

"But Mrs. Krill said"—

"I don't want to hear what she said," cried Paul impetuously. "She is a bad woman. I can see badness written all over her smiling face. We won't think of her. When you leave here you won't see her again. My own dear little sweetheart," whispered Paul tenderly, "when you leave this unhappy house let the bad past go. You and I will begin a new life. Come, don't cry, my pet. Here's Debby."

The next moment she was sobbing her heart out on Paul's shoulder.

Sylvia looked up and threw herself into the faithful servant's arms. "Debby—I'm—I'm—so happy!"

Deborah placed her young mistress in Paul's arms. "Then let 'im make you 'appier, pretty lily of the valley. Lor', as if anything bad 'ud ever come to you two while silly old Debby have a leg to stan' on an' arms to wash. Though the laundry—oh, Lor'!" and she rubbed her nose till it grew scarlet. "What of it, Mr. Beecot, I do ask?"

"Have you enough money to pay a year's rent?"

"Yes, me and Bart have saved one 'undred between us. Rent and furniture and taxes can come out of it, sure. And my washin's what I call washin'," said Deborah emphatically. "No lost buttings and tored sheets and ragged collars. I'd wash ag'in the queen, 'erself, though I sez it as shouldn't. Give me a tub, and you'll see if the money don't come in."

"Well, then, Deborah, as I am too poor to marry Sylvia now, I want her to stop with you till I can make a home for her."

"An' where else should she stop but with her own silly, foolish Debby, I'd like to know? My dower, you come an' be the queen of the laundry."

"I'll keep the accounts, Debby," said Sylvia, now all smiling.

"You'll keep nothin' but your eyes in' your dear 'eart up," retorted Debby, sniffing. "Me an' Bart 'ull do all. An' this blessed day we'll go to Jubileetown with our belongings. An' you, Mr. Beecot?"

"I'll come and see you settled, Deborah, and then I return to earn an income for Sylvia. I won't let you keep her long."

"She'll stop as long as she have the will!" shouted Debby, hugging Sylvia. "As to that he'll get"

The Doctor's Gift

Was Worth its Weight in Gold

We usually expect the doctor to put us on some kind of penance and give us bitter medicines.

A Penn doctor brought a patient something entirely different and the results are truly interesting.

"Two years ago," writes a this patient, "I was a frequent victim of acute indigestion and biliousness, being allowed to eat very few things. One day our family doctor brought me a small package, saying he had found something for me to eat, at last.

"He said it was a food called Grape-Nuts and even as its golden color might suggest it was worth its weight in gold. I was sick and tired, trying one thing after another to no avail, but at last consented to try this new food.

"Well! It surpassed my doctor's fondest anticipation and every day since then I have blessed the good doctor and the inventor of Grape-Nuts.

"I noticed improvement at once and in a month's time my former spells of indigestion had disappeared. In two months I felt like a new man. My brain was much clearer and keener, my body took on the vitality of youth, and this condition has continued."

The property is situated at Mancos, Colo., and consists of 160 acres, fully paid for. The Company expects to secure at least 400 acres or more, we are negotiating for it now and the terms are satisfactory and there is coal on the same, and they also intend to secure some Coal Mines of which they have the refusal. Some of the best coal mines in Colorado are in this district, as well as some of the richest gold and silver mines. In fact this is one of the richest parts for mineral in the State of Colorado, and the Company has the refusal to several prospects on reasonable and easy terms.

In our opinion the prospects of the Company are very bright, and a rapid advance in the price of the stock is sure to take place in the near future. Full information can be had by calling at our office.

Mr. R. R. Hall will Have Clock Repaired

A Times representative, in conversation with Mr. R. R. Hall, M.P., yesterday morning called his attention to the fact that the northern clock on the Post Office building had been permanently recording the hour of 5.25 for the past eight or ten weeks. Mr. Hall, whose parliamentary and professional business has of late kept him very busily engaged, noted that this matter had not been called to his attention before. He will call the matter to the attention of the Public Works Department, Ottawa, at once, and see that the clock is repaired and put into proper running order at once. This will be appreciated by residents of the north ward, and especially those who go to their respective places of business or work, via Water street.

Conditions in Canada

There seems to be no reason to doubt that a few months will see trade conditions in Canada as good as they ever were. The banks created some hardship by the sudden curtailment of credit, but the action was necessary. It did not come a day too soon, either, to stop the mania for speculating with borrowed money. The banks are now publishing financial statements that must be encouraging, particularly to their shareholders. They can well afford to pay fair dividends, since they got all the advantage from the increase in interest rates.

"Bill" Meagher Will be the New P. C.

At the meeting of the Police Commissioners yesterday afternoon the vacancy caused by the resignation some time ago of P. C. Macdonald, was filled by the appointment of Mr. Wm. Meagher, an all-round athlete and a deservedly popular young man of this city. Mr. Meagher has rounded out the well developed physique which characterizes him in the strenuous exercise of that good old game of football, which has made the name of Dr. Rugby synonymous with all but is vigorous on the athletic field Not only in the game of Rugby but in the lacrosse realm as well he has added well earned laurels to hise athletic reputation. Hockey, too, has found in Mr. Meagher a strong exponent.

The new officer is a member of the Total Abstinence Society, and is considered an all-round first-class appointment.

Whitcroft's Team Will Go After Stanley Cup?

Edmonton, Alta., March 10 — Edmonton defeated Portage la Prairie here last night in the first game of the series for the championship of Western Canada, and they will challenge for the Stanley Cup.

The score was 5 to 4. It was the hardest fought game ever seen in Western Canada. The locals led at half-time by 5 to 3. Portage scoring only on goal in the last 30 minutes. The ice was soft, but the game was full of brilliant plays.

Ross, Fraser and Kean starred for Portage. Charlie Quinn in goal gave one of the most brilliant exhibitions ever seen here. Parr, in goal for Edmonton, stopped many phenomenal shots.

Fred Whitcroft, on the forward line, played a most wonderful game, scoring the last three goals for the locals. The next game will be played on Wednesday night. Line-up.

Wanted Parson but Got Ten Years in the Penitentiary

Judge Weller Gives Chas Burke a Long Term in the Pen.

Robbed Purser's Store

At eleven o'clock yesterday morning eighty or one hundred citizens, including a few scattered members of the Tired Tim Tribe and Easy Hours League gathered in the county council Chamber to see and hear his Honor Judge Weller's final disposal of the old time case against Charles Burke, tried some weeks ago and pronounced guilty by the jurge of robbing Purser's store at Buckhorn of $25, in the presence of the Misses Hagues and Purser. It will be remembered that at the trial, after being found guilty, Burke sprung a bomb of surprise on the court by telling the judge that if he got that page of a Norwood Hotel register of the date when Purser's store was robbed, his Burke's name, as Charles Bancroft, would be inscribed thereon. Burke explained that he had used this fictitious signature on account of his notorious character. Judge Weller then withheld sentence until yesterday to investigate Burke's contention. Prosecuting Attorney R. E. Wood procured and produced in court the page in question, which did not contain the name of Bancroft. Mr. Gordon was present in the interests of the prisoner. Burke, who since his incarceration, has grown quite an extensive beard, was brought in for sentence about 11.25, in charge of HON. J. P. WHITNEY.

Jailer Nesbitt, and his assistant, Tumbley Ray. The judge entered the room and took his seat at 11.40, and after being shown the leaf from the Norwood hotel register, said:

"Prisoner, have you any more to say than you have said already?"

"No, Judge, nothing further than I have said already in my letter."

The judge acknowledged getting the letter in which the prisoner admitted having made a mistake in the name. He had had so many aliases he had evidently forgotten which, if any, he had used. He, the judge, had taken a great deal of trouble over this case. He had found that the prisoner was absolutely not at the Norwood Hotel the day of the robbery at all. He had ascertained after taking great trouble, about the blind boy from Toronto, who said Burke was there the day of the robbery. He had found out more about the prisoner than the latter knew anything about. The letter from Jack Carey, Toronto, was a penny. The prisoner was not the right kind of a man to be prowling about the country rubbing people. For the past twelve years most of his time had been spent in prison. If he let him go, Burke would only go back at his old life next day. It was only for him now to pass sentence and place him for some time where he would be prevented from prying on society. Under the law he, the judge, could give him imprisonment for life and sentence him to be whipped. He had a good mind to let him have the whip, as the prisoner did not seem to care about punishment. He had been thinking seriously for some time about ordering the "cat" to be applied. Had the prisoner laid a hand on the girls at Buckhorn he would certainly order the "cat." There is no hope of reforming the prisoner, and he cannot tell the truth. He had made enquiries in Toronto and learned a great deal more than the prisoner suspected, but which it would do no good to tell Burke. He had taken more trouble in Burke's case than in any similar one.

"Can I speak a few words, judge?"

"No," replied his Honor. "You are such an inveterate liar I could not believe one word you say. There is no use in your calling on God to vouch as your statements. You have used eight different aliases, supplied by yourself in your own handwriting."

Here Burke caused a smile by saying, "I would like to see a clergyman, and I have always attended church. I went for years to the Methodist Church, Toronto, and also the Anglican Church, although brought up a Methodist.

Again his Honor said, "Burke, I have found out for certain you were not at Norwood the day of the robbery, and a good deal more I'm not going to tell you. I'm going to send you, where you'll not do wrong for some time to come." Here his Honor produced a bundle of papers and said, "Burke, these papers all show what I have found out about you. Your criminal record is, in 1890, convicted of theft and remanded; 1894, a similar crime; 1899, burglary at Bay City, Mich., for which he got five years; in 1903, breaking into a house in Toronto, six months in Central Prison; 1904, helping to effect the escape from prison of another man, three years in Kingston Penitentiary.

His Honor then said, "Charles Burke, the sentence of the court is that you be imprisoned in the Penitentiary at Kingston for the period of ten years.

Ended Her Life by Drinking Carbolic Acid--"Louise Atchison" is the Unfortunate Victim

Discovered in Her Apartments Last Night by William Austin

Inquest This Morning

Last night between five and six o'clock as Mr. Wm. Austin, carpenter was returning to his home, which is situated in the rooms above Dutton's fruit store, he heard moans proceeding from the quarters occupied by Mrs. Louise Howell, more familiarly known to citizens generally as "Louie Atchison." Mr. Austin immediately investigated the lugubrious sound, and, on opening the door, of the unfortunate woman's apartments, found Mrs. Howell in the last agonies of death.

A bottle which had contained carbolic acid, part of the contents of which remained, told of the manner in which the unhappy creature had departed from earthly woes.

Medical aid was at once summoned and the usual precautions in such cases taken.

Mrs. Howell was a well known character about the streets of Peterborough. Twenty years ago domestic troubles are alleged to have caused a separation between her and her husband, since which time she has lived practically alone. The deceased lady leaves one son, Edward, who is at present playing professional hockey with Brantford in the professional hockey league.

Coroner Gray was summoned and an inquest will be held this morning at eleven o'clock.

Deputation to Toronto Today

Nine members of the County Council, headed by Warden Thompson, accompanied by the county solicitor, Mr. E. A. Peck, leave this morning for Toronto, where they will wait on the Ontario Government to ask that the Model School at Norwood be maintained and not done away with, as announced. They will also ask for Government assistance to improve a colonization road in Harvey township, and also to assist in building a floating bridge between the Chemong Indian village and the Emilymore shore. In connection with the latter, Ald. Phelan and Ald. Elliott will represent the City Council.

Bananas are Scarce

Ba-na-na's getting scarce!

Jamaica crop upon which we have depended chiefly a failure this year!

What will the banana man do? And what will he say? As the boys say, "He'll have to change his tune."

"Only half a supply can be obtained from Jamaica just now," said one of our local fruiterers. "Of course, we'll get some from Central America and San Domingo, but there will be a shortage here for a while."

"What will the difference in price be?" he was asked.

"Instead of paying 15 or 20 cents a dozen, you'll probably pay 25 or 30 cents," was the hopeful reply.

"What did the crop fail for?"

"For lack of rain last summer."

So there will be less banana cake for a few months, fewer banana skins for unwilling acrobats of both sexes to skate upon on the sidewalk and a temporary confusion to the perambulating fruit vendor, who will now have to adapt his melodious voice to such other fruit names with strong consonants as he can conveniently use.

KENTUCKY NIGHT RIDERS SHOOT AND WHIP NEGROES

Paducah, Ky., March 10.—One hundred masked "night riders" rode into the town of Birmingham, Marshall county, late last night, shot six negroes, one of them, it is believed, fatally, and whipped five others. The riders took possession of the town and shot into every negro cabin in the place. In one of these John Scrugga, his wife and three children, and a granddaughter were struck by bullets. Scrugga is probably fatally wounded. The riders then took five other negroes to the banks of the Tennessee, where they whipped them. After warning twenty-five other negroes to leave the place, the masked men rode away. The raid followed a warning of two weeks ago to all the colored population to leave Birmingham.

A NIGHT RIDER SHOT.

Clarksville, Tenn., March 10.—Near Woodford, about 15 miles from this city, Brown Bennett, a young man, the son of an Associated Tobacco Prizer, was found early to-day in the public road in a dying condition with a bullet hole through his head. Near Bennett were two dead horses and three empty shotguns.

It is believed that young Bennett was a Night Rider, and was shot down by persons whom he and his gang had attacked, and that his comrades, on their home to get away, had left him dying on the scene of the fight. An investigation is being made.

Mr. R. W. Tivey Dies from the Result of a Cat Bite

One of the sudden deaths that have startled the citizens of Peterborough in a long time is that of Mr. Roland W. Tivey, eldest son of Mr. Roland Tivey, Sr., Stanley avenue, East Ward, who passed away at St. Joseph's Hospital on Monday night. About ten days ago Mr. Tivey was bitten by a cat. At first little attention was paid to the wound, as it was not very painful and no serious results were anticipated. However, blood poisoning developed, and on Saturday Mr. Tivey was removed to St. Joseph's Hospital, where everything that medical aid could do was done, but the poison spread rapidly through his system and resulted in his death.

The late Mr. Tivey was 42 years of age and was born in Prescott, and came to Peterborough with his parents about twenty years ago. He has been engaged on railway construction in New Ontario and was home on a visit when he received the fatal bite.

Besides his parents, two brothers and four sisters are left to mourn his loss. The brothers are Albert of Englehart, and Sidney of Calgary, Alta., and the sisters are Mrs. J. J. Howden, Mrs. T. H. Adams, of this city; Mrs. E. D. Story, of Ottawa, and Miss Alice Tivey at home.

The funeral will take place this afternoon at three o'clock from the family residence, Stanley avenue, to the Little Lake cemetery.

Asks Arrest of Shool Officials Who Allowed Doors to be Locked

Chicago, March 10 — The arrest and prosecution of six principals and the janitors and engineers of several public and private schools was demanded yesterday by Acting Building Commissioner Robert Knight, in a letter to George B. White, city prosecutor.

This demand followed a conference held by Commissioner Knight, Architect Perkins of the Board of Education, and Fire Marshal Horan, at which reports as to the fire protection in Chicago schools made by 120 fire captains and thirty building inspectors were reviewed.

The arrests asked for are those of custodians of school buildings where doors have been found locked when pupils were in their classes and study rooms.

Another peddler, who has been working the city without a license for the past week, was gathered in by P. C. Newhall yesterday afternoon. He handed over the necessary $20 for a license, after many excuses.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

Sports

The Wanderers defeated the Winnipeg Maple Leafs in the first game for the Stanley Cup last night.

TO PLAY PICKED TEAM.

Ottawa will not play Toronto professionals to-morrow night, instead a picked team will tackle the locals. The Line-up:

All-Stars — Mantle, Brantford, goal; Gross, Berlin, point; H. Corbeau, Guelph, cover; Fyfe, Guelph, centre; Taylor, Brantford, rover; Dumart, Berlin, right wing; Marks, Brantford, left wing.

TO GO TO PITTSBURG.

Pittsburg, Pa., March 10—George G. Gale, secretary of the Wanderer Hockey Club of Montreal, wired Manager McSweggan of the Duquesne Garden that the proposition to bring the Stanley Cup winners to this city to play a series is acceptable to the club, and that they would be in Pittsburg on March 19, 21 and 23.

It is not settled yet what team will be the Wanderers' opponents, as the race has not been decided.

Should the Lyceums win Tuesday against the Pirates, and trim the Bankers Saturday night, they will be the opponents, but should the Bankers win on Saturday it will tie the two, and an extra game will have to be played in the following week.

MAPLE LEAFS TO PLAY IN OTTAWA.

Ottawa, Ont. March 10:—The Winnipeg Maple Leafs, challengers for the Stanley Cup, and the Ottawas have come to terms and will play an exhibition game here on Saturday night next. To the telegram which he sent the Maples, asking for an exhibition match after their series against the Wanderers, Martin Rosenthal, acting manager of the Ottawa Club, received the following answer:

"Yes, we will play you in Ottawa Saturday. We are going to win the Stanley Cup, but we will meet Ottawa, win or lose."

Signed, J. LEE.
Manager Maple Leafs.

Just how the Ottawa team will line up against the Leafs is uncertain. Marty Walsh's contract is up, and unless he chooses to return from Kingston for the match, Harrison, the Victoria captain, will replace him.

COMMERCIAL HOUSE TO CHANGE HANDS

After a long May general rumor has it that the Commercial House on one of the old stands in the city, will resume for its scene of operation to many part of the city, as the owner of the shops and the general improvement building intends to convert it into one of our most thoroughfare. The Commodern and well fitted business road has always enjoyed a liberal patronage, and when the changes are founded, as the less expensive May location will in all likelihood exist, and that as the date of expiration of present liquor licenses. There is no doubt but, while owing to the well known scarcity of hotels in the city the turning of this section into business places will result to the general accommodation of those wanting accommodation, thus also thoroughfare. PETERBOROUGH, MARCH 9 1908.

SOME OPEN QUESTIONS

The list of subjects with which Ambassador Bryce has to deal on his present visit to Ottawa is not very serious, if the Free Press of that city is well informed. They embrace:—

The control of the waterways dividing Canada from the United States,

Transit free of duty of merchandise across portions of American and Canadian territory.

Transit of merchandise without payment of duty until arrival at points in the interior.

The application of the alien labor laws to citizens of the United States and Canada.

Reciprocal mine owning rights.

Reciprocal salvage and wrecking rights.

The use of logging booms in the St. John river.

The disposition of certain pecuniary claims.

The exemption of Canadians going temporarily to the United States from payment of head tax.

Involved in the first question among other things, is the disposition of Niagara Falls. A law passed in 1906 which had the effect of preserving the Falls from further encroachment in the nature of commercial undertakings by this expires in June, 1908, and it is hoped that before that date arrives the two countries will reach an agreement that can be embodied in a treaty, whereby that great scenic attraction can be protected from complete disfigurement. The second item in the list refers to generally known as the bonding privilege, and the third is an amplification of it. There ought not to be much difficulty in coming to an understanding in regard to them. The application of the alien labor laws to the people of both countries is something that calls for a very great deal of consideration. At present the drift of labor is into Canada. There is nothing going freely from one country to the other, the provisions of the law only barring employers from making contracts for the importation of labor. As at present advised we are opposed to the idea of relaxing the statutory provisions in this respect. Reciprocity in mine-owning seems to be a reasonable proposition, and so does the conveyance of prisoners through the territory of either country. In regard to reciprocity, salvage and wreckage, we shall make some inquiries before expressing any opinion. The use of logging booms in the St. John river is a local question arising out of the Ashburton treaty by which the freee right of navigation was secured to citizens of the United States in that river. We are not advised as to the nature of the several pecuniary questions which are open. The exemption of Canadians, temporarily entering the United States, from the head tax, is in this part of the country already in practice. None of these questions ought to present any great difficulty.

The manufacturers are doing a useful and patriotic thing in urging on the Government the placing of an export duty on our pulpwood. Year by year millions of cords of this modern necessity in paper-making are cut in this country and shipped free of duty across the border. Once there it gives employment to thousands in turning it into paper. These thousands should do the work in Canada, and assist in building up the nation by the manufacture of its natural products into marketable shape.

THE MAXIM GUN.

The origin of the Maxim gun was somewhat curious. Mr. Maxim (Sir Hiram) after the close of the great civil war in America was visiting one of the southern battlefields. He picked up a Springfield rifle and began firing at a target. He soon discovered, to his amazement, that his shoulder was all black and blue with the recoil. This set him thinking, and he soon conceived the idea of utilizing this force in a gun which would fire automatically.

He went to London full of his idea, but no one would listen to him. In Birmingham the chief man in a factory refused to make a bolt gun.

In despair Mr. Maxim packed up his trunks and went to Paris. In two weeks the work was done. This gun Mr. Maxim exhibited in London in 1885. He spoke of it then as the gun of the future. It is now the gun of the present. It is a wonderful gun and a deadly one. By adjusting the indicator it will fire bullets at any rate from one per minute to 600.

This terrible weapon is started by the firing of the first shot. After that it works itself and will keep going as long as cartridges can be fed into the machine. When one belt of 333 is exhausted, all that is necessary is to hook on another.

When the British government gave an order for the gun they stipulated that it should not weigh more than a hundred pounds and should be capable of firing a thousand rounds in four minutes. Mr. Maxim produced a gun which weighed thirty-five pounds and fired 2,000 rounds in three minutes.

AN IRREGULAR VERB.

One That Made a Frenchman Despair of Learning English.

"What does 'Beat it!' mean?" asked the man of an inquiring frame of mind of his well informed friend.

"Why," was the reply, "that means to go, depart, be off, take your leave, and don't be slow about it. I don't know what it came from unless it is a bit of policeman's slang for 'Get off my beat!' or 'Clear out unless you want me to beat you!'"

"I am reminded of a line in one of Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes' amusing poems, scattered through the pages of his delightful 'Autocrat of the Breakfast Table.' It runs:

"Depart! Be off! Exceed!
Evade! Evampe!

But it takes a Latin scholar to discover the derivations of all his verbs of motion.

"There is a story of a Frenchman who on his way to England was made the victim of a practical joke in regard to the verb 'go,' whose 'went,' 'going,' 'gone,' are irregular enough, goodness knows. He was found to be struggling with this variation: 'I go; thou departest; he clears out; we cut stick; you make tracks; they absquatulate,' and as he read it he exclaimed: "Mercy! What irregular verbs you have in your English language!'"

Getting His Own Back.

An ironworker, having had the worst of an argument with a friend, decided to get even with him.

Waiting, therefore, until his enemy had retired to rest one night, he approached his street door and knocked loudly in order to wake him.

Opening the bedroom window, the other hurriedly inquired what the noise was all about.

"Why," replied the outside one, "one of your windows is wide open."

"Which one?"

"Why, the one you have your head through," chuckled the other as he went away satisfied with the success of his plot.

Must Charge to Get Crowd.

The ladies' guild of an uptown church had planned an evening entertainment and reception and asked the rector to make announcement of it on the Sunday preceding.

"This is all right," he said, "but you must charge admission."

"Why, this is just a social evening," they protested. "We are inviting people."

"They won't come," said the rector, "because they will think it is not worth while. But charge a small admission and you will have a good crowd." So the women gave in, and subsequent events proved the rector was right.

They Made Her.

A grandmother was reproving her little grandchildren for making so much noise.

"Dear me, children, you are so noisy today! Can't you be a little more quiet?"

"Now, grandma, you mustn't scold us. You see, if it wasn't for us, you wouldn't be a grandma at all."

One For Each Life.

"I want a good revolver," began the determined looking man.

"Yes, sir," said the salesman. "Six chambers?"

"Why—er—you'd better make it a nine chamber. I want to use it on a cat next door."—London Express.

A Poor Corner.

When a girl puts a man off by saying she will keep a little place in a corner of her heart for him he may be sure that it is a corner for which she doesn't expect to have much use.

Youth holds no society with grief.—Euripides.

London, March 7.—The Chronicle says that on the occasion of the betrothal of the Count of Turin, cousin of King Victor Emmanuel, and Princess Patricia of Connaught, niece of King Edward, the latter reluctantly decided to change her religion. She will begin shortly to prepare herself for reception into the Roman Catholic Church.

FINE PRINTS.

Care With Which They Are Treated by Amateurs and Collectors.

How careful collectors and amateurs of fine engravings are of their treasures is illustrated by a written agreement that a local firm of dealers in such things had to sign recently when they wanted to borrow several particularly rare engravings for an exhibition they were to have in their galleries. The owner of the prints insisted that from the time the box in which the prints were sent to the dealers was opened in the shop no hands but those of the junior partner of the firm were to touch them. The owner stipulated expressly that the member of the firm was to take them out of the box, frame them himself, hang them on the walls and when the show was over follow the prints back through these various stages until a porter was ready to screw the cover of the packing box on again. The prints were so rare and fine that the junior partner cheerfully agreed to all of these conditions for the sake of showing the engravings.

That the prints were extremely rare may be appreciated from the fact that before two of them in particular came into the private collector's possession he made a special journey to Stuttgart, Germany, to see them, and when he looked at them he left an open order to a dealer in that city to buy them, no matter what they cost. He got them, but he paid the highest price ever known for such engravings to bring.

CRANKY METAL.

A cutlery company will make a hundred razors from the same piece of steel by the same process, and part of the razors will be good and part of them bad. It may be fifty of one kind or seventy-five or twenty-five—nobody knows. The maker doesn't know; the buyer doesn't know. Barbers say that even the price doesn't seem to make much difference. You may get a good razor for a quarter or a bad one for $5. And the same razor will get a contrary edge today, so that you can hardly shave with it, and tomorrow, without additional sharpening, it will work like a charm.

One lap will go on a bolt easily and stay there. Another tap will hardly go on at all. A third may be screwed on tight and snug and yet keep coming off in spite of all that can be done.

Sometimes men that work with machines have a premonition of coming disaster, as do the men that sail on the seas or thread the winding paths of the big woods. Nature as well as pieces of mechanism seems able to communicate to man why they are in a calamitous and threatening mood.

Madrid and Its Climate.

It is a great contrast to pass from these tropical shores to the wind swept plains of interior Spain. The level country inclosed by the Guadarrama and the Cantabrian mountains forms in the west an extensive wheat growing region. Toward the east as the rainfall decreases pasturage encroaches upon arable culture. In New Castile, on the south of the Guadarrama and in about the center of Spain, the political capital has been placed. The level country in which it has been dropped, as if by accident, is for the most part a waterless plain, swept in winter by the piercing winds from the naked mountains of the north, sweltering in summer under the effect of the sun's rays on bare rock and soil.

The climate of Madrid has been tersely described by its inhabitants as "three months of winter and nine of hades."

Honey Ants.

Certain Mexican ants are selected by their kindred as storehouses of honey. They are fed with honey until the abdomen speedily becomes smooth and round and so filled with honey that the skin is transparent. These ants are doomed to pass the remainder of their lives as mere honey cells, from which their kindred extract the honey when it is required. There are several specimens of these ants in the British museum with the honey still within their transparent bodies. The Mexicans raid the nests of these ants for the sake of the honey that their bodies contain, and the ants are eaten raw as sweetmeats.

The Full Particulars.

The other day a lady who lives in our town entered a grocery store and asked to be shown a good kind of breakfast cereal.

The clerk took down a package and said:

"Madam, this is a predigested food."

"Oh, is that so?" she returned. "And by whom?"

Good For an Appetite.

"You must have a good appetite," remarked the thin man enviously. "What do you take for it?"

"In all my experience," replied the plump one, "I have found nothing more suitable than food."

SAFETY OF ANAESTHETICS.

Less Dangerous Than Crossing the Road.

It is really safer for a patient to be placed under anaesthetics than it is for an ordinary person to attempt to cross one of our crowded thoroughfares.

This statement was made by a high official of the London Hospital while discussing some observations made by the city Coroner in reference to a death under anaesthetics at Guy's Hospital. The Coroner said such cases were extremely important to the public. During the past six-and-a-half years he held inquests on thirty-six persons who had died in Guy's Hospital while under anaesthetics.

"The public probably have no idea with what safety anaesthetics are now administered," commented the London Hospital official. "Here, on an average, fifty patients are placed under anaesthetics every day. In 1904 there were 15,143 cases, and of that number twenty-two died during the period of anaesthesia, but only four of the 15,143 died from the effects of the anaesthetic.

"The term, 'death under anaesthetics' is susceptible of many meanings. Here we adopt the strictest interpretation. For instance, a man may be brought in who has had both his legs cut off as a result of a railway accident. He may be at the point of death when he enters our doors, and, in fact die directly he is put on the operating table and the anaesthetic bag adjusted. We should regard that as a death under anaesthetics, although the anaesthetics had nothing whatever to do with his death.

"Last year 17,256 patients in this institution were placed under anaesthetics, and the results were as favorable as the figures I have given for 1904."

To Petition the King.

A party of the unemployed of Manchester are at present marching on London, carrying with them a petition which they hope to present in person to the King.

They show no impatience. They do not demand food. They are either so philosophically stoical or else so inured to cold, hunger and wretchedness that they appear not to feel their discomforts at all.

Hours of standing about do not seem to affect the stolid demeanor of these Lancashire lads. On the tramp they are wonderfully cheery. In advance goes a group of about a dozen singing or whistling every kind of air, from "Onward, Christian Soldiers," to "A Different Girl Again."

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

Any even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Application for entry must be made in person by the applicant at a Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the district in which the land is situate. Entry by proxy may, however, be made at an Agency on certain conditions by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

The homesteader is required to perform the homestead duties under one of the following plans:

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) A homesteader may, if he so desires, perform the required residence duties by living on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of his homestead. Joint ownership in land will not meet this requirement.

(3) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of a homesteader has permanent residence on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of a homestead, or upon a homestead entered for by him in the vicinity, such homesteader may perform his own residence duties by living with the father or mother.

(4) The term "vicinity" in the two preceding paragraphs is defined as meaning not more than nine miles in a direct line exclusive of the width of road allowances crossed in the measurement.

(5) A homesteader intending to perform his residence duties in accordance with the above while living with parents or on farming land owned by himself must notify the agent for the district of such intention.

Six months' notice in writing must be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa, of intention to apply for patent.

February, 1908, is here and so is

The Pacific Fruit Cooling and Vaporizing Company, Incorporated for the purpose of cooling deciduous fruits and removing moisture from citrus fruits and keeping under cold storage such fruits and other food products from the time of receiving them from the fruit growers until loaded on car and taken away by the Railroad Company for Eastern shipment.

STUBBORN FACTS UNIMPEACHABLE

The loss in shipping deciduous and citrus fruits is enormous. The orange crop of Southern California alone is valued at $30,000,000. The government experts estimate that about 25 per cent. or $7,500,000, is lost every year by rough handling in picking and decay of fruit in transit to the Eastern markets. What a revenue of profit this loss would be to the shipper if it could be saved. Our process will save it. The same is true of the deciduous fruits of Northern California.

GREAT FORTUNES ARE MADE BY INVESTING IN NECESSITIES

Fruit is one of the necessities of our civilized life, and the company that can place the fruit in the markets of the world in the best shape, in the quickest time, at the lowest rate, has a fortune within its grasp. The Armour Company in ten years made $5,000,000 net handling California fruit in refrigerator cars. Our process is as necessary to the fruit grower as the refrigerator car. Therefore we ought to receive as large a revenue for handling the same commodity.

GET IN WHILE THE ENTERPRISE IS NEW

No wiser words were ever spoken than these: "The chief point about getting rich is to invest in a new enterprise that is being managed by successful men, who have some of their own money in the deal." "One good investment is worth a lifetime of labor". Think over this sentence. A man's daily labor will never make him rich. He must have some money at work for him. Money invested never gets sick, keeps no holidays, never goes on strike. There are three things that ought to guide you: First, invest with honest men; second, invest with men of sound judgment; third, invest under conditions where you get your full share of profits the business yields. Get into a company whose destiny is guided by men of this stamp when its future is before and not behind it. Here is the secret of fortune. Plant the seed of your investment in the soil of opportunity, at the season of greatest promise when the enterprise is new. Every ounce of honor in the hearts of the men managing this company is pledged to give

A SQUARE DEAL FOR EVERY INVESTOR

There will be no preferred stock. Every dollar invested will be worth 100 cents on the dollar. Our Directors, as honourable business men, will not allow any tricks of trade by which the small investor can be frozen out. Their commercial standing proves they are not "graiters". The poor man's 500 or 100 shares will have the same standing in court as the rich man's, 10,000, and they will draw the same proportionate dividend. No court investigation.

EVERY RICH MAN IN THE WORLD WAS ONCE POOR OR HIS GRANDFATHER WAS.

THE OPPORTUNITY OF A LIFETIME

To get into a company that has the certainty of growth, the assurance of large and quick returns, a rapid advance in the price of stock, to make it an exceptional chance for big profits on a small investment. This is an ideal investment for the wage earner as well as the rich man. Moderate sums invested now will bring splendid returns in the near future. The logic of all this is

DON'T WAIT

Time is the essence of this proposition. The stock will certainly double in a short time. Jay Gould once said: "When you see a good investment don't wait to see if it pans out well, for by that time other people see it, too, and you have lost your opportunity."

WOMEN AS INVESTORS

Some of the heaviest stockholders in our company are women of keen business instincts. One lady in Los Angeles bought 5,000 shares. In a few days she returned and bought 5,000 more. This lady has never made a mistake in her business ventures. Women are good investors because they have courage to follow their convictions. Their intuitions are keener and truer than man's logic. Men may prevent her voting, but they can't prevent her drawing dividends on her investments. This is one branch of trade where sex, culture, or color does not count.

MANAGEMENT

The affairs of this company are in the hands of men of honesty, ability courage and good business judgment—men who have made a success of their own business—men whose business reputation is A1 in the commercial circles in which they move.

These men are "square" and "shrewd". They will not deceive you nor will they be deceived themselves. Because of the promise of growth, permanency and profit this business offers they have united their money, energy, time and business experience to make this enterprise a grand success.

Notwithstanding the Financial Crisis, Investments made Six Months ago have Advanced

The next six months promises to far exceed the past six months

Modest Capitalization Large Coal Reserves

This Company organized under the laws of the Northwest Territories of Canada, owns and operates the Galbraith mine located at Lundbreck, Alta. They have four vertical seams of coal traversing their property, aggregating over 40 feet in thickness. Three of these seams are developed to a depth of 350 feet, and as they pass through the Company's lands for nearly a mile, some idea of the amount of coal may be had.

Shipping Steadily

The present output of the mine is about 200 tons per day. These shipments will be rapidly increased, as the C.P.R. allows its cars to be loaded with coal for points in the U. S.

in blocks of 100 or over. Tight money in the States makes it possible for us to give this unprecedented offer in stock that will be paying dividends inside of six months, and you are sure to realize a handsome profit.

Parties ordering can send money by P. O. Orders, Express Orders or Bank Drafts, and we will have the stock issued direct to you. Full information furnished on request. Correspondence solicited. Reference, Bank of Montreal

"She can take possession as soon as she likes. And, Deborah," added Paul significantly, "for all that has happened, I don't intend to drop the search for your late master's murderer."

"It's the Krill cat as done it," said Debby, "though I ain't got no reason for a-sayin' of such a think."

CHAPTER XIII.

As Paul expected, the next letter from his father contained a revocation of all that had pleased him in the former one. Beecot senior wrote many pages of abuse. He always did babble like a complaining woman when angered. He declined to sanction the marriage and ordered his son at once—underlined—to give up all thought of making Sylvia Norman his wife.

Sylvia, under the charge of Deborah and escorted by Bart Tawsey, had duly left Gwynne street, bag and baggage, and she was now established in Rose cottage, Jubilee town. The house was a small one, and there was not a single rose in the garden around it. She was assigned the best room in the small abode, and one of the first things she did was to write a letter to Paul asking him to repair to Rose cottage to witness the marriage of Deborah and Bart. The handmaiden thought this was necessary so that she could make full use of her intended husband.

"If he wasn't here allays," said the bride elect, "he'd be gadding about idling. I know him. An' me getting a business together won't be easy unless I've got him at 'and, as you may say, to take round the bills, let alone that he ought to sleep in the 'ouse in case burglars gits in."

Deborah, as an American would say, was a hustler, and, having made up her mind, she did not let grass grow under her feet. For three Sundays she had the pleasure of hearing the banns announced which foretold that Bart Tawsey and herself would soon be man and wife. Then the marriage took place.

The future Mrs. Tawsey had no relatives, but Bart produced Mrs. Purr, a snuffy old grandmother from some London slum who drank gin during the wedding feast, much to the scandal of the bride. Paul acted as best man to Bart, and Sylvia, in her plain dress, was bridesmaid.

After the ceremony Paul, laughing at the oddity of it all, took his leave. On walking to the gate he was overtaken by Mrs. Purr, who whirled mysteriously. "Whatever you do, sir," said the lean old creature, with many contortions of her withered face, "don't have nothin' to do with Tray."

"Tray?" echoed Paul in surprise. "Mr. Pash's office boy?"

"Him and none other. I knows his grandmother, as 'as bin up for drunk 200 times and is proud of it. Stretchers is as common to her, sir, as kissings is to a handsome young gent like you. An' the boy takes arter her. A deep young cuss," whispered Granny Purr significantly.

"But why should I beware of him?" asked Beecot, puzzled.

"A nod's a wink to a blind 'un," croaked Mrs. Purr, condensing the proverb and turning away. "Just leave that lad Tray to his own wicked'ness. The'll bring him to the gallers some day."

"But I want to know"—

"Ah, well, then, you won't, sir. I sees what I sees, and I sees no more nor I oughter say. So good night, sir," and Mrs. Purr toddled up the newly gravelled path and entered the cottage, leaving an odor of gin behind her.

It was 5 o'clock when Paul arrived at the door of the stairs leading to his attic, and here he was touched on the shoulder by no less a person than Mr. Billy Hurd. Only when he spoke did Paul recognize him by his voice, for the gentleman who stood before him was not the brown individual he knew as the detective. Mr. Hurd was in evening dress, with the neatest of patent boots and the tightest of white gloves. He wore a brilliantly polished silk hat and twirled a gold headed cane; also he had donned a smart blue cloth overcoat with a velvet collar and cuffs. But, though his voice was the voice of Hurd, his face was that of quite a different person. His hair was dark and worn rather long, his mustache black and large and brushed out a la kaiser, and he affected an eyeglass as immovable as that of Hay.

"Why are you masquerading as a Frenchman, Hurd?"

"Not Hurd in this skin, Mr. Beecot. Comte de la Tour, a votre service," and he presented a thin glazed card with a coronet engraved on it. "Come up to your room. There's something to be talked over between us."

"No bad news, I hope?"

"Ah, my poor friend," said the detective in his usual genial voice, "you have had enough bad news. I am aware. To lose a lovely wife and a fine fortune at once. Eh, what a pity!"

"I have lost the money, certainly," said Beecot, lighting his lamp, "but the wife will be mine as soon as I can save sufficient to give her a better home than this."

M. le Comte de la Tour sat down and gracefully flung open his overcoat, so as to expose a spotless shirt front. "What," he asked, lifting his darkened eyebrows, "so you mean to marry that girl?"

"Of course," said Paul angrily. "Do you think I'm a brute?"

"But the money?"

"What does that matter? I love her, not the money."

"And the name. Her birth—

we'll see who will dare say a word against my wife."

Hurd stretched out his hand and, grasping that of Beecot, shook it warmly. "Upon my word you are a man, and that's almost better than being a gentleman," he said heartily. "I've heard everything from Mr. Pash, and I honor you, Mr. Beecot; I honor you."

Paul stared. "You must have been brought up in a queer way, Hurd," he said dryly, "to express this surprise because a man acts as a man and not as a blackguard."

"Ah, but you see in my profession I have mixed with blackguards, and that has lowered my moral tone. It's refreshing to meet a straight, honorable man such as you are, Mr. Beecot. I liked you when first I set eyes on you and determined to help you to discover the assassin of Aaron Norman"—

"Lemuel Krill you mean."

Hurd looked round the bleak garret expressively and shrugged his shoulders. "You can't bring Miss Norman here."

"No. But I may make enough money to give her a better home."

"Can I help you?"

"I don't see how you can. I want to be an author."

"Well," said Hurd, whose British speech was in strange contrast to his foreign appearance, "it's not a bad game to be an author if you get a good serial connection. Oh, don't look surprised. I know about newspapers and publishers as I know about most things. See here, Mr. Beecot, have you ever tried your hand at a detective story?"

"No. I write on a higher level."

"You won't write on a more paying level," replied Hurd coolly. "I know a newspaper which will give you—if I recommend you, mind—£100 for a good detective yarn. You apply for it."

"But I couldn't make up one of those plots—so intricate."

"Pooh! It's a trick. You set your puppets in such and such a way and then mix them up. I'll give you the benefit of my experience as a 'tec, and with my plot and your own writing we'll be able to knock up a story for the paper I talk of. Then, with £100 you'll have a nest egg to start with."

"I accept with gratitude," said Beecot, moved, "but I really don't know why you should trouble about me."

"Because you're a white man and an honorable gentleman," said the detective emphatically. "I'll see about the story for you. Meanwhile I am going to a card party to meet incidentally Mr. Grexon Hay."

"Ah! You still suspect him?"

"I do, and with good reason. He's got another mug in tow. Lord George Sandal, the son of Lord—well I needn't mention names, but Hay's trying to clear the young ass out, and I'm on the watch. Hay will never know me as the Count de la Tour. Not he, smart as he is. I'm sly!"

"Do you speak French well?"

"Moderately. But I play a silent part and say little. I shut my mouth and open my eyes. But what I came here to say is that I intend to find out the assassin of Aaron Norman."

An English Anomaly.

A striking difference between our manners and those of our English cousins was shown one day at a garden party. The hostess, an American, was speaking to one of her guests, an English woman of rank.

"Dear Lady B.," she said, "here are some sandwiches which I made with my own hands, particularly for you. You know I've often told you about our American sandwiches and how good they are. Here are different sorts, lettuce and cucumbers, if you care for 'grass,' or if you like a savory better try the cream cheese ones with pimentoes. I've some sweet ones, too, raisins and nuts chopped together—which will you try first?"

She held a plate in each hand, a plate filled with dainty looking sandwiches, and they were extended invitingly toward her guest, who looked at them critically, then said in the clear, high pitched voice of the well bred Englishwoman:

"Oh, thank you, so kind of you, but do you know I never touch the savory things?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Chance For a Home Run.

A clever teacher who has the power of calling out originality in her pupils says that she would have no use for text books if she took time to answer all the startling questions asked in the classroom. One day the attraction of gravitation was under discussion when one of the boys said that he didn't see any need of it, anyway.

"It seems to me," said he, "there's no particular use in having the earth attract things. Now, when the apple fell and made Newton think out the reason for it, that apple might just as well have stayed where it was until somebody gathered it."

"You play ball, don't you?" asked the teacher. "Well, suppose you knock the ball very high, what happens?"

"It falls."

"But if there were no attraction toward the earth it wouldn't fall. Don't you think that might prove inconvenient?"

"My," cried the boy, "what a lucky chance for a home run!"

Mr. W. F. Dobbin, a Former Resident Runs for Office

W. F. Dobbin, Socialist candidate for sheriff of Santa Fe County, New Mexico, in a recent election, a former resident of Peterborough, received only fourteen votes, but he did establish a record for inexpensive campaigning. He is a brother of Mr. F. H. Dobbin, of the Review, and Mr. L. Dobbin, East City. Witness the following exact reprint of his statement of expenses:

(Signed) W. F. Dobbin.

P. S.—I circulated several hundred Socialist cards announcing my candidacy (which my friends kindly donated and for which I extend sincere thanks), and, while I did not make a "whirlwind campaign" like some of my Democratic and Republican opponents, yet I placed myself in the hands of my friends, trusting to them to vote for the one whom they felt like supporting for the office.

The returns show on their face that I am not elected. My only regret, therefore, will be that I will not be able OFFICIALLY to work for the erection of an elevator to the dome of the Capitol building, which the public has long needed.

If every lady and gentleman who promised to vote for me had done so, there would now be no doubt of my success at the polls. Whether they forgot, their promises or were improperly approached by the "enemy" has not yet transpired, but I am sure many of the ladies forgot or were unduly influenced by their husbands, who are held in bondage by the dominant parties, to vote for my opponent. Perhaps they did not wish to scratch the ballots at the polls in the presence of so many people.

It might be interesting to know why Mr. Dobbin had to spend a dollar for court-plaster during his campaign.

Heart Strength

Heart Strength, or Heart Weakness, means Nerve Strength, or Nerve Weakness—nothing more. Positively, not one weak heart in a hundred is, in itself, actually diseased. It is almost always a hidden tiny little nerve that really is all at fault. This obscure nerve—the Cardiac, or Heart Nerve—simply needs, and must have, more power, more stability, more controlling, more governing strength. Without that the Heart must continue to fail, and the stomach and kidneys also have these same controlling nerves.

This clearly explains why, as a medicine, Dr. Shoop's Restorative has in the past done so much for weak and ailing Hearts. Dr. Shoop first sought the cause of all this painful, palpitating, suffocating heart distress. Dr. Shoop's Restorative—this popular prescription—is alone directed to these weak and wasting nerve centers. It builds! Strengthens; it offers real, genuine heart help.

If you would have strong Hearts, strong digestion, strengthen these nerves—Re-establish them as needed, with

Yesterday a well known citizen, a former market clerk, while out fishing, crossed the C. P. R. tracks a few miles from the city. Seeing something lying beside the tracks he got out and investigated. Here he found the dead body of one of those animals, the skins of which, when tanned and dressed, are sold at high prices by the furriers but which in plain English are called skunks. This pretty little, but loud smelling creature, had tried to cross the track just before a train went by and its head was lying at one side of a rail and the body at the other. Although the fur was in good shape, and of some value, the ex-market clerk did not stop to skin the animal. There was a reason!!

Schools Must Have Fire Escapes

A Toronto despatch says: The lesson of the recent Cleveland horror has not been lost upon the Ontario Education Department, and the Minister has sent circulars to all inspectors, questioning the officials to see that schools in their districts are properly equipped with fire escapes and that the doors open outwards. Fire Drills at Irregular Times

Editor Daily Times.

Dear Sir,—I was glad to see in your paper that the Central School children have had a fire drill and that the building was quickly emptied of the scholars. Still I do not think, in view of the recent terrible loss of life in a Cleveland school, that an occasional fire drill for the children is sufficient. There is reason to believe that even the teachers, or some of them, should not know that a fire drill might lose their nerve and forget to have the youngsters brought to safety in regular order. I think that the fire drill should be held at irregular times, so that children may get in the habit of performing their drill as second nature when called upon. The holding of fire drills at irregular periods would train the children for facing actual danger, far better than having such drills when they are expected. Any loss of time would be repaid a thousand fold if a fire ever does break out.

PATER.

Stanley Gorman was Acquitted

Yesterday morning in the County Crown Office before His Honor Judge Wood and a jury of Charles Burke, a matter involving a will case. The counsels were Mr. Wood on one side and Mr. Dumble on the other. A mutual agreement was stated.

Tom Stanley Gorman, a boy about 17 years of age, who had been committed for trial on the police magistrate, was charged with stealing $45 from D. McAllister and Wilbur C. Herron, then proprietors of the steamer Manasch. Mr. Gordon, acting for the prisoner, pleaded not guilty. Mr. Wood acted for the Crown.

Dan. McAllister, the first witness, said he and Mr. Harris owned the steamer Manasch. They came to the city on July 19th on the steamer. Witness was purser. He had money in a box in a locker in the bow of the boat. He did not see the box after he left the boat. He got back about two o'clock and a gentleman wanted a bill changed. The cash box was gone. The box was produced in court and identified.

Mr. McAllister, with assistance, did not know what the key of the box would fit or not.

Mr. Harris gave somewhat similar testimony, as did three friends of the prisoner named respectively, O'Toole, Sullivan and Downey.

After the testimony was all in County Crown Attorney Wood stated there was no case established. His Honor dismissed the charge.

Port Hope Assists Poor People

The Benevolent Society is dispensing aid to a great number of the needy ones of Port Hope, and it will be no doubt surprising to many of our citizens to learn of the expenditure which is made each week by this society for provisions.

At the first regular meeting of the Council, held Jan. 20th, a deputation from the Benevolent Society was present and informed the city fathers that they had been giving aid to the immigrants, and would like to know if the Council would reimburse the society for the same. The society at that time thought the expenditure would be about one hundred dollars per month and they were assured by the members that the Council would be responsible for all the expenditure made in this direction.

But on Friday afternoon the Benevolent Society meets and grants aid to a large list of needy ones. Speaking to Secretary Gray, on Saturday, the Guide representative learned that last week's orders amounted to nearly ninety dollars. The provisions consisted of seven and a half tons of coal, one cord of wood and twenty-five dollars in groceries. This, Mr. Gay says, is a weekly occurrence, so it will be readily seen that instead of the expenditure being one hundred dollars per month it is nearly four times as much. The private subscriptions received by the society is used for this purpose, but as the fund is not very large the town is likely to be saddled with a large bill before spring.—Port Hope Guide.

House to House Visitation Today

To-day the long talked of and thoroughly provided for religious census of the city will be taken between one and six o'clock. The arrangements were completed at the final meeting of the supervisors and visitors held yesterday evening at the Y. M. C. A. at eight o'clock, at which different instructions were given as to the methods of filling in the record cards and other forms. At the meeting Mr. Yellowlees was present and explained how the work has been done in other places. The meeting was well attended, and everything points towards a successful outcome for this afternoon's work.

Services Held at the House

A fair funeral service for the late Mrs Ewen Cameron was held last night at eight o'clock, conducted by Revs J. H. Roberts and H. Irwin. Suitable Scriptural passages were read, after which both the ministers referred to her modest and beautiful character. A favorite hymn of the deceased "Rock of Ages" was sung, after which the Rev. J. McFarlane, pastor of the Presbyterian, closed with the benediction.

The remains will be taken by G. T. R. 8.30 a.m. train to Brampton for interment. Services are to be conducted by Rev. John D. the M.A. pastor of St. Andrew's Church, Brampton, assisted by Revs. Wyle C. Clark, M.A., and A. Gandier, M.A., former pastors.

Light Breaks in

Thoughtful Farmer Learns About Coffee

Many people exist in a more or less lazy condition and it often takes years before they realize that coffee is the cause of the cloudiness, and that there is a simple way to let the light break in.

A worthy farmer had such an experience an diells about it in a letter. He says:—

"For about forty years, I have had indigestion and stomach trouble in various forms. During the last 25 years I would not more than get over one spell of bilious colic until another would be on me.

"The best doctors I could get and all the medicines I could buy, only gave me temporary relief.

"Change of climate was tried without results. I could not sleep nights, had rheumatism an dmy heart would palpitate at times so that it seemed it would jump out of my body.

"I came to the conclusion that there was no relief for me an dthat I was about wound up, when I saw a Postum advertisement. I had always been a coffee drinker, an dgot an idea from the ad that may be coffee was the cause of my trouble.

"I began to drink Postum instead of coffee and in less than three weeks I felt like a new man. The rheumatism left me, and I have never had a spell of bilious colic since.

"My appetite is good, my digestion never was better and I can do more work than before for 40 years.

"I haven't tasted coffee since I began with Postum. My wife makes it according to directions and I relish it as well as I ever did coffee, and I was certainly a slave to coffee." There's a Reason."

It builds up the run-down system as no other tonic can in which alcohol is used. The active medicinal principles of native roots such as Golden Seal and Queen's root, Stone and Mandrake root, Bloodroot and Black Cherrybark are extracted and preserved by the use of chemically pure, triple-refined glycerine. Send to Dr. R. V. Pierce at Buffalo, N. Y., for free booklet which quotes extracts from well-recognized medical authorities such as Drs. Bartholow, King, Scudder, Coe, Ellingwood and a host of others, showing that these roots can be depended upon for their curative action in all weak states of the stomach, accompanied by indigestion or dyspepsia as well as in all bilious or liver complaints and in all "wasting diseases" where there is loss of flesh and gradual running down of the strength and system.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" makes rich pure blood and so invigorates and regulates the stomach, liver and bowels, that through them, the whole system, thus all skin affections, blotches, pimples and eruptions as well as scrofulous swellings and old open running sores or ulcers are cured and healed. In treating old running sores, or ulcers, it is well to insure their healing to apply to them Dr. Pierce's All-Healing Salve. If your druggist don't happen to have this Salve in stock, send fifty-four cents in postage stamps to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., and a large box of the "All-Healing Salve" will reach you by return post.

You can't afford to accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this non-alcoholic medicine of KNOWN COMPOSITION, not even though the urgent dealer may thereby make a little bigger profit.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules, easy to take as candy.

The property is situated at Mancos, Colo., and consists of 160 acres, fully paid for. The Company expects to secure at least 400 acres or more, we are negotiating for it now and the terms are satisfactory and there is coal on the same, and they also intend to secure some Coal Mines of which they have the refusal. Some of the best coal mines in Colorado are in this district, as well as some of the richest gold and silver mines. In fact this is one of the richest parts for mineral in the State of Colorado, and the Company has the refusal to several prospects on reasonable and easy terms.

In our opinion the prospects of the Company are very bright, and a rapid advance in the price of the stock is sure to take place in the near future. Full information can be had by calling at our office.

HARRY ORCHARD PLEADS GUILTY OF BASE MURDER

Former Canadian, Whose Story of His Part as a Paid Assassin Shooked the World, Surprises Everyone by Persisting in Facing Extreme Punishment

Caldwell, Idaho, March 11.—Albert Horsely, better known as "Harry Orchard," yesterday before Judge Fremont Wood, in the district court, was allowed to withdraw his former plea of not guilty entered at his first arraignment, by order of the court, when he stood mute, and entered another plea of guilty to the charge of murder in the first degree, as charged in the indictment. Judge Wood will sentence Orchard on March 18th.

Orchard pleaded guilty to having killed former Governor Steunenberg by the explosion of a dynamite bomb at the side gate of his residence early in the evening of Dec. 30th, 1905.

He was arrested for the crime on January 2nd, and in February confessed that he was hired to kill Steunenberg by William D. Haywood, Secretary; Charles H. Moyer, President, and George A. Pettibone, honorary member of the Western Federation of Miners.

Haywood and Pettibone were tried in Boise and set free. The case against Moyer was dismissed.

Judge Wood questioned Orchard as to whether he fully understood the status of the case, what it meant for him to plead guilty, and if he understood that to plead guilty to the charges in the indictment meant pleading guilty to the charge of first degree murder.

Perfectly calm, with no indication of any emotion in face or voice, Orchard disavowed that he had gone over the matter thoroughly with his attorneys, and had made up his mind definitely. Judge Wood allowed the plea to be changed and set date for sentence.

After the acquittal of Pettibone, the opinion was expressed in many quarters that Orchard would take advantage of every legal right he might have to obtain his own release or a light sentence.

The stand he took yesterday was a surprise to most persons, and his attorney says it was entirely voluntary on his part, and against the advice of many who had seen and talked with him.

Pleaded Guilty to Stealing Copper Wire from the C.G.E.

Yesterday morning Mr. Layfield, of the Canadian General Electric Co., called at the police station and gave particulars of several employees of the company, who were alleged to have stolen copper wire and other articles from their works. He accompanied the officers who went to make the arrests, to identify the goods.

It seems that Detective Picard, of Toronto, has been on a still hunt here for some days in this matter, and in consequence five men were yesterday morning arrested by P. C. Meharry and the detective. A quantity of the stolen property was recovered at the various houses of the thieves.

A special session of the police court was held at four o'clock in the afternoon, when four of the men pleaded guilty and were allowed to go on their own recognizances to appear Friday for sentence. The fifth man was remanded for trial on Friday.

Mr. Ward was 53 years of age, was born in Lanram county, Ireland, and came to Peterborough when eleven years of age. Twenty-seven years ago he married Florence Fitzner, who survives him. He was a member of the C. M. B. A. and of the Moulders' Union.

Besides his wife, seven daughters and one son are left to mourn his loss. The daughters are Misses Nellie, Lizzie, Monica, Loretta, Agnes, Florence and Madeline, and the son, Edward. The bereaved family have the heartfelt sympathy of the entire community in their great sorrow.

Interment will take place here. The bereaved family will have the sincere sympathy of their large circle of friends.

VARICOCELE CURED

Confined to His Home for Weeks.

"Heavy work, severe straining and evil habits in youth brought on a double varicocele. When I worked hard the aching would become severe and I was often laid up for a week at a time. My family physician told me an operation was my only hope—but I dreaded it. I tried several specialists, but soon found out all they wanted was my money. I commenced to look upon all doctors as little better than rogues. One day my boss asked me why I was off work so much and I told him my condition. He advised me to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, as he had taken treatment from them himself and knew they were square and skilful. I wrote them and got THE NEW METHOD TREATMENT. My progress was somewhat slow and during the first month's treatment I was somewhat discouraged. However, I continued treatment for three months longer and was rewarded with a complete cure. I could only earn $18 a week in a machine shop before treatment, now I am earning $33 and never lose a day. I wish all sufferers knew of your valuable treatment.

HON. H. R. EMMERSON MAY BE CHOSEN

Ottawa, March 11.—It is well within the possibilities that before long an important change may be made in the management of the Intercolonial. While no decision has been reached, the Cabinet is considering the question of putting the Government railway under a commission.

The commission, if the step is taken, will be a commission of one, to the commissioner will be handed over the management of the line and his position will be made one of exceptional security, as he will be on the same footing as the Auditor-General, removable only by address of both Houses of Parliament.

Furthermore, there is a considerable probability of the commissioner being the Hon. H. R. Emmerson, lately Minister of Railways and Canals.

Farmers' Bank Manager at Southampton Commits Suicide?

H. L. Pratt Shoots Himself Dead--Was 35 Years Old

Found Dead On Track

Southampton, Ont., March 11. — H. L. Pratt, manager of the branches of the Farmers' Bank at Southampton and Allenford since February 1, 1907, was found dead on the railroad track about three-quarters of a mile from Allenford last night. He was shot through the roof of the mouth and his revolver was found beside him.

The Allenford branch of the bank is open on Tuesdays, Wednesdays, and Saturdays, and Mr. Pratt left Southampton on Tuesday morning and had dinner at Bebee's Hotel, where he stayed when at Allenford. He was seen at the hotel shortly after nine o'clock and later on the road to the station. The body was still warm when found.

Mr. Pratt was a quiet, clean living young man, and was doing well in business, and was popular around town.

A coroner's inquest is in progress. It looks like suicide, but no motive can be ascribed for the deed.

Deceased formerly worked for a Toronto bank. He is reported to have come from a good English family. He had a fine horse and rig and lived pretty well, but it is not known that he was short in his accounts.

Death of Mr. S. Staples of Cavan

Mr. Samuel Staples, one of the best known residents of the township of Cavan, where he has lived for nearly fifty years, has passed away at the age of eighty years. He was born in Cavan, but lived for a few years in Manvers, returning to the township of his birth some 40 years ago.

The late Mr. Staples was a Methodist in religion and a Conservative in politics. He is survived by his wife, to whom he was married fifty-six years on the 6th of this month, and three sons, Henry, Joseph and Fred., all of Cavan; also two daughters, Mrs. Moses Sutton, of Cavan, and Mrs. Purser, of Port Hope. One sister, Mrs. Richard Staples, of Cavan, and one brother, Mr. Richard Staples, of Souris, Man., also survive.

The funeral will take place to-morrow at two o'clock from the family residence to ninth concession cemetery.

320 Ladies Were Out Canvassing Yesterday

The committee in charge of the house to house visitation by the churches of the city, stated to the Times last night that nearly 320 ladies were occupied for nearly five hours yesterday afternoon canvassing the many homes, and in almost every house they were very cordially received. The committee are confident that by to-morrow night they will have the statistics ready for publication, as they have a large staff of assistants sorting the record cards.

Marriage Decree of Pope

Montreal, March 11.—An interesting question of law is raised by a decree of Pope Pius X. concerning marriage and agnosalia. The attitude of the Holy Father toward mixed marriages is even more drastic than that adopted by His Grace Archbishop Bruchesi. According to the Rome correspondent of the London Tablet, the most important point of the recent decisions of the decree concerns the validity of marriages contracted by parties of different religions, celebrated otherwise than before a duly accredited priest and two witnesses. After Easter, all such marriages will be declared invalid everywhere, except in Germany, for which, a special provision was made a few years ago.

Up to the present in America there has never been any question of the validity of the remarriage of a Catholic and a Protestant by a Protestant clergyman. While the Catholic Church disapproved of such marriages, it declared them illicit an dcondemned the Catholic party to spiritual penalties, such marriages have always been regarded as valid. According to the Tablet correspondent, who is generally very well informed on such subjects, the Catholic Church is disposed to go even further, and to declare such marriages invalid. In other words, a Catholic and a Protestant married by anybody else, but a duly accredited priest of the Catholic Church in the presence of two witnesses will be regarded as not having been married at all.

WHAT CIVIL CODE SAYS.

The article of the Civil Code upon which the ecourts have based their decisions that the rules of a church in marriages are binding is Art. 127 of the Civil Code of the Province:—"127—The other impediments recognised according to the different religious persuasions, as resulting from relationship or affinity or from other causes, remain subject to the rules hitherto followed in the different churches and religious communities. The right, likewise, of granting dispensations from such impediments appertains, as heretofore, to those who have hitherto enjoyed it."

The lawyers declare, however, that should the interpretation which the Tablet correspondent puts upon the decree coming into force at Easter prevail, it cannot affect the civil status of the parties contracting such marriage. While the church rules affect the parties adhering to the churches, they cannot affect others, and, therefore, when a Protestant and a Catholic marry before any other than a duly accredited priest, of the Catholic Church, the union, while it may not be regarded as a marriage by the Catholic Church, will still receive the sanction of the civil law of the Province of Quebec, and still more so of the other provinces of the Dominion.

His Grace Archbishop Bruchesi was seen with regard to the statement sent from Rome by the Tablet correspondent. "The question is at present under consideration at Rome," he declared, "We have not, as yet received any official communication on the subject. Whether Canada shall be included under the same arrangement as Germany remains to be decided. I can say nothing, on the subject at the moment, until the decision of the Congregation of the Council is made known."

Proceeds will go to Children's Aid

Mr. Edwards, proprietor of the "Crystal," has decided to add to his former generous deed, by giving another high class entertainment this afternoon for the benefit of the Children's Aid Society. This is the second time Mr. Edwards has placed the proceeds of his house, gratis, at the disposal of this, one of Peterborough's most commendable charities, and his magnanimity will be appreciated by the community at large.

When your food does not seem to give you strength stop eating promiscuously for a few days, take a dish of Grape-Nuts and cream for breakfast, eat slowly and note the way you can work all the forenoon without that "faint" feeling.

Grape-Nuts, made from wheat and barley, contains the phosphates which the miller of white flour throws out for that part makes dark flour, but these phosphates are necessary to the rebuilding of brain and nerve cells. You get nature's food not drugs, in Grape-Nuts.

"There's a Reason"

POLICE

At yesterday's police court a boy charged an old gentleman named Redmond, who has been in the police court on a similar charge before, with keeping a vicious dog, and showed a wounded wrist that the dog had bitten. The complainant and another boy testified that the dog had bitten the boy without provocation. Dr. Young and the caretaker of the city building also gave evidence as to the vicious character of the lanky yellow cur kept by Redmond. Dr. Young had seen the brute attack the complainant, and had with difficulty beaten it off with a stick.

The old man Redmond went into the witness box and said boys threw stones and snowballs at his dog. The dog is faithful, and tries to make friends with people.

"Why, Mr. Redmond, does the dog bark at people and try to snap at people to make friends?" asked the magistrate.

"Yes, Sir, but I will send the dog away to Chicago to my boy."

"Oh, Mr. Redmond, no one in Chicago wants a yellow dog like yours; besides it would cost more than the dog is worth."

"I don't care," the old man said, "I would pay $100 sooner than have the dog hurt."

The magistrate said that whilst Mr. Redmond might be fond of his dog, people cannot harbor a dog that flies at passers-by or bites people. He ordered the dog shot within three days.

"Can't I send the dog to my son in Chicago?" asked Redmond.

The magistrate replied: "Well, the police will not shoot it for three days, and if they can't find it, then of course, they will no doubt."

Redmond took his hint and left. As he was passing through the police station a reporter on one of the evening local papers happened to say something about strychnine being good for such dogs, and the old man happening to hear the remark, snapped forth, "You better take some strychnine yourself, it would do you all good."

Strong Cruiser Squadron Will Be Stationed off B.C.

Victoria, March 11. — A despatch from London says that the armoured cruisers Euyalus, Hogue, and Cressy, of the fourth cruiser squadron, now at Bermuda, will proceed at the end of the month to the Pacific Coast. This confirms the reports of a couple of months ago to the same effect, which also stated that these cruisers would be reinforced by the four protected cruisers to be commissioned from the reserve at Portsmouth and Sheerness. The despatch states further that the British Government and the Admiralty have consented with the greatest reluctance to this depletion of the available cruisers in home waters already characterized by the extreme naval school as a dangerous strategic weakness, but that the disturbing turn of events in the Pacific make it absolutely necessary that the China squadron be reinforced by a strong fleet of observation on the North American Pacific coast.

Proof

That Zam-Buk Grows New Healthy Skin

The unique power belonging to Zam-Buk for growing new healthy skin when it has been destroyed by injury, disease or operation is illustrated by the recent experience of Mr. J. Schofield, of 467 Hamilton Road, London, Ont. He says: "A friend of mine (Mr. William Ball, of London,) was severely and terribly burned through an explosion of kerosene oil. He was taken to the hospital, where he suffered intense pain. The wounds refused to heal, and the doctors decided to resort to skin grafting, and I consented to have some skin transplanted from my legs to his body. Although this was done on several occasions, the skin refused "to take" until Mr. Ball heard of Zam-Buk. From the time he applied Zam-Buk, new healthy skin began to grow. I then used Zam-Buk for the places on my leg from which the skin was removed, and I am glad to report that new skin has grown, and therefore consider Zam-Buk the best skin food I have known."

Zam-Buk builds up new tissue in a way that is not possible with ordinary preparations. For healing eczema, running sores, cuts, bruises, burns, boils, eruptions, scalp sores, itch, chapped hands and diseases of the skin it is without equal. All druggists and stores sell it, 50c. a box or post-paid from the Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

A Good Proposition

Elsewhere in this paper appears an advertisement of the Canada Southern Oil and Gas Co., Ltd., whose head office is at Tilbury, Ont., offering for sale shares in the said company at seventy-five cents per share the par value being one dollar per share. This we may say is a good conservative investment, as all other companies engaged in the manufacturing of oil, obtained from the Tilbury fields, are already paying big dividends to shareholders.

Their offer makes it possible for you to obtain from 10 to 25 per cent. on your savings by investment in this company where your bank is paying you only 3 per cent., which means a large increase to your savings as the stock is bound to double in value within a year.

The directors of the company are men of high financial standing in Ontario, and they state that the cost of management will not exceed $2,500 a year, making an investment a investment a paying proposition.

Scarlet Fever Patients Isolated

The Board of Health has been notified by the Medical Health Officer verbally that he had visited the Barnardo Home, and that the four scarlet fever patients were isolated. There was no danger from the children going out from the Home or in others coming into it. It was decided to ask the city to provide an isolation hospital. The sanitary inspector reported that he had examined 460 George street and 217 Charlotte street and recommended that they be connected with the sewer.

"Death by Suicide Whilst Temporarily Deranged"

Coroner's Inquest on the Body of Louise Howell

Was Held Yesterday

Yesterday morning at 11 o'clock Dr. Clay, the coroner, held an inquest on the body of the unfortunate woman, Louise Howells, who committed suicide in her rooms, situated from the alley back of McCollum & Lee's livery barns. The chief of police called the names of the jury that had been called, and the following were present: A. Laidlaw, W. A. Bell, D. Drummond, W. T. Iler, W. H. Stroud, Geo. Ball, Ed. Campbell, H. Stenson, R. Turner, W. J. Oke, Jas. Conn, I. W. E. Leech, Isaac Richardson, W. H. White.

Mr. George Ball was nominated as foreman, and unanimously elected and sworn in, after which the remainder of the jurymen were sworn in, seven at a time.

The coroner then explained how and why the jury had been called, namely, to investigate the cause of death of the late Mrs. Howells. Dr. Gray ordered every one out of the kitchen, where the jury sat, excepting the actual members of the jury and the reporters.

The chief called attention to the presence of the man Austen, who had been living with Mrs. Howells. The coroner then ordered him out. After this the jury went into the bedroom that had been securely fastened by the police with a heap padlock and staple, and viewed the body which lay, partly dressed, on a bed. The coroner addressed the jury and said that there were suspicious circumstances, in that this is the second woman alleged to have committed suicide in the same room within three months. This, he said, was peculiar, and must be investigated. He said that the deceased might or might not have taken carbolic acid herself. He had asked Dr. Carmichael on Tuesday night how the woman had died, whether by carbolic acid or not, and the doctor had replied that he did not know, unless a post-mortem were held. The body showed evident vigor mortis. The only way to ascertain the actual cause was by a post-mortem. He thought such should be made in the public interest and in the interests of those occupying the building. If thought two medical men should be appointed as one had to make the examination and the other take the notes and remarks.

It was then moved by Mr. W. H. White that a post-mortem be held, seconded by Mr. Lillie. The motion was lost by a vote of 7 to 5.

Dr. Carmichael was then telephoned for, and on arrival produced an 8-ounce bottle that had contained carbolic acid, found in the room of the deceased. It had been purchased by the deceased on Tuesday at McDermott & Jury's and duly signed for. He had gone to the woman's rooms on Tuesday evening, having been called by 'phone. On his arrival the woman was just breathing. He had given her some medicine a short time before. He said that last Friday he had told her if she did not improve in health he would send her to the hospital. It is not known whether she took the carbolic acid herself. He thought she had, but would not swear so. There was an appearance about her mouth as of marks of carbolic acid. One could not take a bottle full of acid the size of bottle produced, in fact not a tablespoonful. Carbolic acid has a somewhat sweet taste when mixed with water. When Austen came home he said the woman had been purged and was suffering pain. Her name was in the book at McDermott & Jury's. When she came home about the first of February Mrs. Howells said she could not sleep and that the police were after her. He gave her bromides then. He had advised her to go to her sons. It is his opinion she took carbolic acid herself, as she once went to the river to commit suicide. He had done some professional work for her when she was at John Craig's, and she often said she would commit suicide if it were not for a hereafter.

The inquest then adjourned to meet at three o'clock in the Council Chamber.

Dr. McClelland was the first witness at the afternoon session. He said that he was called to see the deceased shortly before 6 p.m. She was then alive. There was no one there but a man he took to be her husband. The deceased was lying crossway across the bed on her back in a comatose condition. She had evidently taken a narcotic poison. After a long search he found an empty eight-ounce bottle marked carbolic acid. Bottle produced in court. There was a large cup on the washstand near the bed, which was half full of an oily fluid smelling of carbolic acid, but not of the characteristic color. The deceased was alive when he arrived, and he did not stop till her death.

Dr. Carmichael next gave evidence practically the same as he had given at the morning session.

Mr. McDermott, the George street druggist, testified that the deceased had come to his upper store about 1.30 and bought an eight ounce bottle of carbolic acid, the pure article. She said she wanted it for a wash and signed the book in legal form to this effect. The witness then gave expert evidence as to the usual method of mixing water and the acid with the quantities sufficient to produce death, etc.

William Austen said he had been living with the deceased for some time. They moved into their present premises shortly before Christmas. He saw the deceased between 12 noon and one o'clock when she seemed all right. When he went home about 5.30 Tuesday evening he smelt carbolic acid, and opened the woman's bedroom door to ascertain where the smell came from. She was lying on the bed with her eyes closed and she was breathing heavily. He at once got a man to telephone the police and sent for Dr. Carmichael. About a month ago she took about three-quarters of an ounce of laudanum. She gave no reason for doing this. She had not been in her right mind for some time.

Foreman Ball then spoke somewhat sharply to Austen about his mode of life, and said living with the deceased as she seemed to have done was a disgrace to the city.

The jury then considered their verdict. A unanimous verdict was rendered as follows: "That Louise Howells came to her death by suicide whilst temporarily deranged."

The jury was then discharged.

Loses a Leg by Falling Under Car

Yesterday morning about 2 o'clock a badly injured man by the name of J. W. Bryans, a prominent business man of Havelock, was brought to the city per C. P. R. It seems that the evening preceding, whilst returning home from this city, per C.P.R., Bryans, on arriving at Norwood, ran off the train to speak to Mr. T. Smith on the platform. The train began to pull out, and he ran to catch the car, but missed his grip on the hand rail and fell between the moving train and the platform. The truck of the last car passed over his right leg above the knee. The limb was not completely severed, but badly mangled. He was carried to the McGregor House, where Dr. Pringrew and Wilson dressed the injury. Dr. Holdcroft, of Havelock, was also called. It was decided to have the injured man removed to Nicholls Hospital, and consequently he was brought to the city on an extra freight and taken there on the ambulance where Dr. Young, assisted by Drs. Wilson and Holdcroft, who had telephoned the local physician, amputated the limb at the thigh.

Of Interest To Women.

To such women as are not seriously out of health, but who have exacting duties to perform, either in the way of household cares or in social duties and functions which seriously tax their strength, as well as to nursing mothers, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has proved a most valuable supporting tonic and invigorating nervine. By its timely use, much serious sickness and suffering may be avoided. The operating table and the surgeons' knife, would, it is believed, seldom have to be employed if this most valuable woman's remedy were resorted to in good time. The "Favorite Prescription" has proven a great boon to expectant mothers by preparing the system for the coming of baby, thereby rendering childbirth safe, easy, and almost painless.

Bear in mind, please that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is not a secret or patent medicine, against which the most intelligent people are quite naturally averse, because of the uncertainty as to their composition and harmless character, but is a MEDICINE OF KNOWN COMPOSITION, a full list of all its ingredients being printed, in plain English, on every bottle-wrapper. An examination of this list of ingredients will disclose the fact that it is non-alcoholic in its composition, chemically pure, triple-refined glycerine taking the place of the commonly used alcohol, in its make-up. In this connection it may not be out of place to state that the "Favorite Prescription" of Dr. Pierce is the only medicine put up for the cure of woman's peculiar weaknesses and ailments, and sold through druggists, all the ingredients of which have the unanimous endorsement of all the leading medical writers and teachers of all the several schools of practice, and that too as remedies for the ailments for which "Favorite Prescription" is recommended.

A little book of these endorsements will be sent to any address, post-paid, and absolutely free if you request same by postal card, or letter, of Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. Constipation is the cause of many diseases. Cure the cause and you cure the disease. Easy to take as candy.

Notes of St. John's Church Mission

Salisbury Lloyd, the Welsh evangelist, arrived at noon yesterday to commence his work in connection with St. John's mission.

A meeting of the street workers was held in the school house yesterday evening.

To-morrow evening a mass meeting for men will be held. Addresses will be given by E. J. B. Pense, M.P.P., and Mr. Boyle, M.P.P. All men are invited. The meeting promises to be a very interesting one.

The music supplied by Mr. Gilddon's orchestra for accompaniment of the hymns is one of the features of the present services.

A DISCOVERY OF GREAT VALUE

Because a Cure Was Found for Inflammatory Rheumatism.

There are many types of rheumatism, but none worse than inflammatory.

It was this kind that almost killed Mrs. Edw. Warman, of Kent Jct., N. S.

Every known remedy also tried, different doctors gave their advice, but the disease increased.

Weak and despairing, she was at her wits' end when the remarkable cure of Thos. Cullen was published. This gentleman was cured of rheumatism by "Ferrozone." Consequently Mrs. Warman used the same remedy. Here is her statement;

"For years I have been rheumatic. I tried various forms of relief without success. The disease increased, settled in my joints and muscles; these swelled, caused excruciating pain and kept me from sleeping. My limbs and arms stiffened, my shoulders were numbed and prevented me from working. Week by week I was losing strength and despaired of finding a cure. It was a happy day I heard of Ferrozone. Every day I took Ferrozone I felt better, it eased the painful joints, gave me energy and a feeling of new life. Ferrozone cured my rheumatism, sure. Even damp weather no longer affects me."

Ferrozone has power to destroy Uric acid, neutralise and enrich the blood, and therefore does cure the worst cases. Mrs Warman's statement proves this.

By removing the cause of the disease and building up a reserve of energy Ferrozone is certain to cure. Different, isn't it about time to stop experimenting? Ferrozone is a cure. We guarantee this. Sold by all dealers, 50c per box or six boxes for $2.50. Remember the name—"Ferrozone."

THE INTERCOLONIAL AND EASTERN RIALROADS

The Minister of Railways recently made an important proposition to the House of Commons, suggesting in furtherance of the transportation interests of Canada, "that the sphere of influence Dominion, "that the sphere of influence of the International Railway as a Government operated railway should be widened and extended by securing, by lease or otherwise, such of the branch lines of railway now connecting with the Intercolonial as will serve as direct and profitable feeders of the traffic of said railway, and by providing for the extension of the Government operation of said railway to industrial centres in Western Canada, and to a point, or points on the Great Lakes of Canada, either by the construction of an extension of the same to such points, or by securing such running rights over existing lines thereto as will enable the Intercolonial Railway to extend its transportation facilities westwardly, with a view to stimulating and promoting internal and interprovincial traffic and facilitating the import and export trade of the Dominion through Canadian channels."

It will be remembered that a few weeks ago we directed attention to an opinion expressed in an English financial journal upon this "intention" of the Dominion Government. How far the suggestion made then was true, that this might mean overloading the I.C.R. with undesirable and unremunerative branch lines, we are not at present prepared to say. Doubtless those who understand the situation will see that it is thoroughly discussed in Parliament. A published report of his speech, notes that "Mr. Emmerson gave a list of branch lines in Quebec, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, which had been heavily subsidized by the Dominion and the Province. There was no section supplied by any of these branch lines which was not capable of greater and still greater development. The motion did not mean an addition to the public debt. The C. P. R. and G. T. R. had absorbed branches by way of leasehold. It was equally important that the I. C. R. should have control of the territory, which might be within the sphere of influence. He was not discussing politics, but the I. C. R. as a business proposition. The absorption of the branch lines would help the I. C. R. fulfil its mission."

There is no doubt that the adoption of this policy would immensely increase the patronage of the Government. Presumably also the bonds and other obligations of the branch lines would be taken over assumed by the country at large.

OUR TIMBER SUPPLY.

Need For Protection and Proper Treatment of Canadian Forests.

France is one of the greatest timber importing countries of Europe. Over $20,000,000 were paid in 1906 by this country for wood brought in from other countries, American and European.

This includes over $20,000,000 worth of wood (mostly pine) used for building purposes, and $500,000 for mine props alone. The great amount of wood used for paper pulp and a few minor purposes brings the total up to the thirty million dollars.

On this timber another $10,000,000 was paid in freight—mostly to other countries, for the French flag is flown by only about ten per cent. of the ships in which this wood is carried. And import duties claim another sum of $6,000,000.

The quantity of wood exported from France, on the other hand, in 1906, did not amount to more than $16,400,000.

Yet the forests of France are by no means small. They cover an area of over 23,500,000 acres. Of this a little over a ninth (2,707,000 acres) is in the hands of the state, and is very carefully managed. Over a seventh of the area (3,472,000 acres) is under the control of the departments and communes and is not so carefully looked after. The rest is in private hands and often large tracts are sold to speculators and recklessly cut, everything of value being taken off them.

This state of affairs demonstrates the wisdom of the course pursued in almost the whole of Canada, namely, keeping the ownership of the forests in the hands of the crown, so that the Dominion and the different Provincial Governments may have the power to make regulations for the cutting, with the result that practically all of the forests may be so treated as to give continuous crops of wood and become a permanent asset of the people.

Canada at present is one of the few countries in the world that can export timber, having a surplus over that required for its own use. Such a surplus is a most valuable asset, and promises—far from decreasing in value—to increase rapidly and greatly in years to come, owing to the growing scarcity of wood.

It is for this country, therefore, to exercise great care both in protecting the timber it has and in providing for future supplies from the same ground. This will require the employment of a large number of men, many of them possessing a high degree of technical and scientific training. It is gratifying to note that already some steps have been taken to care for our timber and provide a staff of trained men to look after it. Much more remains to be done, and it is for the people of Canada to see that arrangements are made for the proper care of one of her most valuable resources.

LIKE FEAST OF THE WOLF.

Quebec Celebration Causes Friction In Eastern Province.

There is still a good deal of friction at Quebec over the participation of outsiders in the coming celebration. It is only just to say, however, that the following article from La Verite reflects the opinion of a very small portion of the population of the ancient capital.

La Verite claims that it will not be a Catholic celebration in August next, as the good people of Quebec expected, but the celebration of Canada as a whole. It is not the foundation of Quebec by the French, no; they want to celebrate the capture of the city by the English. It is not, so it appears, the three hundredth anniversary of the planting of the cross and the flag of our ancestors on Cape Diamond, but instead the 149th anniversary of the defeat of our heroes by the English troops.

"We wished to celebrate the commencement of our history, but they will instead celebrate the beginning of British domination in this country. The symbol which they propose to acclaim is the angel of peace, but to what peace do they refer. If it is the peace that the generosity of our people caused to reign around Quebec, so much the better, but it is the more extended peace which they are going to commemorate. It is the peace following the abolition of the French language in several of the provinces. It is the peace following the destruction of Catholic schools in New Brunswick, in Manitoba, in Alberta and Saskatchewan.

"In a word it is the peace which reigns after the wolf has eaten the lamb and sleeps after his bloody repast."

Preserving Niagara Falls.

Persistent efforts are to be made in Congress at Washington to prevent the re-enactment of what is known as the Burton law, passed in 1906, governing the disposition of the waters of the Niagara Falls. The object of the enactment was to conserve the waters of the falls against the encroachment of commercial enterprises. It was destined, as a purely temporary measure, to be supplanted by a general convention or treaty on this subject between the United States and Canada which is intended to cover also the disposition of other waters forming a boundary line between the two countries.

The Burton law expires in less than a year and a half. Those opposing its re-enactment for ten years, as is proposed in some quarters, declare this is a distinct advantage to the Canadians, who because such a large portion of the falls are on the Canadian side of the river, are content to let existing conditions remain, in preference to agreeing to a treaty which will restrict the privileges they now enjoy. The International Waterways Commission, which is made up of members from the United States and Canada, has turned in a mass of information on the whole question, which has been laid before the two Governments for their consideration. The United States Government is anxious that some disposition shall be reached in the whole matter, and that at an early date. It wants a treaty prepared and ratified at this session of Congress, if possible.

Paris, March 6.—A remarkable feat has been accomplished by Mme. Ryes Arbeau, who in ten afternoons played by heart the sixty-five piano compositions which compose Chopin's works. On the tenth day crowds invaded the Salle Pleyel, the larger portion of the would-be listeners being turned away. Mme. Ryes Arbeau claims she could also play the works of Beethoven, Schumann and Liszt in the same way without the score.

"Done to a turn" is said to have originated from the martyrdom of St. Lawrence. He was sentenced to be roasted alive on a gridiron. DANTE'S HUMOR.

It Is of the Wholly Unconscious Kind and Woefully Grim.

The humorous side of Dante is analyzed in the Westminster Review by George Trobridge, who is a great admirer of the famous poet and who has in previous writings expressed his appreciation of Dante as a nature poet and as a novelist.

Although Dante's great poem is a "comedy," in the sense of being a drama working to a happy ending, we do not look for ridiculous situations in it, such as we usually associate with the idea of comedy. Ridiculous situations occur nevertheless, and there is no lack of humor even in the poet's description of the sufferings of the lost. Dante's humor, however, is of the unconscious kind, arising from a total lack of perception of the ludicrous. It is said that he was never seen to smile, and we can quite believe it, since he never forsakes sober seriousness in his writings, and it is his deadly earnestness that betrays him into occasional comicality.

The sinners in hell, the poet tells us, are relegated to their proper quarters on the judgment of Minos, who indicates the particular circle to which the culprit is consigned by wrapping his tail so many times around his bestial body. Fancy the trembling sinner waiting to count the coils that he may know his fate!

It is a horrible punishment which is assigned to those guilty of simony, to be buried head downward in a circular pit, with only the legs and feet protruding, while flickering flames glide over the soles of the latter, inflicting exquisite torture, yet our sense of humor is provoked by the description of Dante standing over one of these holes and holding a conversation with its occupant, "reversed, and as a stake driven in the soil," while numberless legs wriggle in continual motion around him.

Fish Spearing by Firelight.

In the sunny south in the blue waters of the Mediterranean one may frequently behold the strange sight of fishermen reaping a rich harvest with the aid of a long forklike instrument, which is used in place of a net. There the ancient "peche aux flambeaux," a singular custom of fishing at night by the light of a blazing fire, still exists, enabling hundreds of hardy toilers of the deep to gain a livelihood.—Wide World Magazine.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

Any even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Application for entry must be made in person by the applicant at a Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-agency for the district in which the land is situate. Entry by proxy may, however, be made at an Agency on certain conditions by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

The Homesteader is required to perform the homestead duties under one of the following plans:

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) A homesteader may, if he so desires, perform the required residence duties by living on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of his homestead. Joint ownership in land will not meet this requirement.

(3) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of a homesteader has permanent residence on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of a homestead, or upon a homestead entered for by him in the vicinity, such homesteader may perform his own residence duties by living with the father or mother.

(4) The term "vicinity" in the two preceding paragraphs is defined as meaning not more than nine miles in a direct line exclusive of the width of road allowances crossed in the measurement.

(5) A homesteader intending to perform his residence duties in accordance with the above while living with parents or on farming land owned by himself must notify the agent for the district of such intention.

Six months notice in writing must be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa, of intention to apply for patent.

Capital, $250,000.00 1,000,000 Shares 25c. each.

Modest Capitalization Large Coal Reserves

This Company organized under the laws of the Northwest Territories of Canada, owns and operates the Galbraith mine located at Lundbreck, Alta. They have four vertical seams of coal traversing their property, aggregating over 40 feet in thickness. Three of these seams are developed to a depth of 350 feet, and as they pass through the Company's lands for nearly a mile, some idea of the amount of coal may be had

Shipping Steadily

The present output of the mine is about 200 tons per day. These shipments will be rapidly increased, as the C.P.R. allows its cars to be loaded with coal for points in the U. S.

We are selling a limited number of these shares at the extremely low price of

in blocks of 100 or over. Tight money in the States makes it possible for us to give this unprecedented offer in stock that will be paying dividends inside of six months, and you are sure to realize a handsome profit.

Have secured a block of the

Calumet, Mancos' Oil and Mining Company's Stock

Par value $1.00

What they offer at 25c per Share for a short time

The property is situated at Mancos, Colo., and consists of 160 acres, fully paid for. The Company expects to secure at least 400 acres or more, we are negotiating for it now and the terms are satisfactory and there is coal on the same, and they also intend to secure some Coal Mines of which they have the refusal. Some of the best coal mines in Colorado are in this district, as well as some of the richest gold and silver mines. In fact this is one of the richest parts for mineral in the State of Colorado, and the Company has the refusal to several prospects on reasonable and easy terms.

In our opinion the prospects of the Company are very bright, and a rapid advance in the price of the stock is sure to take place in the near future. Full information can be had by calling at our office.

Made It Clear.

When Colonel Edmund Rice was in command of the Twenty-sixth infantry (mostly volunteers from New England) in the Philippines, he organized from his regiment a company of mounted scouts. To equip them for this service he made requisition on headquarters for the necessary outfit, including eighty nosebags. Some officious clerk in the quartermaster's office in Manila returned the requisition to Colonel Rice with these written remarks: "Your report shows but sixty men in your mounted company. Why do you require eighty nosebags?"

The colonel's explanation was short and characteristic. It was: "It is true I have but sixty men, but I have eighty horses. The nosebags are for the horses, not for the men."

Inoculation For Smallpox.

Lady Mary Wortley Montagu is generally credited with having introduced inoculation into England from Turkey. In 1718 she had her son inoculated at Adrianople with success. She was allowed to have it tried in England on seven condemned criminals in 1721, and in 1722 two members of the royal family were inoculated. The practice was bitterly opposed by the clergy until 1700. A Dr. Mead practiced inoculation with success up to 1754, and Dr. Dunsdale of London inoculated Catherine II. of Russia in 1768. Vaccine inoculation was introduced by Dr. Jenner in 1709.

The Moors of Today.

The Moors of today are the descendants of those who conquered Spain, who were practically paramount in the southern portion for two centuries and relics of whose wonderful buildings are to be found at the present day in that country. Indeed, it is strange to consider the position of the Moors of today when we see the work of their hands in past centuries, and the only explanation lies in the fact that they are unable to adapt themselves to modern conditions.

CONTINUED.

"I shall never see you in trouble, Hurd," said Paul, with a sigh.

"Oh, that's all right! The widow, by the advice of Pash, has doubled the reward. One thousand pounds it is now—worth winning, eh?"

"Humph!" said Paul moodily. "I shouldn't think she loved her husband so much as that."

Hurd's brown eyes shot a red flame which showed that he was excited, though he was cool enough externally. "Yes," he admitted in a careless manner, "she certainly does act the weeping widow in rather an exaggerated fashion. However, she's got the cash now, or at least her daughter has, which is the same thing. The two have taken up their quarters in a fashionable hotel in the west end and are looking for a house. The old woman manages everything, and she will be one too many for Mr. Hay."

"What? Does he know Mrs. Krill? He said he didn't."

"Quite right. He didn't when the ladies went first to Pash's office. But Hay, on the lookout for a rich wife, got Pash to introduce him to the ladies, who were charmed with him. He's making up to the daughter even in the few weeks that have elapsed and now is assisting them to find a house. The daughter loves him, I fancy, but whether the mother will allow the marriage to take place I can't say."

"Surely not on such a short acquaintance."

Hurd bent forward as about to say something, then changed his mind. "Really, I don't know—Hay is fascinating and handsome. Have you been to see him yet?"

"No. He asked me, but all these troubles have put him out of my head. Why do you ask?"

"Because next time he invites you, go."

"You warned me against him."

"And I warn you again," said the detective dryly. "Don't ask me to explain, for I can't. But you go to see Hay when he invites you and make yourself agreeable, especially to Mrs. Krill."

"Am I likely to meet her?" asked Paul, with repugnance.

"Yes, I fancy so. After all, you are engaged to the daughter of the dead man, and Mrs. Krill—I don't count Maud, who is a fool—is a decently clever woman. She will keep her eye on you and Miss Norman."

"Why? She has the money and need take no further notice."

Hurd closed one eye in a suggestive manner. "Mrs. Krill may not be so sure of the money, even though possession is nine points of the law. You remember that scrap of paper found by the maid?"

"In which Norman warned Sylvia against allowing his real name to become known? Yes."

"Well, the letter wasn't finished. The old man was interrupted, I suppose. But in the few lines of writing Norman says"—here Hurd took a scrap of paper, a copy, out of his book and read—"'If the name of Krill gets into the papers there will be great trouble. Keep it from the public. I can tell you where to find the reasons for this, as I have written'—and then," said Hurd, refolding the paper, "the writing ends. But you can see that Aaron Norman wrote out an account of his reasons, which could not be pleasant for Mrs. Krill to hear. Then, again, the request for the jewels to be delivered to that sailor chap was in Norman's handwriting and signed with his name."

"A forgery."

"No. Pash, who knows his writing better than any other man, says the document is genuine. Now, then, Mr. Beecot, what made Aaron Norman write and sign those lines giving up his property—or a part of it—just before his death?"

"It may have been done in good faith."

"No. If so, the messenger would not have cleared out when Pash started for Gwynne street. That nautical gent knew what the lawyer would find at the house and so made himself scarce after trying to get the jewels. This scrap of paper," Hurd touched his breast, "and that request for the jewels in Pash's possession—those are my clews."

"And the opal serpent?" asked Paul.

Hurd shook his head gloomily. "Its connection with the matter is beyond me," he confessed.

CHAPTER XIV.

THE detective was as good as his word. In a few days Paul was introduced to the editor of a weekly publication and obtained a commission for a story to be written in collaboration with Mr. Hurd. It seemed that the editor was an old acquaintance of Hurd's and had been extricated by him from some trouble connected with cards. The editor, to show his gratitude and because Hurd's experiences, thrown into the form of a story, could not fail to interest the public, was only too willing to make a liberal arrangement. Also Paul was permanently engaged to supply short stories, to read those that were submitted to the editor, and, in fact, he became that gentleman's right hand. He was a kind, beery bohemian of an editor, Scott by name, and took quite a fancy to Paul.

"I'll give you £3 a week," said Scott, beaming through his large spectacles and raking his long gray beard with tobacco stained fingers. "You can live on that, and to earn it you can give me your opinion on the stories. Then between whiles you can talk to Hurd and write this yarn, which I am sure will be interesting. Hurd has had some queer experiences."

"I'll give you £3 a week," said Scott.

"By the way," observed Hurd one day to Paul, "is your old schoolfellow, Hay, as friendly as ever?"

"Yes. Why, I can't understand, as he certainly will make no money out of me. He's giving a small dinner tomorrow night at his rooms and has asked me."

"You go," said the detective emphatically, "and don't let on you have anything to do with me."

"See here, Hurd, I won't play the spy, if you mean that."

"I don't mean anything of the sort," replied Hurd earnestly, "but if you do chance to meet Mrs. Krill at this dinner and if she does chance to drop a few words about her past you might let me know."

"Oh, I don't mind doing that," said Beecot, with relief. "I am as anxious to find out the truth about this murder as you are, if not more so. The truth, I take it, is to be found in Krill's past, before he took the name of Norman. Mrs. Krill will know of that past, and I'll try and learn all I can from her. But Hay has nothing to do with the crime, and I won't spy on him."

"Very good. Do what you like. But as to Hay having nothing to do with the matter, I still think Hay stole that opal brooch from you when you were knocked down."

"In that case Hay must know who killed Norman," cried Paul, excited.

"He just does," rejoined Hurd calmly. "And now you can understand another reason why I take such an interest in that gentleman."

"But you can't be certain?"

"Quite so. I am in the dark. But Hay is a dangerous man and would do anything to rake in the dollars. He

CATTLE SHIPPING.

How Animals Are Loaded on Board Vessels in Hawaii.

Afterward I was taken to Kawaihae, where I saw cattle loaded in a most cruel manner. It was a little after 6 o'clock when I landed on the beach among a lot of cowboys and half naked natives. The cattle were corralled under the trees, and when one was ready to be taken aboard a rope was tied about its horns. A cowboy on horseback then rode into the surf, dragging the frightened steer into the water. The rope was tossed to a half naked native who was swimming, and he in turn carried it to the men waiting in a small boat. These men pulled the animal, which must now swim or drown, to the boat and tied him by the horns to its side. After eight steers had been tied up in this manner the engine on the steamer was set to work and the boat pulled alongside by means of a rope. The cattle were then hoisted on board by the use of a bellyband. The method of handling these dumb animals is brutal, and, while the men seem to use as much care as possible in moving them about, their piteous bellowing caused by fear made as pathetic a scene as I have ever witnessed. Thousands are shipped every year, and it seems that some more humane method of putting them aboard might be adopted.

The Japanese sailor on these ships is said to be the best for keeping the ship clean, while the native excels in handling the boats, especially in rough water. The Hawaiian is a born swimmer, and native boys will follow these vessels for several hundred yards as they are leaving Honolulu, swimming alongside and diving for coins thrown overboard by the travelers. The passage on these boats is always rough, and on the Ewalani, as the ship lay at anchor out in the channel, the nights were intensely warm. Freighting in this way is necessarily expensive, but those in authority say that it is the only way practical, as no wharf could withstand the lashing of the waves caused by the mad fury of the winds during the winter. At that season it is often impossible to make landings along the rocky coast of Molokai.—Leslie's Weekly.

The Electro Magnet.

In engineering works the electro magnet is taking a very prominent place. This device dispenses with hooks, slings and other lifting apparatus. By throwing a switch controlling the current the magnet is energized and thereby attaches itself to the bars, castings, scrap or pig iron which it is desired to lift. The magnet poles are shaped according to the nature of the material to be raised. For heavy rails they are oblong and are slung from the crane hook by a short chain. Castings weighing over two tons are successfully handled by electro magnets. Another use to which the electro magnet is put is in breaking old castings so that they may be melted and utilized. To accomplish this the magnet is made to lift and drop a steel ball weighing from one to six tons.

Passing of a Famous Bridge.

At last the old bridge over the Golden Horn at Constantinople is about to be done away with and replaced by a new structure. An amusing tale is told in connection with the efforts of an American firm to secure the order. With a view to impressing the sultan with the quality of its work an elaborate painting was prepared for presentation to his majesty showing the bridge as it would appear during a storm which would have done credit to the Atlantic. However, the firm was informed that the sultan would be so horrified by its view that it at once prepared a picture showing the bridge as it would appear on a beautiful summer's day. Even this, however, Reuter says, failed to effect its purpose.

Whittier's Humor.

A story is told of Whittier which illustrates the character of his rumor. Two of his neighbors, an aged brother and sister, had accumulated a competency. He thought they were working harder than was necessary in view of their age and worldly accumulations and spoke of it.

"We must lay by something for our last sickness and have enough left to bury us," said the sister.

"Mary," replied Whittier, "did thee ever know any one in his last sickness to stick by the way for want of funds?"

Weak Women

To weak and ailing women, there is at least one way to help. Start with that way, two treatments, must be combined. One is local, one is constitutional, but both are important, both essential.

Dr. Shoop's Night Cure is the Local.

Dr. Shoop's Restorative, the Constitutional.

The former—Dr. Shoop's Night Cure—is a topical mucous membrane suppository remedy, while Dr. Shoop's Restorative is wholly an internal treatment. The Restorative reaches throughout the entire system, making the repair of all nerve, tissue, and blood ailments.

The "Night Cure", as its name implies, does its work while you sleep. It soothes sore and inflamed mucous surfaces, heals local weaknesses and discharges, while the Restorative, eases nervous excitement, gives newfound vigor and ambition, builds up wasted tissues, bringing about renewed strength, vigor, and energy. Take Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—as a general tonic to the system. For positive local help, use as well

"There's a Reason"

Gentle Laxative Needed for the Aged and Feeble

With the advance of years the vital functions of the body grow dull.

Wasting disease threatens.

Poisonous substance overcomes the system, the circulation is clogged with waste, the brain is filled with fog, the hands and feet grow numb with cold, the whole body twitches and trembles.

A drastic cathartic is dangerous.

Nothing will cure but a gentle laxative like Dr. Hamilton's Pills; their action not only stimulates the stomach, liver and kidneys, but is directed to the secretory glands, and increases their fluidity and volume.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills are different from other pills. Their activity in moving the alimentary apparatus is profound, but their action is so mild, so free from gripe that it seems scarcely possible that you have taken medicine at all. Yet they do their work efficiently, and this is why they are so widely prescribed for old folks who need a laxative and system tonic.

CURED BY DR. HAMILTON'S PILLS

Headache,	Constipation,
Biliousness,	Sallowness
Dizziness,	Colicky Bowels
Vertigo,	Dyspepsia,

A Guarantee in Each Case.

For your own sake, keep Dr. Hamilton's Pills within reach. Take them whenever you feel unwell; they clean out the entire system, keep it pure and in working order. NOW LISTEN!

Please read carefully what follows, and if you decide to take advantage of what the "Canada Southern Oil & Gas Co., Limited," of Tilbury, Ont (no personal liability), is now offering you, the result will be that instead of getting 3 per cent. for your savings, you will get at least from 10 to 25 per cent. that others are harvesting.

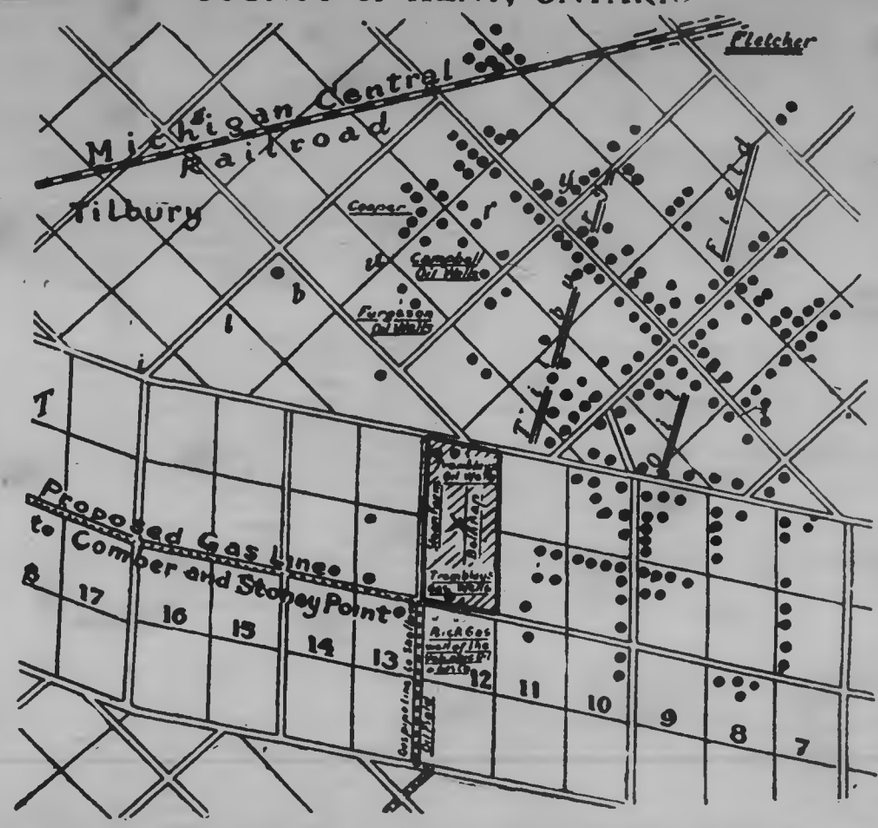
Your savings will be eight times more than the original amount by the mere fact of the higher rate of interest you will get.

Remember that this is no wildcat scheme, as you can see by the facts hereinafter mentioned.

Dr. Bell, the famous Canadian geologist, early in 1878 reported that there was an oil and gas field in the Townships of Tilbury and Romney County of Kent, Ont. As soon as the discovery of the oil was made in Tilbury in 1906, our American neighbors, who are experts in good things, did not hesitate to invest hundreds of thousands of dollars, and now, in fact, control the two thirds interest in our oil field of Tilbury; and this happened because we Canadians hesitated to invest a few thousand dollars in the exploration of the oil mines of Tilbury, which already give a monthly production valued at $75,000, without adding the revenue derived from the gas.

We have said that this is not a wildcat scheme, because the "Canadian Southern Oil & Gas Co., Limited," has secured an option at a very moderate price on properties situated in the oil and gas field of Tilbury, upon which three successful tests have been made, being Lot No. 12, M. R. N., Tilbury East, 200 acres, indicated with a cross upon the map of the field

COUNTY of KENT, ONTARIO



Three wells only have been drilled at an average depth of 1,400 feet.

The first one proves to be a rich gas well, the two others are good oil wells, combined with a strong production of gas.

The Company has also secured the franchises for the distribution and sale of natural gas into the Townships of Romney, Tilbury East, North and West and also into the thriving villages of Comber and Stoney Point.

The gas well is properly equipped and already is supplying the motor power to the Romney oil field and is getting one-third of the gross revenue of the gas sold.

The oil wells are completely equipped with one 15 h. p. gas engine, derrick, tanks, boiler, pumps, tubing, pipe-line, jerk-line, jack, etc., and are producing daily. The oil is sold to The Imperial Oil Company, Sarnia, and is delivered at the tanks and shipped through its pipe-line to Pere Marquette R. R. Station at Merlin, a distance of 8 miles.

Our properties are already giving daily a net revenue of about $35.00—that is to say, more than 10 per cent. of the whole capital stock of the Company.

This revenue may be made four times greater by the drilling of other wells and the construction of the gas-line to Comber and Stoney Point.

Fritz Cirkel, Esq., of Montreal, consulting mining engineer and mining expert to the Dominion Government, who lately made an inspection of the said property, concluded his report as follows:

"In summarizing the actual results already obtained from the operations of the Sloan wells the writer is forced to the conclusion that the property under consideration is a very valuable one. Located as it is in the western extremity of the producing Tilbury oil field, in close proximity to wells which produce from 40 to 60 barrels of oil (and even more) per day of 24 hours (I refer to the Ferguson, Campbell and Cooper properties, located about 2,000 feet distant to the north, see plan attached hereto), it bids fair to become a producer of oil and natural gas of no small measure.

The Tilbury field has already the reputation of being a large producer and powerful companies have entered the district with a view of securing properties of known and established value.

There is one factor to which I would like to draw your special attention and that is the future of natural gas. To-day, the market in that in that part of the country, for this commodity is not sufficiently large to dispose of all the gas the wells can produce but there is no question that in the near future factories will be established on central points, which will eventually consume for various purposes, especially for power, all the gas which can be produced in the field.

Besides this there are quite a number of towns and villages in the western part of the Niagara Peninsula, which may use the gas for heating, lighting, and also for power purposes and it is only a question of time when this will be realized.

The economy of the application of natural gas to power purposes is already evidenced all through the field, as coal or any other power cannot be regularly obtained, and that at high figures. Having therefore, a powerful gas well on the (Sloan) property, it is evident that a great saving is effected from this source alone; for instance, for the operation of ten oil wells, the cost of power required per day would amount to between twenty and twenty-five dollars, which, in 300 working days per year, would represent a saving of from six thousand to seven thousand five hundred dollars.

In conclusion, I may say that this property, with proper and economic management, can be made highly remunerative; I entertain, no doubt, that if properly developed, it will show similar results as those of so many other locations in the vicinity, whose developments have of so many other locations in the vicinity, whose developments have been so vigorously pushed in the past.

Respectfully submitted,
(Signed) FRITZ CIRKEL.

A Tenderloin Tragedy-- A Canadian Girl Dead

New York, March 12.—Mabel Rogers, one of thirteen children, left orphans out in Red River, Canada, who answered the call of the city at the age of fourteen, is dead. Mabel Rogers they called her. It sounded good and was easy to remember, but the old name was buried in a pauper's grave and "what's in a name" about Tenderloin? The prettiest girl on Broadway," they used to say of her, but drink, cocaine and opium did their work, and the Tenderloin killed Mabel Rogers at the age of twenty-three.

When she started downward the police courts knew her, but the efforts of magistrates and probation officers could not bring back the girl that Red River once knew. And then came the end. Too drugs had been too much, and it was the heart. She dropped dead on the threshold of one of the places where she had become so well known. The music never stopped; the singer finished his cheap sentimental song, "Take her some things like that hurt business."

Mrs Hattie Ross, the negro missionary, took up a collection and got enough to bury her properly. "The poor kid," said "Bill" Dwyer, as he slipped $5 into Mrs. Ross' hand. They took her down to an Eighth avenue undertaking establishment and many of the old-time friends came to see her.

The upholders of the high license by-law are anxiously awaiting to see what steps the hotelkeepers in town are going to take over the high license by-law to raise the license fee from $25y to $750. It was reported that they would try to quash the by-law on the grounds that the returning officers did not use standard time but it is likely that the matter has gone through.

Although all the hotelkeepers in town, three in number, have said that they would not take out licenses at the high rate as they could not make it pay, it is thought that one of them anyway will take them out.

The high license by-law comes in force on May 1st, but application for license must be made before April 1st.

COPPER IN SEABROOKE MINE.

The Seabrooks mine which was supposed to be a very valuable gold proposition, has turned out to be very rich in copper and it is very likely that it will be opened up in earnest in the spring by the Spears Canadian Mining Syndicate of Toronto. These mines which were worked some years ago for gold are situated about three miles east of here on the Marmora Road and cover a considerable amount of ground. They are owned by Messrs. John and Samuel Seabrooks, but it is reported that one of these men has sold out the majority in the mine. The Spears Mining Syndicate have an option on the mine and have been making extensive examinations of the mine, and as the report is most favourable, it is likely that a deal will go through. It is reported that the amount named in the option will put the Seabrooks Bros. on "easy street" as the mine is said to be very valuable in copper.

Visited the Schools and Made an Unexpected Fire Test

Yesterday morning the members of the Board of Education, with their usual progressive policy and marked interest in what affects the rising generation, both physically and mentally, made a practical test as to what would take place in case fire broke out in any of the local schools, the schools, two going to each school, and gave fire alarms at the respective buildings.

Dr. Morrison and Mr. Crane visited the South Central School, corner of Rubidge and Sherbrooke streets, at a few minutes past eleven. The two gongs of the school were sounded without previous notice. The lower rooms were emptied in 40 seconds and the upper in a minute and three-quarters.

At the West Ward there was no preparation for fire, the going being upstairs. There are no fire-escapes and if the retreat by the main stairway were cut off many lives would be lost. Dr. Morrison and Mr. Crane will recommend a change. The school was cleared in good time.

The pupils at the East Ward public school left the building in forty seconds after the fire alarm was sounded. None of the teachers or scholars had any knowledge that the efficiency of the fire drill was to be tested and the showing can be taken as a fair test. Trustee W. F. Nelson rang the fire bell. The pupils were all out of the building in forty seconds. The doors on the East Ward school open towards the inside, but will be changed at once to swing in the opposite direction.

The Central School was visited by Messrs. Fair, chairman of the Board and W. H. Hall. This building was emptied of its pupils in forty seconds.

Messrs. B. F. Ackerman and W. S. Robinson called at the King Edward school. The pupils quickly responded to the fire alarm and were outside in a little less than forty-five seconds. The doors open outward.

The pupils at Queen Alexandra school were not so quick in getting out as in some of the others. Mr. H. W. Dumble visited this building and the time in which the building was emptied of its pupils was a little less than a minute. The doors all open outward.

College Graduate

Found Clear Thinking Assured by Right Food

A college student should know that clear thinking comes easiest from a brain well and properly fed.

"I have now been using Grape-Nuts steadily four years and having passed the experimental and overenthusiastic stage, I feel sure of myself and have settled down to a solid basis of fact. This I have derived largely from that excellent little booklet, "The Road to Wellville," which I have largely adopted as my kitchen guide in matters pertaining to eating, exercise and health in general.

"On first reading the booklet I was struck with its plain common sense and moreover found that it was in harmony with physiology and psychology so far as I had studied them in my study of these subjects at college.

"For at least ten years before I began to eat Grape-Nuts, I had been accustomed to eating freely of fried meats, white bread, biscuits, and what not, with resultant headaches, some dizziness and an appetite that was capricious and uncertain. All this too, seemed to affect my brain and nervous system, for while engaged in study I found it hard to concentrate my thoughts.

"I could think very well for a little while, but soon grew stupid and inattentive. Nor can I emphasize too much the change that has brought about by adopting rational habits in food and exercise.

"There is now an elasticity in my muscular system, a readiness of nerve, and an ability to think continuously along a given line, that I prize most highly and which I attribute to the use of Grape-Nuts food." "There's a Reason."

...AID TWO THOUSAND MEN LOW

Machine Guns, Operated by Chilian Soldiers, Caused Great Loss of Life Among Striking Miners

San Francisco, March 12.—Machine guns operated by the government forces in Chile in a great conflict with strikers at the nitrate beds and in the city of Iquique, laid 2,500 men low, most of whom were killed, according to advices received yesterday by the Norwegian steamer Christian Bors, which arrived to-day direct from Chile.

Business at Iquique, which had never before been seriously disturbed by anything but earthquakes, was paralyzed when the great army of workers went on strike. One fracas after another occurred until soldiers and strikers met in the streets of Iquique and on the outskirts and openly defied each other. Being ordered to disperse the army of men, the soldiers opened fire. They had little opportunity to fight back, even though they had been armed, the assault was so sudden.

This took place on January 1, and a week later, as though by common agreement, the strikers went back to work without the expected advance. It was reported that the mine owners will voluntarily increase the pay of many of their employees.

POLICE

At yesterday's session of the police court, Mrs. Wallbridge, of Dalhousie street, was charged by Truant Officer Geo. Cochrane with sending her two children, under fourteen years of age, to school, as required by law. Mrs. Guy explained that the children had been ill, and promised to attend to this part of her maternal duties as soon as the youngsters are better. She was allowed to go.

Unknown Infant Left in Church

The Cobourg Star says: On Sunday evening quite a congregation assembled to hear the curate of St John's Church, Port Hope, preach in St George's Church, Grafton. Everything passed off nicely until a hymn about "Listen to the Angels Sing" was being sung. Some one's little darling — rather young to be so conceited—took up the refrain and the congregation got their first surprise. In the second verse the babe repeated the solo as the organ struck up about angels singing. There a couple of young men went out, and then several ladies were called out. Things certainly looked mysterious, and a mystery it was. In the vestibule was found a young babe about three weeks old, well bundled up, but with no one there to claim it. Some parties say that they saw a sleigh drive up to the entrance of the church, and the party got out with a parcel. The baby was taken care of, but who the parents of the child are is a mystery.

County Deputation Well Received

The Whitney Government has promised to give careful consideration to the requests made by the county deputation which went to Toronto. The deputation consisted of Messrs. Warden Thompson and County Councillors Russell, Hales, Oakman, Brown, Kilan, Scott and Osborn, City Solicitor Peck, County School Inspector Richard Lees and Mr. G. W. Bennett, colonization road inspector.

Owing to the Minister of Education, Hon. Dr. Pyne, being called away from the city hurriedly, the deputation in connection with the Norwood Model School, was received by the Deputy Minister, Dr. Colquhoun, at the Parliament Buildings at eleven o'clock, and was introduced by Mr. T. E. Bradburn, M.P.P. for West Peterborough, and the case regarding the Norwood Model School was presented very fully and clearly by Warden Thompson and Councillors Hales, Russell, Brown and Osborn. Mr. Lees also spoke and urged on the Government the desirability of maintaining the Norwood Model School.

Mr. Colquhoun said the matter would receive careful consideration, and conveyed the impression that their request would be granted.

The deputation waited upon the Minister of Public Works, Hon. Dr. Reaume, in the afternoon, and presented the case of the bridge for the Chemong Indians and the bridge in the colonization road in Harvey township. Warden Thompson and the other county councillors, and Ald. Phelan, Elliott and Butler were the speakers. The city's representatives urging government support in connection with the Chemong bridge.

Hon. Dr. Reaume said that both matters would be given careful consideration.

Note: Eighty-two houses visited were not at home, but were balanced by the houses visited outside the city limits.

The result has been very successful and far above the committee's expectations.

The committee, which was composed of: Mr. R. Lees, chairman; Mr. J. S. Knapman, secretary; Mr. W. S. Robinson and Mr. Thos. Yellowlees of Toronto, under whose direction the work was carried on, wish to thank all who have taken part in the work, in press especially.

To the Times, Mr. Yellowlees said: "This is the forty-third house to house campaign that I have been connected with, and has been by far the most satisfactory. I intend visiting Walkerton, Woodstock and Guelph in a short time, and carry on the work in those places. We all greatly appreciate the work done by Mr. Lees, who has been with us from the word "go," and has worked hard to make the campaign a success."

Moved by Mr. Martin, seconded by Mr. Miles, that this council desire to take this opportunity to place on record, their earnest appreciation and gratitude toward the officials of the Bank of Montreal for their assistance in the improvement of our business facilities by establishing a branch of their bank in the village of Warsaw, and we feel assured that all those who can make it convenient to patronize the Bank of Montreal here, will continue to do so in future.

75 Per Cent. of Cows Have Tuberculosis

Winnipeg, March 12. — The City Council are taking very rigid steps for the extinction of tuberculosis among cattle and milch cows. It is stated that 75 per cent. of the cows in the city are affected with tuberculosis, some in very mild form, but others in a very advanced stage. The city intends putting all the beasts under the tuberculosis test, and those that do not pass will be either slaughtered or segregated until proven that they have fully recovered.

Mr. Charlie Grapewin Has Chat with Times Man

Charlie Grapewin, who appeared in "The Awakening of Mr. Pipp" at the Grand Opera House last night, stated to the Times early last night that he has been playing to enormous business in Canada this year. "In fact," said Mr. Grapewin, "my business has never been so large."

"This is my first appearance in Peterborough in my present role, and if the advance sale of seats is any indication of my popularity, I must be very popular.

"I have just completed the new music to be used in the play next year, and to-night will be the first time that "Shady Lane" and "Photographs of Friends of Other Days," my new songs, have ever been sung on any stage.

"I will continue in the role of 'Mr. Pipp' for a period of three years, and then—oh, that is too far ahead."

Heavy Loss Caused by Water

Yesterday Mr. M. Pappas, the George street cigar dealer and pool room owner, was busy all through, on account of damage done by water to cigars and tobacco. It seems that Mr. Pappas had a large number, running into many hundred, of cigars, and several cases of tobacco stored in a small warehouse at the rear of his poolroom at 339 George street. This warehouse is what used to be the rear of a former abattoir building, but the present proprietor fixed it up as a storeroom. Besides the goods mentioned was a "Silent Salesman" or glass show case filled with goods. On Wednesday evening Mr. Pappas had occasion to enter the storeroom and noticed that water was falling from the roof to the floor and all over his goods. He at once ran out and saw the driver of a merchant next door over on the roof with a pick axe breaking the accumulated ice away. Unfortunately this point of the pick had gone through the roof in several places. The roof is simply made of boards covered with tarred paper. Mr. Pappas asked the man what he was doing on his, Pappas's, roof. The man said he had been told by his employer to clear off the latter's roof, and though the storeroom belonged to his employer. There was about $2,000 worth of goods in the place, and the cigars will be practically spoilt.

Mr. Pappas saw the merchant about the matter. The latter, after seeing the damage done, offered to make good the loss, which will be about $75.

All Saints' Church Banquet

A banquet for the men of the congregation will be held at All Saints' Church on Wednesday evening, March 25th under the auspices of the Men's Association. Invitations are now being sent out and it is expected that between 350 and 400 men will be in attendance. An excellent toast list is being prepared. Among the speakers will be Rev. Canon Tucker, of Toronto, who stands high among the Anglican clergymen of Canada.

Evelyn Seeks a Divorce

New York, March 12 — Lawyer Peabody, counsel for H. K. Thaw, journeyed up to Matteawan Tuesday and had a long talk with Thaw. He arrived back in town shortly after 6 o'clock, and he and Dan O'Reilly, counsel for Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, immediately went into conference. The conference had lasted half an hour when O'Reilly called the waiting newspaper men over, and without any preliminaries, said:

"Papers will be served on Thaw to-morrow in an action for annulment of the marriage."

"On what grounds?" he was asked.

"That Thaw was insane at the time the marriage was contracted," was the reply, "and did not know what he was doing."

"Does Thaw know about this?"

"Oh, yes," said Peabody. "I told him to-day."

"What did he say?"

"He made no comment."

"Wasn't he at all excited? Does he want the marriage annulled?"

"He's all right," was Peabody's reply.

"Thaw will defend the suit?" ventured O'Reilly.

"Oh, yes," said Peabody. "He instructed me to prepare a defence."

"Then there will be a contest over Mrs. Thaw's action?"

"Let me say," said O'Reilly, "that the action will be tried in New York county, and as by no intention has been made of any settlement in favor of Evelyn."

"But Mr. Peabody says Thaw will provide for her," O'Reilly was reminded.

Giving no heed to the remark, the lawyer continued:

"After the annulment proceedings are through, and they are in favor of the plaintiff, some action may be taken for the recovery of counsel fees and alimony. This action," he concluded, "has been though, of for some time."

Speaking generally, Mr. Peabody judicially remarked that Thaw was not insane at the time he married Evelyn Nesbitt.

BOTH LAWYERS DEFEND EVELYN.

He also declared that Mrs. William Thaw had not taken an active part in bringing about the separation. Both of the lawyers joined in a defence of young Mrs. Thaw, denying the stories that detectives have been watching her and that she had demanded a sum of money from her husband's mother, which the latter had declined to give.

"Evelyn has enough money now," said O'Reilly, "to keep her until the annulment action is started, anyhow."

"And after that—will she starve?" he was asked.

"Oh, no," was the reply. "She is capable of writing stories and earning a large income."

Everything, however, converged toward the general proposition that Harry and his wife have fallen out, an understanding has been reached whereby she is to savor the knot herself on condition of being taken care of by her husband's family.

The cause of the quarrel, the vital difference that provoked the young woman who scarred her soul with the most astounding confession that ever came from woman's lips to turn so suddenly upon him in whose cause the confession was made and seek a separation from him, has dropped down in the heart of the story and may never see the light.

TOOK HER TO TASK

"If this is true," O'Reilly began yesterday, "to the middle of the first trial."

There he stopped.

There were frequent occasions during the first trial, and during the second, when Thaw accused his wife of indiscretions. Those were the times when he is said to have struck her, to have seized her by the throat. Those also were the occasions when her mortal terror of him were born. In the months that have come and gone many stories have been printed in the newspapers — many, hints have reached Thaw from other sources. True or not, they have taken firm hold of his disordered fancy, and there is the secret of Mrs. Thaw's decision.

The parallel to be found in the Molineux case. Mrs. Molineux stood by her husband until his second trial resulted in his freedom. Then she fled west, and, without opposition, secured a divorce.

There have been stories of Thaw's attacks upon her in the Tombs, on the Bridge of Sighs, in the waiting room just off the penal chambers and in the asylum at Matteawan. All of these have been denied, though evidence of the facts is plentifully at hand. True or not, however, the fact remains that Evelyn Nesbit Thaw holds her husband in mortal terror. It has not been a week since she expressed the conviction with blanched face and trembling hand, that if he was at liberty he would kill her before twenty-four hours had elapsed. His counsel have expressed a similar conviction. His fears have been groundless.

Had such fears not existed, there might have been more reliance on the part of young Mrs. Thaw to the plans to separate her and her husband. But she fears to meet him, and the fear to have them met, and it is an absolute certainty that if the time ever comes when Harry Thaw may enter New York a freeman, Evelyn Thaw will be absolutely out of his reach.

"Any statement that Mrs. William Thaw is actuated by hostility to Evelyn is nonsense. As far as Mrs. Thaw is concerned she desires the Evelyn shall be treated with fairness and consideration. Harry has desired a reconciliation with his wife, but she has declined to live with him again in the event of his becoming free. She desires a permanent severance of martial relations."

Ontario Legislature to be Increased to Over 100

Toronto, March 12.—In the Legislature this afternoon the Premier announced the name of the special committee which will deal with the redistribution of the Province.

The committee consists of Honorable Messrs. Whitney, Matheson, Hanna, and Messrs. Dargavel, MacDiarmid, May, Samuel Clarke, Bowman. The three last mentioned are Liberals.

Mr. Whitney intimated that the membership of the House would be increased to over 100 by the addition of new constituencies in New Ontario, and increased representation for Toronto.

He said, however, that he didn't think a city like Toronto should be represented in proportion to the population. He further said that the rest of the Province may or may not have the same number of members as at present.

BASIS OF THE REDISTRIBUTION.

He indicated that the basis of redistribution will be the equalization of population, and that the county boundaries will be followed as closely as possible.

The leader of the Opposition expressed the wish that some way could be found to make it necessary to increase the number of members in the House beyond one hundred.

As for Toronto, he said that he did not see why the city should have double the present representation. He pointed out that the city would have only six members, going on the basis of the representation at Ottawa.

The bill got a second reading, and was then referred to a special committee.

Chased Hobo with a Broom

One lady in this city has the courage to interview a tramp and use the undeniable argument conveyed by the business end of a broom to get rid of those Dusty Rhodes and Weary Willies. A few days ago a sample of the genus hobo called at her residence, and after ascertaining from the lady that her husband was not at home, demanded, in peremptory manner, something to eat. The lady gave him some bread, but this was not sufficient for the hobo's pround patrician stomach, so he insisted on having some meat. The result in fewest words was — Lady angry, broom in evidence, tramp fled.

FUTURE CANADIAN POSITION

A. J. Dawson, of the editorial staff of the London (Eng.) Standard, speaking before the Canadian Club of Montreal, this week, demonstrated that he is the possessor of a prophetic vision, when he said:—

"The national spirit which fills Canada from Atlantic to Pacific was new to him, and it was from this, as it seized and held me, that the conviction took root in my mind, that right here in Canada was the true base and foundation of the British Empire's future greatness; that Canada was in reality far more than simply the great Dominion of Canada; that this British North America was in very truth the elder son and heir of our house from which, in due course—the natural succession being established — the British Empire would be ruled and guided. Canada's bosom is a broad one; and, as I see it, it had need be broad to support the weight of the Dominion's destiny.

"I have been asked again and again as to Canada's loyalty, and again and again in the press and by word of mouth, I have said that the question argues ignorance of Canada. No country, no people in this world can have anything to teach Canada, and the Canadians in the matter of loyalty to the British Empire, and to the common citizenship which makes us all one family, Canada's loyalty to herself should be clear to the meanest intelligence. I that very spirit of nationhood, which so deeply impressed me during my stay here last summer."

They were not taking chances with death in an inflammable theatre or on a tinder-box excursion boat. Their little lives were sacrificed in a building to which the city authorities had assigned them and which it was a first duty to make safe. The locked rear door and the lack of other exits show how this responsibility had been met. Official negligence wears here its ugliest look.

Granting that the school house was a fire trap, were there no precautions against panic? Was there no fire drill such as has more than once saved the lives of school children in emergencies in other cities?

To all cities everywhere this catastrophe is summary notice to set their school houses in order as safeguard the lives of their young wards with every device against fire and with all possible preventives of panic.

DESIRE OF DISTINCTION.

Quaint Illustration of a Peculiar Phase of Human Nature.

In "Doc Gordon," by Mary E. Wilkins-Freeman, is a quaint illustration of a peculiar phase of human nature. It develops with the visits of the two doctors to their poorer patients:

James drove all the morning with Dr. Gordon about the New Jersey country. The country people were either saturnine with an odd shyness, which had something almost hostile in it, or they were effusively hospitable, forcing apple jack upon the two doctors. James was much struck by the curious unconcern shown by the relatives of the patients and even by the patients themselves. In only one case, that of a child suffering from a bad case of measles, was much interest evinced. The majority of the patients were the very old and middle aged, and they discussed and heard discussed their symptoms with much the same attitude as they might have discussed the mechanism of a wooden doll. If any emotion was shown, it was that of a singular inverted pride. "I had a terrible night, doctor," said one old woman, and a smirk of self conceit was over her ancient face. "Yes, mother did have an awful night," said her married daughter, with a triumphant expression. Even the children clustering about the doctor looked unconsciously proud because their old grandmother had had an awful night. The call of the two doctors at the house was positively hilarious. Quantities of old apple jack were forced upon them. The old woman in the adjoining bedroom, although she was evidently suffering, kept calling out a feeble joke in her cackling old voice.

"Those people seem positively elated because that old soul is sick," said James when he and the doctor were again in the buggy.

"They are," said Dr. Gordon; "even the old woman herself, who knows well enough that she has not long to live. Did you ever think that the desire of distinction was one of the most, perhaps the most, intense purely spiritual emotion of the human soul? Look at the way these people live here, grubbing away at the soil like ants. The most of them have in their lives just three ways of attracting notice, the momentary consideration of their kind—birth, marriage, sickness and death. With the first they are hardly actively concerned; even with the second many have nothing to do. There are more women than men as usual, and, although the women want to marry, all the men do not. There remains only sickness and death for a standby, so to speak. If one of them is really sick and dies, the people are aroused to take notice. The sick person and the corpse have a certain state and dignity which they have never attained before. Why, bless you, man, I have one patient, a middle aged woman, who has been laid up for years with rheumatism, and she is fairly vainglorious, and so is her mother. She brags of her invalid daughter. If she had been merely an old maid on her hands, she would have been ashamed of her, and the woman herself would have been sour and discontented. But she has fairly married rheumatism. It has been to her as a husband and children. I tell you, young man, one has to have his little footstool of elevation among his fellows, even if it is a mighty queer one, or he loses his self respect, and self respect is the best jewel we have."

Much Wanted.

The following advertisement, quoted from a Boston paper of a date early in the nineteenth century by Mr. Janson in "The Stranger in America," shows that the domestic problem is not one of modern manufacture. But what mistress of today would dare to impose such conditions on the hindrance in the kitchen?

Much Wanted: A neat, well behaved female to do kitchen work in a small family in Charlestown, near Boston. She may pray and sing hymns, but not over the dishkettle. She may go to meeting, but not belong to the congregation of midnight worshipers.

A Natural Fortress.

In the northern part of Madagascar is the most remarkable natural fortress in the world. It is occupied by a wild tribe who call themselves the People of the Rocks. The fortress is a lofty and precipitous rock of enormous size, 1,000 feet high and eight square miles in area. Its sides are so steep that it cannot be climbed without artificial means. Within it is hollow, and the only entrance is by a subterranean passage.—St. James' Gazette.

Thrift.

There is an old fashioned word that ought to come into use again—thrift. There are a distressing number of shiftless people in the world, and, while we shall call no names, we hope every reader will pause at this paragraph and think seriously of thrift and shiftlessness.

Death of Miss Annie Errett

The many friends in Peterborough of Miss Annie Errett will regret to learn of her death which occurred in Toronto yesterday. The late Miss Errett was a daughter of Mr. R. W. Errett, for many years inspector of weights and measures here. About a year ago Miss Errett, together with her parents, moved to Toronto, where they resided on Isabella street. Miss Errett was a prominent member of St. John's Church.

A Good Opening.

Ian Maclaren was talking to a group of literary beginners in New York. "Begin your stories well," he said emphatically. "There's nothing like a good beginning. Indeed, it's half the battle." Then, with a smile, this excellent beginner of stories added, "Always bear in mind the case of the young man who, desiring to marry, secured a favorable hearing from his sweetheart's irascible father by opening the interview with the words, 'I know a way, sir, whereby you can save money.'"—Good Health.

The Hen's Repartee.

But the bnown hen laughed as well as they

For it's filled with egg coal, don't you see!'"

Corrected.

It was on a street car in the city of Washington. Two colored women in cheaply gorgeous splendor were talking, and one chanced to mention a Mr. Jinks in her conversation.

"Oh, I sees," said the other woman complaisantly—"I sees that you puts de access on de pronoun."—Lippincott's.

The Blushing Bride.

A clergyman, having performed the marriage ceremony for a couple, undertook to write out the usual certificate; but, being in doubt as to the day of the month, he asked, "This is the ninth, is it not?"

DANTE'S HUMOR.

It Is of the Wholly Unconscious Kind and Woefully Grim.

The humorous side of Dante is analyzed in the Westminster Review by George Trobridge, who is a great admirer of the famous poet and who has in previous writings expressed his appreciation of Dante as a nature poet and as a novelist.

Although Dante's great poem is a "comedy," in the sense of being a drama working to a happy ending, we do not look for ridiculous situations in it, such as we usually associate with the idea of comedy. Ridiculous situations occur nevertheless, and there is no lack of humor even in the poet's description of the sufferings of the lost. Dante's humor, however, is of the unconscious kind, arising from a total lack of perception of the ludicrous. It is said that he was never seen to smile, and we can quite believe it, since he never forsakes sober seriousness in his writings, and it is his deadly earnestness that betrays him into occasional comicality.

The sinners in hell, the poet tells us, are relegated to their proper quarters on the judgment of Minos, who indicates the particular circle to which the culprit is consigned by wrapping his tail so many times around his bestial body. Fancy the trembling sinner waiting to count the coils that he may know his fate!

It is a horrible punishment which is assigned to those guilty of simony, to be buried head downward in a circular pit, with only the legs and feet protruding, while flickering flames glide over the soles of the latter, inflicting exquisite torture, yet our sense of humor is provoked by the description of Dante standing over one of these holes and holding a conversation with its occupant, "reversed, and as a stake driven in the soil," while numberless legs wriggle in continual motion around him.

Fish Spearing by Firelight.

In the sunny south in the blue waters of the Mediterranean one may frequently behold the strange sight of fishermen reaping a rich harvest with the aid of a long forklike instrument, which is used in place of a net. There the ancient "peche aux flambeaux," a singular custom of fishing at night by the light of a blazing fire, still exists, enabling hundreds of hardy toilers of the deep to gain a livelihood.—Wide World Magazine.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

Any even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Application for entry must be made in person by the applicant at a Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the district in which the land is situate. Entry by proxy may, however, be made at an Agency on certain conditions by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

The homesteader is required to perform the homestead duties under one of the following plans.

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) A homesteader may, if he so desires, perform the required residence duties by living on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of his homestead. Joint ownership in land will not meet this requirement.

(3) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of a homesteader has permanent residence on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of a homestead, or upon a homestead entered for by him in the vicinity, such homesteader may perform his own residence duties by living with the father or mother.

(4) The term "vicinity" in the two preceding paragraphs is defined as meaning not more than nine miles in a direct line exclusive of the width of road allowances crossed in the measurement.

(5) A homesteader intending to perform his residence duties in accordance with the above while living with parents or on farming land owned by himself must notify the agent for the district of such intention.

Six months' notice in writing must be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa, of intention to apply for patent.

Capital, $250,000.00 1,000,000 Shares 25c. each.

Modest Capitalization Large Coal Reserves

This Company organized under the laws of the Northwest Territories of Canada, owns and operates the Galbraith mine located at Lundbreck, Alta. They have four vertical seams of coal traversing their property, aggregating over 40 feet in thickness. Three of these seams are developed to a depth of 350 feet, and as they pass through the Company's lands for nearly a mile, some idea of the amount of coal may be had.

Shipping Steadily

The present output of the mine is about 200 tons per day. These shipments will be rapidly increased, as the C.P.R. allows its cars to be loaded with coal for points in the U. S.

We are selling a limited number of these shares at the extremely low price of

in blocks of 100 or over. Tight money in the States makes it possible for us to give this unprecedented offer in stock that will be paying dividends inside of six months, and you are sure to realize a handsome profit.

Parties ordering can send money by P. O. Orders, Express Orders or Bank Drafts, and we will have the stock issued direct to you. Full information furnished on request. Correspondence solicited. Reference, Bank of Montreal

Have secured a block of the

Calumet, Mancos' Oil and Mining Company's Stock

Par value $1.00

What they offer at 25c per Share for a short time

The property is situated at Mancos, Colo., and consists of 160 acres, fully paid for. The Company expects to secure at least 400 acres or more, we are negotiating for it now and the terms are satisfactory and there is coal on the same, and they also intend to secure some Coal Mines ot which they have the refusal. Some of che best coal mines in Colorado are in this district, as well as some of the richert gold and silver mines. In fact this is one of the richest parts for mineral in the State of Colorado, and the Company has the refusal to several prospects on reasonable and easy terms.

In our opinion the prospects of the Company are very bright, and a rapid advance in the price of the stock is sure to take place in the near future. Full in information can be had by calling at our office.

Make It Clear.

When Colonel Edmund Rice was in command of the Twenty-sixth infantry mostly volunteers from New England in the Philippines, he organized from his regiment a company of mounted scouts. To equip them for this service he made requisition on headquarters for the necessary outfit, including eighty nosebags. Some officious clerk in the quartermaster's office in Manila returned the requisition to Colonel Rice with these written remarks: "Your report shows but sixty men in your mounted company. Why do you require eighty nosebags?"

The colonel's explanation was short and characteristic. It was: "It is true I have but sixty men, but I have eighty horses. The nosebags are for the horses, not for the men."

Inoculation For Smallpox.

Lady Mary Wortley Montagu is generally credited with having introduced inoculation into England from Turkey. In 1718 she had her son inoculated at Adrianople with success. She was allowed to have it tried in England on seven condemned criminals in 1721, and in 1722 two members of the royal family were inoculated. The practice was bitterly opposed by the clergy until 1760. A Dr. Mead practiced inoculation with success up to 1754, and Dr. Dunsdale of London inoculated Catherine II. of Russia in 1768. Vaccine inoculation was introduced by Dr. Jenner in 1790.

The Moors of Today.

The Moors of today are the descendants of those who conquered Spain, who were practically paramount in the southern portion for two centuries and relics of whose wonderful buildings are to be found at the present day in that country. Indeed, it is strange to consider the position of the Moors of today when we see the work of their hands in past centuries, and the only explanation lies in the fact that they are unable to adapt themselves to modern conditions.

ans something to do with the disappearance of that brooch, I am sure, and if so he knows more than he says. Besides"—here Hurd hesitated— "No! I'll tell you that later."

"Tell me what?"

"Something about Hay that will astonish you and make you think he has something to do with the crime. Meanwhile learn all you can from Mrs. Krill."

* * * * * * *

Hay's rooms were large and luxuriously furnished. In effect he occupied a small flat in the house of an ex-butler and had furnished the place himself in a sybarite fashion. The ex-butler and his wife and servants looked after Hay, and, in addition, that languid gentleman possessed a slim valet with a sly face, who looked as though he knew more than was good for him. Indeed, the whole atmosphere of the rooms was shady and fast, and Paul, simple young fellow as he was, felt the bad influence the moment he stepped into the tiny drawing room.

Two ladies were seated by the fire, Mrs. Krill in black majestic and calm, as usual. She wore diamonds on her breast and jewelled stars in her gray hair. Although not young, she was a wonderfully well preserved woman, and her arms and neck were white, gleaming and beautifully shaped. From the top of her head to the sole of her rather large but well shod foot she was dressed to perfection and waved a languid fan as she welcomed Paul, who was presented to her by the host. "I am glad to see you, Mr. Beecot," she said in her deep voice. "We had rather an unhappy interview when last we met. How is Miss Norman?"

"She is quite well," replied Paul in as cordial a tone as he could command. For the sake of learning what he could he wished to be amiable, but it was difficult when he reflected that this large, suave, smiling woman had robbed Sylvia of a fortune and had spoken of her in a contemptuous way. But Beecot, swallowing down his pride, held his little candle to the devil without revealing his repugnance too openly. And apparently Mrs. Krill believed that his composure was genuine enough, for she was quite at her ease in his presence.

The daughter was dressed like the mother, save that she wore pearls in place of diamonds. She talked but little, as usual, and sat smiling, the young image of the older woman. Hay also introduced Paul to a handsome young fellow of twenty-one, with rather a feeble face. This was Lord George Sandal, the pigeon Hay was plucking, and, although he had charming manners and an assumption of worldly wisdom, he was evidently one of those who had come into the world saddled and bridled for other folk's riding.

A third lady was also present, who called herself Aurora Qian, and Hay informed his friend in a whisper that she was an actress. Paul then remembered that he had seen her name in the papers as famous in light comedy. She was pretty and kittenish, with fluffy hair and an eternal smile. It was impossible to imagine a greater contrast to the massive firmness of Mrs. Krill than the lively, girlish demeanor of the little woman, yet Paul had an instinct that Miss Qian, in spite of her profession and odd name and childish giggle, was a more shrewd person than she looked. Every one was bright and merry and chatty, all save Maud Krill, who smiled and fanned herself in a statuesque way. Hay paid her great attention, and Paul knew very well that he intended to marry the silent woman for her money. It would be hardly earned, he thought, with such a firm looking mother-in-law as Mrs. Krill would certainly prove to be.

The dinner was delightful, well cooked, daintily served and leisurely eaten. A red shaded lamp threw a rosy light on the white cloth, the glittering crystal and bright silver. The number of diners was less than the Muses and more than the Graces, and every one laid himself or herself out to make things bright. And again Maud Krill may be mentioned as an exception. She ate well and held her tongue, merely smiling heavily when addressed. Paul, glancing at her serene face across the rosy hued table, wondered if she really was as calm as she looked and if she really lacked the brain power her mother seemed to possess.

The dinner passed off pleasantly. Lord George began to talk of racing, and Hay responded. Mrs. Krill alone seemed shocked. "I don't believe in gambling," she said icily.

"I hope you are not very down on it," said Hay. "Lord George and I propose to play bridge with you ladies in the next room."

"Maud can play and Miss Qian," said the widow. "I'll talk to Mr. Beecot, unless he prefers the fascination of the green cloth."

"I would rather talk to you," replied Paul, bowing.

Mrs. Krill nodded and then went out of the room with the younger ladies.

those of his companions. "I want you to drink to the health of my future bride," he said.

"What!" cried Paul, staring. "Miss Krill?"

"The same," responded Hay coolly. "You see I have taken your advice and intend to settle. Pash presented me to the ladies when next they came to his office, and since then I have been almost constantly with them. Miss Krill's affections were disengaged, and she therefore, with her mother's consent, became my promised wife."

"I wish you joy," said Lord George, draining his glass and filling another, "and, by Jove, for your sake, I hope she's got money."

"Oh, yes, she's well off," said Hay calmly. "And you, Paul?"

"I congratulate you, of course," stammered Beecot, dazed, "but it's so sudden. You haven't known her above a month."

"Five weeks or so," said Hay, smiling, and, sinking his voice lower, he added: "I can't afford to let grass grow under my feet. This young ass here might snap her up, and Mrs. Krill would only be too glad to secure a title for Maud."

He had no time to say more, as they entered the drawing room. Almost as soon as they did Mrs. Krill summoned Paul to her side.

"And now," she said, "let us talk of Miss Norman."

CHAPTER XV.

"I DON'T wish to talk of Miss Norman," said Paul bluntly.

"Then you can be no true lover," retorted the widow.

"I disagree with you. A true lover does not talk to all and sundry concerning the most sacred feelings of his heart. Moreover, your remarks at our last meeting were not to my taste."

The three gentlemen filled their glasses with port, and Hay passed around a box of cigars. Soon they were smoking and chatting in a most amicable fashion. Lord George talked a great deal about racing and cards and his bad luck with both. Hay said very little and every now and then cast a glance at Paul to see how he was taking the conversation. At length, when Sandal became a trifle vehement on the subject of his losses, Hay abruptly changed the subject by refilling his glass and

CATTLE SHIPPING.

How Animals Are Loaded on Board Vessels In Hawaii.

Afterward I was taken to Kawaihae, where I saw cattle loaded in a most cruel manner. It was a little after 6 o'clock when I landed on the beach among a lot of cowboys and half naked natives. The cattle were corralled under the trees, and when one was ready to be taken aboard a rope was tied about its horns. A cowboy on horseback then rode into the surf, dragging the frightened steer into the water. The rope was tossed to a half naked native who was swimming, and he in turn carried it to the men waiting in a small boat. These men pulled the animal, which must now swim or drown, to the boat and tied him by the horns to its side. After eight steers had been tied up in this manner the engine on the steamer was set to work and the boat pulled alongside by means of a rope. The cattle were then hoisted on board by the use of a bellyband. The method of handling these dumb animals is brutal, and, while the men seem to use as much care as possible in moving them about, their piteous bellowing caused by fear made as pathetic a scene as I have ever witnessed. Thousands are shipped every year, and it seems that some more humane method of putting them aboard might be adopted.

The Japanese sailor on these ships is said to be the best for keeping the ship clean, while the native excels in handling the boats, especially in rough water. The Hawaiian is a born swimmer, and native boys will follow these vessels for several hundred yards as they are leaving Honolulu, swimming alongside and diving for coins thrown overboard by the travelers. The passage on these boats is always rough, and on the Ewalani, as the ship lay at anchor out in the channel, the nights were intensely warm. Freighting in this way is necessarily expensive, but those in authority say that it is the only way practical, as no wharf could withstand the lashing of the waves caused by the mad fury of the winds during the winter. At that season it is often impossible to make landings along the rocky coast of Molokai.—Leslie's Weekly.

The Electro Magnet.

In engineering works the electro magnet is taking a very prominent place. This device dispenses with hooks, slings and other lifting apparatus. By throwing a switch controlling the current the magnet is energized and thereby attaches itself to the bars, castings, scrap or pig iron which it is desired to lift. The magnet poles are shaped according to the nature of the material to be raised. For heavy rails they are oblong and are slung from the crane hook by a short chain. Castings weighing over two tons are successfully handled by electro magnets. Another use to which the electro magnet is put is in breaking old castings so that they may be melted and utilized. To accomplish this the maguet is made to lift and drop a steel ball weighing from one to six tons.

Passing of a Famous Bridge.

At last the old bridge over the Golden Horn at Constantinople is about to be done away with and replaced by a new structure. An amusing tale is told in connection with the efforts of an American firm to secure the order. With a view to impressing the sultan with the quality of its work an elaborate painting was prepared for presentation to his majesty showing the bridge as it would appear during a storm which would have done credit to the Atlantic. However, the firm was informed that the sultan would be so horrified by this view that it at once prepared a picture showing the bridge as it would appear on a beautiful summer's day. Even this, however, Reuter says, failed to effect its purpose.

Whittier's Humor.

A story is told of Whittier which illustrates the character of his rumor. Two of his neighbors, an aged brother and sister, had accumulated the animal, which must now swim or a competency. He thought they were working harder than was necessary in view of their age and worldly accumulations and spoke of it.

"We must lay by something for our last sickness and have enough left to bury us," said the sister.

"Mary," replied Whittier, "did thee ever know any one in his last sickness to stick by the way for want of funds?"

PAIN

Pain in the head—pain anywhere, has its cause. Pain is congestion, pain is blood pressure—nothing else usually. At least, so says Dr. Shoop, and to prove it he has created a little pink tablet. That tablet—called Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablet—causes blood pressure away from pain centers. Its effect is charming, pleasingly delightful for it, though subtly, it surely equalizes the blood circulation.

If you have a headache, it's blood pressure.

If it's painful periods with women, same cause.

If you are sleepless, restless, nervous, it's blood congestion—blood pressure. That surely is a certainty, for Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets stop it in 20 minutes, and the tablets simply distribute the unnatural blood pressure.

Bruise your finger, and doesn't it get red, and swell, and pain you? Of course it does. It's congestion, blood pressure. You'll find it where pain is—always. It's simply Common Sense.

at his home at Trent Bridge, three miles south of here on Saturday, Feb. 29th. The deceased, who was 93 years old, was up to a year ago, and looks and [illegible] as old as any. He was a highly respected gentleman and was widely known in this as well as other townships in the county, having lived in this part of the county nearly all his life. When he reached these parts there was neither roads nor railroad, and when the deer and wolfe roamed the forest. During the last ten years he has resided at Trent Bridge, where his daughter, Mrs. Cook, resides and has spent nearly all this time at fishing, hunting, tapping and like pursuit. The sympathy of the community is extended to his family.

RE-OPENING BLAIRTON MINES.

It is reported on good authority here that the Blairton Iron Mines will be re-opened once again in the spring of 1908, and that small village, which at one time promised to become a flourishing village, will once more be known in the mining world for the vast amount of iron it will produce.

Where a town, once lively and business like, and well known for miles around, has become quiet (with nothing doing at all and [illegible] sunken into apparent obscurity, all at once, is surprised by the news that it may become known once more, there is great excitement among the inhabitants. This is the case with the small village of Blairton, once one of the most promising and rising villages in the district, when the iron mines were in operation there, but of late has been reduced to only a few inhabitants. But now those that reside in that small (yet picturesque village, wear a smile on their face and the hearts of the property owners in that place are filled with gladness for in all probability the Iron mines there will be opened in the spring. The opening of the mines will affect many persons in Havelock as several men own property in the neighborhood of the village.

The Blairton Iron Mines are situated about eight miles from Havelock and about the same from Marmora. They are about 3-4 of a mile north of the Havelock-Marmora Road. It is about 3 miles north of Blairton station. The mines which are in the near neighborhood of the village cover about 25 acres.

When the mines were in operation before, Blairton was one of the most prosperous and gayest towns to be seen. At that time, there was a large population and although men and their families were continually flocking in, still there was a demand for laborers.

The village soon grew from a few houses to fifty, some of them very large and of the latest design. Stores, blacksmith shops, harness shops and other buildings sprang up as if by magic and it is said that a person who was away for a month did not know the village when they returned. Saw mills were scarce in the district and although there was plenty of timber, lumber could not be cut fast enough to supply the demand.

A railway connected Blairton with the docks at Trent Bridge. This railway was kept in continual action even on Sunday for when there was no ore to ship, there was something else. Machinery for the mines was brought in weekly and supplies of provisions and groceries could not be got in fast enough. On the whole, it was as hard to get goods to Blairton as it was to Cobalt when it first opened up.

Nor was it all work, for nearly every week during the summer, there was excursions of some kind to Trent Bridge and from there to other points by steamboat. Every evening after working hours, the lake near by was crowded with boats filled with the happiest people that ever drew breath in this broad country of ours.

Although the school and church were of a fair size, they were not large enough to accommodate the large number that attended.

But there is a pall to all greatness. The end must come and thus it was with Blairton when operations at the mine were discontinued. There was a general exodus of people and although quite a number remained, they kept gradually dwindling away, until now there are only a few left. There is no weekly excursion, no crowded church or school, no great demand for laborers and as any person now visiting the place would say "It is practically dead to the world."

But no wit is stated on good authority that the mines will re-open again. Men have been employed at the mines examining it and seeing how much iron it contains and their report will soon be sent to the company and is likely to be most favourable ass iron forms a large percentage of the rocks.

When Healey Falls is developed, there will be plenty of cheap power and the result will be an electric railway from Blairton to Havelock by which the ore will be carried to this place.

From Havelock it will be shipped by C. P. R. by the Georgian Bay grain route to Victoria Harbor, where it will be sent by steamer to the Canadian Soo. The capitalists who have an option on the Blairton Mines which are at present owned by Messrs. Pearce of Marmora have made arrangements with a large steel manufacturing concern presumably that at the Canadian Soo by which the ore mined at Blairton will be bought from the company. A test has been made of its quality and it is pronounced to be of the proper constituents to satisfactorily work in with the Helen Mine ore which the company at the Soo smelt.

Meanwhile the citizens of Blairton and Havelock wait patiently for proceedings in the matter.

GENERAL NOTES.

In event that the high license by-law is not quashed, the hotel keepers will likely do one of two things. They will either not take out any license at all for the coming year or they will raise the price of sealed whiskey to 15c per glass.

The hockey match on Monday night between Butter's and Boyer's teams was a most interesting feature, being a curious mixture of hockey, shinny and ice sweeping. The receipts went to the aid of the management of the rink and a large crowd were on hand to see the "would be hockey players" perform. Everyone was happy even the ice cracking with merriment as it came in contact with some of the players heads. The following were the gladiators in this important event:—

St. Andrew's Parlor Social

The "At Home" held at the home of Mrs. Mathers, 347 Charlotte street, last evening under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of St. Andrew's church, was a very successful event, a large number being present. The hostess had done everything possible in the way of decoration and coupled with an excellent programme of music, solos and recitations, a fine evening was spent by those present. Those who took part were Mr. Duncan Campbell, Mr. Gordon Wright, Miss Greta Le Barr and Mrs. Davidson, assisted by Miss Ethel Tully, who presided at the piano.

The Rev. Mr. Potter, pastor of the church, moved a vote of thanks to those who took part on behalf of the Ladies' Aid Society. The evening closed by singing "God Save the King."

A Coming Treat

The most important light opera event of years in Toronto will be the appearance at the Princess Theatre for one week, with Saturday matinee only, of Fritzi Scheff in the light opera triumph "Mlle. Modiste." Fritzi Scheff has become known as the Queen of light opera of the English speaking stage, and has made a tremendous success in "Mlle. Modeste," which was written for her by Henry Blossom and Victor Herbert. She has played three long runs of the opera in New York, and returns there for a fourth engagement after her Toronto engagement. Her only former appearance in Toronto was when she sang before their Royal Highnesses the present Prince and Princess of Wales a few years ago. At that time she made a great impression on music lovers in Toronto, and her reappearance has been looked for eagerly.

Charles Dillingham, her manager, is sending with Madame Scheff precisely the same big organization that supported her in New York at the Knickerbocker Theatre. The cast will include William Pruette, Claude Gillingwater, Robert Michaelis, Leo Marx, Howard Chambers, Josephine Bartlett, Blanche Morrison, Bertha Holly, the sisters Constantine and many others. The choral organization is especially noted for its singing ability. The orchestra will be largely augmented the musicians carried by the Fritzi Scheff Opera Co. being added to an enlarged orchestra at the Princess Theatre.

The opera is called by critics the highest form of light musical entertainment to be seen to-day on the English-speaking stage. Blossom's book being sane and witty, while Herbert's music is of an entrancing quality. Fritzi Scheff herself, is so well known as a Grand Opera Singer with the Metropolitan Grand Opera House forces, that little comment is necessary on her. She is the most vivacious little creature imaginable, and is possessed of a wonderful amount of personal magnetism.

The prices during Madame Scheff's engagement will range from 50c to $2.00. The sale of seats opens Thursday, March 12th. Mail orders, when accompanied by cheques or money orders, will be filled from out of town points as soon as received.

A rate of one fare and one-third from points outside Toronto will be granted for the round trip by the Canadian Pacific and the Grand Trunk Railways during Madame Scheff's engagement at the Princess Theatre.

A Most Valuable Agent.

The glycerine employed in Dr. Pierce's medicines greatly enhances the medicinal properties which it extracts from native medicinal roots and holds in solution much better than alcohol would. It also possesses medicinal properties of its own, being a valuable demulcent, nutritive, antiseptic and antiferment. It adds greatly to the efficacy of the Black Cherry-bark, Bloodroot, Golden Seal root, stone root and Queen's root, contained in "Golden Medical Discovery," in subduing chronic, or lingering coughs, bronchial, throat and lung affections, for all of which these agents are recommended by standard medical authorities.

In all cases where there is a wasting away of flesh, loss of appetite, with weak stomach, as in the early stages of consumption, there can be no doubt that glycerine acts as a valuable nutritive and aids the Golden Seal root, Stone root, Queen's root and Black Cherrybark in promoting digestion and building up the flesh and strength, controlling the cough and bringing about a healthy condition of the whole system. Of course, it must not be expected to work miracles. It will not cure consumption except in its earlier stages. It will cure very severe, obstinate, hanging, chronic coughs, bronchial and laryngeal troubles and chronic nasal catarrh, however severe. In acute coughs it finds its [illegible]. It is in the lingering hang-on coughs, or those of long standing, even when accompanied by bleeding from lungs, that it has performed its most marvelous cures.

Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., of Bennett Med. College, Chicago, says of glycerine:

"In dyspepsia it serves an excellent purpose. Holding a fixed quantity of the peroxide of hydrogen in solution, it is one of the best manufactured products of the present time in its action upon enfeebled, disordered stomachs, especially if there is ulceration or catarrhal gastritis (catarrhal inflammation of stomach), it is a most efficient preparation. Glycerine will relieve many cases of pyrosis (heartburn) and excessive gastric (stomach) acidity."

"Golden Medical Discovery" enriches and purifies the blood curing blotches, pimples, eruptions, scrofulous swellings and old sores, or ulcers.

Send to Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., for free booklet telling all about the native medicinal roots composing this wonderful medicine. There is no alcohol in it.

BOARD OF EDUCATION CONSIDERS PROTECTION OF CHILDREN

In City Schools from Danger of Fire—This Matter will Receive the Immediate Attention of the Board

Last night the Board of Education, with Chairman Robert Fair presiding, met in the secretary's room. Those present were Messrs. Morrison, Burnham, Crane, Nelson, Hayes, Robinson, Hill, Ackerman.

The chairman opened the meeting by explaining that it had been called to consider the matter of fire protection for the children attending the local schools. At the time of the Montreal fire this matter had been taken up, but had been somewhat dropped. In view of the Cleveland horror, it is a matter for the Board to consider at once. He said that the members had visited the local schools. At the Central school the children go out in a few seconds after the alarm was rung. Unfortunately the doors open inwards and the going is cracked. Hamilton, Ont., has decided to spend $5,000 in fire protection, and Windsor is going to have a separate alarm box in each school. He wanted the members to see the conditions and report the day and night. Before the schools on Wednesday. He would like the Board, accompanied by the architect, visit every school, and see what should be done. It was not the new ones the old schools that are defective as regards fire protection.

Dr. Morrison gave an experience he and Mr. Crane had at the South Central school. The children were got out quickly, and the boys, as soon as the alarm rang, rushed for brooms and other articles that might impede the children, the head master at once taking his proper place. At the West Ward school the children got out quickly, but there was a stove that they had ordered removed from the ground floor hall. There was a back way for the upper floor children to get out. As to fire escapes great attention should be paid to getting the best. He thought a fire drill should be held once a week. He would like a motion to this effect passed. The primary scholars should be on the first floor. He saw the necessity for this at Wednesday's visit. Doors should all open outwards and no porches to stop the children. Every school building over three storeys should have fire escapes. The usual kind of fire escapes are of little use for schools.

Mr. Crane said he quite agreed with the former speaker. Good fire drills and fire escapes are a necessity. Fire drills should be part of the curriculum. The janitors make up the fires and go home. He thought during the school terms the janitors should be close at hand. A gong should be in every school. He thought there should be some chemical fire extinguisher in every school. The property or a special committee should pay the visit suggested by the chairman. The ratepayers, he thought, would stand by the Board in this.

Mr. Nelson read a report concerning his visit to the East Ward school. The children got out in a very few seconds. Some twelve or fourteen seconds were lost undoing the bolts at top and bottom of the doors. He thought a chain should be attached to do away with this delay. He thought something should be done to replace the stove ordered for the West Ward school.

Mr. Ackerman said at the King Edward school, at his visit, he put too much muscle into pulling the gong cord and broke it. The children all got out in 45 seconds. The doors and stairways are excellently arranged. Some of the doors were locked, but he ordered the janitor to have springs put on to close the doors during cold weather.

Mr. Robinson said Mr. Ackerman had well covered the ground as to fire matters at the King Edward school. The children got out under 45 seconds, including a boy with no feet. He thought there was no need for fire escapes in that building, as the school is so admirably arranged for fire danger. All schools with doors opening inward should have them changed. He thought fire escapes should not be put on the windows to the ground.

Mr. Hill said that when they have had real trouble and less as in Cleveland there were not fire escapes and drills. The gong already mentioned should be repaired at once. A fire-box should be placed in each school. The basements should be as nearly fire proof as possible. Many fire escapes are practically useless. Close enquiry should be made at other places as to the best kind before spending money. The fire drill should be systematic and held through the whole week. The inspector should see the headmasters and then report monthly to the Board as to the holding of the drills. He moved that the inspector be required to see that fire drills be held at least once a week and that each headmaster should report to the inspector how long the drills take each time to empty the respective buildings, and that the inspector report monthly to the Board. Seconded by Mr. Crane.

Dr. Morrison said that Mr. Vennie, H. M. of the South Central school, had notified him that very few drills had been held there, as the children would have to go out in the snow and return to the school with wet feet. He thought the pavement could be arranged so that the scholars could get out without this difficulty.

Mr. Hill though every door should be arranged to open onwards and fire alarm boxes in each school.

Mr. Robinson said that at least one hydrant and hose should be placed in each school.

Mr. Fair said a porch on the east side of the present Collegiate Institute should be removed, as it would create a blockade in case of fire. Whatever is to be done should be done at once.

Mr. Hill though every school should have some appliance for stopping a fire in its inception, as this is the critical moment.

Dr. Morrison moved that a committee composed of Messrs. Mowat, Crane, Nelson and Robinson look into the matter of fire escapes, fire boxes, hose and other fire appliances.—Carried.

Mr. Fair though the committee should meet late night after the current meeting.

Mr. Robinson said last week a resident of the south part of the city said there was a leak in the roof of the cloak room of the South Central school. He, the speaker, had investigated and found this was so. The teacher should see that the children should be allowed to put their clothes somewhere else, so they would not have to go home in wet clothes. The leak was caused by the peculiar shape of the roof, with its many gutters. Mr. Crane thought this had been fixed last summer.

The meeting then adjourned and the committee on fire appliances went into session.

Canada to Spend $500,000,000 In the Next Six Years

Mr. C. J. McCuaig, who has returned from a trip to Cleveland, New York and other U. S. cities, thinks things in Canada are looking good in comparison with conditions across the line.

Mr. McCuaig had not made a careful calculation, but he felt like stating that within the next five or six years the Canadian railways and other public works would demand an expenditure of well on to the immense sum of $500,000,000, and this, he thought, would be the great saving clause for the Dominion during the coming few years. He had, in fact, returned to Montreal thoroughly convinced that the financial and commercial position of the Dominion of Canada is now a long way superior to that of the country to the south of us.

POLICE

At yesterday's session of the police court the young men who pleaded guilty to stealing goods from the Canadian General Electric Works were present for sentence. The magistrate said that men working in a large factory employing thousands should try to back up their employers and show a sense of loyalty to the company. The oldest of the prisoners, an Englishman, was allowed to go on suspended sentence. The three younger men were told by his Worship that he considered their theft was more by way of an impulse. As the company had concluded to take them back to work, he would not put any obstacle on their future lives by even imposing a suspended sentence. He thought the lesson they had had would be a sufficient warning, and then discharged them.

May Refuse the Quakers Permission to Compete

It is very probable that the competitions for the People's Shield, emblematic of the soccer championship of Canada, will be confined strictly to the western teams, and that the Ontario eleven who are counting on making the trip to Vancouver this spring will find considerable opposition from the Ontario Association, the parent organization and controlling body in Ontario. There is a feeling among the officers of the latter organization that the O. F. A. has been slighted by the donors of the shield, in not placing a representative of the latter on the Board of Trustees.

It is felt that the Ontario teams should have some say in the handling of the trophy game, if they are to be truly representative of the Canadian championship, with eastern teams competing. At present the trustees are, with one exception, western men. It is said that until the change is made the O. F. A. will refuse to grant the teams under their jurisdiction permission to compete in the Shield competitions, thus cutting off the proposed trips of the Peterborough Quakers, champions of the Midland League, and the All Saints' eleven, intermediate champions of Toronto.

The deceased was born at Point Levis, Quebec, and came to this city when about 12 years of age, and had resided here ever since. He was highly esteemed by all who knew him and his death is deeply regretted by a large number of friends.

He does his wife, one son and three daughters are left to mourn his loss. The son is William of this city, and the daughters are Mrs. Wm. West and Misses Evalina and Clara at home. The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon at three o'clock from the family residence to St. Peter's Cathedral, and thence to the Roman Catholic cemetery.

Portfolios for Hon. Adam Beck and R. R. Gamey

Toronto, March 13.—There is said to be good foundation for the story that the Hon. Adam Beck is to be given a newly-created portfolio, that of Minister of Power. Premier Whitney has declined to discuss the matter. It is known that Mr. Beck is to have a hard time in London, as another Conservative and former candidate, Mr. Gray, is in the field. The Niagara Power problem may at any moment involve a large expenditure, and it is thought that this should be handled by a department rather than a commission.

Mr. Gamey is also having trouble in his riding, and has not been near the Parliament Buildings for some days. It is said that the Department of Lands, Forests and Mines is to be divided to give him a portfolio, but not until he has proved his claim to it by winning the next general election contest.

Bush is Being Searched for Two Brothers by Name of Greco

Victim will Likely Die

Hamilton, March 13. — Tony Ruzzo, the young Italian, who was stabbed by a fellow-countryman near Dundas last night, lies dying at the City Hospital, the result of a knife thrust that left a gaping wound in his abdomen, and pierced the bowels. The victim was almost dead from the loss of blood when brought to Hamilton on the midnight car from the valley town, and although he rested fairly well last night the hospital authorities hold out little hopes this morning for his recovery.

Warrants are out for two Italians charged with attempted murder. They are Bruno Greco, 27 years of age, and his brother, Guiseppe Greco, 20 years of age. They are both said to have been implicated in the stabbing.

Although the police could discover no motive, and the victim is too weak to speak, they are satisfied as the result of an investigation that two men who have so far eluded capture, deliberately planned to murder Ruzzo. The men were all employed in Doolittle's quarry at Dundas. While Ruzzo and an Italian named Mandrello who lives in a little shack on the edge of the town, were cooking supper last night, there was a knock on the door, and both men responded. The police say someone with a stiletto which he had concealed behind his back made a lunge at Ruzzo. Mandrello tried to ward off the blow but the other assailant knocked his arm down with a club. As Ruzzo sank to the floor, the attackers disappeared and have not been seen since. It is believed that they may have escaped across the border on a freight train.

Chief Twiss of Dundas sent out descriptions of the Greeos, and a thorough search of the bush will be made to-day.

Huntsville Man Fell To His Death From the Roof

J. H. Jackson, a Former Resident of Oshawa, Meets with Sad Death

Wife Came From Orillia

Huntsville, March 13 — Huntsville has been thrown into a state of utter gloom this morning by the sudden and tragic death of one of her most respected citizens, Mr. J. H. Jackson, the jeweller. Mr. Jackson went up on the roof of his residence last night to remove some ice, and while adjusting the ladder slipped and fell twenty feet to the platform below and thence to the ground. His body struck an electric wire in its descent and was so tilted that the unfortunate man landed on his head. Neighbors witnessed the accident and assisted in carrying the unconscious form into the house, but the spark of life ended an hour later without consciousness having been regained.

Mr. Jackson came to Huntsville about eight years ago from Orillia, where he was head jeweller for Mr. Madden. He conducted a successful business here and was recognized as one of the best and most highly respected of our citizens.

The deceased spent his early life at Oshawa, where his parents still live. The funeral arrangements are being made and interment will likely take place at Oshawa on Sunday.

Mrs. Jackson, who was formerly Miss Mallard, of Orillia, and her three little daughters, Muriel, Dorothy and Helen, are left to mourn the loss of a loving and devoted husband and father.

Western Canada Has Room for 20 Million Americans

St. Louis, March 13.—Redmond P. Roblin, Premier of Manitoba and Minister of Agriculture, stopped in St. Louis yesterday on his way to Oklahoma and Texas for an outing after the close of a long and arduous session of Parliament.

In talking of the farming possibilities of Western Canada he stated that "the prairie provinces in Manitoba, Alberta and Saskatchewan, have room for twenty million Americans as fast as they can be conveyed there by the railroads."

He said: "These three provinces ten years ago had fewer than 400,000 persons. They have now passed the million mark."

500 People Seriously Ill After Church Social

Upper Sandusky, Ohio, March 13.—Five hundred people were made ill from ptomaine poisoning here last night at a social given by the ladies of the English Lutheran Church after eating chicken and waffles. Many of the people were so taken ill until after they had gone home.

Where the finest biscuit, cake, hot-breads, crusts or puddings are required Royal is indispensable.

Rare Opportunity in Canadian Oil

"Oil is King" is an expression often heard and in these days of immense fortunes made by those who got and know how to use opportunities for investment in oil properties, either personally or as shareholders in companies having the same. Oil is a staple commodity with a greater demand than supply, and the world at large must have it and its equally valuable by-products.

The Tilbury oil fields, as soon as known to be rich in petroleum, were quickly exploited by American capitalists, who have made and are making fortunes out of the investments. Now, the Canadian Southern Oil & Gas Co., Ltd., has secured a most reasonable terms options on some of the best properties, already proven to be most valuable in the Tilbury Gas and Oil fields, viz., Lot No 12, M. R. N., Tilbury, 100 of 200 acres. This is no mere experimental prospect but a proven oil producing property, as shafts have already been drilled to a depth of some 1,400 feet, which are rich in oil and gas.

The company has franchises from the municipalities and sale of their natural gas in surrounding villages and townships. The gas well of the company is already supplying motor power in the Romney oil field, and gets one-third of the gross revenues of the gas sold. The equipment of the company is of modern type, and their oil is now sold through the Imperial Oil Co. of Sarnia, by its pipe lines to the P. M. R. R., only three miles distant. This company is admirably located to sell its products to advantage, and will undoubtedly reap rich profits. The company is now offering a limited block of their stock at 75 cents per share, par value $1 each. Subscriptions, 10 per cent. with order, and the balance on allotment, will be deposited with the Dominion Bank, Tilbury, Ont., where the purchase agreement of the property is now deposited in safe keeping. A good local representative is wanted.

Examine Your Tongue

Is It Coated?

No medicine could do more than Dr. Hamilton's Pills did for Wm. Martin, a well-known lumberman of Parry Sound, Ont., who says: "I consider that Dr. Hamilton's Pills make the best all round medicine. My stomach got disordered and all kinds of complications set in. My blood grew thin, my color got pale and I had the worst kind of headaches. The food I ate all disagreed with me and I was constantly bilious and suffering from acute dyspepsia. A wonderful change took place when I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills; they gave me appetite and strong digestion. I had no more bad dreams, no sick stomach or headache. I was in fact like a new man and will always recommend and use Dr. Hamilton's Pills."

It's the people who feel half-sick—sort of tired and depressed, for those who have any ailment of the stomach, kidneys or liver that Dr. Hamilton's Pills are sure to benefit at once. Try them, 25c. per box at all dealers, and insist on having only Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut. In yellow boxes only.

Call the doctor—what does he do first? Examines your tongue.

If it's pale, flabby-looking and coated, he knows the activity of your stomach is lowered.

Your overworked stomach is on strike. It refuses to secrete pepsin enough to act upon the food. Refuses also to secrete acid enough to enable the peptic secretion to do its work.

What's the result—dyspepsia, heartache, sick all over.

How do you expect to be well, to look well, to sleep well, if your system is impaired?

Better patch up the weak spot.

Give to the stomach the assistance it requires—or in other words try Dr. Hamilton's Pills which cure more weak stomachs than any other medicine you know of.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills put the kind of life into a weak stomach that enables it to digest and assimilate all kinds of food.

Shepherd Arrested

Some two or three weeks ago what is supposed to have been a case of passing bogus cheques on a local merchant, was known both to the police and the Times, on which was hushed up in an endeavor to locate and arrest the alleged passer of the cheques.

The cheques in question were for four amounts, the first being for $10.50 and the second for $25. The cheques were presumably drawn by Mr. William Snowdon, ex-proprietor of the Snowdon House, Charlotte St., and endorsed by George Shepherd. It is alleged that Shepherd, who was for some months clerk at the Snowdon House, working for Mr. Fraser, the present proprietor of that hotel, took the cheque into Mr. M. Pappas's cigar store on the west side of George street, near Charlotte street, and asked him to cash it. Mr. Pappas, knowing Mr. Snowdon to be perfectly "good" as regards his cheque, cashed the same. A day or two after said that Shepherd brought him another cheque for $25 with the same signature and endorser, and Mr. Pappas, who had not in the meantime cashed the first cheque at the bank, gave Shepherd the $25 on the second one. Shepherd left the city at once, and was supposed to have gone either to Bellville, Cobourg, where his wife is engaged at work in a hotel, or to Montreal. Chief Rossel got the telegraph wires busy, but for some time without result. How ever, yesterday he received a message from the chief of police at Port Hope, notifying him that Shepherd was under arrest in the lakeside town awaiting the arrival of a Peterborough officer.

Shepherd will also have another charge to face, namely, obtaining a watch from Mr. C. S. McClelland, the Water street jeweller, under false pretences. It seems that Shepherd, after working at the Snowden House, spent some weeks in Nicholls Hospital with typhoid fever. Shortly after leaving the hospital and about the same time the forged cheques were passed on Mr. Pappas, entered Mr. McClelland's store, and wanted to see some watches. He said he had just got out of the hospital and was working again at the Snowden House. He claimed to have given his watch to his wife, and required another. Shepherd produced some money, but said owing to his expenses at the hospital, could not pay well pay for a watch with "spot cash." He picked out a watch worth some $18 or $20, and promised to pay the whole amount or at least most of it on the first pay day, adding that Mr. Fraser had advised him to go to Mr McClelland to buy his watch. The first pay day would be in about two weeks according to the story told the jeweller. A few hours after getting the watch, Shepherd returned to Mr. McClelland's store and wanted to see a better quality of watch. He got a better one, at the same time paying $6 on account. The same evening Mr. McClelland having occasion to enter the Snowden House to regulate the hall clock, casually asked Mr. Fraser, the proprietor, how Shepherd liked his watch. Mr. Fraser said he knew nothing about the watch and that Shepherd was not working for him. Mr. McClelland at once notified the police and swore out a warrant.

A Dream

The Awakening Reality Less Rosy

"Far back in my childhood I hold pleasant memories of the coffee berry in its natural state, and its grateful aroma when roasting over the kitchen fire," writes a venerable N. H. lady.

"Although the old house is gone and a new one stands in its place, I often see in my dreams, the little coffee grinder by the window, and grind again the coffee for breakfast.

"But time passed on and the pleasure of indulgence in coffee was wholly lost in the ill effects on my nervous system. I was troubled with frequent and severe spells of headache which sadly interfered with my work.

"My sleep was less sound than formerly and nightmare often disturbed my restful slumbers, until at last insomnia held me in its relentless grasp, I would lie awake nearly all night.

"Other troubles set in until I was pronounced incurable by several of our best physicians. They all prohibited the use of coffee. I was indeed like one under the spell of the drink habit, but I obeyed implicitly my medical advisers, for I had become a great sufferer.

"A friend who had been greatly benefited by changing from coffee to Postum, gave me a cup of this health beverage to try. I found its flavor pleasant, while at the same time it agreed with me perfectly; in fact, seemed just what was needed to build me up.

"I ordered some at once, but was disappointed to find mine did not taste like my friend's—I had not boiled it long enough. After I had learned this fact and made my Postum according to directions I had uniform, satisfactory results.

"Well, to make a long story short, I seemed to have found Ponce de Leon's fountain of youth, for my friends remarked that I was growing young. My mind became clearer and more vigorous, and I took up the work which I had reluctantly laid aside, and much more with it.

"If my case was incurable, as the good doctors had said, I had at least found something to allay my insomnia sufferings, and serve for real nourishment when appetite failed. Nearly five years have passed since I drank my first cup of Postum and I am as much in love with it no-day as ever." "There's a Reason."

CURED PAINFUL IRREGULARITIES

Strong Testimony From a Lady Resident of Clarksburg, Proving That Ferrozone Surpasses All Other Remedies.

The health of many women is constantly imperilled through failure of certain organs to work according to nature's requirements.

Where this condition occurs there is no safer remedy to employ than Ferrozone, which has a specific action in female troubles.

Not only does it act directly on the organs, ensuring regularity and freedom from pain, but by forming rich red blood fortifies the system against weakening drains.

FERROZONE MAKES STRONG WOMEN

Ferrozone possesses a volume of merit totally absent in the ordinary medicine, and its superiority is proclaimed by thousands of women it has restored to vigorous health. From Mrs. F. G. Caldwell comes the following endorsement, written from her home in Clarksburg: "I went through a most trying experience with what is commonly known as 'Female Trouble.' It isn't necessary to state my symptoms, but I suffered a great deal. My health was well nigh ruined, and I got into such a condition that I couldn't even sleep. I was dreadfully nervous, weak and pale. Different prescriptions were recommended and I tried them. But Ferrozone was the first to help. I improved steadily under Ferrozone, and normal conditions were finally established. I gained weight, my color and spirits improved, and my former health was restored. Ferrozone cured me, and with a full heart I recommend this good medicine to all other women."

Beware of imitations—don't allow a druggist to palm off anything else for Ferrozone, which costs 50c. per box or six boxes for $2.50 at all dealers.

CAPITAL PUNISHMENT

By a vote of 31 to 17, the New York Board of Education has destroyed the market for the birch or hickory in the public schools of that city. A resolution re-introducing corporal punishment was defeated on a majority of four, after a warm debate, and after Superintendent Maxwell had endorsed the proposal. In defence of his position the Superintendent said:—

"The school teacher must be the embodiment of gentleness and firmness. In order to accomplish effective work she must have obedience. The disobedient pupils are generally in a small minority, but when they are bad they are very bad. I approve of the plan to deal summarily with this minority by, so doing, the great majority is safeguarded. If it is to devolve, however, upon one principle to do all the flogging for a big school I cannot say that I would relish the task of flogger. But discipline must be maintained and I do not think that the punishment it is proposed to inflict is too severe."

The teachers present are said to have manifested their concurrence in the words uttered by Mr. Maxwell. Does it not look as if the race were retrograding rather than progressing, when we find a man who occupies as prominent a position in the educational world as Superintendent Maxwell, tenaciously clinging to the idea that prevailed but a century ago, that to make a pupil obey, it is necessary for the teacher to inflict corporal punishment. The modern, the humane and as well the effectual and beneficial method is to educate the boys and girls in the original significance of the word, to evoke their enthusiastic interest in their work, and win their love. It has been found that teachers who govern in this way have no disobedient pupils to cause them trouble.

The heathen are still in the majority according to a map showing the comparative number of the followers of the several religions of the world which the Presbyterian's Men's Foreign Missionary Society, lately in session in Philadelphia, was invited to study. These latest figures are as follows:—Jews, 11,227,000; Greeks, 120,157,000; Protestants, 166,666,500; Mohammedans, 216,630,000; Roman Catholics, 273,633,500; heathen, 536,732,000, or more than all the others put together. This is something to think over.

Remember that when the stomach nerves fail or weaken, Dyspepsia or Indigestion must always follow. But, strengthen these same weak inside nerves with Dr. Shoop's Restorative, and then see how quickly health will again return. Weak Heart and Kidney Nerves can also be strengthened with the Restorative, when Heart pains, palpitation, or Kidney weakness is found. Don't drug the Stomach, nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys. That is wrong. Go to the cause of these ailments. Strengthen these weak inside nerves with Dr. Shoop's Restorative and get well. A simple, single test will surely tell. All dealers.

THE SQUARE ROOT OF 2

No One Has Yet Succeeded In Extracting It Accurately.

SOME IMPOSSIBLE PROBLEMS

The Effort to Cultivate a Blue Rose, the Search For Absolute Zero, the Perpetual Motion Phantom and the Squaring of the Circle.

There died in the year 1902 in St Felix, a small village in the department of Haute Garonne, in France, a wealthy octogenarian horticulturist, who spent the last forty-five years of his life and a sum variously estimated at from £12,000 to £15,000 in attempting to produce by artificial cultivation a blue rose.

He failed, and for the best of reasons—the task is one impossible of accomplishment. As De Candolle, a great authority on this subject, has pointed out, yellow and blue are the fundamental types of color in flowers, and these colors are antagonistic, mutually excluding each other. Yellow by culture may be changed into red or white, but never into blue. On the other hand, blue will pass into red, but never into yellow. We have a yellow rose; hence there is no blue.

The pursuit of the absolute zero point is to chemists what the discovery of the north pole is to geographers. Ever since Fahrenheit in 1724 broached the problem scientists innumerable have striven to reach the goal in vain, although each, in turn, has succeeded in outdistancing the other.

Thus Fahrenheit boasted that no one could ever attain artificially to a greater degree of cold than he produced with salt and ice—seven degrees below zero—although, of course, he did not suppose that cold ended there. Yet, within a few years of his death, over 100 degrees below had been obtained, and Professor James Dewar, whose researches in the field of low temperatures have brought out so many new and startling facts, succeeded by cooling down the rare gas helium by the aid of liquefied hydrogen in registering the almost inconceivable temperature of 422 degrees below zero F. But this is not absolute zero, and the problem remains unsolved.

Here and there, in odd corners of the earth, gray, bent men still pore over crucibles seeking the philosopher's stone—that mysterious and wonderful substance which will, they believe, when found change the baser metals into gold. It never will be found, of course, for such a substance, in the nature of things, can have no concrete existence. Nevertheless for hundreds of years the best brains and keenest intellects in Christendom sought it early and late.

Nor were their labors wholly wasted, for it was while searching for this mythical treasure that Botteher stumbled on the secret of the manufacture of porcelain; Roger Bacon on that of the composition of gunpowder; Geber on the properties of acids; Van Helmont on the nature of gas, and Dr. Glauber on the "salts" which bear his name. After a similar fashion, too, the three century long hunt for the elixir of life bequeathed to us a whole host of valuable remedial drugs and was the means indirectly of saving or, at all events, prolonging literally millions of lives.

So also as the result of the vain search after perpetual motion, there was evolved the greatest of all the generalizations of modern physical science, the principle of the conservation of energy, and even now more or less important discoveries are being constantly stumbled on by seekers after the same perennial will-o'-the-wisp. For let it be by no means imagined that the perpetual motion cranks are all dead and gone. On the contrary, they are probably fully as numerous and as sanguine today as they were in the time of Leibnitz or Newton.

Of course the thing is impossible and has been proved so over and over again, but that does not deter them. Only the other day a man turned up at the office of a well known patent agent with a model of a perpetual motion machine which depended for its proper working upon the interception of gravitational attraction.

The principle of the invention, the inventor was good enough to explain, was simplicity itself. The only thing that remained to be done, he ingenuously remarked, was to find the proper material for an interceptor. Is it possible to conceive of human folly going further than this?

Among mathematicians the two most famous unsolvable problems are the trisection of the angle and the duplication of the cube. Men have toiled at one or the other, sometimes at both, of these for fifteen, twenty, thirty years, only to retire at last baffled and beaten. Their calculations and methods of work have in many instances been published to the world, but the subject is too abstruse to attempt to do more than merely touch upon it in a popular article of this kind.

It is somewhat startling, however, to find that even figures, just plain, ordinary arithmetical figures such as are easily understandable by any modern board school boy, have given rise to problems quite as incapable of solution as any of those springing out of the higher mathematics.

No one, for instance, has yet succeeded in extracting the square root of 2, although Dr. W. H. Colvill, a civil surgeon of Bagdad, succeeded in working it out to no fewer than 110 places of decimals, and, moreover, his titanic sum has been proved to be absolutely correct, so far as it goes. Here is the result, in case some reader should be seized with an irresistible desire to carry it a stage or two further:

Undoubtedly, however, of all the now admittedly unsolvable figure problems which have from time to time occupied the attention of mathematicians the most famous is that generally known as squaring the circle. The time and energy thrown away upon it in days gone by are simply amazing. A Dutch professor, Jacob Marcellis by name, worked at it for forty-three years and came at last to the conclusion that the circumference contained the diameter exactly times. He was wrong. Another notable computer, one Ludolph van Ceulen, continued his calculations as long as he lived and at his death had the result inscribed on his tombstone at St. Peter's church, Leyden.

Yet a third enthusiast worked out the calculation to more than 700 places of decimals and even then did not get so near as Peter Metius, who guessed at his answer. This latter lucky gentleman asserted that the diameter is to the circumference as 113 is to 355. This is so nearly right that the error would be less than a foot in a circle with a 2,000 mile radius.

For a long time this approximation was as near as any one got, but in 1863 a lady mathematician went one better. Here is her formula: "From three diameters deduct eight thousandths and seven millionths of a diameter, and to the result add 5 per cent." We have then not quite enough, but the shortage is only at the rate of about an inch and a sixteenth of an inch in 14,000 miles. Finally, an Englishman named Shanks succeeded in reducing by more than one-half even this well nigh infinitesimal error, and there for the present the matter rests.

It may be of interest to note, however, that some little while back a man made a great hubbub in London because he had not obtained the reward which he alleged had been offered for the discovery of the correct solution, although he claimed to have arrived at it. He said he did it by actual measurement, and it was found on investigation that he had constructed a boxwood disk of twelve inches in diameter which he rolled along a straight rail. The man was a joiner by trade and evidently knew well what he was about when he measured, for his answer, 3.140025, is wrong by less than one in 3,000.

INDIA'S WHITE ANTS.

Only One Kind of Wood, Sandal, Can Withstand Their Attacks.

Insects of various kinds are a perennial plague to Indian dwellers, tea growers and others.

The tea bushes in the Assam gardens have no less than four destructive enemies, from which no means of escape has yet been devised by man. These are the bark eating borer, the sandwich caterpillar, the mosquito and the white ant, all of which attack the bush and do immense damage.

By far the worst of these plagues is the white ant, the mosquito merely attacking the leaves and causing a blight. The ants, however, begin at the roots and eat upward, reducing the wood to powder and leaving only the bark to support the top, which soon topples over by reason of its own weight.

There is no Indian wood which would resist the ants' insidious attack except sandal. It delights in reducing pine and white wood to a powder. It cannot work in the light, but must get at the wood from some dark recess and work within a shell.

In some mysterious way the white ant gets indoors and has a particular penchant for penetrating into a veneered or lacquered picture frame, and in a short time nothing will remain but the veneer or lacquer, nothing else being left but a small portion of the powder, the rest being consumed or removed.

The method of attack is by emitting a kind of acid, which destroys the wood. And this ant has been known to bore holes through the sheet iron bottoms of trunks. Several long, supporting joists in a consular building in Calcutta were eaten out so completely that they had to be replaced with steel ones.

While these destructive white ants do not seem to possess much literary taste, they sometimes attack books and destroy them by boring holes through leaves and cover from side to side.

An English resident in an Indian city had a fine set of upholstered furniture, which he protected by some covering as well as he could before leaving his home for an absence of some months on business, and when he returned he sat down in a chair, which collapsed under him like a framework of cardboard.

Literary Coincidences.

Tennyson said of a strange literary coincidence, "A Chinese scholar some time ago wrote to me saying that in an unknown untranslated Chinese poem there were two whole lines of mine almost word for word." Byron in his monody on the death of Sheridan, where he says there will never be another Sheridan, the mold being broken up, employs, word for word, terms in which an ancient Sanskrit document refers to the death of Maru, notwithstanding that Byron could never have seen the document. Shakespeare's passage about love and lightning in "Romeo and Juliet," ii, 2, is almost identical with a quotation from "Malata and Madhava," an Indian poem by Bhavabuti, written nine centuries before and not translated up to Shakespeare's time.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

TORTURING SKIN DISEASE Afflicted this bright little girl

Mrs. F. Miners, of 311 Suffolk Street, Guelph, Ont., says: "A year since, while living in Oshawa, Ont, my little daughter Lorinda, six years of age, contracted a skin disease on the upper part of her body. This first broke out like tiny water blisters, afterwards taking the form of dry scabs. These would disappear for a short time and then reappear worse than ever. The clothes coming in contact with the skin set up such a severe irritation that it was impossible to keep her from scratching. We tried various preparations and healing lotions yet obtained no good results until we began using Zam-Buk. With each application the irritation and soreness was greatly relieved, and the child rested easier. Thro' continued using, the eruptions and scabs fast disappeared and in a short space of time the skin was completely cleared from the disease. It is now some months since we used Zam-Buk, and there being no sign of any more eruptions breaking out on her body, we believe Zam-Buk has worked a complete cure."

"Keep Zam-Buk handy" is a sound home motto. Daily mishaps make Zam-Buk a daily need, and to treat one's skin troubles with this pure healing balm means speedy relief from smarting pain as well as from itching and inflammation.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

Any even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Application for entry must be made in person by the applicant at a Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-agency for the district in which the land is situate. Entry by proxy may, however, be made at an Agency on certain conditions by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

The homesteader is required to perform the homestead duties under one of the following plans:

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each on and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) A homesteader may, if he so desires, perform the required residence duties by living on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of his homestead. Joint ownership in land will not meet this requirement.

(3) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of a homesteader has permanent residence on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of a homestead, or upon a homestead entered for by him in the vicinity, such homesteader may perform his own residence duties by living with the father or mother.

(4) The term "vicinity" in the two preceding paragraphs is defined as meaning not more than nine miles in a direct line exclusive of the width of road allowances crossed in the measurement.

(5) A homesteader intending to perform his residence duties in accordance with the above while living with parents or on farming land owned by himself must notify the agent for the district of such intention.

Six months' notice in writing must be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa, of intention to apply for patent.

Deputy of the Minister of the Interior.

CANADA'S EARLY DAYS

PRICES OF SIXTY YEARS AGO IN UPPER CANADA.

Former Clerk of Ontario Legislature Gives Interesting Reminiscences—Cherries at Twenty-Five Cents a Tree—Venison Four Cents a Pound—Farm Stock of 1844 Was Inferior—Simple Home Life.

Mr. Charles Clarke, late clerk of the Ontario Legislature, has issued a very readable historical work entitled "Sixty Years in Upper Canada." It was in June of 1844 that Mr. Clarke arrived at Port Robinson, on the Welland canal, and very interesting are his reminiscences of those pioneer days.

"Food," he says, "partook of a simplicity similar to that of dress. Salt meat, eggs and potatoes were the staple edibles after bread. Fresh meat, in country parts, was at some seasons a comparative luxury. Veal was obtainable in spring, mutton in summer, and beef or pork in the fall and winter months, while poultry was generally marketed as soon as possible after the fattening stubbles were exhausted.

Ten Dollar a Pound.

"Fancy groceries were actual luxuries. I have seen currants sold at three yorkers (37 1-2 cents) a pound, and raisins, of a poorer quality than we now see, often commanded a 'quarter.' Tea was dear, although duties were low, and frequently brought a dollar, and coffee, cheaper in proportion, was more freely used.

"Native fruits were cheap. Peaches were bought off the tree in the Niagara district for twenty-five cents per bushel; apples had little commercial value, and cherries could be had in the rural localities in the Niagara district at twenty-five cents 'a tree,' the purchaser picking off the fruit.

"Ale and beer were obtainable, of drinkable quality, in town, but little of either reached country parts. Cider was often used, the most desirable being 'frozen,' so that the watery element was largely eliminated and a very potent intoxicant produced. Whiskey, the common drink of the country, could be had at any of the numerous distilleries by the barrel, at sixteen or twenty cents the gallon, and there were few 'bees,' 'loggings,' or 'raisings' at which it was not more freely dispensed than water, and there was a prevalent opinion that it was much more wholesome.

"Venison, now a luxury, was a common article of food in many sections, and obtainable at three or four cents per pound. Maple sugar and molasses were as common an article for trading transactions in country stores as home-made straw hats, butter, tallow, dried apples, timothy seed, woolen socks, whittled butter ladles, bowls and axe-helves."

Many a Mongrel Breed.

Mr. Clarke discourses entertainingly of the farm stock of those days.

"If cows were 'mixed,' swine, the pork factors, were as ugly as that famous possessor of them who drove them pell-mell into the sea, and were manes as do the wild boars of the German forest. Sheep were of a degenerate Merino breed, small in size and of little value for mutton, and the selling price, minus the skin, was often as low as one dollar the carcase. Cattle were sometimes large when at four or five years of age, they reached maturity, but even then were bony, coarse and more of active than adipose tendencies."

This is some of Mr. Clarke's early history. He would probably say himself that it is of less value than the review of political events which follows. That may be so, for many a reminiscence of Legislative halls has been gathered within the pages of this book. But the records of the simple home life of bygone days should never lack for listeners, and this writer has spread them before the public very entertainingly.

"Swap" National Relics.

A "swap" in national relics is suggested by Mr. W. W. Fox of Toronto, who recently visited New Jersey. Mr. Fox has discovered an old cannon, which was once the property of the British forces, and has had altogether an adventurous career before it found a resting place in Elizabeth, N.J. For years United States tourists visiting the Citadel at Quebec have cast envious eyes on an old cannon which is kept there as a relic, and which bears the inscription: "Captured by the British army at Bunker Hill, June 17, 1775." It seem to have been one of the four cannon which constituted the whole train of field artillery possessed by the colonies at the commencement of the war in 1775.

The gun at Elizabeth, N.J., was cast in Strassburg in 1758, and was sent by Louis XV., King of France, to Canada for the defence of Quebec. Upon the surrender of that place in the following year the gun fell into the hands of the British. In April, 1760, the French recaptured it, and in May the British retook it. In the fall of 1775 it aided in the repulse of the continental forces under Gen. Richard Montgomery, who was mortally wounded while attempting to recapture it. In June, 1779, Sir Henry Clinton captured Stony Point, and a month later Gen. Anthony Wayne retook it, finding this gun among the trophies. Gen. Washington presented the piece to troops from Elizabeth who had acted as a reserve, and it was taken to Elizabeth soon after.

Canadian Bounties.

Canada has paid, during the twelve years that the bounties on iron and steel have been in existence, $5,106,223 as bounty on pig iron; on steel ingots $4,459,225; on articles manufactured from steel, such as rolled angles, plates and wire rods, $1,241,473. The bounty upon lead amounting to $742,843. During the last four years there has been paid out in bounties on the production of crude petroleum a sum of $1,204,135.

Sulphur and Silver.

When one takes sulphur internally it causes a gas, called sulphureted hydrogen, to be given off by the skin. This blackens silver; hence when taking sulphur it is wise not to wear silver trinkets.

Peter the Great.

A Royal Wedding Feast.

When Violante Visconti was married to Duke Lionel, son of Edward III. of England, at Milan, the wedding dinner consisted of eighteen courses, including suckling pigs, fish, hares, veal, quail, partridge, trout, beef, capons, lamb, chickens, carp, peacocks, ducks, cheese and cherries. Some of the fish and game were incrusted in gold.

Marie Antoinette.

A small round bathtub invented for the use of Marie Antoinette still bears her name. The dauphinesse used in her baths a decoction of wild thyme and marjoram, to which was added sea salt.

The Simplon Tunnel.

The Simplon tunnel, twelve and a quarter miles in length, is the longest in the world.

To Get Rid of Mice.

To do away with mice a mixture of equal parts of flour and plaster of paris is said to be excellent. No moisture is applied to the powders, but all food is put away and the mixture left on a plate where the mice will get it. After one repast they return no more.

The Sandwich Islands.

While the Sandwich Islands were nominally Christian territory in 1862, they have since reverted to heathenism through the influx of Chinese, Japanese and Koreans as well as many Mexicans.

Asbestus Shingles.

Asbestus shingles made of asbestus fiber and cement absorb 5 per cent of their weight in water.

Silk Culture.

Piedmont, Italy, produces about three times as many cocoons as any other Italian province and in proportion to its size is perhaps the most prolific silkworm district of the world.

Velvet.

In connection with the insistently clinging character of velvet it may be noted that this stuff takes its name from the Italian "velluto," shaggy, offering in this respect a parallel with "satin," which comes from the Latin "seta," a bristle.

The Largest Monastery.

Coal.

The first mention made of the use of coal as a fuel is in the records of the abbey of Peterborough in the year 850 A. D., where is found an entry for twelve cartloads of "fossil fuel."

Winds in Arabia.

The whirling winds of Arabia sometimes excavate sand pits to the depth of 200 feet, the rim usually being three times that depth in diameter. A sand pit thus made may be entirely obliterated in a few hours and another excavated within a short distance of it.

Done to a Turn.

"Done to a turn" is said to have originated from the martyrdom of St. Lawrence. He was sentenced to be roasted alive on a gridiron. The story goes that during his torture he calmly requested the attendants to turn him over, as he was thoroughly roasted on one side; hence the phrase "Done to a turn."

Dolce Far Niente.

A German tourist expresses the opinion that doing nothing is the national occupation of Koreans.

Upholsterer of Notre Dame.

Luxembourg, the great French soldier, was called "the upholsterer of Notre Dame" from the number of captured flags he sent to be hung as trophies in that cathedral.

The Wasp Waist.

Professor Mosso has made discoveries in Crete showing the extreme antiquity of civilization in that island. Four thousand years ago the "wasp" waist, usually regarded as a modern fashion, was known to the women of Crete. They compressed their waists and wore stiffly spreading skirts. The women are shown to have turned up noses and an audacious expression.

The Long Parliament.

The long parliament lasted thirteen years. It was dissolved by Oliver Cromwell on April 20, 1653.

The Word "Dad."

It is probably not generally known that the word "dad," used by many children in place of "father," is the purest Welsh. The opening words of the Lord's prayer in Welsh are "Ein Dad."

Cough Sirup.

This cough sirup is easily made and very good: Take a small handful of dried hops and a small handful of dried borehound and put into a cup of cold water. Let this steep until the strength of the herbs is drawn out, then strain through a cloth. Add to this one cupful of honey and two cupfuls of sugar. Let this mixture boil until thick. Pour into a wide mouthed bottle or small jar, and it is ready for use. One teaspoonful every half hour until the cough is relieved.

The Part Electricity Is Said to Play In Their Formation.

The formation of hail through electrical action, according to the theory of scientists attached to the weather bureau at Washington, is an interesting and even wonderful process.

The wind draws out a cloud into a long, narrow strip. In that form, owing to the great amount of surface exposed to the air, the cloud evaporates rapidly, and the rapid evaporation produces intense cold. Dry particles of snow are then formed, and these, by friction with the water drops, quickly become charged with negative electricity. But the water drops themselves carry positive electricity, and, since negative attracts positive, a film of water is formed upon each snow particle and is instantly frozen into a layer of ice.

At this thickness its outer surface remains moist, the water not freezing there so rapidly, whereupon the electrical charge changes from negative to positive, and the particle is repelled by the water drops and driven to the outer parts of the cloud. Here the increased cold covers it with snow again, and friction charges it anew with negative electricity. Repulsion is now once more changed for attraction, and the particles rush back into the cloud, receiving upon their surfaces another film of water, which is turned into second ice layers.

Thus the growing hailstone darts zigzag through the clouds, piling up its alternate layers of snow and ice until gravitation gains control and sends it, with a jingling crowd of its fellows, spinning to the ground.

Canada's Waterways

Canada's canal and railway systems was the subject of an address by Mr. M. J. Butler, the jefficient Deputy Minister and Chief Engineer of Railways and Canals, before the May Court Club, in Queen's recently. Though in good part of a technical and statistical nature, the address was not only instructive but interesting. Mr. Collingwood Schreiber presided.

After enumerating the various canals in the Dominion with their location and distance, Mr. Butler discussed the various advantages of the system. Referring to th eSault Ste. Marie Canal, he said th eraffic upon it was tremendous and that th egrowth at that point was very great.

He spoke of th esuggestion to make improvements so that large vessels could come across the lake, down to Prescott, which would be made a storage port and would greieve pressure at Montreal and other places where storage was expensive.

All ships were now reported at Belle Isle by wireless telegraphy and it would be easy to know, just what cargoes might be expected and to arrange for as many barges at Prescott as would be needed. It was not necessary to enlarge the St. Lawrence canal, to ship size.

In regard to the Georgian Bay Canal, he said "I am fully convinced that if the largest lake vessels will be able to navigate upon it a solution of our transportation will be reached. Until the plans are before the country and have been pronounced upon by commercial and marine authorities, we should go slow and consider well what we are doing in view of the expenditure the construction of such a waterway would entail."

The speaker said that there were some enthusiasts who dreamed that the time would come when ships would be able to go from Liverpool to Port Arthur and vice versa, but that he was afraid it was only a dream. The type of Atlantic steamer was not such as to make it suitable for inland navigation. Canada had spent $91,000,000 in the construction of its canals and there was an expenditure of $1,730,000 a year for improvements and it would likely be more. Last year over 61,000,000 tons were transported, and the rate was about eighty-one one-hundredths of a mill per mile.

Here he took occasion to say that some people lost sight of the fact that the canals were kept up by the Government, and were not like railways, supposed to earn dividends for the shareholders.

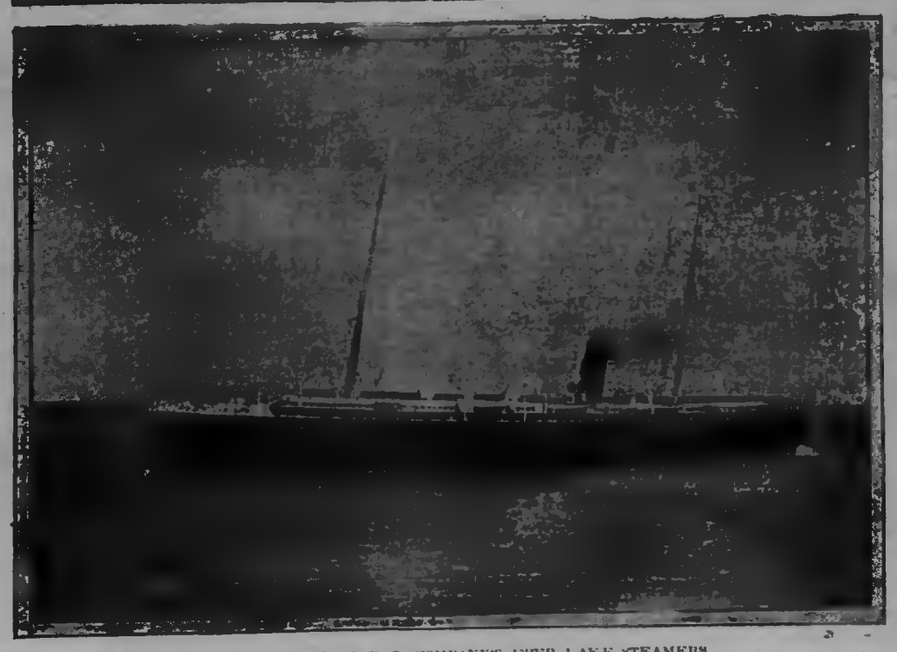
Taking up the subject of railways, Mr. Butler pointed out that they were available at all times and were able to handle all kinds of freight. In the Dominion there were in 1907, 172 railways with a mileage of 23,462, and a capital of $1,737,157,300.

The cost of construction per mile in Canada, it was shown, was $64,396, as compared with $78,437 in the United Kingdom, $67,936 in the United States, $66,726 in India, and $27,905 in Prince Edward Island.

It could safely be said that one in every six people in this country were directly or indirectly dependent upon railways for their living.

The Atlantic would probably continue to be the outlet for the trade of the country and the object was to reach it where possible at the least expense possible. Reference was made to the Transcontinental Railway, and the millions of acres of country, rich in agricultural and mineral wealth, which will be opened up by it. The grain transportation question was touched upon and Midland on the south-east shore of Georgian Bay, was declared to be a most suitable place as a storage port. Mr. Butler expressed the opinion that it was rash for a man to pronounce upon what a railway should be able to do before he knew what was the density of traffic and other specific conditions. Referring to railway legislation in Canada, he said:

"We have placed upon our statute books some of the most advanced legislation in the world in regard to railways. A railway commission has been at work for four years and has given splendid results, meriting the praise of everybody in the land." In conclusion he asserted that the agitation on this side during the car shortage was unwarranted and that to his mind it was due in good part to the fact that many American magazines and other periodicals containing articles of an inciting nature circulated in Canada.



ONE OF THE C. P. R. COMPANY'S UPER LAKE STEAMERS.

The C.P.R Will Double Track Between Lake Superion and Winnipeg

Will be Ready to Carry Down the Crop of 1908

Says Mr. Wm. Whyte

Montreal, March 11. — William Whyte, who arrived here to-day with Sir Daniel McMillan, en route for the Mediterranean, says that the coming season will witness the completion of two very important features of the C. P. R. policy in the west.

He refers to the double tracking of the spout between Lake Superior and Winnipeg, which will be ready, he declares, in time to be used in getting out the great crop of the present year. The vice-president also announces that the company's independent line to Edmonton from Portage la Prairie, will also be completed by this coming fall, so will also be a permanent feeding of Saskatchewan to the spring navigation, the west will have a bumper crop.

A Decidely Tempestuous Session

Toronto, March 11.—There was a decidedly tempestuous session of the Supreme Council of the Canadian Order of Foresters this morning. In many ways mind the disturbance and bitterness that has been in store during the sessions, which we held this morning, and it appears that at the noon hour quite wide apart the chief motive of discussion on certain matters to adjust improper conduct.

Mr. T. R. Young, Toronto, Supreme Vice-Leader, has held this office for two years, and in the usual course would have been elected Leader this time, it is said.

When the election came on this morning, how ver, Mr. Young stood that he had learned that a caucus held last night, charges of intemperance had been made against him, and that this was used as a reason for opposing his election to the position of head of the order. He denied the charge, and called on those who had made it, either to support it, or to withdraw it. Each was his reply, and a number of members arose to defend the character of the vice-leader. Rev. R. M. Phalen, Presbyterian minister at Hearing's Corners, and late Supreme Chaplain, made a vigorous speech, denouncing underhand work of this kind, and moved a vote of confidence in the man who had the charge. He would not countenance immoral conduct in the members, but he exclaimed, "In heaven's name, let the charge be made openly."

"It looks too much like the London election for my sentiment," said another speaker.

The elections resulted as follows: Supreme Leader, W. B. Graham, Toronto; Supreme Vice-Leader, J. R. Young, Toronto; Supreme Treasurer, W. H. Weston, Toronto; Supreme Secretary, J. M. Foster, Toronto; Supreme Chaplain, Rev. T. D. Boyle, Wingham; Supreme Marshal, W. G. Maybee, Winnipeg.

St. Andrew's Parlor Social

The "At Home" held at the home of Mrs. Mathers, 347 Charlotte street, last evening under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of St. Andrew's church, was a very successful event, a large number being present. The hostess had done everything desirable in the way of decoration and coupled with an excellent programme of music, solos and recitations, a fine evening was spent by those present. Those who took part were Mr. Duncan Campbell, Mr. Gordon Wright, Miss Greta Le Barr and Mrs. Davidson, assisted by Miss Ethel Tully, who presided at the piano.

The Rev. Mr. Potter, pastor of the church, moved a vote of thanks to those who took part on behalf of the Ladies' Aid Society. The evening closed by singing "God Save the King."

—Yesterday was the closest imitation of spring weather we have had this year. Still it is not yet safe to put your furs away with camphor balls.

WANTS TO MEET HARTLEY.

Tom Slater, of Buffalo, N.Y., who had the good luck to finish second in the big six-day walking contest at Kansas City, writes to David Hartley, the local pedestrian, asking for a race at about 50 miles.

JEFF A PROMOTER.

Los Angeles, March 12.—Jim Jeffries, heavyweight champion, is going to try the boxing game in Los Angeles. He is tired of looking at 10-round bouts, and has secured an option on a piece of land just outside the city limits, where he plans to erect a monster arena.

"I have backing from some of the richest men in town," said Jeffries to-day, "and unless plans miscarry, will have lights for a decision soon. These 10-round affairs are jokes. They lead to many free fights among the men who bet on them.

"I expect to go to Europe this summer. I want to take my wife over to Germany, but I expect to have the arena ready by then. Now, if Burns and Johnson will mix about that time, I will referee the fight, but it will cost them $5,000. Nothing less goes."

TURF TOPICS.

As a result of the unusual record made last year by James R. Keene's colt, Sysonby, it is reported he has been determined to change the conditions of the Great Republic Stakes at Saratoga. Up to this year the entrance penalty in that stake was five pounds, which would make the weight on a stake winning three year old 122 pounds. This year it is proposed to increase the penalty to ten pounds, making 125 pounds on a high class three year old, or exactly the weight for age, which an unpenalized four year old would carry.

The Carleton Stud. The Cup of year at which the race is run favors three year olds. Last season the only starters were three colts of that age. The conditions will be carefully altered, so as to attract a good field. Allowance to non-winning four year olds may be adopted also. The Saratoga Stakes will be made public in two weeks, to close on April 18.

FOR OLYMPIC FUND

New York, March 12. — A contribution of $500 from Yale to the fund which the American Olympic Committee is raising to make American participation in the Olympic games of 1908 a pronounced success was announced yesterday by Julian W. Curtiss, treasurer of the committee. Mr. Curtiss was notified of the contribution in a letter from Walter Camp in New Haven, advising him that the promise of this sum was the outcome of a meeting held at Yale the previous evening. The fund is to assist in defraying the expenses of the American team which will be sent abroad for the competition the coming summer.

Harry F. Porter, of the Irish-Canadians, won the handicap running high jump at the New York Athletic Club, doing 6 ft 2 1-4 inches.

Hamilton Y.M.C.A. basketball team, all C. A. A. U. men, left for Buffalo last night to play Buffalo Y.M.C.A. Wonder what Jimmy Czar Sullivan will do about it?

A meeting of the Amateur Athletic Federation of Canada has been called for Wednesday at Montreal, when the articles of agreement in the recent alliance with the A.A.U. will be ratified.

A TWO GAME SERIES.

Ottawa, March 12.—After a lengthy telephone conversation with Mr. Wm. Jennings, president of the Wanderer Hockey Club, Stanley Cup Trustee Wm. Foran made the following statement:

"I do not believe Wanderers will refuse to accede to the orders of the trustees in playing the regulation two matches against Toronto for the Stanley Cup. Of course, if the two clubs agree on a sudden death game, the trustees cannot interfere. Saturday or Monday are the dates named for the series, and I have no doubt whatever but what the matches will be played as scheduled. Neither club has yet appealed to the trustees for appointment of officials.

"It is generally conceded Wanderers will not refuse any orders of the trustees, and the Toronto team is assured of the usual two games for the series."

FAN FOOD.

Another catcher has been practically signed by the Toronto Club, but who he is even President McCaffery does not know. Manager Kelly said this morning that he had a good backstop in view, and to find on him nicely. "I guess he was a good man," said the president, "for he is costing us a goodly chunk."

Manager Duffy of Providence is after a big leaguer right-hand twirler. Already he has Frock, Shaw, Harry and Salve are southpaws, and only on will be carried.

Jim Sharkey, the well known local umpire, has purchased a liquor store at Queen and Niagara streets, and may not be able to spare the time to officiate on the diamond this season.

The Great Republic is now a race with $10,000 added. In its first two years it was a $50,000 guaranteed stake. James R. Keene has won the race three out of four years of its existence. Delhi, Sysonby and Ballot won, and all three were foaled at son. Jim is an Eastern League official, and a real good umpire.

Catcher Clarke of Cleveland will this season be equipped with a pair of guards such as hockey players wear, the kind that Bresnahan used, and which protect the knee as well as the shins. Of course, he will discard them while batting and running bases.

"Doc" Reading of Caldwell, Ohio, will manage the Reading, Pa., club of the Union Club. He was a star in the Tri-State for several years.

Jack Thoney is expected to sign a Boston contract within a few days. Manager Jim McGuire has been corresponding with him, and they have about reached an agreement.

Lew Criger, who next to Cy Young, is about one of the oldest men in the American League, is throwing the ball down to second base in practice at Little Rock like a youngster. Lew always comes back strong every year.

Bob Spade, of Akron, has had an option on by "Boss-setter" Reese, and feels that his throwing arm is better than ever. Spade made a good in the Southern League that he was secured by Cincinnati. Spade has had long minor league experience and should make good in the big league.

President McCaffery heard from Jimmy Cockman, Toronto's new third baseman, at his home in Guelph last night. Cockman expressed his pleasure at becoming the property of the Leafs, and hopes that the pennant will come to Toronto again. He is in good condition, and ready to get right down to business.

Philadelphia's new baseball stand will be the largest in the world on a baseball ground. It will seat 10,000 persons comfortably.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

NOW LISTEN!

Please read carefully what follows, and if you decide to take advantage of what the "Canada Southern Oil & Gas Co., Limited," of Tilbury, Ont (no personal liability), is now offering you, ths result will be that instead of getting 3 per cent. for your savings, you will get at least from 10 to 25 per cent. that others are harvesting.

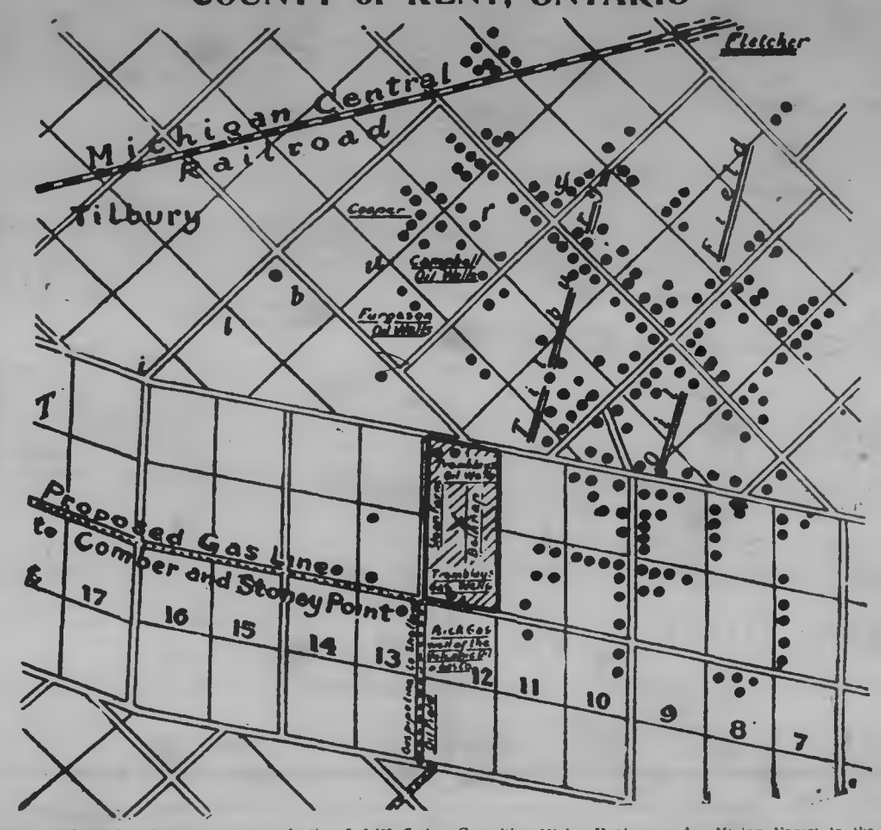
Your savings will be eight times more than the original amount by the mere fact of the higher rate of interest you will get.

Remember that this is no wildcat scheme, as you can see by the facts hereinafter mentioned.

Dr. Bell, the famous Canadian geologist, early in 1878 reported that there was an oil and gas field in the Townships of Tilbury and Romney, County of Kent, Ont. As soon as the discovery of the oil was made in Tilbury in 1906, our American neighbors, who are experts in good things, did not hesitate to invest hundreds of thousands of dollars, and now, in fact, control the two-thirds interest in our oil field of Tilbury; and this happened because we Canadians hesitated to invest a few thousand dollars in the exploration of the oil mines of Tilbury, which already give a monthly production valued at $75,000, without adding the revenue derived from the gas.

We have said that this is not a wildcat scheme, because the "Canadian Southern Oil & Gas Co., Limited," has secured an option at a very moderate price on properties situated in the oil and gas field of Tilbury, upon which three successful tests have been made, being Lot No. 12, M. R. N., Tilbury East, 200 acres, indicated with a cross upon the map of the field.

COUNTY of KENT, ONTARIO



Three wells only have been drilled at an average depth of 1,400 feet.

The first one proves to be a rich gas well, the two others are good oil wells, combined with a strong production of gas.

The Company has also secured the franchises for the distribution and sale of natural gas into the Townships of Romney, Tilbury East, North and West and also into the thriving villages of Comber and Stoney Point.

The gas well is properly equipped and already is supplying the motor power to the Romney oil field and is getting one-third of the gross revenue of the gas sold.

The oil wells are completely equipped with one 15 h. p. gas engine, derrick, tanks, boiler, pumps, tubing, pipe-line, jerk-line, jack, etc., and are producing daily. The oil is sold to The Imperial Oil Company, Sarnia, and is delivered at the tanks and shipped through its pipe-line to Port Marquette R. R. Station at Merlin, a distance of 2 miles.

Our properties are already giving daily a net revenue of about $35,00 —that is to say, more than 10 per cent. of the whole capital stock of the Company.

This revenue may be made four times greater by the drilling of other wells and the construction of the gas-line to Comber and Stoney Point.

Fritz Cirkel, Esq., of Montreal, consulting mining engineer and mining expert to the Dominion Government, who lately made an inspection of the said property, concluded his report as follows:

"In summarizing the actual results already obtained from the operations of the Sloan wells the writer is forced to the conclusion that the property under consideration is a very valuable one. Located as it is in the western extremity of the producing Tilbury oil field, in close proximity to wells which produce from 40 to 50 barrels of oil (and even more) per day of 24 hours (I refer to the Ferguson, Campbell and Cooper properties, located about 2,000 feet distant to the north, see plan attached hereto), it bids fair to become a producer of oil and natural gas of no small measure.

The Tilbury field has already the reputation of being a large producer and powerful companies have entered the district with a view of securing properties of known and established value.

There is one factor to which I would like to draw your special attention and that is the future of natural gas. To-day, the market in that in that part of the country, for this commodity is not sufficiently large to dispose of all the gas the wells can produce but there is no question that in the near future factories will be established on central points, which will eventually consume for various purposes, especially for power, all the gas which can be produced in the field.

Besides this there are quite a number of towns and villages in the western part of the Niagara Peninsula, which may use the gas for heating, lighting, and also for power purposes and it is only a question of time when this will be realized.

The economy of the application of natural gas to power purposes is already evidenced all through the field, as coal or any other power cannot be regularly obtained, and that at high figures. Having therefore, a powerful gas well on the (Sloan) property, it is evident that a great saving is effected from this source alone; for instance, for the operation of ten oil wells, the cost of power required per day would amount to between twenty and twenty-five dollars, which, in 300 working days per year, would represent a saving of from six thousand to seven thousand six hundred dollars.

In conclusion, I may say that this property, with proper and economic management, can be made highly remunerative; I entertain, no doubt, that if properly developed, it will show similar results as those of so many other locations in the vicinity, whose developments have of so many other locations in the vicinity, whose developments have been so vigorously pushed in the past.

Respectfully submitted,
(Signed) FRITZ CIRKEL.

Good coal stock is a safe and sure investment. Galbraith shares are especially attractive.

Modest Capitalization Large Coal Reserves

This Company organized under the laws of the Northwest Territories of Canada, owns and operates the Galbraith mine located at Lundbreck, Alta. They have four vertical seams of coal traversing their property, aggregating over 40 feet in thickness. Three of these seams are developed to a depth of 350 feet, and as they pass through the Company's lands for nearly a mile, some idea of the amount of coal may be had.

Shipping Steadily

The present output of the mine is about 200 tons per day. These shipments will be rapidly increased, as the C.P.R. allows its cars to be loaded with coal for points in the U. S.

Par value $1.00

What they offer at 25c per Share for a short time

The property is situated at Mancos, Colo., and consists of 160 acres, fully paid for. The Company expects to secure at least 400 acres or more, we are negotiating for it now and the terms are satisfactory and there is coal on the same, and they also intend to secure some Coal Mines of which they have the refusal. Some of the best coal mines in Colorado are in this district, as well as some of the richest gold and silver mines. In fact this is one of the richest parts for mineral in the State of Colorado, and the Company has the refusal to several prospects on reasonable and easy terms.

In our opinion the prospects of the Company are very bright, and a rapid advance in the price of the stock is sure to take place in the near future. Full information can be had by calling at our office.

"I apologize," said Mrs. Krill promptly, "and will not offend in that way again. I did not know you then, but since Mr. Hay has spoken about you to me I know and appreciate you, Mr. Beecot."

But Paul was not to be cajoled in this manner. The more suave the woman was, the more he felt inclined to be on his guard, and he very wisely obeyed the prompting of his instinct. "I fear you do not know me, Mrs. Krill," said he as coldly as Hay could have spoken, "else you would hardly ask me to discuss with you, of all people, the lady whom I intend to make my wife."

"You are rather a difficult man to deal with," she replied, drawing her thick white eyebrows together. "But I like difficult men. That is why I admire Mr. Hay. He is not a silly, useless butterfly like that young lord there."

"Silly he is not,—but I doubt his being useful. So far as I can see, Hay looks after himself and nobody else."

"He proposes to look after my daughter."

"So I understand," replied Beecot politely, "but that is a matter entirely for your own consideration."

Mrs. Krill still continued to smile in her placid way, but she was rather nonplused all the same. From the appearance of Beecot, she had argued that he was one of those many men she could twist round her finger. But he seemed to be less easily guided than she expected, and for the moment she was silent, letting her hard eyes wander toward the card table, round which sat the four playing an eager and engrossing game of bridge. "You don't approve of that, perhaps?"

"No," said Paul calmly; "I certainly do not."

"Are you a Puritan, may I ask?"

Beecot shook his head and laughed. "I am a simple man who tries to do his duty in this world," said he, "and who very often finds it difficult to do that same duty."

"How do you define duty, Mr. Beecot?"

"We are becoming ethical," said Paul, with a smile. "I don't know that I am prepared with an answer at present."

"Then the next time we meet, for I hope," said Mrs. Krill, smoothing her face to a smile—it had grown rather somber—"that we shall often meet again. You must come and see us. We have taken a house in Kensington."

"Chosen by Mr. Hay?"

"Yes. He is our mentor in London society. I don't think," added Mrs. Krill, studying his face, "that you like Mr. Hay."

"As I am Mr. Hay's guest," said Paul dryly, "that is rather an unkind question to ask."

"I asked no question. I simply make a statement."

Beecot found the conversation rather embarrassing. In place of his pumping Mrs. Krill, she was trying to pump him, which reversal of his design he by no means approved of. He changed the subject of conversation by drawing a powerfully attractive red herring across the trail. "You wish to speak to me about Miss Norman," he remarked.

"I do," answered Mrs. Krill, who saw through his design, "but apparently that subject is as distasteful as a discussion about Mr. Hay."

"Both subjects are rather personal, I admit, Mrs. Krill. However, if you have anything to tell me which you would like Miss Norman to hear I am willing to listen."

"Ah! Now you are more reasonable," she answered in a pleased tone. "It is simply this, Mr. Beecot: I am very sorry for the girl. Through no fault of her own she is placed in a difficult position. I cannot give her a name, since her father sinned against her as he sinned in another way against me, but I can, through my daughter, who is guided by me, give her an income. It does not seem right that I should have all this money"—

"That your daughter should have all this money," interpolated Beecot.

"My daughter and I are one," replied Mrs. Krill calmly. "When I speak for myself I speak for her. But, as I say, it doesn't seem right we should be in affluence and Miss Norman in poverty. So I propose to allow her five hundred a year on conditions. Will she accept, do you think, Mr. Beecot?"

"I should think her acceptance would depend upon the conditions."

"They are very simple," said Mrs. Krill in her deep tones and looking very straight at Paul. "She is to marry you and go to America."

Beecot's face did not change, since her hard eyes were on it. But he was puzzled under his mask of indifference. Why did this woman want Sylvia to marry him and go into exile? He temporized. "With regard to your wish that Miss Norman should marry me," said he quietly, "it is of course very good of you to interest yourself in the matter. I fail to understand your reason, however."

"Yet the reason is patent," rejoined Mrs. Krill, just as quietly and quite as watchful as before. "Sylvia Norman is a young girl without much character"—

"In that I disagree with you."

"Well, let us admit she has character, but she certainly has no experience. In the world she is exposed to much trouble and perhaps maybe to temptation. Since her position is the fault of her father and she is entirely innocent I want her to have a happy life. For that reason I wish her to marry you."

Paul bowed, not believing a word of this philanthropic speech. "Again I say it is good of you," said he, with some irony, "but even were I out of the way her nurse, Deborah Tawney, would look after [illegible] become my wife as soon as we can afford a home."

"You can afford it tomorrow," said Mrs. Krill eagerly, "if you will accept my offer."

"A home in America!" said Paul. "And why?"

"I should think both of you would like to be away from a place where you have seen such a tragedy."

"Indeed." Paul committed himself to no opinion. "And supposing we accept your offer, which I admit is a generous one, you suggest we should go to the States."

"Or to Canada or Australia or, in fact, you can go anywhere so long as you leave England. I tell you, Mr. Beecot, even at the risk of hurting your feelings, that I want that girl away from London. My husband treated me very badly—he was a brute always—and I hate to have that girl before my eyes."

"Yet she is innocent."

"Have I not said that a dozen times?" rejoined Mrs. Krill impatiently. "What is the use of further discussion? Do you accept my offer?"

"I will convey it to Miss Norman. It is for her to decide."

"But you have the right since you are to be her husband."

"Pardon me, no. I would never take such a responsibility on me. I shall tell Miss Norman what you say and convey her answer to you."

"Thank you," said Mrs. Krill graciously. But she was annoyed that her golden bait had not been taken immediately, and in spite of her suavity Paul could see that she was annoyed, the more so when she began to explain. "Of course you understand my feelings."

"I confess I don't quite. Naturally the fact that you are connected with the murder in the public eyes"—

"Pardon me," said the woman swiftly, "but I am not. The name of Krill has hardly been noticed. The public know that Aaron Norman was murdered. No one talks of Lemuel Krill or thinks that I am the widow of the murdered man. Possibly I may come across some people who will connect the two names and look askance at me, but the majority of people—such as Lord George there"—she pointed with her fan—"do not think of me in the way you say. As he did, they will think they remember the name"—

"Did Lord George say that to you?" said Paul swiftly.

"No. But he did to Mr. Hay, who told me," rejoined Mrs. Krill quite as swiftly.

"To-night?" asked Beecot, remembering that Hay had not spoken privately to Mrs. Krill since they came in from the dining room.

"Oh, no—on another occasion. Lord George has several times said that he has a faint recollection of my name. Possibly the connection between me and the murder may occur to his mind, but he is really so very stupid that I hope he will forget all about the matter."

"I wonder you don't change your name," said Paul, looking at her.

$100.00 paid by Dr. Shoop for any recent case of Grippe or acute Cold that a 25 cent box of Preventics will not break. How is this for an offer? The Doctor's supreme confidence in these little Candy Cold Cure Tablets—Preventics—is certainly complete. It's a $100 against 25 cents—pretty big odds. A Good Opening.

Ian Maclaren was talking to a group of literary beginners in New York. "Begin your stories well," he said emphatically. "There's nothing like a good beginning. Indeed, it's half the battle." Then, with a smile, this excellent beginner of stories added, "Always bear in mind the case of the young man who, desiring to marry, secured a favorable hearing from his sweetheart's irascible father by opening the interview with the words, 'I know a way, sir, whereby you can save money.' It was on a street car in the city of Washington. Two colored women in cheaply gorgeous splendor were talking, and one chanced to mention a Mr. Jinks in her conversation.

Indigestion

Stomach trouble is but a symptom of, and not in itself a true disease. We think of Dyspepsia, Heartburn, and Indigestion as real diseases, yet they are symptoms only of a certain specific Nerve sickness—nothing else.

It was this fact that first correctly led Dr. Shoop in the creation of that now very popular Stomach Remedy—Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Going direct to the stomach nerves, alone brought that success and favor to Dr. Shoop and his Restorative. Without that original and highly vital principle, no such lasting accomplishments were ever to be had.

For stomach distress, bloating, biliousness, bad breath and sallow complexion, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—and see for yourself what it can and will do. We sell and cheerfully recommend

Funeral of Hazel Jenkinson

This afternoon the funeral of the infant child Gladys Hazel Jenkinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Jenkinson, 381 McDonnel street, will be held from the family residence to Little Lake Cemetery at 2.30 o'clock. The child died from an attack of tubercular peritonitis.

Lakefield Liberals Meeting

A meeting of the supporters of the Liberal party of polling sub-divisions Nos. 1 and 2 of the municipality of Lakefield, will be held in the town hall, Lakefield, on Friday, March 20 at eight o'clock p.m. for the purpose of selecting delegates to attend the Liberal convention to be held in Norwood, on Wednesday, March 25th.

Lost at Nassau

Two small children, who gave the name of Lassie, got on a wood sleigh yesterday afternoon, and rode out to the other side of Nassau. They were returning crying and with their clothes all wet from melting snow and water, when Mr. Lockington of Nassau noticed them and took them to his residence. They were respectively five and six years of age, and were afterwards claimed.

Brass Valves are Recovered

Yesterday afternoon P. C. Mahaffy, armed with a search warrant, went to the place of business of Mr. Doyle, corner of Simcoe and George streets, to look for some goods which he has been after for some time. Here the officer discovered the goods, mainly some brass valves. The valves are evidently taken from an engine of some kind. Chief Bonnell will be glad to have the same identified.

Late Mr. Ward Laid to Rest

The funeral of the late Mr. Edward R. Ward was held yesterday morning to the Cathedral and thence to the Roman Catholic Cemetery. The Moulders' Union and Lock Works employees attended the obsequies. At the cathedral the requiem mass was sung by Rev. Father Kelly. The pall-bearers were Messrs. Thomas Fortye, Gus Cochrane, Jas. O'Brien, Edward Carr, Wm. Hardill and John McGrath. A number of relatives from out of town were present, among them being Mrs. Darry, of Rochester, N.Y., and Miss Nellie Ward, of St. Mary's Hospital, Rochester, N.Y., daughters of the deceased, and Mrs. John Ward and Miss Mary Ward, also of Rochester, N.Y.

Former Local Doctor's Experiment

A former local physician, Dr. Duncan Anderson, now practicing in Toronto, has the honor of having performed the first operation in Canada on a patient anaesthetized with "Stovaine." This anaesthetic was invented by Dr. Fournau, of France, and contains no cocaine. The operation referred to was performed in the Toronto General Hospital on Frank Swanson, who had had his arm badly injured by the kick of a horse. Cocaine or chloroform would have proved fatal but they have employed Dr. Anderson injected stovaine into the one covering the patient's spinal cord. The effect was complete paralysis of all sensation, while the patient, fully cognizant of all that was going on, had his body cut open and the torn bowels tied and sewed.

Does Not Like Strong Beef

A resident of the East Ward of the city, a blacksmith, has a grievance. It seems he recently bought what is called "bull" beef on the market and when he tried to cook the same did not like the smell that arose. He complained to the M. H. O. that he had been sold some beef this was unfit for food, and calmly requested the city official to cook some of it and try the stuff. The M. H. O. politely declined, as neither was this part of his duties, nor was the meat, in the interpretation of the by-law, bad meat. The owner of the odoriferous meat threatened to call attention to the matter, and even said he was going to show up the chief of police, to whom he first complained, over his beef. It is not likely, however, that either the chief or the M. H. O. will lose much sleep over the matter, as in buying such meat, the recourse for the purchaser is a civil case for damages against the seller.

Mr. Edward Bousquet, 248 a Paget street, Montreal, Can., president of Barber's International Union, Local 455, writes:

"For several years I have suffered from catarrh. I tried many remedies with little or no results.

"I was advised by a friend to try Peruna, and after using a few bottles, I am much relieved.

"I believe Peruna to be the greatest known catarrh remedy of the age. I cheerfully recommend Peruna for catarrh."

The truthfulness of Mr. Bousquet's statements cannot be questioned. He has given a clear and frank recital of his experience with chronic catarrh, and how Peruna helped him when all other remedies failed.

"Shaughraun" by T.A.S Dramatic Association

The programme for the Romantic Irish comedy, "The Shaugraun," to be played at the Grand Opera House on the 17th, by the dramatic section of St. Peter's T. A. S., has just been issued. It has a notable cast of amateur well selected amateur players with Mr. Geo Lynch in the title role of "Conn, the Shaugraun." Mr. Lynch is supported by Miss Lavina Hallihan, who plays the part of "Molly Dolan."

The play is in three acts and thirteen scenes, and the musical part of the programme is under the direction of Miss Maggie McCabe.

Between the acts several illustrated songs will be rendered, and an enjoyable evening is promised to all who take in "The Shaugraun."

The re-appearance of Vladimir De Pachmann at Massey Hall, Toronto, on April 9, under the auspices of the Toronto Conservatory Symphony Orchestra, attests to the popularity of this great artist, and also to the enterprise of the orchestra committee.

One of the youngest stars on the American stage, Miss Jane Corcoran, has attained her greatest success in the portrayal of the hardest of roles, that of Nora in Ibsen's "A Doll's House." Miss Corcoran's New York appearance in this part was thrilled with delight by the dramatic critics who found in her another Rachael, and who likened her work to that of Duse and Barnhardt.

Ibsen makes great demands on the strength of the player. His dramas, intellectual, brilliant and sparkling as the snows of his Norwegian home, require a master mind and an emotional quality. His work, written after years of searching in the breasts of men and women, years in which he dissected and analyzed the human emotions much as a scientist investigates the mysteries of life, death with the elemental things, the big things of life, Love, Liberty and Happiness.

To the portrayal of these emotions Miss Corcoran has applied herself. How well she succeeded is best told by the praise which the New York press showered upon her.

"A Doll's House," with Miss Corcoran as Nora, will be seen at the Grand this afternoon and night. Miss Corcoran is supported by Mr. James M. Brophy and a company of capable actors and actresses which insures an intellectual and dramatic treat.

MONTANA TIMBER DISTRICTS IS DEVASTATED BY FIRE

Three Hundred Families Homeless—Fire Raged for Seven Hours and the Loss will Exceed $400,000

Butte, Mont., March 14 — Fire destroyed three-fourths of Big Timber, Mont., making 300 families homeless and causing $400,000 damage. The fire raged for seven hours during a gale.

A special train with fire apparatus was hurried from Livingston, about 30 miles west of Big Timber.

The fire started in the stock yards of the Northern Pacific Co. and from there spread to a dwelling in the outskirts of the town. It was carried from house to house until the business quarter was reached. The flames cut a swath more than a block wide through the business portion of the town. The wind then veered and the flames were driven back, destroying the buildings which had escaped the first sweep.

At one time the town was burning at three different places. Water became exhausted, handicapping the fire fighters.

Women joined in the struggle and carried food to every man while they fought the fire.

The fire fighters finally massed forces around the First National Bank where the blaze was extinguished.

Bankers See a Sunny Side to the Financial Situation in Canada

A strain of hopefulness and optimism has undoubtedly made its appearance recently in both Canadian commercial and financial circles. Whether this has been engendered by the passing of the winter season, which, owing to a worldwide money disturbance, has brought trouble and difficulties to so many, and the nearness of another of the bounties of Providence, the fact remains that Canadians have adopted a more cheerful demeanor and have cast aside the evidences of blank despair which were quite prevalent at the opening of the new year. From all sides there is at last a tentative optimism that at least indicates that no apprehension of the future is held, and that might even indicate a gradual revival in all business ventures.

Toronto, March 15 — Byron E. Walker, president of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, who has returned after a two weeks' trip in the Maritime Provinces, gave a few minutes to a reporter on Saturday, and spoke more than usually cheerful of the outlook.

"I find things in Nova Scotia," said Mr. Walker, "in their usually prosperous condition. Of course they had an ordinarily good crop down there this year, and their commercial pursuits are so varied that it is almost difficult for them to suffer any really general drawback. They are a much more conservative people than we are here in Ontario, not nearly as extravagant, and are, therefore, well prepared to meet a rainy day, should it come along. In my discussions with the merchants and others at Halifax I found that the only people who make any complaints are those who had business dealings outside of their own province, such as large manufactures, but except for this they had nothing to complain of at all.

"You asked me regarding Ontario matters, and more particularly Toronto. I can only say that as far as I can see we are not in any worse position than we were, and if anything, rather the reverse. Our people have accepted the inevitable, they have begun to curtail in their expenditures, and with a favorable crop we ought to be well on our feet again, and particularly so if the good crop is general throughout the Dominion. As bankers, we are not as much concerned as we were when the crisis was on in the United States.

"Speaking of our own bank, I think that we are inclined to extend a little more freedom to our customers than was the case [illegible] many stringency, and this attitude will grow as we see the less necessity for conservatism.

"I feel no concern at all in regard to the future, provided our people exercise the moderation which the stringency has called for. Things are going along favorably, and when we know the results of the incoming crop an expansion is quite possible."

Duncan Coulson, general manager of the Bank of Toronto, who is very conservative in his views, was disinclined to admit that there was any decided improvement in the position of matters, but expressed the opinion that the situation was hopeful. Beyond that he would not care to go at the present time.

COMMON SENSE

Leads most intelligent people to use only medicines of known composition. Therefore (it is that) Dr. Pierce's medicines, the makers of which print every ingredient entering into them upon the bottle wrappers and attest its correctness under oath, are daily growing in favor. The composition of Dr. Pierce's medicines is open to everybody. Dr. Pierce being desirous of having the search light of investigation turned fully upon his formulæ, believing confident that the better the composition of his medicines is known the more will their great curative merits be recognized. Being wholly made of the active medicinal principles extracted from native forest roots, by exact processes original with Dr. Pierce, and without the use of a drop of alcohol, triple-refined and chemically pure glycerine being used instead in extracting and preserving the curative virtues residing in the roots employed, these medicines are entirely free from the objection of doing harm by creating an appetite for either alcoholic beverages or habit-forming drugs. Examine the formula on their bottle wrappers—the same as sworn to by Dr. Pierce, and you will find that his "Golden Medical Discovery," the great blood-purifier, stomach tonic and bowel regulator—the medicine which, while not recommended to cure consumption in its advanced stages (no medicine will do that) yet does cure all those catarrhal conditions of head and throat, weak stomach, torpid liver and bronchial troubles, weak lungs and hang-on-coughs, which, if neglected or badly treated lead up to and finally terminate in consumption.

Take the "Golden Medical Discovery" in time and it is not likely to disappoint you if only you give it a thorough and fair trial. Don't expect miracles. It won't do supernatural things. You must exercise your patience and persevere in its use for a reasonable length of time to get its full benefits. The ingredients of which Dr. Pierce's medicines are composed have the unqualified endorsement of scores of medical leaders—better than any amount of lay, or non-professional, testimonials. They are not given away to be experimented with but are sold by all dealers in medicines at reasonable prices.

A Great War Coming.

New York, March 14.—Declaring it is only from the forest rangers in the service of the United States that scouts can be recruited for service in the "great war that is coming," Gifford Pinchot, chief forester of the department of agriculture, startled his hearers at a dinner of the Campfire Club of America at the Cafe Des Beaux Arts by discussing the war as if conflict were unavoidable.

"In the great war which this country will fight, but which I hope, with all my heart, it will not have to fight soon," Mr. Pinchot said, "the only quarter to which this government could look for scouts whose service in war is so essential to the bureau of forestry. There and there only, are men being trained in such a fashion that they would be of service."

He also said there is in this country now timber enough for less than 30 years, and coal enough to last less than 100 years.

Immense War Fleet Will Come to Canada

London, March 13.—The Prince of Wales will, the Canadian Associated Press understands, be accompanied to Quebec by the Atlantic fleet of six battleships and ten cruisers, with its attached second cruiser squadron that visited Canada two years ago. After leaving Quebec the fleet will cruise along the Canadian coast, visiting several places.

Among the alterations at the National Rifle Association's meeting at Bisley, commencing July 13th and lasting till the 25th, in the Kolapore competition, 300 yards will be substituted for the 200 yards range.

At the trial of Atamian and others at Liverpool on the charge of defrauding emigrants the jury disagreed.

Never Slept In a Bed

Toronto, March 14.—A boy eight years old who had never worn underclothing or slept in a bed until the other day, was brought to the city to-day by Rev. R. Burns of Tweed.

This boy is one of the Lindsay family of Tweed, whose mother died recently while giving birth to a child in the absence of the father, who, on being sent for a doctor, spent his time otherwise. This little lad had been accustomed to sleep in a hole in the ground under the house, although he sometimes enjoyed the luxury of a straw under the stove. He donned his first suit of underwear the other day, when the Children's Aid Society of Tweed came to his assistance.

This boy, with another boy and girl who had been deserted by their father, were handed over to Mr. J. J. Kelso by Mr. Burns. Mr. J. Bonny, of Tweed, will arrive on Monday with a boy of fourteen years. Mr. Kelso reports that nearly a thousand volunteer workers of this sort are helping in the rescue of children throughout the province.

Eloquent Speaker at St. John's Church

Rev. C. E. Sharp, of Toronto, yesterday preached one of the best sermons ever preached in St. John's Church. Mr. Sharp's deep voice and distinct articulation and eloquent style impressed the large congregation present very deeply. His sermon was on a subject suitable to the season now in progress in connection with that church, viz., on lukewarm Christians. The reverend gentleman chose for his text Rev. III., 15-16. He spoke during the afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. men's meeting and was listened to with rapt attention.

Cutting Out Smokes Denial During Lent

The Lenten season is putting crimps in the tobacco habit—for the time being. Dealers in the weed in its various forms declare that men are smoking pipes to-day who have hitherto accustomed themselves to the luxury of expensive cigars, and they further state that these are smokeless days for many men who confined themselves chiefly to the comforts and consolations of the pipe. That is the course the process of self-denial is taking, and the results are such that tobacco merchants are tooting it.

"One man tells me that his wife made him promise to do without tobacco during Lent, and he is keeping his word. His weekly bill in this shop amounts to something like $5." This was the story a tobacconist had to relate to-day. He told of another man who was satisfying himself with five-centers where formerly he paid ten cents or got the two-for-a-quarter brand, and used cigarettes to sandwich between his long smokes.

"It is the good churchman who is doing without his smokes," was the explanation offered by one dealer. The ministers, he said, helped to bring about the condition by circulating among the congregations self-denial literature, setting forth their duties and responsibilities during the Lenten season.

"One of the heaviest smokers I know has cut out the tobacco completely, and his wife is saving the money for one of the relief funds," said a cigar merchant, who declared that he had noticed a considerable falling off in business during the past few days.

The effect of the Lenten season is also said to have become quite noticeable in the trade of the downtown bars, and in the patronage of the amusement parlors.

THE SUCCESS OF A WESTERN FARMER

A romantic story of the success of a Western farmer who went to Manitoba twenty-five years ago with practically no means, and last year made a net profit of $15,000, is told by Mr. James Hartney, Manitoba immigration agent of Toronto.

"Starting as a humble settler near the town of Griswold, he gradually acquired more land, and now has over 1,000 acres. Last year he had 900 acres of wheat which yielded 23,035 bushels, and sold at 94 1-2 cents per bushel, making a gross revenue from wheat of $21,768. The net profit, after deducting all expenses, was nearly $15,000. Besides this he had nearly one hundred head of cattle, and many acres of coarse grains. He tells me that he has averaged a net profit of $10,000 a year for the last five years."

Mr. Hartney admits that this is an exceptional case, but well illustrated the possibilities of the early settlers.

He states that many enquiries are being received regarding lands for settlers in Manitoba.

POLICE

Shepard Remanded Until Wednesday

P. C. McGinty went down to Port Hope on the 8.20 G. T. R. train for the prisoner, George Shepperd, who was arrested there on Friday afternoon by the Port Hope police, as noted in Saturday's issue. This man Shepherd, we might explain for the benefit of those who did not see Saturday's issue, was wanted here for the alleged forgery of two cheques, one for $10.50, and one for $25, and passing the same on Mr. M. Pappas, the George street cigar dealer and pool room owner. These cheques were signed by M. Snoden and endorsed by Geo. Shepherd; at least these were the supposed signatures, but Mr. Snoden denies drawing the cheques, and the handwriting is not his. Shepherd is also said to have got a gold watch from Mr. C. S. McClelland, the Water street jeweller, under false pretences, and without paying for the same.

Shepherd, it seems, was arrested by the Port Hope police on suspicion of having passed forged cheques on several merchants in Trenton, Ont., but the warrant from Chief Bessel of this city had reached him first, so the latter officer was notified of his arrest. P. C. McGinty got his man all right and brought him to the city by the 11.45 train. A special session of the court was held at about 4 p.m. Saturday when Shepherd was remanded until Wednesday for trial.

Shepherd was for some months a clerk at the Snowden House, and is alleged to have "got into" Mr. McClelland by telling him that Mr. Fraser, proprietor of that hotel, had sent him there to get his watch. He got two watches, first one worth about $18, on which he paid nothing, and a few hours afterwards a much better one on which he paid $6 on account, saying he was working again for Mr. Fraser and would settle when "pay day" arrived. As he was not then, and is no now, employed by Mr. Fraser, so that pay day would have been a long time coming. Shepherd is a comparatively young Englishman, whose wife is employed at a hotel in Cobourg, and he is supposed to have been put heir to a small estate that was divided recently.

Only one case occupied the attention of his Worship at Saturday's police court, namely, the charge against John Doig, who was accused of being the keeper of a place for the purchase of second-hand goods without a license, and the other of receiving stolen property. To both of these indictments John pleaded not guilty, and as the chief was not ready to go on with the case, the case was enlarged until Thursday of this week.

Chief Ross thought that a few days in gaol in the meantime would do Doig good. "Anything would be better than living where you do," he remarked, "it is not fit for a dog."

The magistrate agreed with this suggestion, that it might give the accused a chance to get washed.

Big Expenditure by Quaker Oats Co

According to the Ontario Gazette, the Quaker Oats Company of New Jersey, may spend in Ontario, with headquarters in Peterborough, the sum of $1,000,000 in the manufacture of its cereal products. In Canada it is authorized to do no less than fifteen separate things, including the acquiring of other companies, the making of contracts with the Government and the purchasing or acquiring of power plants.

Whilst the local offices of the company have no information regarding the above, it is understood that plans are now being prepared for a large warehouse to be erected to the south of the present elevator.

In times of financial squeamishness a clear brain and steady nerve are a a premium. Drink

Have Decided to Repeat Concert

It has been decided to repeat the concert held under the auspices of the C. G. E. Benefit Society last April, which was so largely attended and was an eminent success in every particular. The second concert will be held on April 10th proximo, and will be very similar to that of last year. A good musical programme will be given, and an effort will be made to again have the officials of the works present. The exact details of the concert have not yet been decided upon, but a repetition of last year's assembly may be expected when "S. R. D." cards had to be hung out.

At a meeting of the officers of the society, with others interested in this gathering of the workmen, the foremen and officials of the company, much enthusiasm was evident, and this event will be an annual one.

Jap Warships To Sail for China--Has Caused a Sensation

Hong Kong, March 14.—Information has been received here from Formosa that the first Japanese naval squadron will sail to-day on active service.

The cruisers Yakumo, Akisushima, Asama, and a flotilla of smaller vessels have been coaled ready to sail at a moment's notice since March 5.

The Tatsu affair has caused a sensation in the navy and some action in this department is surmised.

A despatch from Tokio under date of March 9 announced that a part of the first Japanese naval squadron was to leave port on March 14, coaling and making other preparations for departure proceedings rapidly. At the office of the Admiralty in Tokio, it was declared that the squadron was about to begin a series of manoeuvres. It was pointed out further that this fact was announced two months ago and that, therefore, the activity at Sasebo should not necessarily be considered in connection with the difficulty with China arising from the Tatsu incident.

Are Fighting to Keep The Divorce Trade

Pierre, S. D., March 16. — In the annual report of the Bureau of Vital Statistics is made plain the reason why South Dakota doesn't want to give up the divorce business. The bureau's report shows that in the year 1907 a total of 662 divorces were granted in the State, of which 320 were non-residents, and it was a dull year for the divorce market, too.

The average spent by divorcees within their six months' residence in South Dakota is not less than $200 a month, and probably much more but, estimating the average cost of a Dakota divorce, including the expenses of setting up a residence, payment of attorneys' fees and court costs, at $1,500 the State of South Dakota last year took in $480,000 as inducement for granting the 320 divorces to non-residents.

While 1907 was decidedly bearish in the divorce trade, owing to the agitation in the State for its abolishment, if the income for the present year is taken as an average, South Dakota has realized $5,000,000 from her divorce mill in the last decade. This really is a low estimate, for most of those who come to South Dakota to be freed of chafing ties are ready spenders.

Merchants send special orders for high-grade goods in anticipation of the divorce patronage, hotels fit up whole suites of rooms in the best of trappings to make the sojourn pleasant, while it is a regular business to furnish houses and rent them to unhappy wives for $75 to $100 per month.

Lawyers profit to the extent of $12,000 a year from the outside business. Physicians find opportunity to charge fancy fees and dentists and dog fanciers count upon this trade in their yearly estimate.

Because this stream of money is constantly pouring into the State, and for no other reason, Sioux Falls divorce lawyers caused the preparation of a petition submitting to a referendum vote a law passed by the Legislature a year ago that if approved will effectually end the divorce trade in South Dakota. The statute is very simple, providing that the plaintiff in action for divorce must have been an actual resident in good faith of the State for one year.

Such a law would make South Dakota no more attractive than a score of other States. The divorce lawyer and all who share in receipts from the business are hoping that the law will fail of approval simply by oversight. Sentiment undoubtedly favors it.

Five Girls Took Their Own Lives Sixth tries to Suicide

Went to New York and Expected to do Well---Had Good Business

Worried Constantly

New York, March 14.—A startling story of how five girls who came to New York from St. Paul a year ago took their own lives was told to-day by seventeen year old Helen Baxter, after she had made a vain effort to commit suicide also. Helen said she was one of the party of six girls who came to New York to make their fortunes after receiving a course of training in a business school in the Minnesota city. She turned on the gas in her furnished room in 43rd street last night, but was resuscitated this morning.

When asked why she had tried to end her life the girl replied, "Why should I not be allowed to die? My five girl friends who left St. Paul with me a year ago, after we left school, have all committed suicide. I want to die as they died, and join them."

"Was it a suicide pact?" she was asked.

"My five friends are all dead, and they died as they chose," was her reply.

ONE WAS MARRIED.

The girl said she and her five friends decided while in the business school in St. Paul to come to New York together, thinking there was more of a future in the metropolis. She refused to give the names of any of her friends. A short time after their arrival in New York, she said, one of the girls married. She did not live happily with her husband, however, and killed herself a few months after she became a bride. In the meantime another girl had been seeking employment without success. She sought death and found it by the same means her friend had used. The next to go in the same way, according to Helen's story, was one of the girls who had fallen a victim to a man's false friendship.

REST WORRIED CONSTANTLY.

With three of their companions dead, the three that remained worried constantly, and when hard times came and employment was hard to find, two voluntarily followed their friends to the grave. That left Helen alone. Then a man came into her life. The man was represented to her as immensely wealthy, she said, and for a time she was happy. Then he suddenly sailed for Europe. She had nothing more to live for after that, she said, and decided to join her five friends in death. Helen said her father is dead, but that her mother still lives in St. Paul. She refused to give her mother's address.

When it was found that the girl would recover she was taken to a police station and locked up, charged with attempted suicide.

Death of Mr. Wm. Stewart

The many friends of Mr. William Stewart, of 185 Lansdowne avenue, will regret to learn of his decease, which occurred last night at eight o'clock.

Mr. Stewart had been ailing for some time, but hopes for complete recovery were entertained until last Tuesday. Since that time he had been gradually sinking. The members of the house at his deathbed were Mr. and Mrs. Smithson, a brother-in-law, with whom he resided, and Miss Smithson and Miss Stewart, a sister. The deceased was well known throughout Otonabee and South Monaghan, and for many years was connected with Centreville Presbyterian Church. Since coming to the city he has been a devoted member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church.

Mr. Stewart was in his 73rd year, and the immediate cause of his death was a slight touch of pneumonia. The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon at two o'clock to the Little Lake cemetery.

—The Reading Club, in connection with the Women's Art Association will meet at the Y. M. C. A. this evening at 7.30. "Michael Angelo" will be the subject.

For President—John D. Bailey, Toronto.

Jim Stevenson of the Midland Lacrosse Club, will be a candidate for the C. L. A. Executive this season.

Oscar Eby, of Hespeler, is a candidate for the second vice-presidency of the C. L. A.

Sport is a cracking good player, and all that, but when the whistle is blown at the Island he will be found on the Indians' line-up. Yesterday Fred Hubert, one of the men behind the local team, stated that the Toronto worries were all new to him.

A FAMOUS PUGILIST'S GENEROSITY.

One time, after he had lost the championship as well as most of the cash he had gathered, John L. Sullivan opened a cafe in Forty-second street, New York. It was the occasion of a great celebration among the men who had followed him from victory to victory during many years. Sull van still had friends by the thousand. On the opening day his place was crowded to the outer doors. Champagne flowed in rivers, and few were allowed to buy while John was near.

During the afternoon two women dressed in Salvation Army uniform walked into the bar, proffering the War Cry for sale and soliciting contributions to a charity fund. The men in the place were not charitably inclined that afternoon, except in the matter of purchasing refreshments. Some turned their backs, some laughed. Sullivan was just returning from a trip to the room in the rear as the women turned to go out. His ears caught the laugh and his eyes took in the situation at a glance. Stepping quickly forward he called the women back.

"Here's a hundred for you," he said, passing over a bill.

The women, thanking him, had not reached the door before he called them back again.

"Here's a hundred more," he said, diving into his pocket. "Don't thank me. It's all right. Just frot along now."

When John returned to the bar some of his friends expostulated with him over the ex ravagance of his donation.

"Boys," said Sullivan, "more than one of us may be glad to have some one give us a lift before we die. Give when you've got it. You may be glad to have some other fellow do as much for you." — From "Fighting in Real Life," by Robert Edgren, in the Outlook Magazine for March.

CURED PAINFUL IRREGULARITIES

Strong Testimony From a Lady Resident of Clarksburg, Proving That Ferrozone Surpasses All Other Remedies.

The health of many women is constantly imperilled through failure of certain organs to work according to nature's requirements.

Where this condition occurs there is no safer remedy to employ than Ferrozone, which has a specific action in female troubles.

Not only does it act directly on the organs, ensuring regularity and freedom from pain, but by forming rich red blood fortifies the system against weakening drains.

FERROZONE MAKES STRONG WOMEN

Ferrozone possesses a volume of merit totally absent in the ordinary medicine, and its superiority is proclaimed by thousands of women it has restored to vigorous health. From Mrs. F. G. Caldwell comes the following endorsement, written from her home in Clarksburg: "I went through a most trying experience with what is commonly known as 'Female Trouble.' It isn't necessary to state my symptoms, but I suffered a great deal. My health was well nigh ruined, and I got into such a condition that I couldn't even sleep. I was dread fully nervous, weak and pale. Different prescriptions were recommended and I tried them. But Ferrozone was the first to help. I improved steadily and a Ferrozone and normal conditions were finally established. I gained weight, my color and spirits improved, and my former health was restored. Ferrozone cured me, and with a full heart I recommend this good medicine to all other women."

Beware of imitations—don't allow a druggist to palm off anything else for Ferrozone, which costs 50c. per box or six boxes for $2.50 at all dealers.

SIZES UP THE SITUATION CORRECTLY

The Belfast Evening Telegraph recently sent out circulars with a view to investigating the condition of the labor market in Canada. From replies received. The Telegraph arrives at these conclusions:—

"In undertaking our investigations we have been principally concerned with the opportunities for employment for such as skilled workmen, mechanics, and laborers in the towns. So far as the agricultural side is concerned, it is well known that there is limitless scope for the willing worker. Briefly summarized the letters go to show that there is a cessation of much outdoor work in the winter, but this finds compensation in plentiful supply during the rest of the year, and in the high wages which are obtainable. It is strongly emphasized that only men of skill, intelligence and energy, are wanted; for the indolent, the good-for-nothing, the physically unfit, Canada has no room, and it is mainly with these that the ranks of the unemployed are filled. It is also urged as of high importance, that unless the emigrant has the prospect of a situation immediately on landing he should not go abroad without a reasonable supply of money to enable him to tide over the interval that may elapse before he can hope to secure employment of a suitable character and at a reasonable wage."

The heathen are still in the majority according to a map showing the comparative number of the followers of the several religions of the world which the Presbyterian's Men's Foreign Missionary Society, lately in session in Philadelphia, was invited to study. These latest figures are as follows:—Jews, 11,22?,000; Greeks, 120,157,000; Protestants, 166,666,500; Mohammedans, 216,630,000; Roman Catholics, 273,623,500; heathen, 806,732,000, or more than all the others put together. This is something to think over.

Remember that when the stomach nerves fail or weaken, Dyspepsia or Indigestion must always follow. But, strengthen these same weak inside nerves with Dr. Shoop's Restorative, and then see how quickly health will again return. Weak Heart and Kidney Nerves can also be strengthened with the Restorative, when Heart pains, palpitation, or Kidney weakness is found. Don't drug the Stomach, nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys. That is wrong. Go to the cause of these ailments. Strengthen these weak inside nerves with Dr. Shoop's Restorative and get well. A simple, single test will surely tell. All dealers.

—The new bowling alley in Bradburn's old Opera House will be ready for use some time next week. A meeting will probably be called for next Friday to form a local bowling league.

FINE PRINTS.

Care With Which They Are Treated by Amateurs and Collectors.

How careful collectors and amateurs of fine engravings are of their treasures is illustrated by a written agreement that a local firm of dealers in such things had to sign recently when they wanted to borrow several particularly rare engravings for an exhibition they were to have in their galleries. The owner of the prints insisted that from the time the box in which the prints were sent to the dealers was opened in the shop no hands but those of the junior partner of the firm were to touch them. The owner stipulated expressly that the member of the firm was to take them out of the box, frame them himself, hang them on the walls and when the show was over follow the prints back through these various stages until a porter was ready to screw the cover of the packing box on again. The prints were so rare and fine that the junior partner cheerfully agreed to all of these conditions for the sake of showing the engravings.

That the prints were extremely rare may be appreciated from the fact that before two of them in particular came into the private collector's possession he made a special journey to Stuttgart, Germany, to see them, and when he looked at them he left an open order to a dealer in that city to buy them, no matter what they cost. He got them, but he paid the highest price ever known for such engravings to bring.

CRANKY METAL.

Moods and Mystery That Are Embodied in a Piece of Steel.

A cutlery company will make a hundred razors from the same piece of steel by the same process, and part of the razors will be good and part of them bad. It may be fifty of one kind or seventy-five or twenty-five—nobody knows. The maker doesn't know; the buyer doesn't know. Barbers say that even the price doesn't seem to make much difference. You may get a good razor for a quarter or a bad one for $5. And the same razor will get a contrary edge today, so that you can hardly shave with it, and tomorrow, without additional sharpening, it will work like a charm.

One tap will go on a bolt easily and stay there. Another tap will hardly go on at all. A third may be screwed on tight and snug and yet keep coming off in spite of all that can be done.

Sometimes men that work with machines have a premonition of coming disaster, as do the men that sail on the seas or thread the winding paths of the big woods. Nature as well as pieces of mechanism seems able to communicate to man why they are in a calamitous and threatening mood.

Madrid and Its Climate.

Along the Mediterranean shore Spain presents a narrow ribbon of fertile, delightful country. The region is often called "the garden of Spain."

It is a great contrast to pass from these tropical shores to the wind swept plains of interior Spain. The level country inclosed by the Guadarrama and the Cantabrian mountains forms in the west an extensive wheat growing region. Toward the east as the rainfall decreases pasturage encroaches upon arable culture. In New Castile, on the south of the Guadarrama and in about the center of Spain, the political capital has been placed. The level country in which it has been dropped, as if by accident, is for the most part a waterless plain, swept in winter by the piercing winds from the naked mountains of the north, sweltering in summer under the effect of the sun's rays on bare rock and soil.

The climate of Madrid has been tersely described by its inhabitants as "three months of winter and nine months of hades."

Honey Ants.

Certain Mexican ants are selected by their kindred as storehouses of honey. They are fed with honey until the abdomen speedily becomes smooth and round and so filled with honey that the skin is transparent. These ants are doomed to pass the remainder of their lives as mere honey cells, from which their kindred extract the honey when it is required. There are several specimens of these ants in the British museum with the honey still within their transparent bodies. The Mexicans raid the nests of these ants for the sake of the honey that their bodies contain, and the ants are eaten raw as sweetmeats.

The Full Particulars.

The other day a lady who lives in our town entered a grocery store and asked to be shown a good kind of breakfast cereal.

The clerk took down a package and said:

"Madam, this is a predigested food."

"Oh, is that so?" she returned. "And by whom?"

Good For an Appetite.

"You must have a good appetite," remarked the thin man enviously. "What do you take for it?"

"In all my experience," replied the plump one, "I have found nothing more suitable than food."

Capital, $250,000.00 1,000,000 Shares 25c. each.

Modest Capitalization Large Coal Reserves

This Company organized under the laws of the Northwest Territories of Canada, owns and operates the Galbraith mine located at Lundbreck, Alta. They have four vertical seams of coal traversing their property, aggregating over 40 feet in thickness. Three of these seams are developed to a depth of 350 feet, and as they pass through the Company's lands for nearly a mile, some idea of the amount of coal may be had.

Shipping Steadily

The present output of the mine is about 200 tons per day. These shipments will be rapidly increased, as the C.P.R. allows its cars to be loaded with coal for points in the U. S.

We are selling a limited number of these shares at the extremely low price of

in blocks of 100 or over. Tight money in the States makes it possible for us to give this unprecedented offer in stock that will be paying dividends inside of six months, and you are sure to realize a handsome profit.

Parties ordering can send money by P. O. Orders, Express Orders or Bank Drafts, and we will have the stock issued direct to you. Full information furnished on request. Correspondence solicited. Reference, Bank of Montreal

What they offer at 25c per Share for a short time

The property is situated at Mancos, Colo., and consists of 160 acres, fully paid for. The Company expects to secure at least 400 acres or more, we are negotiating for it now and the terms are satisfactory and there is coal on the same, and they also intend to secure some Coal Mines of which they have the refusal. Some of che best coal mines in Colorado are in this district, as well as some of the richert gold and silver mines. In fact this is one of the richest parts for mineral in the State of Colorado, and the Company has the refusal to several prospects on reasonable and easy terms.

In our opinion the prospects of the Company are very bright, and a rapid advance in the price of the stock is sure to take place in the near future. Full information can be had by calling at our office.

[illegible] forces me to change it," she said defiantly. "My life has always been perfectly open and aboveboard, not like that of my husband."

"Why did he change his name?" asked Beecot eagerly—too eagerly, in fact, for she drew back.

"Why do you ask?" she inquired coldly.

Paul shrugged his shoulders. "An idle question, Mrs. Krill. I have no wish to force your confidence."

"There is no forcing in the matter," responded the woman. "I have taken quite a fancy to you, Mr. Beecot, and you shall know what I do."

"Pray do not tell me if you would rather not."

"But I would rather," said Mrs. Krill bluntly. "It will prevent your misconception of anything you may hear about us. My husband's real name was Lemuel Krill, and he married me thirty years ago. I will be frank with you and admit that neither of us were gentlefolks. We kept a public house on the outskirts of Christchurch, in Hants, called the Red Pig." She looked anxiously at him as she spoke.

"A strange name."

"Have you never heard of it before?"

"No. Had I heard the name it would have remained in my memory from its oddity."

Paul might have been mistaken, but Mrs. Krill certainly seemed relieved, yet if she had anything to conceal in connection with the Red Pig why should she have mentioned the name?

"It is not a first class hotel," she went on smoothly and again with her false smile. "We had only farm laborers and such like as customers, but the custom was good, and we did very well. Then my husband took to drink."

"In that respect he must have changed," said Paul quickly, "for all the time I knew him—six months it was—I never saw him the worse for drink, and I certainly never heard from those who would be likely to know that he indulged in alcohol to excess. All the same," added Paul, with an after thought of his conversation with Sylvia in the Embankment garden, "I fancied from his pale face and shaking hands and a tightness of the skin that he might drink."

"Exactly. He did. He drank brandy in large quantities, and, strange to say, he never got drunk."

"What do you mean exactly?" asked Beecot curiously.

"Well," said Mrs. Krill, biting the top of her fan and looking over it, "Lemuel—I'll call him by the old name—never grew red in the face, and, even after years of drinking, he never showed any signs of intemperance. Certainly his hands would shake at times, but I never noticed particularly the tightness of the skin you talk of."

"A certain shiny look," explained Paul.

"Quite so. I never noticed it. But he never got drunk so as to lose his head or his balance," went on Mrs. Krill, "but he became a demon."

"A demon?"

"Yes," said the woman emphatically, "as a rule he was a timid, nervous little man, like a frightened rabbit, and would not harm a fly. But drink, as you know, changes a nature to the contrary of what it actually is."

"I have heard that."

"You would have seen an example in Lemuel," she retorted. "When he drank brandy, he became a king, a sultan. From being timid he became bold; from not harming any one he was capable of murder. Often in his fits did he lay violent hands on me. But I managed to escape. When sober he would moan and apologise in a provokingly tearful manner. I hated and despised him," she went on, with flashing eyes, but careful to keep her voice from reaching the gamblers. "I was a fool to marry him. My father was a farmer, and I had a good education. I was attracted by the good looks of Lemuel and ran away with him from my father's farm in Buckinghamshire."

"That's where Stowley is," murmured Paul.

"Stowley?" echoed Mrs. Krill, whose ears were very sharp. "Yes, I know that town. Why do you mention it?"

"The opal serpent brooch with which your husband's lips were fastened was pawned there."

"I remember," said Mrs. Krill calmly. "Mr. Pash told me. It has never been found out how the brooch came to fasten the lips—so horrible it was!" She shuddered.

"No. My father bought the brooch from the Stowley pawnbroker and gave it to my mother, who sent it to me. When I had an accident I lost it, but who picked it up I can't say."

"The assassin must have picked it up," declared Mrs. Krill decisively, "else it would not have been used in that cruel way, though why such a brooch should have been used at all I can't understand. I suppose my husband did not tell you why he wanted to buy the brooch?"

"Who told you that he did?" asked Paul quickly.

"Mr. Pash. He told me all about the matter, but not the reason why my husband wanted the brooch."

"Pash doesn't know," said Beecot, "nor do I. Your husband fainted when I first showed him the brooch, but I don't know why. He said nothing."

Again Mrs. Krill's face, in spite of her care, showed a sense of relief at his ignorance. "But I must get back to my story," she said in a hard tone. "We have to leave soon. I ran away with Lemuel, who was then travelling with jewelry. He knew a good deal about jewelry, you know, which he turned to account in his pawnbroking."

"Yes, and amassed a fortune thereby."

"I should never have credited him with so much sense," said Mrs. Krill contemptuously. "While at Christchurch he was nothing but a drunkard, whining when sober and a furious beast when drunk. I managed all the house and looked after my little daughter. Lemuel led me a dog's life, and we quarreled incessantly. At length, when Maud was old enough to be my companion, Lemuel ran away. I kept on the Red Pig and waited for him to return. But he never came back, and for over twenty years I heard nothing of him till I saw the handbills and his portrait and heard of his death. Then I came to see Mr. Pash, and the rest you know."

"Stowley?" echoed Mrs. Krill.

"But why did he run away?" asked Paul.

"I suppose he grew weary of the life and the way I detested him," was her reply. "I don't wonder he ran away. But there, I have told you all, so make what you can of it. Tell Miss Norman of my offer and make her see the wisdom of accepting it. And now"—she rose and held out her hand—"I must run away. You will call and see us? Mr. Hay will give you the address."

"What's that?" said Hay, leaving the card table. "Does Beecot want your address? Certainly." He went to a table and scribbled on a card. "There you are. Hunter street, Kensington, No. 82A. Do come, Beecot. I hope soon to call on your services to be my best man," and he cast a coldly loving look on Maud, who simply smiled as usual.

By this time the card party had broken up. Maud had lost a few pounds and Lord George a great deal. But Miss Qian and Hay had won.

"What luck," groaned the young lord. "Everything seems to go wrong with me."

"Stop, and we'll try another game when the ladies have gone," suggested

A Good Opening.

Ian Maclaren was talking to a group of literary beginners in New York. "Begin your stories well," he said emphatically. "There's nothing like a good beginning. Indeed, it's half the battle." Then, with a smile, this excellent beginner of stories added, "Always bear in mind the case of the young man who, desiring to marry, secured a favorable hearing from his sweetheart's irascible father by opening the interview with the words, 'I know a way, sir, whereby you can save money.'"—Good Health.

The Hen's Repartee.

The roosters smiled and the ducks did grin
When the brown hen sat in the old coal bin.
But the brown hen laughed as well as they
And said: "Now listen to my lay:
The old coal bin is the place for me,
For it's filled with egg coal, don't you see!"

—Chicago News.

Corrected.

It was on a street car in the city of Washington. Two colored women in cheaply gorgeous splendor were talking, and one chanced to mention a Mr. Jinks in her conversation.

"Excuse me," said the other woman, "but his name is not Jinks. It is Mr. Jenks."

"Oh, I sees," said the other woman complaisantly—"I sees that you puts de accents on de pronoun."—Lippincott's.

The Blushing Bride.

A clergyman, having performed the marriage ceremony for a couple, undertook to write out the usual certificate; but, being in doubt as to the day of the month, he asked, "This is the ninth, is it not?"

"Why, parson," said the blushing bride, "you do all my marrying, and you ought to remember that this is only the third."—Current Literature.

The Bachelor's Will.

There was a jolly bachelor
Who died at eighty-eight,

The whole of his estate
To women who had answered nay
When asked by him to wed,
For he declared he owed to them
The happy life he'd led.

A Substitute.

"You're rather a young man to be left in charge of a drug store," said the fussy old gentleman. "Have you any diploma?"

"Why—er—no, sir," replied the drug clerk, "but we have a preparation of our own that's just as good."—Philadelphia Press.

Judge—As it has been clearly shown that you are not identical with the person charged with the robbery the court declares that you are acquitted. There has been an unfortunate mistake, but be careful for the future, mind! Next time you won't get off so easily.—Dorfbarbier.

Mrs. Stubb (flaring up)—I just don't want to see it. I think there should be a law against clipping off a poor dog's tail.—Detroit Tribune.

Too Soon.

"That artist is a real genius," remarked the admirer.

"No," answered Miss Cayenne. "He can't be a real genius, or people would not be saying so many complimentary things about him before he is dead."—Washington Star.

Indigestion

Stomach trouble is but a symptom of, and not in itself a true disease. We think of Dyspepsia, Heartburn, and Indigestion as real diseases, yet they are symptoms only of a certain specific Nerve sickness—nothing else.

It was this fact that first correctly led Dr. Shoop in the creation of that now very popular Stomach Remedy—Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Going direct to the stomach nerves, alone brought that success and favor to Dr. Shoop and his Restorative. With just that original and highly vital principle, no such lasting accomplishments were ever to be had.

For stomach distress, bloating, biliousness, bad breath and sallow complexion, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—and see for yourself what it can and will do. We sell and cheerfully recommend

Rough Riders Did Not Go

Owing to the fact that the ice on the Lakefield rink was covered with water, the game that was to have been played on that village on Saturday night between the Rough Riders and the Lakefield City League team, was called off.

Trappers Leave for the North

Mr. M. E. Merrium, of Harwood, who was in the city on Saturday, reported that as he crossed Rice Lake there were about four inches of water on the surface of the ice. This is an indication that the ice will soon disappear. His brothers who have been visiting there during the winter, leave this morning on their annual hunting and trapping tour in the northern woods.

Mr. Edward's New Venture

The latest enterprise of Mr. Edwards of the Crystal in opening up a show at Lakefield was a good business stroke. The opening night was attended by a crowded house, and the pictures were thoroughly enjoyed. The Little Misses Machan, by their clever dancing and singing, at once caught the audience. On Saturday more performances were given in Lakefield and were equally well attended. Mr. Edwards will have his company show in Norwood, Campbellford, Hastings, Havelock and other places.

Horse Shot at C.P.R. Yards

Saturday night about nine o'clock a telephone message reached the police station that a horse was in great distress at the cattle shipping platforms of the C. P. R. P. C. Newhall went down and found a horse lying down and unable to get on its feet. After ascertaining that the animal was permanently disabled, the officer drew his revolver and put the quadruped out of its suffering. It means that the horse was taken to the cattle pen at about five o'clock for shipment to Montreal. Before being loaded on the car the horse seemingly old and in poor condition, fell down and could not be induced to rise.

Child Wanted Statement Proves

One day last week a well known lady of this city took her little orphan to St. John's Church to a "mission" service. The reverend preacher in the sermon twice said, "God is here, God is everywhere." The four year old child in perfect faith and with absolute confidence, touched the lady on her shoulder and whispered, so his voice carried to the people in the pew in front, "Auntie, where is he?" "Where is who —?" asked the lady. "Why, God; I mean God," responded the boy. On the way home the little fellow proved that his attention had been held by the sermon by once more asking, "Aunty, I did not see God, and the minister said he was there." This little story, whilst in no way intended as flippant, is absolutely true in its essentials.

Collector Ed. Burton to be Superannuated

For some time there have been rumors of changes in the Customs officers at Port Hope, but no definite statement was made. It is now well known that Mr. E. J. W. Burton, who for thirty-six years has been Collector of Customs at this port, has applied for his superannuation under the Civil Service Act. Mr. Burton's actual retirement is dated somewhat ahead, but his application will no doubt be accepted.

It is generally understood that Mr. W. S. Bletcher will be promoted to the collectorship. Mr. Bletcher has earned this promotion by the faithful discharge of his duties. He is well qualified by experience in the work of the department, and his appointment to the office will meet with the approval of the entire business community.

As to who will fill Mr. Bletcher's present position is another story. That question, time and the authorities at Ottawa will solve.—Port Hope Guide.

His Holiness Comes Before the King of the Realm

To the Editor of The Times:

Sir,—I see by the Toronto papers, in reporting the proceedings of the Grand Orange Lodge of Ontario, that in August last "a corner-stone was laid of an addition to the St. Jerome college at Berlin, Ont., and a banquet held thereafter, where the first toast proposed was "His Holiness Pope (Pius X," the next 'King and Country'.

There no doubt will be some surprise at this, but there is no occasion for it. In our own good town of Peterborough the identical same thing occurred at a public dinner. The toast of "His Holiness the Pope" was honored, after which "the Queen" was given.

On the latter occasion a number of loyal Protestants left the room, but beyond this, no objection was taken.

FEAR MASSACRE OF WHITES--WAR-SHIPS ARE SENT

All the White Population in Hayti Said to be In Danger—Britain, Germany and France All Send Cruisers

Paris, March 16.—The situation between the Haytian Government and France has become acute and critical. The French Legation at Port Au Prince is in touch, and a general massacre of the white residents of the island is feared. This information was conveyed in an official dispatch to the Foreign Office from M. Carteron, the French Minister of Hayti.

Last week M. Bornio, the Haytian Minister of State, assured M. Carteron that Hayti would agree to allow the refugees who had taken asylum in the French Consulate at Gonaives and St. Marc to leave the island. This morning there came the news of the execution at Port Au Prince on Sunday of between 10 or 12 prominent persons on the charge of conspiracy against the Government, together with a cablegram from M. Carteron, announcing that General Nord Alexis, the President of Hayti, had not only refused to confirm the assurances given by M. Borno, but had flatly declined to permit the refugees in the consulates to depart. Eleven additional persons have taken asylum at the French Legation.

The French cruiser D'Estrees is expected soon at Consives, where she will act in co-operation with the British and German ships of war now on their way to Hayti.

It is understood here that France, Germany and Great Britain are acting in accord in this situation.

GERMAN CRUISER GOES

Berlin, March 16. — The German Admiralty, upon the request of the Foreign Office, has ordered the cruiser Bremen, which is at present at Curacoa, to go to Port Au Prince, Hayti, where she is to be at the disposition of the German Minister for the protection of German subjects or other foreigners.

The Foreign Office has been in correspondence with the French Government with regard to the political arrests made recently in Haiti, and the general situation of unrest that has existed in the Island during the past few weeks, and on March 11, the two governments agreed upon a course of action. A French cruiser also, it is learned here to-day, has been ordered to Port Au Prince.

A telegram received here by the German Cable Company from Port Au Prince, March 15, says that the safety of foreigners there was seriously threatened, and that the arrival of a cruiser was awaited anxiously

A Peterborough Boy Coming to the Front

Another Peterborough boy is well started up the ladder of fame in the person of Mr. Melville Robinson, son of Mr. W. S. Robinson. Young Mr. Robinson was for many years assistant to Mr. Joe Hays, former sporting editor of the Toronto News, and has had the good fortune to be appointed editor of the Hamilton Spectator. Mr. Robinson's many friends both at home and in Toronto, heartily wish him every success in his new position.

The British Make Some Proposals

Vienna, March 16. — It is expected that the British note with regard to the appointment of a governor for Macedonia, which already had been submitted to the government, also proposes the introduction of an extended judicial reform scheme, and the conversion of the gendarmerie into a thoroughly effective force.

In addition, it suggests that the powers shall guarantee the integrity of European Turkey on consideration that Turkey reduces the number of Turkish troops in Macedonia, in order to lighten the Macedonian budget.

"Top O' the Marnin' and Good Luck to Yez"

"Top o' the mornin' and good luck to yez!" Be sure to place a shamrock in your button-hole before starting out to business this morning, as this is the 17th of March, the 1415 anniversary of the death of St. Patrick.

To-day all Canada and the Motherland are paying tribute to the death of Ireland's Patron Saint, by wearing a simple sprey of shamrock, that little green flower from over the sea.

St. Patrick was born about 372 at either Boulogne, France, or near the town of Kilpatrick, Scotland. Both the French and Scotch historians claim him as their own.

It was at the age of 16 that he first entered Ireland, being captured by slave traders and taken there.

He spent his life in the work of teaching the Gospel in Ireland, and died in 493 at Down, Ulster, at the good old age of 121.

To-night a company of local amateurs are playing "The Shaughraun," a romantic Irish comedy. The play is being given under the auspices of St. Peter's T. A. S. The St. Andrew's Church are also giving a St. Patrick's night social, when a re-union of all the young people will take place.

Many social functions and other means of celebrating the day will be carried out.

Dr. Ashton Fletcher and Henry Saunders Charged with the Murder of Jessie Gould of this City

As the Result of an Alleged Illegal Operation--Both Pleaded Not Guilty

Has Slept for 40 Days

Los Angeles, Cal., March 16.—This is the fortieth day of which Mrs. Beulah Hawkins, the young woman who has been in a trance at the County Hospital, has been asleep. It has been suggested that if a woman sleeps over the fortieth days' limit she will die.

Body will Be Taken to Toronto This Morning

Undertaker A. W. Miles, of Toronto, accompanied by Provincial Detective Mackie, came down from Toronto yesterday afternoon to identify the body of Jessie Ellen Gould, which was shipped here for burial from Toronto by Friday. The body was removed from the cemetery vault early last evening to the undertaking rooms of Mr. D. Bellingham, Hunter St., where especial care was taken as to its safety during the night.

The body was re-shipped to Toronto on the early C. P. R. train this morning.

Toronto, March 16.—Detective Macke this morning secured from the Attorney-General's Department an order to exhume the body of Miss Gould at Peterborough. Mr. A. W. Miles, the undertaker, will go to Peterborough this afternoon to bring the body back. Detective Mackie will go with him. To-morrow morning Chief Coroner Johnson will make an autopsy, and call a jury probably for to-morrow evening. Backed by the Attorney-General's Department, Crown Attorney Corley will make a searching investigation of this case.

Case Held Over a Week

Toronto, March 16.—With a variety of old offenders in the police court dock this morning were Dr. A. G. Ashton-Fletcher and Harry Saunders, electrician, charged with the murder of Jessie Ellen Gould, on Tuesday, March 10th, as the results of an alleged illegal operation.

The doctor came up from the police court cells, but young Saunders was brought in from the Detectives' Department when the case was called by Magistrate Denison. His Worship read the charge and the information—a short paragraph sworn to by the Inspector of Detectives, charging them both with murder. The accused stood up to the dockk railing.

PLEAD "NOT GUILTY."

"Not guilty," said Mr. T. Rotsatte, K.C., counsel for Saunders.

"Not guilty," echoed Mr. J. W. Curry, K.C., counsel for Dr. Ashton-Fletcher.

"We are ready to go on with the trial," added Mr. Curry. "But I know the Crown isn't."

"Remanded till the 23rd," said the magistrate.

In the meantime the body of the girl will be brought back from Peterborough and subjected to a postmortem examination and an inquest.

THE DOCTOR'S DEFENCE.

Dr. Ashton-Fletcher's defence will be a complete denial of anything of an illegal nature. He admits being called upon to treat the girl in her trouble, but says that no operation whatever was performed upon her. He denies the use of any drug, and says that it was simply an ordinary case of miscarriage induced by stomach trouble. Death was hastened, he contends, by the rupture of a pus tube and other internal derangements. The case promises to develop into a hard-fought battle between the Crown and the defence as to what constitutes an "an illegal operation" in this connection.

"It will be a fight to a finish," said Mr. Robinette, regarding the case of Saunders. "The young man has told a perfectly straight story. He was not implicated in any way with anything illegal. I think the detectives will agree that Saunders told the truth."

"And there may be others," said the Crown Attorney this morning. "It depends a great deal how the evidence pans out. We are looking into some other cases."

MUST REMAIN IN JAIL.

No bail can be granted to either the doctor or Saunders under the present charge until a special order is given by the Superior Court. Mr. Curry and Mr. Robinette both stated this morning that they would make no such application until after the result of the autopsy and coroner's inquest are known.

Dr. Ashton-Fletcher has arranged with another physician to look after his practice. The doctor was taken to the detective office this morning and given an opportunity to make a list of his "calls" for the use of his substitute. He feels his position keenly, but mostly protests his innocence, and has every hope that the coroner's examination will clear things up.

From Saunders' statement, said Inspector Duncan this morning, that young man was surprised to learn on Tuesday morning that the girl was much worse. He thought the trouble was averted, until a nurse called upon him and told him that things were looking serious. Even then, he said, he demurred at the suggestion of an operation.

The inspector said there might be other arrests in connection with the present case. He said there was nothing to warrant the detention of Dr. J. H. Todd, who is alleged to have administered an anaesthetic to the girl previous to the alleged operation.

WAITRESS' DEATH THE CAUSE.

The charges arose out of the death of Jessie Ellen Gould, aged 20, at the Western Hospital last Tuesday. She was employed up till a short time ago as waitress in the Cadillac Hotel, Ternaiay street. Dr. Ashton-Fletcher gave Undertaker Miles a certificate of death from acute septic peritonitis, and the remains were sent on Wednesday to Peterborough, where the girl's friends lived. The burial took place on Friday.

POLICE HEARD ABOUT IT.

The police got a hint about the case on Wednesday, and began an investigation. As the result, Saunders was arrested at his home on Shuter street on Saturday night. He was taken to police headquarters, where he made statements to Inspector of Detectives Duncan, in which he mentioned the doctor. Detectives Sockett, Kennedy, Twigg and Archibald were then despatched to the doctor's house. He was not at home, but after a wait of nearly three hours he was taken into custody as he was leaving a street car to enter his home shortly before midnight. He, too, was taken to police headquarters and questioned by Inspector Duncan, from there to No. 1 police station, and thence to Toronto to Jail.

Rev. Ng Man Hing and Mr. George Thomas Deliver Addresses

A very large and enthusiastic meeting of the Christian Endeavor was held in St. Andrew's Church last night. The Rev. Mr. Potter occupied the chair, and Miss Ella Mathieson had the leadership of the meeting. "The Wise Use of Money" was the topic considered, and was presented in a concise and interesting manner by the leader. A large number of the members took part with short references to the subject.

The society listened with much appreciation to the addresses by the Rev. Ng Man Hing, missionary to the Chinese in Toronto, and Mr. George Thomas, of the Chinese Cafe in Peterborough. Both addresses referred to the great advances being made among the Chinese in this land, as well as in their own country, and referred with thankfulness to the work that had been done by the Christian churches.

Urges South Africa to Form a Great Dominion---Emigration

London, March 16. — At Capetown Sir W. Hely Hutchinson, unveiling a war memorial, said: "Just as Franco-British Canada is aiming to obtain the battlefields of the Plains of Abraham and Ste. Foy as a National Park, thus commemorating the complete acceptance of the results of the struggle of one hundred and fifty years ago, so South Africans might well unite in dedicating their lives to the building up under the British flag of a great Dominion which would be the best and most enduring memorial to the dead."

Louis Arnold, a Professor at Poitiers University, has an interesting article in Revue des Deux Mondes on the Canadian policy of French emigration. He seems willing himself to serve the Canadian Government in promoting peasant emigration, for which eastern Canada is the most suitable.

China Has Released Japanese Steamer Concession to China

Hong Kong, March 16—The Japanese steamer Tatsu Maru has been released by the Chinese authorities.

Pekin, March 16.— The full terms under which the case of the Tatsu Maru, the Japanese steamer seized by China in February on the allegation that she was conveying arms and ammunition to the Chinese revolutionists, has been settled are as follows:

First—China agrees to punish the officers who lowered the Japanese flag on the Tatsu Maru and to send a warship to the place where the vessel was seized to fire a salute as the Japanese flag is hoisted.

Second—The Tatsu Maru is to be released at once.

Third — China will purchase the arms and ammunition seized.

Fourth—China will punish the officers who committed this breach against International usage.

Fifth—The Viceroy of Canton will settle the amount of the demurrage for the detention of the steamer after consultation with the Japanese Consul, and finally, Japan agrees to exercise vigilence against her subjects in the matter of smuggling arms into China.

Mr. R. M. Dennistoun to Represent U.S. Government

Winnipeg, March 16. — Detective Folk, an American, accused of kidnapping two Canadian farmers across the international border near Emerson, Man., for the collection of a debt, had a true bill returned against him on Tuesday by the Grand Jury. Folk elected to be tried without a jury, and came before Judge Mathers in the King's Bench. Mr. R. M. Dennistoun represented the United States Government. The judge refused to hear counsel for the private prosecutor, the representatives of the two Governments only being allowed to speak. It was eventually settled that the trial should take place before a King's Bench Judge on March 27, the prisoner in the meantime being allowed out on bail.

Threw Himself In Front Of a Moving Train

Toronto, March 17. — About 11 p.m. on Saturday a young man, who refused to give his name, acted in a very insane fashion at the Sunnyside railway crossing. He was walking in that vicinity with a young woman, when the two had apparently some slight wordy quarrel. The young man left her and wandered towards the crossing. Waiting till he heard an approaching train, he threw himself on the track. The watchman at the gate noticed his suicidal action and promptly yanked him off the track. The supposition is that either the young man had been drinking or the course of his love affair was not running smoothly.

Havelock Men Held on Suspicion

Yesterday afternoon about 4.30 P. C. Newhall arrested two young men who have been hanging about the city for some time, and whose actions aroused suspicion. The two both claimed to have come from Havelock. The elder, by name Forman, is about 21 years of age, married, and a painter by trade. The younger, by name William Porter, claimed to have been born in Havelock 19 years ago, and to be a carpenter by trade. Porter, it seems, has represented himself to the police officer, and as such extracted money in several cases. The two men had promised some time ago to leave the city, but did not do so. They were living near the Chinese restaurant, corner of George and King streets. Their pockets, when searched, disclosed a most miscellaneous assortment of goods, including a razor, a knife about five inches long, pair of spectacles in case, a magnet, keys, note books, stationery of the National Hotel and many other articles. They will, in the mean time be charged with vagrancy. It seems that a complaint had been laid that certain wood wanting had been stolen from a resident nearby and scantling corresponding in description but sawed into stove lengths, was found in Firman's rooms.

POLICE

At yesterday's session of the police court a local junk dealer, by name Louis Florence, through Mr. Kerr, has counsel, plead a not guilty to receiving articles which he knew the articles alleged to have been pedalled were worth about 0.0s. W. McCall, the late witness, said he was a blacksmith. Last Friday Florence called at his shop to sell second-hand auger bits, saying he got them from the Rapid Tool Co. after the fire. Fifty were damaged a little by water. Witness bought twenty-two from him for one dollar.

Wm. Hetherington, next witness, Aylmer street, bought six bits from the defendant for twenty-five cents.

Mr. James Metherel did not buy any of the bits, nor did Mr. Halpin, Hunter street.

City Clerk Armstrong stated that Florence had not a peddler's license.

Florence, in the box, stated that he had bought a large quantity of scrap after the fire at Rapid Tool Co. He said that he was not a peddler.

Mr. Kerr put up a strong fight for his client, but his Worship said that he would give judgment on Saturday.

A young man named W. Fallon was charged with stealing two check valves, one tea valve, one globe valve, and two brass bars from the yacht "Myrtle," the property of Mr. E. S. Clarry, and also with taking two hunting coats, one sweater and a pair of rubber boots from Mr. R. M. Roy's yacht.

The prisoner elected to be tried by jury, and was remanded until Thursday next. It is alleged that Fallon stole the goods and sold them to John Doig, who appeared in court on Saturday on a charge of receiving stolen goods. The articles were found in Doig's house.

Peter E. Summers, of Kalamazoo, Mich., relates his experience:

"I was troubled with Nervous Debility for many years. I lay it to indigestion and excesses in early youth. I became very despondent and didn't care whether I worked or not. I imagined everybody who looked at me guessed my secret. Imaginative dreams at night weakened me—my back ached, had pains in the back of my head, hands and feet were cold, tired in the morning, poor appetite, fingers were shaky, eyes blurred, hair loose, memory poor, etc. Numbness in the fingers set in and the doctor told me he feared paralysis. I took all kinds of medicines and tried many first-class physicians, wore an electric belt for three months, went to Mt. Clemens for baths but received little benefit. While at Mt. Clemens I was told to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, though I had lost all faith in doctors. Like a drowning man I commenced the New Method Treatment and it saved my life. The improvement was like magic. I could feel the vigor going through the nerves. I was cured mentally and physically. I have sent them many patients and will continue to do so."

Appendicitis

Grape-Nuts as a Preconstructing Food

The number of cases of appendicitis which get well by proper feeding and nursing, is not less remarkable than the number of cases which were formerly operated on only to find that the operation was unnecessary.

While looking for the cause of this disease, it is well to remember that excessive starch fermentation may be considered a frequent cause, and that suggests more care in the use of starchy foods.

Grape-Nuts can be retained on the most sensitive stomach and is extremely nourishing—just the ideal food for appendicitis cases.

"Last spring I was taken ill with appendicitis", writes an Ind. man. "The doctor told me not to be alarmed, for he would do the best he could to save me from the operating table.

"He advised me to eat nothing for two weeks, during which time I became so weak I could hardly move. The trouble began to leave me and I began to eat fruits and milk, but I did not regain the strength I had before I was sick.

"A friend of mine recommended Grape-Nuts. I tried it and it worked wonders with me. I soon began to gain in strength, and in a month was as strong as ever.

"I don't think I ever used a food that did me so much good. I now weigh 180 lbs., as against 130 before I was sick, all due to Grape-Nuts and regular exercise.

"My muscles are like iron and I can do the hardest work. Being employed in a printing office, I have to think a lot, and my mind is clear, thanks to Grape-Nuts." "There's a Reason." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

GIRLS OF TODAYS ARE WEAKLING

Few Possess the Vitality and Girlish Beauty of the Olden Times.

Never before was physical health and vigor so highly esteemed and so eagerly sought for as to-day.

No man finds happiness in a sickly wife, and the woman who wishes to enjoy the pleasures of life should spare no effort to maintain perfect health.

Is your daughter growing up strong and ruddy? Has she strength to drink in greedily all the pleasures that youth so zestously seeks—or is she compelled to use the street car instead of enjoying the delightful exercise of walking—does she arise after the ball arise refreshed and vigorous, or is she exhausted, indifferent, and perhaps irritable?

When strength and vigor can be so easily maintained by Ferrozone, when the glow of health is so quickly brought to the cheeks and elasticity to the step, it is plainly a mother's duty to see that Ferrozone is on hand to assist her daughter back to health.

Upon the wake of Ferrozone follows quickly a stream of rich, nourishing blood which imparts that power and surplus energy so earnestly desired by those in ill-health.

Stop and think what this means for your daughter—certainly a great deal, and it can be accomplished by Ferrozone.

Every growing girl and young woman derives enormous benefit in many ways from this nutritive, vitalizing tonic.

It is especially suited for young women and is a guarantee of health and regularity as long as it is used.

Ferrozone is free from alcohol and perfectly safe to use. Prepared in the form of a chocolate-coated tablet and sold in 50c. boxes or six for $2.50, at all dealers.

LIBERTY OF THE DOUKHOBORS

Ivan Volassov, one of the Doukhobors who really made their way to Fort William recently reached Montreal when, according to a published interview, he stated that he had come east to make converts and expected others of the party to follow his example. It is the intention, he said, of the ninety now in Fort William, after they have marched to Ottawa, and laid their petition for untrammelled liberty of action before the government, to spread themselves over the country as missionaries. Untrammelled liberty of action, he explained, is the right of every person to do as he likes, to be guided by reason only and to subject himself or herself to no man-made law. Volassov seems according to the interviewer to be actuated by a fervid desire to evangelize the world and find a country somewhere or other in which the Doukhobors will be bound by no law but their own interpretation of what is right or wrong. The abandonment of clothes by wandering parties of Doukhobors is he declares, their extreme method of showing objection to compulsion by law or custom.

If these Fort William Doukhobors really intend to come to Ottawa, to see the government, says the Journal, it is most sincerely to be hoped the Department of the Interior will delegate officials to look after them and see they come into the capital with their clothes on. We want no exhibitions of the nude on the streets of Ottawa or upon Parliament Hill either.

Remember that when the stomach nerves fail or weaken, Dyspepsia or Indigestion must always follow. The Hindoos Are Indignant

Vancouver, B. C., March 16. — Application will be made to-day for Habeas Corpus proceedings for the eighteen Hindus recently convicted under the Natal Act, and sentenced to fines of $500 each. Failing this, the Hindus will appeal for the clemency of the Dominion Government. They declare it a shame, that though loyal Britishers, who fought under Lord Roberts in South Africa, they are subjected to fines or years of imprisonment because of their imperfect knowledge of the English language.

Spurious Information

A wild and woolly son of toil entered the post office the other day, and approached the wicket, where he asked for mail matter. The clerk informed him that there was a registered letter for him and directed him to the proper counter to get it.

"Is this the Registry Office?" he enquired of Mr. Morphet, as he presented himself at the wicket.

"It is", said the genial Ed. "What can I do for you?"

"I want a registered letter that they told me was here."

"Here it is," said Mr. Morphet, as he selected one from the bunch. "Sign your name in the book."

"Is this the book?"

"Yes."

"When do you want me to sign it?"

"Where do you want me to sign?"

"There," pointing to the place.

"I can't write."

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

THE MAXIM GUN.

Curious Origin of This Terrible Engine of Destruction.

The origin of the Maxim gun was somewhat curious. Mr. Maxim (Sir Hiram) after the close of the great civil war in America was visiting one of the southern battlefields. He picked up a Springfield rifle and began firing at a target. He soon discovered, to his amazement, that his shoulder was all black and blue with the recoil. This set him thinking, and he soon conceived the idea of utilizing this force in a gun which would fire automatically.

He went to London full of his idea, but no one would listen to him. In Birmingham the chief man in a factory refused to make a bolt gun.

In despair Mr. Maxim packed up his trunks and went to Paris. In two weeks the work was done. This gun Mr. Maxim exhibited in London in 1883. He spoke of it then as the gun of the future. It is now the gun of the present. It is a wonderful gun and a deadly one. By adjusting the indicator it will fire bullets at any rate from one per minute to 600.

This terrible weapon is started by the firing of the first shot. After that it works itself and will keep going as long as cartridges can be fed into the machine. When one belt of 333 is exhausted, all that is necessary is to hook on another.

When the British government gave an order for the gun they stipulated that it should not weigh more than a hundred pounds and should be capable of firing a thousand rounds in four minutes. Mr. Maxim produced a gun which weighed thirty-five pounds and fired 2,000 rounds in three minutes.

AN IRREGULAR VERB.

One That Made a Frenchman Despair of Learning English.

"What does 'Beat it!' mean?" asked the man of an inquiring frame of mind of his well informed friend.

"Why," was the reply, "that means to go, depart, be off, take your leave, and don't be slow about it. I don't know what it came from unless it is a bit of policeman's slang for 'Get off my beat!' or 'Clear out unless you want me to beat you!'

"I am reminded of a line in one of Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes' amusing poems, scattered through the pages of his delightful 'Autocrat of the Breakfast Table.' It runs:

"Depart! Be off! Exceed!
Evade! Evampe!

But it takes a Latin scholar to discover the derivations of all his verbs of motion.

"There is a story of a Frenchman who on his way to England was made the victim of a practical joke in regard to the verb 'go,' whose 'went,' 'going,' 'gone,' are irregular enough, goodness knows. He was found to be struggling with this variation: 'I go; thou departest; he clears out; we cut stick; you make tracks; they absquatulate,' and as he read it he exclaimed: "Mercy! What irregular verbs you have in your English language!"

Getting His Own Back.

An ironworker, having had the worst of an argument with a friend, decided to get even with him.

Waiting, therefore, until his enemy had retired to rest one night, he approached his street door and knocked loudly in order to wake him.

Opening the bedroom window, the other hurriedly inquired what the noise was all about.

"Why," replied the outside one, "one of your windows is wide open."

"Which one?"

"Why, the one you have your head through," chuckled the other as he went away satisfied with the success of his plot.

Must Charge to Get Crowd.

The ladies' guild of an uptown church had planned an evening entertainment and reception and asked the rector to make announcement of it on the Sunday preceding.

"This is all right," he said, "but you must charge admission."

"Why, this is just a social evening," they protested. "We are inviting people."

"They won't come," said the rector, "because they will think it is not worth while. But charge a small admission and you will have a good crowd." So the women gave in, and subsequent events proved the rector was right.

They Made Her.

A grandmother was reproving her little grandchildren for making so much noise.

"Dear me, children, you are so noisy today! Can't you be a little more quiet?"

"Now, grandma, you mustn't scold us. You see, if it wasn't for us, you wouldn't be a grandma at all."

One For Each Life.

"I want a good revolver," began the determined looking man.

"Yes, sir," said the salesman. "Six chambers?"

"Why—er—you'd better make it a nine chamber. I want to use it on a cat next door."—London Express.

THE DRAGON FLY.

Singularly Adapted to Its Life of Aerial Piracy.

No one could fail to be struck with the singularly perfect adaptation of the dragon fly's structure to a life of aerial piracy. The four wings are large and in proportion to their weight enormously strong. Each is supported by a wonderfully arranged network of slender ribs, which give the necessary rigidity to the thin, transparent membrane forming its basis. The muscles by which the wings are moved are massive and powerful and are so arranged among themselves that the animal is capable of steering its course with an unerring accuracy which any bird might envy. In this power it is largely aided by a marvelous keenness of sight, for in addition to the two great, gorgeously colored compound eyes which make up so much of the head the insect possesses three smaller "simple" eyes, making five eyes in all. The prey when overtaken is seized and devoured by means of powerful, sharply toothed jaws.

An animal which lives such an active life naturally requires a very perfect breathing apparatus, and this is amply provided by a system of holes on the sides of the body which open into an elaborate network of air tubes, supplying every part of the system. The air in these tubes is constantly renewed by the regular compression and dilatation of the body by special muscles.—Chambers' Journal.

HIBERNATION.

How and Why Some Animals Exist All Winter Without Food.

The philosophy or nature of hibernation and why and how it is that the hibernating creatures can go so long without food are interesting studies.

In the first place, the creature in order to enable it to sustain life throughout the long winter during which it hibernates is endowed with the capacity of accumulating within its body a large quantity of fat. This fat is to the animal what a well stocked coal cellar is to a fire, and until the whole of it has been consumed the tissue of the body proper remains untouched. It has been ascertained that animals can endure the waste of tissue until it amounts to 40 per cent of their normal weight. Should the weight be reduced beyond that point the result is death. But nature comes to the rescue of the hibernating creatures in another way. When the hibernation begins, respiration and digestion almost cease (in some cases they cease absolutely), and the circulation is only just active enough to sustain life. As a consequence of this the wear and tear is reduced to the minimum, and the creature is enabled to pull through.

Horses and Music.

Regimental horses have been the subjects of musical tests, and nearly all enjoyed the experience, only a very small percentage of the animals remaining indifferent to sweet harmonies, while equally few showed active dislike. The great majority were soothed, inspirited or excited by music. Most of the horses, like the war chargers one may suppose them to be, enjoyed the bugle above any other instrument and neighed gallantly when it was sounded, but thoroughbreds and colts generally were found to prefer the shrill treble of the fife, which roused them to great and sometimes unmanageable enthusiasm. This was the more significant because the fife was an unfamiliar instrument to them, not being generally used, as is the bugle in the French army.—Paris Cor. London Telegraph.

Model of Economy.

A certain farmer who lives out in the county and who is noted for his closeness in money matters has a twelve-year-old son, who is as industrious as his father is penurious.

Recently the father and son made a compact whereby the latter would receive 10 cents for every cord of wood he sawed and piled in the wood shed. Immediately the boy became very busy at the wood pile, and his earnings have been piling up at a rapid rate, his mother keeping her son's hard earned savings for him.

"What are you going to do with all your money?" the thrifty youth was recently asked.

"Goin' to buy a new saw with it," was the reply.

Benjamin Constant.

Benjamin Constant, having sided with Napoleon during the hundred days, felt the need of justifying himself when Louis XVIII. returned to power. He wrote the king a letter with that end in view and called upon Mme. Recamier to discuss the subject. She asked him quietly:

"Have you finished your letter?"

"Yes."

"Are you satisfied with it?"

"Entirely satisfied. I have almost persuaded myself."

Marrying.

Everybody is expected to marry once, and there is not much talk when you marry the first time, but people look wise when you marry the second time and roar when you marry the third time.

Very Interesting.

"What do you find so very interesting about society?" asked the ordinary person.

Capital, $250,000.00 — 1,000,000 Shares 25c. each.

Modest Capitalization — Large Coal Reserves

This Company organized under the laws of the Northwest Territories of Canada, owns and operates the Galbraith mine located at Lundbreck, Alta. They have four vertical seams of coal traversing their property, aggregating over 40 feet in thickness. Three of these seams are developed to a depth of 350 feet, and as they pass through the Company's lands for nearly a mile, some idea of the amount of coal may be had.

Shipping Steadily

The present output of the mine is about 200 tons per day. These shipments will be rapidly increased, as the C.P.R. allows its cars to be loaded with coal for points in the U. S.

30 CENTS PER SHARE

in blocks of 100 or over. Tight money in the States makes it possible for us to give this unprecedented offer in stock that will be paying dividends inside of six months, and you are sure to realize a handsome profit.

Parties ordering can send money by P. O. Orders, Express Orders or Bank Drafts, and we will have the stock issued direct to you. Full information furnished on request. Correspondence solicited. Reference, Bank of Montreal

What they offer at 25c per Share for a short time

The property is situated at Mancos, Colo., and consists of 160 acres, fully paid for. The Company expects to secure at least 400 acres or more, we are negotiating for it now and the terms are satisfactory and there is coal on the same, and they also intend to secure some Coal Mines of which they have the refusal. Some of the best coal mines in Colorado are in this district, as well as some of the richest gold and silver mines. In fact this is one of the richest parts for mineral in the State of Colorado, and the Company has the refusal to several prospects on reasonable and easy terms.

In our opinion the prospects of the Company are very bright, and a rapid advance in the price of the stock is sure to take place in the near future. Full information can be had by calling at our office.

The Opal Serpent

By FERGUS HUME,

Author of "The Mystery of a Hansom Cab," "The Mandarin's Fan," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1903, BY G. W. DILLINGHAM COMPANY

CONTINUED.

Hay, his impassive face lighting up, "then Beecot"—

"I must go," said the young gentleman, who did not wish to be called upon as a witness in a possible card scandal.

"And I'll go, too," said Lord George. "Whenever I play with you, Hay, I always seem to lose."

"What do you mean by that?" asked Grexon fiercely.

"Oh, he doesn't mean anything," said Miss Qian sweetly and putting her cloak around her. "Mr. Beecot, just take me to my cab."

"I'll take you to your carriage," said Hay, offering an arm to Mrs. Krill, which she accepted graciously.

Lord George followed, grumbling, with the ever smiling Maud. Miss Qian skipped into a hansom and offered Paul a drive back to town, which he refused. As the cab was driving off, she bent down and whispered, "Be careful," with a side glance at Hay.

Paul laughed. Every one seemed to doubt Hay. But that gentleman handed Mrs. Krill and her daughter into their carriage and looked toward Lord George. "You don't want your revenge tonight?" he asked.

"No, confound you!" said the young man sullenly.

"In that case I'll drive into Kensington with Mrs. Krill and borrow her carriage for a trip to Piccadilly. Good night, Sandal. Good night, Beecot."

He waved his hand, and the ladies waved theirs, and then the three drove away. Lord George lighted a cigar and, putting his arm within that of Beecot, strolled down the road. "Come to my club," he said.

"No, thank you," answered Paul politely; "I must get home."

"But I wish you'd come. I hate being by myself, and you seem such a good sort of chap."

"Well," said Beecot, thinking he might say a word in season to this young fool, "I don't gamble."

"Oh, you cry down that, do you?"

"Well, I think it's foolish."

"It is," assented Lord George frankly, "infernally foolish. And Hay has all the luck. I wonder if he plays square."

This was dangerous ground, and Paul shied. "I really can't say," he said coldly. "I don't play cards."

"But what do you know of Hay?" asked Sandal.

"Only that he was at school with me at Torrington. We met by accident the other day, and he asked me to dinner."

"Torrington? Yes, I had a brother at that school once," said Lord George, "but you and Hay wouldn't get on well together, I should think. You're straight, and he's"—

"You forget we have been dining with him," said Paul quickly.

"What of that? I've dined often and have paid pretty dearly for the privilege. I must have lost at least five thousand to him within the last few months."

"In that case I should advise you to play cards no more. The remedy is easy," said Paul dryly.

"It isn't so easy to leave off cards," rejoined Sandal gloomily. "I'm that fond of gambling that I only seem to live when I've got the cards or dice in my hand. I suppose it's like dram drinking."

"If you take my advice, Lord George, you'll give up card playing."

"With Hay, do you mean?" asked the other shrewdly.

"With any one. I know nothing about Hay beyond what I have told you."

"Humph!" said Sandal. "I don't think you're a chap like him at all. I may look a fool, but I ain't, and can see through a brick wall same as most Johnnies."

"Who can't see at all," interpolated Paul dryly.

"Ha, ha! That's good! But, I say, about this Hay, what a queer let he had there tonight!"

"I can't discuss that," said Paul stiffly. He was not one to eat a man's bread and salt and then betray him.

Sandal went on as though he hadn't heard him. "That actress is a jolly little woman," said he. "I've seen her at the Frivolity—a ripping fine singer and dancer, she is. But those other ladies?"

"Mrs. and Miss Krill."

The young lord stopped short in the High street. "Where have I heard that name?" he said, looking up to the stars. "Somewhere—in the country, maybe. I go down sometimes to the hall—my father's place. I don't suppose you'd know it. It's three miles from Christchurch."

"In Hants?" said Paul, feeling he was on the verge of a discovery.

"Yes. Have you been there?"

"No, but I have heard of the place. There's a hotel there called the Red Pig, which I thought"—

"Ha!" cried young Sandal, stopping again, and with such a shout that passersby thought he was drunk. "I remember the name. The Red Pig! A woman called Krill kept that."

"She can hardly be the same," said Paul, not wishing to betray the lady.

"No; I guess not. She'd hardly have the cheek to sit down with me if she did. But Krill! Yes, I remember—my aunt, you know."

"Your aunt?"

"Yes," said Sandal impatiently; "she was murdered or committed suicide in that Red Pig place—Rachel Sandal, with her unlucky opals."

"Her unlucky opals! What do you mean?"

"Why, she had a serpent set with opals she wore as a brooch, and it brought her bad luck."

CHAPTER XVI.

IT was close upon midnight when Paul reached his garret. Sandal drove him in a hansom as far as Piccadilly circus, and from that place Beecot walked through Oxford street to Bloomsbury. He had not been able to extract further information of any importance from the young lord. It appeared that Lady Rachel Sandal, in love with an inferior, had quarreled with her father and had walked to Christchurch one night, with the intention of joining the man she wished to marry in London. But the night was stormy, and Lady Rachel was a frail woman. She took refuge in the Red Pig, intending to go the next morning, but during the night she was found strangled in the bedroom she had hired. Sandal could give no details, as the events happened before he was born, and he had only heard scraps of the dreadful story.

"Some people say Lady Rachel was murdered," explained Sandal, "and others that she killed herself. But the opal brooch, which she wore, certainly disappeared. But there was such a scandal over the affair that my grandfather hushed it up. I can't say exactly what took place. But I know it happened at a small pub kept by a woman called Krill. Do you think this woman is the same?"

"It's hardly likely," said Paul mendaciously. "How could a woman who kept a small public house become suddenly rich?"

"True," answered Lord George as they stopped in the circus, "and don't have let on she knew about my name had she anything to do with the matter. All the same, I'll ask her."

"Do so," said Paul, stepping out of the cab. He was perfectly satisfied that Mrs. Krill was quite equal to deceiving Sandal. The wonder was that she had not held her peace to him about the Red Pig.

"You won't come on to my club?" asked Sandal, leaning out of the cab.

"No, thank you," replied Paul. "Good night." And he walked away.

The fact is Beecot wished to put on paper all that he had heard that night and send it to Hurd. As soon as he reached his attic he set to work and wrote out a detailed account of the evening.

"You might find out if Lady Rachel committed suicide or whether she was strangled by some one else," ended Beecot. "Certainly the mention of the serpent brooch is curious. This may be the event in Norman's past life which led him to change his name."

Paul wrote much more and then went out to post the letter. It was after midnight when he did, so there was not much chance of Hurd getting the letter before the second or third post the next day. But Paul felt that he had done his duty and had supplied the information as speedily as possible, so he went to sleep with a quiet mind, in spite of the excitement of the evening. But next morning he was unable to sit down to his desk as usual and felt disinclined to go to the newspaper office, so he walked in Jubilectown to see how Sylvia was getting along. Deborah met him at the gate.

"Well, I never, Mr. Beecot!" said Mrs. Gussy, with her red arms akimbo in her usual attitude. "This is a sight for

A Good Opening.

Ian Maclaren was talking to a group of literary beginners in New York. "Begin your stories well," he said emphatically. "There's nothing like a good beginning. Indeed, it's half the battle." Then, with a smile, this excellent beginner of stories added, "Always bear in mind the case of the young man who, desiring to marry, secured a favorable hearing from his sweetheart's irascible father by opening the interview with the words, 'I know a way, sir, whereby you can save money.'"—Good Health.

The Hen's Repartee.

The roosters smiled and the ducks did grin
When the brown hen sat in the old coal bin.
But the brown hen laughed as well as they
And said: "Now listen to my lay:

For it's filled with egg coal, don't you see!'"

DR. HAMILTON SPEAKS ON WOMAN'S HEALTH

The reputation of this noted physician needs no comment. For years he was one of the most noted and distinguished practitioners in England. In speaking of the ills from which women suffer, Dr. Hamilton points out that nine out of every ten women are by nature inclined to habitual constipation. Harsh purgatives are resorted to which only intensify the trouble. Although not generally known, it is a constipated condition of the bowels that causes half the sickness and tired weariness with which all womankind is so familiar. It was after long years of study that Dr. Hamilton perfected the pills which have been of such marvelous benefit to women the world over. In his pills of Mandrake and Butternut every sufferer will find an absolute specific for constipation, sick headache and biliousness. It is safe to say that Dr. Hamilton's Pills bring better health and keep the system in a more vigorous condition than any other medicine ever discovered. At all dealers, in 25c boxes.

It is Impossible to Reduce Flesh Without Dieting or Exercise

It is not only possible but being done everywhere. Exercise, unless carefully superintended by a physician and expert athletic director, may easily do a deal of harm to the great overburdened fleshy body. The untutored fat man and woman determined to get thin are only too likely to overstrain their fat-encumbered muscles by their awkward, ill-advised gymnastics, and so cause nerve and muscle troubles that may develop into something far worse than a little too much flesh. Same way with dieting. Starvation is certainly effective if kept up long and faithfully enough, but it is almost certain to injure the nutritive process and so weaken the patient constitutionally, while it is abominable torture of course, especially to a good-natured, high-living fleshy man or woman.

Fortunately neither dieting nor exercising are required or desirable if one uses the right remedy for reducing fat, and, strange to say, the remedy is a simple, wholesome home mixture, the ingredients of which are procurable at any drug store for a few cents. The mixture is as follows: 1-2 oz. Marmola, 3-4 oz. Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic, 4 3-4 ozs. Syrup Simplex, and the proper amount to take in one teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime. This mixture takes the fat off rapidly but naturally, so that no wrinkles are formed and no harm is done to the stomach, as is so frequently the case with "patent" or "secret" advertised remedies.

Kathryn Osterman's Laugh Philosophy

On account of her sunny disposition and always smiling countenance, Kathryn Osterman was given the title of the Laughing-loving actress by a Colorado critic. Speaking of laughter, Miss Osterman has had ample opportunity to study out, not only her own infectious laughter, but the of appreciative audiences as well. In her capacity as comedienne she has evolved a unique philosophy of laughter.

The basis of her theory is that long interludes of serious reposeful thought are essential to all whose business it is to amuse the public; in other words, that constitutional gravity is the only perennial fountain of the sparkling brand of humor that alone makes the reputation of the genuine comedian.

"Proverbially, smiles and tears lie close with the average run of mortals, but they at least are generally free from extremes," declares Miss Osterman. "The laugh that calls to yours every time is that rare combination of spontaneity, child-like innocence and silver bells."

It is by such a laugh her admirers maintain that Kathryn Osterman will be remembered long after "The Girl Who Looks Like Me" is committed to the limbo of the theatrical "has beens." Miss Osterman's infectious laugh has exceptional opportunities, it is said, in her new comedy, which will be seen for the first time in this city at the Grand Opera House next Monday.

Lax-ets 5c Sweet to Eat A Candy Bowel Laxative

NOW LISTEN!

Please read carefully what follows, and if you decide to take advantage of what the "Canada Southern Oil & Gas Co., Limited," of Tilbury, Ont (no personal liability), is now offering you, the result will be that instead of getting 3 per cent. for your savings, you will get at least from 10 to 25 per cent. that others are harvesting.

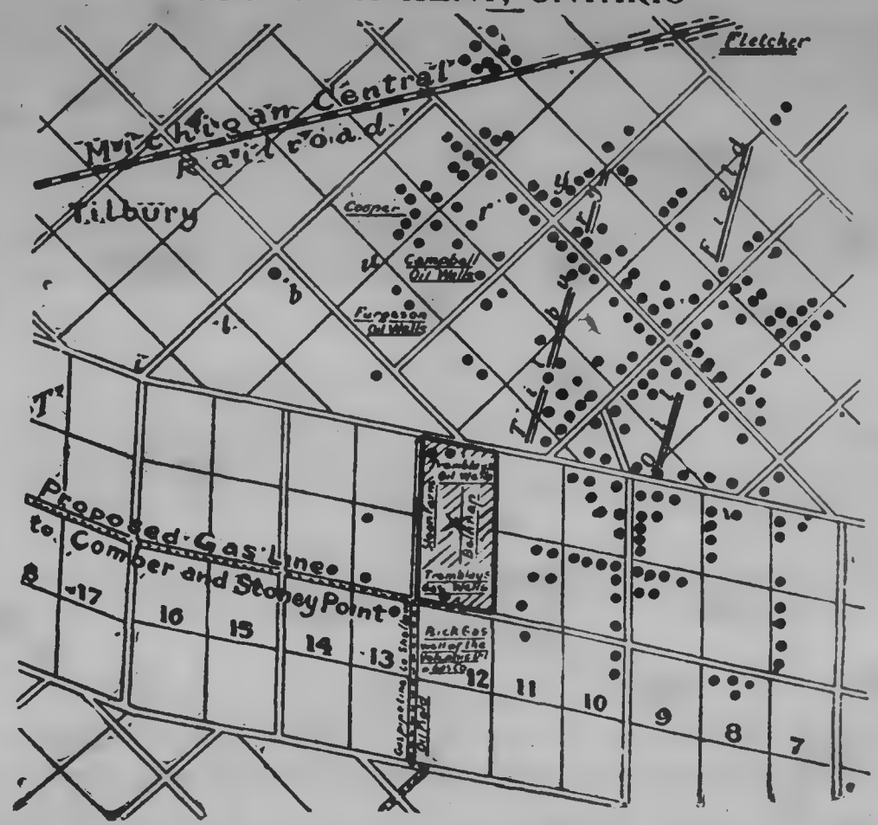
Your savings will be eight times more than the original amount by the mere fact of the higher rate of interest you will get.

Remember that this is no wildcat scheme, as you can see by the facts hereinafter mentioned.

Dr. Bell, the famous Canadian geologist, early in 1878 reported that there was an oil and gas field in the Townships of Tilbury and Romney County of Kent, Ont. As soon as the discovery of the oil was made in Tilbury in 1906, our American neighbors, who are experts in good things, did not hesitate to invest hundreds of thousands of dollars, and now, in fact, control the two-thirds interest in our oil field of Tilbury; and this happened because we Canadians hesitated to invest a few thousand dollars in the exploration of the oil mines of Tilbury, which already give a monthly production valued at $75,000, without adding the revenue derived from the gas.

We have said that this is not a wildcat scheme, because the "Canadian Southern Oil & Gas Co., Limited," has secured an option at a very moderate price on properties situated in the oil and gas field of Tilbury, upon which three successful tests have been made, being Lot No. 12, M. R. N., Tilbury East, 200 acres, indicated with a cross upon the map of the field.

COUNTY of KENT, ONTARIO



Three wells only have been drilled at an average depth of 1,400 feet.

The first one proves to be a rich gas well, the two others are good oil wells, combined with a strong production of gas.

The Company has also secured the franchises for the distribution and sale of natural gas into the Townships of Romney, Tilbury East, North and West and also into the thriving villages of Comber and Stoney Point.

The gas well is properly equipped and already is supplying the motor power to the Romney oil field and is getting one-third of the gross revenue of the gas sold.

The oil wells are completely equipped with one 15 H. P. gas engine, derrick, tanks, boiler, pumps, tubing, pipe-line, jerk-line, jack, etc., and are producing daily. The oil is sold to The Imperial Oil Company, Sarnia, and is delivered at the tanks and shipped through its pipe-line to Pere Marquette R. R. Station at Merlin, a distance of 3 miles.

Our properties are already giving daily a net revenue of about $35,00 —that is to say, more than 10 per cent. of the whole capital stock of the Company.

This revenue may be made four times greater by the drilling of other wells and the construction of the gas-line to Comber and Stoney Point.

Fritz Cirkel, Esq., of Montreal, consulting mining engineer and mining expert to the Dominion Government, who lately made an inspection of the said property, concluded his report as follows:

"In summarizing the actual results already obtained from the operations of the Sloan wells the writer is forced to the conclusion that the property under consideration is a very valuable one. Located as it is in the western extremity of the producing Tilbury oil field, in close proximity to wells which produce from 40 to 60 barrels of oil (and even more) per day of 24 hours (I refer to the Ferguson, Campbell and Cooper properties, located about 2,400 feet distant to the north, see plan attached hereto), it bids fair to become a producer of oil and natural gas of no small measure.

The Tilbury field has already the reputation of being a large producer and powerful companies have entered the district with a view of securing properties of known and established value.

There is one factor to which I would like to draw your special attention and that is the future of natural gas. To-day, the market in that in that part of the country, for this commodity is not sufficiently large to dispose of all the gas the wells can produce but there is no question that in the near future factories will be established on central points, which will eventually consume for various purposes, especially for power, all the gas which can be produced in the field.

Besides this there are quite a number of towns and villages in the western part of the Niagara Peninsula, which may use the gas for heating, lighting, and also for power purposes and it is only a question of time when this will be realized.

The economy of the application of natural gas to power purposes is already evidenced all through the field, as coal or any other power cannot be regularly obtained, and that at high figures. Having therefore, a powerful gas well on the (Sloan) property, it is evident that a great saving is effected from this source alone; for instance, for the operation of ten oil wells, the cost of power required per day would amount to between twenty and twenty-five dollars, which, in 300 working days per year, would represent a saving of from six thousand to seven thousand five hundred dollars.

In conclusion, I may say that this property, with proper and economic management, can be made highly remunerative; I entertain, no doubt, that if properly developed, it will show similar results as those of so many other locations in the vicinity, whose developments have of so many other locations in the vicinity, whose developments have been so vigorously pushed in the past.

Respectfully submitted,
(Signed) FRITZ CIRKEL.

CANADIAN PACIFIC RAILWAY'S WONDERFUL DEVELOPMENT

The Rapid Growth of Canada's Great Highway

Bright Outlook for the Future Is Predicted

Montreal, March 17.—The report that the Canadian Pacific is to apply the proceeds of the recent sale of $10,000,000 debenture stock to the construction of a new line through the Rocky Mountains is not surprising. The system traverses a section which is as yet only partly developed, and there is much country in the Canadian North-West awaiting the event of the railroad. In the fiscal year 1907 the Canadian Pacific increased its mileage less than in many years previous, yet since 1903 the growth of the system has been considerable. We present below mileage in each year since 1902:—

Fiscal year.	Mileage worked.	Mileage contr'd.	Total
1907	10,240	2,873	13,113
1906	10,139	2,746	12,885
1905	9,487	2,394	11,881
1904	9,108	2,213	11,321
1903	8,995	2,024	11,019
1902	8,646	1,977	10,623

A comparison of the mileage of 1902 with that of 1907 shows that the Mileage worked increased ...18.4 p. c. Mileage controlled increased ...45.9 p. c. Total mileage increased ...23.4 p. c.

In the same period the company's gross earnings per mile have increased approximately 90 per cent., and the net 70 per cent. At the close of the fiscal year 1902, the percentage of gross earnings to total capital was 2.5 per cent. At the close of the fiscal year 1907, the ratio was 23.1 per cent., showing that the earnings are keeping abreast of capital.

The future of Canada's great highway is exceedingly bright, and under the present capable management continued prosperity and development is assured.

SIR THOMAS SHAUGHNESSY, President of the C.P.R.

Race Suicide Condemned by Rev. Mr. Sharpe

Yesterday afternoon Rev. Mr. Sharp of Toronto, officiated at the Mission service in St. John's Church. The Reverend gentleman who is one of the smoothest speaking, impressive and eloquent speakers in the Anglican Church in Canada, in his deep toned voice gave a sermon specially directed to women. He began by saying that at the time of Christ women came more prominently into general history than ever before. This statement he illustrated by the ministrations of woman to our Lord, from His birth of a woman, during the years of His preaching, at the time of His crucifixion and of His first appearance after the great event of Calvary. Women had ministered to the body of Christ in the Church. The speaker then went on to tell the duty of women towards the church. He strongly denounced the too prevalent race suicide, saying women thought too much of the pleasures and enjoyments of this short life to fulfil the duties of maternity that God had given them. "How", he asked, "Can some of you women answer God when he asks where are your children?" He next took up the subject of reverential procedure whilst in the Church, speaking strongly against those who attended divine service and say their prayers "in a half-sitting, half-squatting position." If women were to have an audience with their earthly sovereign they would assume a more humble attitude than they do whilst communing with God. The way in which some women stare about during divine service was also handled in a way that caused marked interest. The Holy Sacrament, "The Body of Christ" was given some considerable attention. He had heard of a conversation between two ladies, held in the Church, but which if told to the congregation would make many of them say "Oh, my! that's too bad"! He apologized in a sense, for scolding those present. Still when they came to answer for their sins they could not escape by using Christ's condoning words "Forgive them, they know not what they do."

Secret Orders Given Doukhobors--Waiting Veregin's Arrival

Langham, Sask., March 18. — Peter Veregin's arrival here is eagerly awaited by his followers and a detachment of faithful Doukhobors are watching incoming trains. Letters received from Yorkton district, and reports brought by those of the Doukhobors who were visiting their brethren int hat part of the country, make everybody here regard as a bitter joke, Veregin's withdrawall of the Hersch diktum in regard to the community bill of fare. Encouragement of the use of eggs and milk has been ordered now that all the chickens are sold by the leaders orders, and only a few cows are left in each village. It is stated that the managers of the community continue the promulgation of their usual policy with as much zeal as ever. Those who have knowledge of Doukhobors affairs believe firmly that Veregin's recent declaration regarding the community bill of fare was made with a view to pulling wool over the eyes of the general public. It is well known that last year when the Doukhobors were given the ultimatum with regard to the necessity of becoming British subjects in order to hold homesteads, the community leaders resorted to similar tactics. While openly declaring their sincerest desires that the colonists should become nationalized citizens, they secretly sent assistants through the villages with a message of a different character. The communists were told by these harangers that the Government in view of an expected war, wanted to entrap the Doukhobors in order to make soldiers of them.

It transpires that a manifesto was issued forbidding communists the use of lamps, etc., since the fifteenth of last month. The communists here obey such orders only partially, owing to the distance from headquarters, but at Yorkton explicit obedience is demanded of the Doukhobors. The communist leader it is said, recently threw into the stove a fancy handkerchief and immediately the whole fraternity followed suit and in all the villages the communists started to burn handkerchiefs and shawls, but the strangest order is one forbidding the use of towels, which order the communists are trying to keep secret.

After washing, the communists dare not dry [illegible] hands with towels, but are to trust to the drying qualities of the atmosphere.

The Doukhobors who left the community are doing well and are considered good settlers.

An Interview with Detective Mackie on Gould Case

Detective Mackie and Mr. A. W. Miles, undertaker, who were in town Monday, returned to Toronto yesterday with the body of Jessie Ellen Gould, late of Bancroft, in connection with whose death charges have been made against Dr. A. G. Ashton-Fletcher and Harry Saunders.

When interviewed by a reporter Detective Mackie said:

"The girl belongs to a very respectable family, and her parents are almost heart-broken. Her sister was to have been married in a few days, but this sad occurrence has interfered. The father told me that, on going to Toronto to take charge of the body, he had a long interview with those who had attended his daughter, but they could tell him nothing as to the real cause of her death. He understood the doctor to state that he could tell him nothing definite until he had made an examination, and that death might have been due to appendicitis or some such cause. There was no hint of any operation such as is alleged to have been performed.

"Mr. Gould states that his daughter went to Toronto with the object of earning a livlihood. She was very popular here, and her death has caused great sorrow among her friends."

The body will, it is expected, arrive from Toronto to-day.

17th of March Celebrated

At the Opera House

A crowded house greeted those taking part in the "Shaugraun" at the Grand Opera House last night and great credit is due the Dramatic section of St. Peter's T. A. S. whose members composed the many characters of the play, which was in three acts and thirteen scenes.

All over the house were noticed the "Shamrock", especially on the fair Colleens.

The role of Conn, the Shaugraun was well mastered by that clever player, Mr. George Lynch, who kept the house in a perfect uproar with his witty jokes. Mr. Lynch was well supported by Miss Lavina Hallihan in the role of Molly Dolan. Conn's sweetheart while Miss Fanny Holmes as Claire Desmond was well received by the audience.

The scenry was exceptionally good, costumes fine, and the singing which consisted of illustrated songs between the acts by Mr. Lynch and Miss Hallihan.

The play was styled a romantic Irish comedy and such it was and of military life in the days when unhappy Ireland's coasts were infested by smugglers. "The Barracks", and Prison scenes in the second act were well worth seeing as was also the closing scene the "Smuggers' Retreat."

At St. Andrew's Church

In response to invitations sent out to the Daughters of Erin by the Young Men's Guild of St. Andrew's Church, about 160 young people were present last night to do honor to the memory of Ireland's Patron Saint. After a half hour spent in making all the Colleens acquainted with the laddie bucks, a fine programme of music and songs was given by a number of the guests.

Mr. F. C. Freeland drew applause when he sang "The Young Bugler," and received an encore. Miss Ethel Tully and Louise Mather rendered a very pretty instrumental duet to the satisfaction of all.

Mr. Rutherford read a concise paper on the "Origin of Presbyterianism," which was greatly appreciated.

Rev. J. J. Potter, pastor of the church, expressed a hearty greeting to those present, and emphasized the good work carried on by the Young Men's Guild.

Mr. Earnest Reid, president of the Guild, occupied the chair.

Tasty refreshments were served to the guests by the Daughters of Erin and the happy evening was brought to a close by the singing of "Auld Lang Syne."

Is Old Age a Misfortune?

Remarks made by Mr. Meredith to an interviewer show that he had not read, or does not sympathize with the arguments of Professor Metchnikoff, one of the foremost living biologists, in favor of greatly increased longevity for the average human being. To Metchnikoff it is an outrage on nature and science that men and women should regard even three score and ten as a green old age. He is convinced [illegible] individual and [illegible] industrial point of view [illegible] "coming" [illegible] hundreds of [illegible] than [illegible] his prime.

[illegible] the problems [illegible] experience, given, [illegible] society. Mr. Meredith [illegible] and peace after the battle of life. There are books to read, music to enjoy, a [illegible] many pursuits, indeed, which the man in harness must deny himself. [illegible] if [illegible] are one of the time for such enjoyment? Certainly the [illegible] does not share Mr. Meredith's idea of death after discharge from [illegible], and the West is learning to appreciate more and more the value of the contemplative and restful life. Society is too human to wish to get rid of its old. It wishes to see them comfortable and happy. And this wish is quite as "natural" as the insistence upon work and usefulness.

TWO THOUSAND STUDENTS TORE THEATRES TO PIECES

Building at Ann Harbor Completely Wrecked by Angry Young Men Who Resented Proprietor's Action

Ann Arbor, Mich., March 17. — Twenty-two University of Michigan students spent last night in jail, and the Star Theatre was thoroughly wrecked as the result of a riot of students last evening which lasted till nearly one o'clock this morning. The moving picture machine and the theatre piano were broken to pieces.

Trouble started Saturday night in a dispute between a foreign student named Kamm, from Kentucky, and Reynolds, the proprietor of the theatre. Some one whistled while the performance was in progress and Kamm was ordered to leave the house. He got up at once to leave, but it is said that at the door he slapped manager Reynolds in the face. At this point Special Policeman Schlimmer, in the employ of the theatre, took Mr. Reynolds' part and is said to have inflicted a scalp wound on the student by a blow with his billy.

2,000 MEN IN LINE.

News of the affair circulated among the students Sunday and yesterday, with the result that some of the bolder spirits among the students planned to make reprisals against the theatre management. Last night a procession was formed that went through the district of the student boarding houses shouting "all out for the Star Theatre". College men poured out to join the marchers at every block and when the procession reached the theatre, fully 2,000 men were in line.

Was Thomas Newhall Shot to Death?

A mystery still to be solved agitates the residents of Hall's Glen. It seems that some days ago, Thomas Newell employed by a Gilchrist Bay, Stony Lake, Lumber Company, has been missing. Some time ago Newell was shot in the leg near Gilchrists' Bay and has not been heard of since, although his brother is looking for him. It is rumored that he had been paying too close attention to a married lady in that district. Her husband got busy with a shotgun, and Newell got a charge of buckshot in the leg. No doctor was called into attendance and it is thought by many that Newell may have died from the gunshot wound, whilst travelling through the woods by night.

Fined for Hitting Boy with Shovel

Yesterday one of the best known men in the city was mad all through. The cause of this was his appearance as defendant at the Police Court. The evidence showed that a young man, by name, Hunter, was driving his father's grocery sleigh along George street last Saturday evening. The defendant, with other men under him, was doing some repairing near the C.P.R. The gates were down and the lad drove up to and almost over the defendant. The latter being startled got angry and used forcible arguments with the driver, to wit a scoop shovel, with which he hit the lad. Evidence seemed to show that the boy was hit, in fact two witnesses said they were tempted to attack the defendant at the time for striking the boy. His Worship imposed a fine of $5 with $3.60 costs, which were paid.

Railway Commission in Session Yesterday

Yesterday the Board of Railway Commissioners met in the Council Chamber. Those taking part were Hon. M. E. Bernier and Hon. Dr. Mills. Mr. Bernier acting as chairman. In the audience were gentlemen representing the interests of the city, the G. T. R. and C. P. R. respectively.

The first matter under discussion was the application of the city of Peterborough for leave to construct a highway as continuation of George street to cross the G. T. R. "Grand Junction" [illegible] Romaine street.

Mr. E. H. D. Hall, city solicitor, appeared for the corporation, and City Engineer Hay was first called, and said that the continuation of the street was demanded by the public as that portion of the city, which the continuation would serve, was at a disadvantage, owing to the distance between Park and Lock streets.

Mr. M. K. Cowan, of Ottawa, acting for the G. T. R., claimed that the crossing would be dangerous, on account of the railroad running obliquely across the intersection of two streets at right angles, should the locality by built up. This Mr. Hay somewhat admitted.

City Treasurer F. Adams noted that $1,375 had been spent in purchasing land for right of way. This, he said, would be lost if the crossing were not allowed.

Mr. Cowan asked if the city would pay half the cost of protection if the locality were built up.

Mr. Hall said this could stand in abeyance.

Mayor Rush said the city would pay all the expense if protection were wanted in five years.

Mr. Hall noted that the City Council would have to settle this matter. Judgment was suspended in this case.

The G. T. R. then applied for permission to build a branch line from south of Rink street, northerly across Rink street and south of Townsend to the plant of Messrs. Geo. Matthews Co.

Mr. McWilliams, for the Matthews Co., said the company last year spent over $1,800 on inter-switching charges. They also experienced delay in cars between their yard and the G. T. R. This specially affected live stock. In answer to a question by Mr. Mills, Mr. McWilliams said that the intention was to have the proposed siding join the C. P. R. immediately west of George street, and to utilize the C.P.R. track across George street.

Mr. E. H. D. Hall said that the crossing on Aylmer street where the C. P. R. crossed was dangerous now. The proposed siding would increase the danger at that section of the street.

Many other matters were placed before the board, and decisions will be given later.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The Commissioners met again at 2.30 and put business through quickly, as they had to leave by the 4.40 train.

The first case considered was the application of the city to have the gates placed on Reid street near the William Hamilton Manufacturing Company's works, across the G. T. R. No evidence was taken. Mr. Cowan, for the G. T. R., admitted that the gates were necessary, and contended that as the Hamilton Co. had built their plant after the line had been built, that the city should pay part. Then that old time trouble of the disposal of the water to the rear of the canoes factory was taken up. It seems that four parties are interested in this, and that an agreement had been attained to settle the matter by using iron pipes underground at general expense. Mr. Meldrum, for the Cereal Company, however, though his company would not be first in proportion to the others.

The commissioners advised the parties interested to settle the matter

Death of Mrs. E. Brumwell, Smith

Yesterday one of the oldest residents of the township of Smith passed away in the person of Jane Stewart, widow of the late Mr. E. Brumwell, of that township, at the residence of her nephew, Mr. James Fowler. The deceased was 75 years of age and was born in County Monaghan, Ireland, but had resided in this country for over fifty years. Her husband predeceased her 30 years ago. She leaves no family.

The funeral will take place to-morrow at two o'clock from lot 16, con. 3, Smith, and proceed to the Little Lake Cemetery.

Strangers from Lindsay, whilst wandering about the city after dark should have a guardian along.

On Monday night a Lindsay man was on the C.P.R. track, about ten o'clock, when two men sprung from behind a freight car and, with clubs, made him disgorge his money, amounting to $3. The police are in possession of a description of the hold-up men, but yesterday no clue, as far as could be ascertained, had been obtained of their whereabouts.

Peterboro Sculpturess Portrayed

The London Free Press of the 14th inst., contains a large portrait of Peterborough's noted sculptress, Miss Wallis, and pictures of several of her sculptures. It pays special notice to her statue of "Mercury admiring his own invention," that the caretaker of the Toronto museum decorated (?) with a brand new coat of white paint on its arrival in that city. The Ontario government is now holding an investigation of this piece of absurd vandalism and will probably make full recompense for the damage done.

Making Good.

There is no way of making lasting friends like "Making Good;" and Doctor Pierce's medicines well exemplify this, and their friends, after more than two decades of popularity, are numbered by the hundreds of thousands. They have "made good" and they have not made drunkards.

A good, honest, square-deal medicine of known composition is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It still enjoys an immense sale, while most of the preparations that have come into prominence in the earlier period of its popularity have "gone by the board" and are never more heard of. There must be some reason for this long-time popularity and that is to be found in its superior merits. When once given a fair trial for weak stomach, or for liver and blood affections, its superior curative qualities are soon manifest; hence it has survived and grown in popular favor, while scores of less meritorious articles have suddenly flashed into favor for a brief period and then been as soon forgotten.

For a torpid liver with its attendant indigestion, dyspepsia, headache, perhaps dizziness, foul breath, nasty coated tongue, with bitter taste, loss of appetite, with distress after eating, nervousness and debility, nothing is so good as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It's an honest, square-deal medicine with all its ingredients printed on bottle-wrapper—no secret, no hocus-pocus humbug, therefore don't accept a substitute that the dealer may possibly make a little bigger profit. Insist on your right to have what you call for.

Don't buy Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription expecting it to prove a "cure-all." It is only advised for woman's special ailments. It makes weak women strong and sick women well. Less advertised than some preparations sold for like purposes, its sterling curative virtues still maintain its position in the front ranks, where it stood over two decades ago. As an invigorating tonic and strengthening nervine it is unequaled. It won't satisfy those who want "booze," for there is not a drop of alcohol in it.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, the original Little Liver Pills, although the first pill of their kind in the market, still lead, and when once tried are ever afterwards in favor. Easy to take as candy—one to three a dose. Much imitated but never equaled.

BREAKFAST WITHOUT COFFEE

might seem a hardship to some, but when the harm done by caffeine—the drug in coffee—is considered, its absence should be counted a good thing.

Another "good thing" is

the health-beverage, made from wheat, skillfully roasted to bring out the delightful flavour and the food-elements of the grain.

In making Postum the vital phosphates, placed by Nature up under the bran-coat of the wheat, are carefully retained for rebuilding worn-out brain and nerve cells.

Postum builds up what coffee tears down, and

"There's a Reason"

VERY PREVELENT IN YOUNG WOMEN

A Condition of Waste-Bloodedness is Fast Increasing.

It is always associated with langour and sensitiveness to cold. All the mucous surfaces, such as the gums, lips and eyelids, are blanched and waxy looking, the skin is pallid and colorless.

The pulse becomes rapid and feeble; there is also loss of appetite and enfeebled digestion, palpitation of the heart, breathless and tendency to faint. In extreme cases there is complete disappearance of the menses, also flow and dropsical swelling of the limbs.

Physicians know of no remedy so prompt in results as Ferrozone, which contains all the elements lacking in debilitated blood.

Ferrozone not only improves the present quality of the blood, but actually forms more blood—the rich, red kind that nourishes and feeds the organs that require assistance.

"About a year ago," writes Mrs. S. G. Stanhope, of Rothesay, "my daughter complained of feeling tired. She was very pale and listless, and kept losing strength until too weak to attend school.

"We read of a similar case, that of Miss Lescent, Stirling, Ont., being cured by Ferrozone, and this induced us to get it for Elaine. It took three boxes of Ferrozone to make any decided improvement, but when six boxes were used my daughter was beginning to be her old self again. It didn't take much longer to make a complete cure. It has made a new girl of Elaine. She has gained ten pounds in weight and looks the picture of perfect health. She is stronger and enjoys the best of spirits."

Every growing girl and young woman can make herself strong and healthy with Ferrozone. Price 50c. per box, or six for $2.50, at all dealers.

UNION LABEL

PETERBOROUGH, MARCH 16, 1908

THROUGH THE HOROSCOPE

In treating of the present situation in the Dominion, one of the chief factors, says the Monetary Times under the above caption, is Western Canada. Speaking of the setback experienced during the past few months an assertion that this country has met with any big obstacles cannot be admitted. The tight money situation is a temporary and economic malady. Considering how the trend of our commercial and financial movement is governed largely by factors over which we have no control, existing conditions here are substantial. Although capital is scarce, it is not so scarce as to hang a dead weight upon trade and commerce. The country is as prosperous now as twelve months ago.

The change in the aspect of things is partly due to the prevalence of extravagance during the times of prosperity, and to the present wave of economy during equally as good times. The careless, spending spirit of the past largely accounts for the tendency of the present to think twice before spending. Really easy money may not be this year. Probably during March, April and May a slight loosening of the purse-strings will be observed. When the thoughts of the harvest are in mind, Western Canada will have the ear and coin of the East. During the present trifling setback neither panic, fiasco, nor anything of that ilk has occurred.

It must be but a matter of a few years, therefore, granted that the Western crop is not a failure in that period, before we are being carried along on a rapidly rolling wave of prosperity. The natural result is a crisis. Its bad effects the sound sense of the country may mitigate to some extent. However strenuously one may fight against the workings of the cycle theory, until drastic changes enter into the economic system, the periodical boom and collapse will come.

In Western Canada for the next three years, it might be safely predicted that the prices of cereals will be the highest on record. What prosperity his means for the community may be imagined. And in five or six years from now we may be talking of a really serious setback. A prophet's role is not an enviable one; and opinions are but opinions. There is nothing very gloomy in these thoughts. The conservative interests of the country we shall thank for lessening the economic evils which must come in the natural order of things.

Remember that when the stomach nerves fail or weaken, Dyspepsia or Indigestion must always follow. But, strengthen these same weak inside nerves with Dr. Shoop's Restorative, and then see how quickly health will again return. Weak Heart and Kidney Nerves can also be strengthened with the Restorative, who a Heart pains, palpitation, or Kidney weakness is found. Don't drug the Stomach, nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys. LINES TO LOUISA.

(The same being our forty-seventh maid who has gone to smash elsewhere.)

A week ago we had a maid
Whose memory will never fade.
You should have seen Louisa!
She piled the plates on which we dined
So very high they called to mind
The leaning tower of Pisa.

At other times they did not lean
When carried by our kitchen queen
(Whose other name was Dennis),
But rose as straight as spire or tree,
And then her model seemed to be
The campanile, Venice.

The leaning tower was first to go,
And when it hit the floor below
The havoc was appalling!
At once another crash occurred,
And then, alas we know we heard
The campanile falling!

I see its shattered remnants yet.
'Twas half our wedding dinner set—
The other half was Pisa.
My chatelaine her protest filed.
"Pray leave," she cried, "ere I go wild,
For Pelion on Ossa piled
Would be your next, Louisa!"

Modern Archaeology.

Pat was having an argument with a friend who was well posted in ancient history.

"How foolish of you to contend that the ancient Irish were more advanced than the ancient Egyptians," said his friend. "Why, the Egyptians must have known understood electricity, as wires corresponding to our own telegraph wires have been found in Egypt."

"That may be," answered Pat, "but the fact that no wires have been found in Ireland proves beyond a doubt that the Irish were in the habit of using wireless telegraphy."—Philadelphia Ledger.

CONDITIONS IN CANADA.

Labor Gazette Gives Review of Year 1907.

The January issue of the Labor Gazette contains an extended review of the industrial and labor conditions throughout Canada during the calendar year of 1907. The condition of industry and of general employment is described in the opening paragraph of the article in part as follows:—

During the first nine months of 1907 the general prosperity of trade and industry and the very active conditions of employment that were more pronounced in 1906 than in any previous year in the history of the Dominion were continued without abatement. Prices and wages, which went steadily upward in 1906, reached still higher levels in the spring and summer of 1907.

The Financial Stringency.

With the close of the summer season however, the growing stringency in the money markets of the world began to be felt in Canada in the way of checking the rapid increase in production and equipment, which had been uninterrupted for some time before. The yield of wheat and grain in the Northwest Provinces, and in Ontario also, showed a falling off as compared with 1906, and although the Atlantic fisheries and coal mines had an exceptionally busy year throughout, with labor in active demand, and though the volume of traffic and the earnings of the railway companies were the largest ever recorded, the output of manufactured goods and of the various metals was less in the closing months of the year than in the corresponding season of 1906. The lumber industry both in British Columbia and in Ontario and the eastern Provinces was also quiet throughout the autumn, with preparations under way for a smaller cut than last year.

Unemployed In Large Centres.

With the close of the season of outdoor activity, more than the usual number of unemployed were reported in certain of the larger centres, though the prolongation of mild weather in western Canada enabled an unusually large amount of land to be prepared for the season of 1908. During the closing weeks of the year there was a noticeable improvement in the general tone of the labor market and in industrial and commercial circles following upon the somewhat easier financial conditions. The outlook for 1908 was regarded as very favorable in view of the large amount of railway construction and other work in progress, the vast extent of land still unoccupied in western Canada, and the prevailing opinion that the money shortage would be overcome.

Trade Disputes During the Year.

The issue also contains a special review of the trade disputes occurring in Canada during 1907. Altogether, 149 trade disputes, affecting 34,694 workpeople, and causing a loss of 613,986 working days, occurred in 1907, compared with 138 disputes affecting 26,014 workpeople and causing a loss of 433,975 working days in 1906.

Oldest Protestant Church.

By far the oldest public building in English-speaking Canada, St. Paul's, Halifax, is also the oldest Protestant church in that vast region, known yesterday as British North America. Erected in 1749, at the first settlement of the city, and constructed of timbers brought from Boston, the old church remains to-day in a perfect state of preservation and apparently good for at least another century. It is modelled upon the plan of St. Mary's church, Vere street, London, and possesses a pair of bells sent out from England, to judge from their tone, of very ancient workmanship. Underneath the church are extensive vaults containing the remains of a number of prominent personages, including the two Bishop Inglis, father and son. The vaults are now closed, but are still accessible to anyone of a mildly adventurous disposition.

The church contains between forty and fifty mural tablets to deceased clergymen, statesmen, and officers of the army and navy who have died on the station, and a number of "hatchments" or "escutcheons" also adorn the walls. There is a magnificent service of solid silver communion plates, presented by the founder, George II. In the vestry hang a number of rare and valuable engravings—Halifax in 1760, Bishop Inglis, Rev. Dr. Breynton, the second rector, in wig and gown. The vestry minute books and registers date about a century and a quarter back, and are most interesting.

Since its founding St. Paul's church has had eight rectors. The present rector, Ven. Archdeacon Armitage, Ph.D., is an Ontario man, as was also his predecessor, Rev. Dyson Hague, now of London, Ont. A great work is being carried on in this venerable parish, which, in point of membership and parochial activities, is the foremost in the Maritime Provinces.

The Very Thing.

The following story is being told about one of the professors at St. Michael's College, Toronto. He induced a Protestant friend, with whom he had many an argument, to accompany him to a Christmas service at St. Michael's Cathedral. It was this friend's first experience of such a service in a Catholic cathedral, and the odor of incense and the soft cadence of the music quite enraptured him.

Leaning over to his friend, he whispered: "Doesn't this beat the devil!"

"I am so glad you think so," smiled the professor. That is just what we are holding the service for."

Face Shows Habitual Worry.

Habitual worry shows itself in the action of the facial nerve—the nerve of expression, as anatomists call it—producing lines which in course of time become permanent. The same is true of many other emotions and states of mind; and those which are dominant in the life of the individual will ere long produce permanent changes in the face. The secret of the beauty which age cannot wither is to possess a beautiful mind; chin-straps and depilatories and electricity and massage and cosmetics are poor makeshifts compared with this.

GOOD TASTE IN DRESS.

Particular Attention Paid to Shoes and Gloves.

If you would dress in good taste, pay particular attention to shoes, gloves and veils, to nicety in the matter of neckwear and to trifles that give pretty finishing touches to a plain costume.

The woman who is dressed in good taste is not always the one who spends the most on her clothes, but rather the one who can afford so few frocks that she sticks to plain modes and colors best suited to her.

The woman who will give a little thought to the matter of dress manages to spend less money and get better results and service than the careless, indifferent woman who is content to wear "just anything."

A woman's gown is one of the indexes to her character. If for no other reason, it should merit careful consideration.

Some women always dress loudly, always wear the extremes of fashion and even exaggerate extremes.

If checked cloth, pointed shoes, short skirts or long coats are in style, they insist on broader checks, more pointed shoes, shorter skirts and longer coats than the fashion prescribes.

In other words, everything is exaggerated, so that people will think that they are not only right up to fashion, but also a little ahead.

Women who dress in this manner suffer because such things indicate certain character qualities—inordinate vanity, an overestimation of one's importance, superficiality, foolishness.

Character is estimated by little things, and when people seem to spend most of their energies in thinking about themselves it is taken for granted that they are not much good for the solid, substantial things of life.

People who are given to thinking too much of themselves always think too little of others.

They are proverbially selfish, and selfishness is instinctively despised by every one.

WET WEATHER SHOE.

Flap Prevents Melted Snow Entering Interior of Shoe.

A good idea in storm boots is shown in the accompanying illustration. As every one knows, the fault with so called storm boots is that, although they protect the feet from cold, they do not prevent snow and slush from entering the interstices formed by the lacing. In a short time the snow is melted by contact with the foot, and the resultant water finds its way down to the stocking. In the shoe shown here this objection is overcome by providing a flap which overlaps the lacing and clamps on the side of the shoe. It will be obvious that it would be impossible for melted snow to work into the interior of a shoe provided with such a covering. The snow that adheres to the fastening would melt and drop down the side of the boot.

The Box Couch.

The box couch has long ago proved its convenience. Either as an emergency bed or clothespress it has no equal—indeed, it is a piece of furniture that few housekeepers can dispense with.

As absolute perfection is not yet come to earth, the box couch is not exempt from flaws. About the only serious one, however, is the persistency with which dust will sift inside, no matter how closely shut is the lid.

One clever woman has overcome this so much to her own satisfaction that her remedy is worth trying.

Over the lining she tacked white kitchen tablecloth, with the shining side turned in. A strip about two inches wide was also fastened all around the edge, so that when the lid was down it acted as a close flap over the opening.

The bottom of the box was then lined with a heavy yellow paper, which may be easily removed and freshened.

These simple precautions are marvelous dust deflers and make it possible to use the couch to hold gowns or even white waists without their being wrapped, as was formerly necessary.

Mrs. Palmer Now Collects Coins.

Coins, medals and clasps with "associations" attached are being sought by Mrs. Potter Palmer, for "once a collector, always a collector." She has gathered old French furniture for years, and her collection makes beholders envious. She has turned to porcelains, and many of her treasures are precious enough to break other collectors' hearts. Her London house is filled with rolls of tapestry, statuettes and pictures, some of which have not been taken out of their wrappings since she bought them. It probably is a satisfaction to her to know other art collectors didn't get them and won't as long as her money lasts.

Vancouver, B. C., March 16. — Application will be made to-day for Habeas Corpus proceedings for the eighteen Hindus recently convicted under the Natal Act, and sentenced to fines of, $500 each. Failing this, the Hindus will appeal for the clemency of the Dominion Government. They declare it a shame, that though loyal Britishers, who fought under Lord Roberts in South Africa, they are subjected to fines or years of imprisonment because of their imperfect knowledge of the English language.

Capital, $250,000.00 1,000,000 Shares 25c. each.

Good coal stock is a safe and sure investment. Galbraith shares are especially attractive.

Modest Capitalization Large Coal Reserves

This Company organized under the laws of the Northwest Territories of Canada, owns and operates the Galbraith mine located at Lundbreck, Alta. They have four vertical seams of coal traversing their property, aggregating over 40 feet in thickness. Three of these seams are developed to a depth of 350 feet, and as they pass through the Company's lands for nearly a mile, some idea of the amount of coal may be had.

Shipping Steadily

The present output of the mine is about 200 tons per day. These shipments will be rapidly increased, as the C.P.R. allows its cars to be loaded with coal for points in the U. S.

We are selling a limited number of these shares at the extremely low price of

in blocks of 100 or over. Tight money in the States makes it possible for us to give this unprecedented offer in stock that will be paying dividends inside of six months, and you are sure to realize a handsome profit.

Parties ordering can send money by P. O. Orders, Express Orders or Bank Drafts, and we will have the stock issued direct to you. Full information furnished on request. Correspondence solicited. Reference, Bank of Montreal

What they offer at 25c per Share for a short time

The property is situated at Mancos, Colo., and consists of 160 acres, fully paid for. The Company expects to secure at least 400 acres or more, we are negotiating for it now and the terms are satisfactory and there is coal on the same, and they also intend to secure some Coal Mines of which they have the refusal. Some of che best coal mines in Colorado are in this district, as well as some of the richert gold and silver mines. In fact this is one of the richest parts for mineral in the State of Colorado, and the Company has the refusal to several prospects on reasonable and easy terms.

In our opinion the prospects of the Company are very bright, and a rapid advance in the price of the stock is sure to take place in the near future. Full in information can be had by calling at our office.

sore eyes. Won't my pretty be 'appy this day, say what you may! She's a-makin' out bills fur them as 'ad washin' done, bless her 'eart for a clever beauty."

"How is business?" asked Paul, entering the gate which Deborah opened.

"Bless you, Mr. Beecot, I'll be a lady of forting soon," answered the proprietress of the laundry. "The way washing 'ave come in is jest amazin'. One 'ud think folk never 'ad no linen done up afore an' that they never did 'ave," said Deborah, rubbing her nose hard. "in my way, which is a way. If you'd only send along your shirts, Mr. Beecot, I'd be proud to show you what can be done with fronts, an' no thumb nails down them to spile their loveliness."

Paul did not reply to this, but laughed absently. He was wondering if Deborah had ever heard her master drop any hint as to his having come from the place where Mrs. Krill resided and asked the question on the spur of the moment.

"Do you know Christchurch, in Hants?"

Deborah rubbed her nose harder and looked at him doubtfully.

"Me as said as I'd no relatives must tell the truth now, as I 'ave," said she rather incoherently, "for my sister, Tilly Junk, worked for some one in that there place for years. But we never got on well, she bein' upsettin' an' masterful, so ask her to my weddin' I didn't, an' denied relatives existin', which they do, she bein' alive ten years ago, when she last wrote."

"You have not heard from her since?" asked Paul inquisitively.

"Sir, you may burn me or prison me or put me in pillaries," said Mrs. Tawsey, "but deceive you I won't. Me an' Tilly, not bein' of 'appy matchin', don't correspond. We're Londing both," exclaimed Deborah, "father 'avin' bin a 'awker, but why she went to the country or why I stopped in Gwynne street no one knows. And may I arsk, Mr. Beecot, why you arsk of that place?"

"Your late master came from Christchurch, Mrs. Tawsey. Did you never hear him mention it?"

"That I never did, for close he was, Mr. Beecot, say what you like. I never knowed but what he'd pawned and sold them bookses all his blessed life, for all the talkin' he did. If I'd ha' knowed," added Deborah, lifting her red finger, "as he'd bin married afore and intended to cast out my lovely queen I'd ha' strangled him myself."

"He had no intention of casting out Sylvia," said Paul musingly; "he certainly left the money to her."

"Then why 'ave that other got it?"

"Sylvia's name wasn't mentioned, and Miss Krill is legally entitled as the legitimate daughter."

"Call her what you like, she's a cat, as her mother is afore her," said Mrs. Tawsey indignantly, "and not young at that. Thirty and over, as I'm a livin' woman."

"Oh, I don't think Miss Krill is as old as that."

"Being a man you wouldn't, sir, men bein' blind to wrinklings and paint. But paint she do, the hussey, and young she ain't. Over thirty, if I die for the sayin' of it."

"But Mrs. Krill was married to your master only thirty years ago."

"Then more shame to 'er," snapped Deborah masterfully, "for she ain't an honest woman if the signs of age is believin'. Will I write to my sister Tilly, as I don't love, Mr. Beecot, and arsk if she knowed master when he was in that there place, which she can't 'ave, seeing she's bin there but ten year, and be away twenty?"

"No, Deborah, you'd better say nothing. The case is in Hurd's hands. I'll tell him what you say and leave the matter to him. But you must be deceived about Miss Krill's age."

"I've got two eyes an' a nose," retorted Mrs. Tawsey, "so don't talk of deceivin's. Thirty and more she is, the hussey, let her Jezebel of a mar lie as she like, an' can say what you will, Mr. Beecot. But there's my pretty smilin' from the winder and the tub's a-waitin', so you go in and smooth 'er affections while I see that Mrs. Purr irons the shirts, which she do lovely, there's no denyin'. Hob!" And Deborah plunged round the corner of the house.

Paul walked through the newly created garden, in which he saw many proofs of Sylvia's love for flowers, and reached the door in time to take the girl in his arms. She was flushed and joyful, and her eyes were as bright as stars. "Paul, darling," she said as they entered the sitting room, where she was struggling with the accounts, "I'm so glad you are here. What's nine times nine?"

"Eighty-one," said Paul, looking at the long list of figures Sylvia had been trying to add up. "Why do you make your head ache with these accounts, darling?"

"I must help Debby, Paul, and I get on very well with the aid of an arithmetic." And she pointed to a small schoolbook which she had evidently been studying.

"Let me take the burden from your shoulders," said her lover, smiling, and sat down at the table, which was strewn with bills. In about an hour he had arranged all these and had made them out neatly to Deborah's various customers. Then he directed the envelopes, and Sylvia sealed them up. All the time they laughed and chatted and despite the dull toil thoroughly enjoyed themselves. "But I am glad to see, Sylvia," said Beecot, pointing to three library volumes lying on the sofa, "that you enjoy yourself occasionally."

"Oh," said Sylvia, pausing on these, "I'm so glad you spoke, Paul! I wanted to say something to you. 'The Confessions of a Thug,'" she read out and laughed at Paul. "Have you another"

Beecot nodded. "By Colonel Meadows Taylor. A very interesting book, but rather a bloodthirsty one for you, dearest."

"Debby got it," confessed Miss Norman, "along with some other books, from a literary customer who could not pay his bill. It is very strange, Paul, that 'The Confessions of a Thug' should be among the books."

"Really, I don't see why," smiled Beecot, fingering the old fashioned volumes.

"It's the finger of fate, Paul," said Sylvia solemnly. Then, seeing her lover look puzzled, "I mean that I should find out what goor is."

"Goor?" Paul looked more puzzled than ever.

"It's an Indian word," explained Sylvia, "and means coarse sugar. The thugs eat it before they strangle any one."

"Oh," laughed Beecot, "and you think your father was strangled by a thug? My dear child, the thugs were stamped out years ago. You'll read all about it in the preface of that book, if I remember, but it's long since I read the work. Besides, darling," he added, drawing her to him caressingly, "the thugs never came to England."

"Paul," said Sylvia, still more solemnly and resenting the laugh, "do you remember the thug that came into the shop"—

"Oh, you mean the street hawker that

"Goor?" Paul looked more puzzled.

Bart spoke of? Yes, I remember that such an Indian entered, according to Bart's tale, and wanted to sell boot laces, while that young imp Tray was dancing on poor Bart's body. But the Indian wasn't a thug, Sylvia."

"Yes, he was," she exclaimed excitedly. "Hokar, he said he was, and Ho-

CLAIRVOYANT AIDS SLEUTHS.

Scotland Yard Officials Try to Penetrate Murder Mystery.

The so far impenetrable mystery which surrounds the savage murder of a woman named Dinsmeck, or Shaw, at her home in St. Paul's road, Camden Town, has driven Scotland Yard to the employment of novel expedients.

For about the first time in a big crime sensation the detectives have sought the aid of the press by sending photographed copies of postcards received by the victim the day before her terrible death.

An even stranger development has to be recorded - no less than the calling in of a famous clairvoyant who had volunteered to do his best to discover the murderer.

All arrangements having been made, the clairvoyant called at the police station to meet the detectives who are specially devoting themselves to the unraveling of the mystery, and went with them to the murdered woman's house.

Here a weird scene was enacted.

After a short inspection of the room, the clairvoyant lay down on the bed where the dead body was found, and apparently sank into a trance. Soon he began to speak in a rapt, tense voice. He described several persons, and he mentioned their names.

Then he proceeded to give a startlingly vivid description of the actual commission of the crime; pictured in detail the appearance of a certain man, and concluded by exclaiming, in answer to a question, "The man you want is on his way to Melbourne."

Altogether, it was an astonishing episode, which impressed even the usually impassive detectives with its seeming quality of reality. What actual value it may have remains to be seen.

FARMER'S QUICK STUNT.

Corn Cut and Turned Into Baked Leaves In Four Hours.

The reproach so often leveled against British agriculturists that they are slow and unprogressive can never be raised again after a demonstration of motor harvesting given at Kirton recently, when loaves were handed round baked from corn that had been standing in the fields four hours before.

The demonstration, which was given on the farm of Messrs. Dennis Brothers—one of the largest in the kingdom—showed that in up to date farm work England is well ahead of most countries. Several remarkable feats were accomplished.

A acre of standing corn was marked out in the fields, cut, bound, threshed, and ground by motor implements. An acre of ground was also plowed, drilled, harrowed, and sown with a new crop within seven and a half hours. This constitutes a world's record.

At 11.35 the tractor started its work by taking the threshing drum into the cornfield. Five minutes later it began to draw two harvesters. These not only cut the corn but bound it. Half a dozen men walking behind stacked it, and in exactly fifteen minutes what had been an acre of growing crop was standing on the field ready to be placed on the cart which the tractor proceeded to draw round the field.

By 1 o'clock the corn was lying at the side of the threshing drum. The tractor then got into position to drive the thresher. At 10 minutes past 1 a halt was called for luncheon. As soon as the threshing began the flour began to come out of the mill, which was being worked off a pulley on the threshing drum.

Made Money In Colonies.

A gentleman who admits to having succumbed to what he is pleased to call "that Carnegie feeling" is visiting Manchester.

Stylishly dressed and wearing a fur-trimmed overcoat, the unknown visitor approached a policeman at midnight and asked to be directed to a neighborhood in which common lodging-houses abound. The constable was startled by the request, but gave the desired information.

Shortly afterwards the policeman noticed the gentleman walking up Deansgate with a little crowd of wretchedly-clad and half-starved creatures around him. Invited to explain, the man with the fur coat said:

"The fact of the matter is I have only arrived back in Manchester today after an absence of eighteen years in the Colonies. My last night in Manchester was spent on one of the infirmary seats. I have just been up there now to invite as many outcasts as I could find to have a bed and a square meal."

Rheumatism

I have found a tried and tested cure for Rheumatism! Not a remedy that will straighten the distorted limbs of chronic cripples, nor turn bony growths back to flesh again. That is impossible. But I can now surely kill the pains and pangs of this deplorable disease.

In Germany—with a Chemist in the City of Darmstadt—I found the last ingredient with which Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy was made a perfected, dependable prescription. Without that last ingredient, I successfully treated many, many cases of Rheumatism; but now, at last, it uniformly cures all curable cases of this heretofore much dreaded disease. Those sand-like granular wastes, found in Rheumatic Blood seem to dissolve and pass away under the action of this remedy as freely as does sugar when added to pure water. And then, when dissolved, these poisonous wastes freely pass from the system, and the cause of Rheumatism is gone forever. There is now no real need—no actual excuse to suffer longer without help. We all, and in confidence recommend Nothing makes you feel worse than slow liver. Seems as if every organ in the body had gone wrong.

What the liver needs is the stimulation afforded by Dr. Hamilton's Pills; they go right to work on a lazy liver — restore it in a few hours.

Had Bad Taste and Headache

Thus writes Mrs. D. F. Fowler, from Yarmouth:

"I used to feel drowsy and heavy, my color was sallow, and there was usually a bad taste in my mouth. I had vague pains all through my limbs and an annoying headache as well.

"After one dose of Dr. Hamilton's Pills there was a sudden change. I felt better, my appetite increased, and that exhaustion and depression gradually left me. Life seemed brighter and happier after I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills, so I strongly recommend such good medicine."

No Appetite—Bad Color—General Debility

"I was run down," writes Mr. Albert E. Dixon, of Fairhaven P. O., "My color was dull and, appetite was poor, and I constantly suffered from rheumatism.

"I found it hard to sleep and felt worn out and tired all the time. Dr. Hamilton's Pills made an instant change. I grew strong, my blood was restored, rheumatism vanished. To-day I am vigorous, cheery and healthy in every respect."

SPECIAL NOTICE.—The secret of the wonderful success of Dr. Hamilton's Pills is due to their ability to improve the tone of the kidneys, liver, stomach and bowels, thereby assuring an ample supply of rich, nourishing blood, which circulates its strengthening influence to every part of the system that requires assistance.

Take Dr. Hamilton's Pills when you're well, when you're sick, whenever you think a purifying tonic will do you good. Sold everywhere in yellow boxes, 25c. each or five for $1.00. Insist on having only Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut.

NOW LISTEN!

Please read carefully what follows, and if you decide to take advantage of what the "Canada Southern Oil & Gas Co., Limited," of Tilbury, Ont. (no personal liability), is now offering you, the result will be that instead of getting 3 per cent. for your savings, you will get at least from 10 to 25 per cent. that others are harvesting.

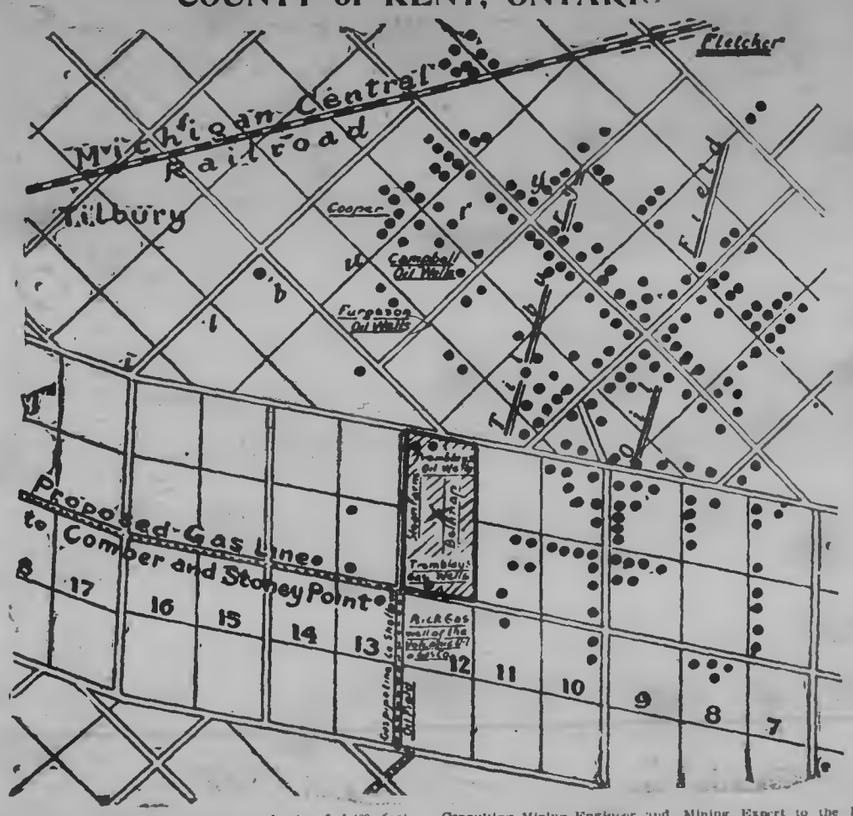
Your savings will be eight times more than the original amount by the mere fact of the higher rate of interest you will get.

Remember that this is no wildcat scheme, as you can see by the facts hereinafter mentioned.

Dr. Bell, the famous Canadian geologist, early in 1878 reported that there was an oil and gas field in the Townships of Tilbury and Romney County of Kent, Ont. As soon as the discovery of the oil was made in Tilbury in 1906 our American neighbors, who are experts in good things, did not hesitate to invest hundreds of thousands of dollars, and now, in fact, control the two-thirds interest in our oil field of Tilbury; and this happened because we Canadians hesitated to invest a few thousand dollars in the exploration of the oil mines of Tilbury, which already give a monthly production valued at $75,000, without adding the revenue derived from the gas.

We have said that this is not a wildcat scheme, because the "Canadian Southern Oil & Gas Co., Limited," has secured an option at a very moderate price on properties situated in the oil and gas field of Tilbury, upon which three successful tests, have been made, being Lot No. 12, M. R. N., Tilbury East, 200 acres, indicated with a cross upon the map of the field.

COUNTY of KENT, ONTARIO



Three wells only have been drilled at an average depth of 1,400 feet.

The first one proves to be a rich gas well, the two others are good oil wells, combined with a strong production of gas.

The Company has also secured the franchises for the distribution and sale of natural gas into the Townships of Romney, Tilbury East, North and West and also into the thriving villages of Comber and Stoney Point.

The gas well is properly equipped and already is supplying the motor power to the Romney oil field and is getting one-third of the gross revenue of the gas sold.

The oil wells are completely equipped with one 15 h. p. gas engine, derrick, tanks, boiler, pumps, tubing, pipe-line, jerk-line, jack, etc., and are producing daily. The oil is sold to The Imperial Oil Company, Sarnia, and is delivered at the tanks and shipped through its pipe-line to Port Marquette R. R. Station at Merlin, a distance of 3 miles.

Our properties are already giving daily a net revenue of about $35.00—that is to say, more than 10 per cent. of the whole capital stock of the Company.

This revenue may be made four times greater by the drilling of other wells and the construction of the gas-line to Comber and Stoney Point.

Fritz Cirkel, Esq., of Montreal, consulting mining engineer and mining expert to the Dominion Government, who lately made an inspection of the said property, concluded his report as follows:

"In summarizing the actual results already obtained from the operations of the Sloan wells the writer is forced to the conclusion that the property under consideration is a very valuable one. Located as it is in the western extremity of the producing Tilbury oil field, in close proximity to wells which produce from 40 to 60 barrels of oil (and even more) per day of 24 hours (I refer to the Ferguson, Campbell and Cooper properties, located about 2,000 feet distant to the north, see plan attached hereto), it bids fair to become a producer of oil and natural gas of no small measure.

The Tilbury field has already the reputation of being a large producer and powerful companies have entered the district with a view of securing properties of known and established value.

There is one factor to which I would like to draw your special attention and that is the future of natural gas. To-day, the market in that in that part of the country, for this commodity is not sufficiently large to dispose of all the gas the wells can produce but there is no question that in the near future factories will be established on central points, which will eventually consume for various purposes, especially for power, all the gas which can be produced in the field.

Besides this there are quite a number of towns and villages in the western part of the Niagara Peninsula, which may use the gas for heating, lighting, and also for power purposes and it is only a question of time when this will be realized.

The economy of the application of natural gas to power purposes is already evidenced all through the field, as coal or any other power cannot be regularly obtained, and that at high figures. Having therefore, a powerful gas well on the (Sloan) property, it is evident that a great saving is effected from this source alone; for instance, for the operation of ten oil wells, the cost of power required per day would amount to between twenty and twenty-five dollars, which, in 300 working days per year, would represent a saving of from six thousand to seven thousand five hundred dollars.

In conclusion, I may say that this property, with proper and economic management, can be made highly remunerative; I entertain, no doubt, that if properly developed, it will show similar results as those of so many other locations in the vicinity, whose developments have of so many other locations in the vicinity, whose developments have been so vigorously pushed in the past.

Respectfully submitted,
(Signed) FRITZ CIRKEL.

Water Turned Off

Yesterday morning many a householder had to rush around among his neighbors and hunt up the man or men who owned and had a pump in working operation. The cause of this was that the whole waterworks service was turned off from about 4 o'clock in the morning until about 10.30. The trouble was due to that arch-evening, of many Canadian waterworks Companies, Anchor ice. This was caused by the sudden change in temperature which caused ice to form at the bottom of the rapid shallow sections of the river. This ice, after accumulating rises and floats down current in clouds to the intake of the power house and stops the flood of water that should turn the wheels. There is a fortune waiting for the man who discovers a means of obviating the difficulty caused by this anchor ice.

MAN SHOT DEAD BY HIS BROTHER --WERE UNDER BARN

The Gun Went Off as They Waited for the Geese to Fly—Ridgetown in Grief Over Death of Pearl Brien

Ridgetown, Ont., March 18.—Pearl Brien, second son of William Brien, of Ridgetown, was accidentally and fatally shot by his brother while shooting geese at their farm on Talbot street this morning. They were secreted under the foundation of a barn situated about the middle of the farm, waiting for the geese to fly in. The deceased and his brother Charles, started to crawl out on their hands and knees, the former having a shotgun, and the latter a Winchester rifle. The rifle was evidently at full cock, and in some manner the trigger came in contact with something which caused it to be discharged. The bullet entered the back of Pearl's head.

As soon as possible a doctor was called from Morpeth, and Dr. Lake from Ridgetown, but the bullet had done its fatal work, and their skill was of no avail.

The deceased was one of the most popular and exemplary young men in the neighborhood, and his untimely death has cast a gloom over the entire community.

The accident happened about 8.30 o'clock this morning.

The deceased was in his twenty-third year, was a most industrious, enterprising young farmer. With a bright future.

Girl's Pitiful Story

Kingston, March 18.—An English girl, an orphan about 19 years old, with her recently-born babe, is in the Home for Friendless Women and Children, and tells a pitiful story about the vicious treatment from a man named Clark, who worked on the street railway here. The girl says she was locked in the house all day, and that when Clark came home at night he ill-treated her terribly. At last she got a chance to run away, and applied at the Home for assistance a few days ago. Clark has since disappeared.

Orange Grand Lodge in Session in Port Hope

Port Hope, March 18.—The Orange Grand Lodge of Eastern Ontario opened here this afternoon. Grand Master George Boyce, Merrivale, presiding.

The president's address and the reports of the other officials were presented. The chief feature of these was the statement of the Grand Secretary that there was a net gain of 478 in the membership last year. Three years ago there was a decrease of 20, but active organization work was undertaken, with the satisfactory result above stated.

Messrs. Andrew R. Robson, District Master, and W. G. Bartley, District Secretary, are delegates from Peterborough.

Stoessel's Enemy Mortally Wounded in Duel With Fock

St. Petersburg, March 18.—General Smirnoff was probably fatally wounded by General Fock in a duel here this morning.

The men met at the riding school of the Chevalier Guard Regiment, and fought with pistols at short range.

The duel was caused by the memorandum written by Gen. Smirnoff of the siege of Port Arthur, in which he questioned the courage of General Fock. The latter considered that his honor and reputation were involved and challenged the author of the memorandum.

Smirnoff was General Stoessel's bitterest enemy. The latter was ordered to turn over the command of Port Arthur to his rival, but suppressed the command, and remained in charge till the surrender of the fortress. Smirnoff was largely instrumental in having Stoessel tried and sentenced to death for giving up the fortress before surrender was necessary. Fock, who distinguished himself during the siege, was also placed on trial with Stoessel. He has now avenged the slanders against both himself and his comrades in the blood of their mutual enemy.

Proposal to Make Special Levy on the A. O. U. W.

Toronto, March 18. — The Ontario Grand Lodge of the Ancient Order of United Workmen, nearly 500 strong is in annual conclave in the Temple Building to-day. Grand Master Chas. S. Cameron, Iroquois, is presiding.

The session began at 10 o'clock this morning, and will continue this afternoon and to-morrow.

The two most important features of the convention will probably be the discussion over a proposal to raise the payments of members for extension work and the election of officers.

The former will take place this afternoon, when a resolution endorsed by the executive will be submitted to raise a levy of one dollar a year for organization work. There is also an alternative resolution to impose a levy of five cents a month, or only 60 cents a year. Last year a 35 cent levy was proposed for this purpose, but was defeated, and many of the delegates here to-day are opposed to the one dollar levy. Some would now favor the former 35 cent proposal, while a certain number are opposed to any levy by the central body, and would leave extension work to the local lodges.

The two proposals in the rates are assisted in recent years is responsible largely for the opposition to any further increase.

The executive committee and some of the delegates, however, believe that the proposed increase is necessary to keep pace with the other fraternal orders and for the purpose of bringing more young blood into the A.O. U.W.

Over 1,500 young men were initiated last year, according to the official report this morning, and the total membership is now nearly 40,000 in Ontario.

The election of officers is the other big event this year. The officers are nominally elected annually, but as a matter of fact they usually serve two years, and this is the year for the real elections.

The biggest fight will be for the office of Overseer, as this is the first step in the direction of Grand Master. Three candidates in the field are W. C. Mickel, K.C., city solicitor, of Belleville, and president of the Ontario Union of Municipalities, who is the present Grand Guide; Canon Allman, Burk's Falls, chairman of the Distribution Committee, and Mr. McEwan, a member of the executive. Other candidates are expected to appear.

Mr. H. Morris, Rodney, Grand Foreman, will be elected Grand Master if the usual course is followed, and this is the general expectation.

Delegate W. W. Burgess, Manitoba, Inner Watchman, is a candidate for Grand Guide, the next higher office.

Ice Block on Hunter Street Creek

The usual trouble with ice on the creek at the bridge on Hunter street between George and Aylmer streets is in evidence again this spring, and this year the extra heavy snow gives promise of more than usual difficulty. Yesterday morning Street Commissioner Harry Evans had a gang of men employed there dynamiting the accumulated ice that threatened the structure and near by residences. He succeeded yesterday in alleviating the immediate danger, but it is feared that several successive warm days will give the city some trouble.

Donnybrook Tactics Resorted to in the Game Last Night

The handful of spectators that turned out last night to see the Karnots and Rough Riders battle for the intermediate city championship certainly got full value for their time and money during the initial part of the game, for there was something doing every minute of the game.

Shortly before half time the players went in to make it up, and both teams went at a hammer and tongs. Tripping, slashing and an occasional repetition of the Tommy Burns-Roche fight were served up to the spectators. The players got away with a lot of dirty work, and it is to be regretted that such unfriendly feeling exists between two of our city teams. Referee Craig was very lax in serving out penalties. The players who were engaged in the fracas should have been benched for the remainder of the game. The Karnots won by 4 to 1.

The game started off with a rush, the Karnots setting a fast pace, and after a minute's play Faux notched the initial counter. From the face-off the Rough Riders went after their speedy opponents, and Porter soon had the score on a pass from C. Giroux. This ended the scoring in the first half, as both teams seemed to fall to pieces at this period, but Referee Craig was kept busy imposing penalties for tripping and fighting. Porter and Ray came together, and after a interrupted battle were each benched for five minutes. Shortly after this the half was called.

After the rest the Karnots started in to make things interesting and succeeded in pushing two pos Giroux in short order. Porter and Campbell of the Rough Riders worked hard to score, but the Karnot defence was unbeatable. Much end to end play was then indulged in by both teams, but at last on a pretty rush by Charlie Ray, Short shot another past Giroux, ending the scoring.

Many free fights were started, but Referee Craig soon had the principals parted and caged in the penalty box. The game came to an end after Giroux had been sent by Goale. The teams lined up as follows:

Rough Riders.	Karnots.
Goal.
Giroux	McFadden

Cahill	Ray

Campbell	Wade

Hayes	Conroy

The British and German Warships Will Act Together

Paris, March 18. — A special despatch received here from Port Au Prince states that the representatives of the foreign powers there have decided that unless there is a rapid settlement of the present crisis they will formulate a demand for the resignation of President Nord Alexis and the formation of a provisional government, to be followed immediately by the elections.

In the meantime, the despatch further states, no further executions will be permitted. Arrangements have been made, continues the despatch, with the commanders of the German cruiser Bremen and the British cruiser Indefatigable to land marines at a signal from the Legations.

The Minister of War, General Celestin, has brought reinforcements from Gonaives by order of the President, and he is manning the town defences. The presence of the warships appears to have a salutary effect.

—o—

Paris, March 17.—A despatch from Port Au Prince states that President Nord Alexis has consented to allow the refugees in the French Legation to leave the island, but that henceforth rebels taking refuge in the consulates will be removed by force if they are not surrendered.

The despatch says that it appears that the situation is likely to be still further complicated by the caste hatred between the blacks and mulattoes.

Every one dreads the possibility of a massacre of the Europeans by the Haitien troops on the arrival of the warships.

The despatch declares that it is understood there that Germany will take action if the Government executes more rebels. President Nord Alexis however, seems quite unmoved at the prospect of a naval demonstration. The total number of men executed is not given.

HAVE EXECUTED 27 MEN

Paris, March 17.—Official despatches received here from Haiti indicate that the situation there is still critical for foreigners. M. Carteron, the French Minister, reports that fresh executions occurred last night, but he does not give the number. He says that previous to last night 27 men had been executed. He described M. Lacombe, the new Minister of the Interior, as "blood-thirsty."

Music Students

Should Have Steady Nerves

The nervous system of the musician is often very sensitive and any habit like coffee drinking may so upset the nerves as to make regular and necessary daily practice, next to impossible.

"I practice from seven to eight hours a day and study Harmony two hours," writes a Mich. music student. "Last September I was so nervous I could practice only a few minutes at a time and mother said I would have to drop my music for a year.

"This was terribly discouraging, as I couldn't bear the thought of losing a whole year of study. Becoming convinced that my nervousness was caused largely by coffee, and seeing Postum so highly spoken of, I decided I would try it for a while.

"Mother followed the directions carefully and I thought I had never tasted such a delicious drink. We drank Postum every morning instead of coffee, and by November I felt more like myself than for years, and was ready to resume my music.

"I now practice as usual, do my studying, and when my day's work is finished I am not any more nervous than when I began.

"I cannot too highly recommend Postum to musicians who practice half a day. My father is a physician and recommends Postum to his patients. Words cannot express my appreciation for this most valuable health beverage, and experience has proven its superiority over all others." "There's a Reason."

Death of Harold Mooney at Orillia

Mr. Harold Mooney, a nephew of Mr. A. Comstock and of Messrs. Richard and Wm. Martin, of this city, died suddenly in Orillia, by being run over by a car in the railway yard in that town. The deceased lived in Lindsay, and his father is Minden. His mother died some five years ago. Mr. Mooney leaves a wife and child in Lindsay. It seems that he slipped and fell in the Orillia yard and was then run over. Mr. Mooney, who was a G. T. R. conductor, has two sisters residing in Toronto and one in Honeyville. Three brothers reside in the West and one at North Bay.

Former Local Man in New Position

Referring to a former Peterborough citizen, ex-manager of the Telephone Company here, Mr. Herb Kent, the Vancouver World says: "Mr. H. W. Kent, formerly superintendent of the B. C. Telephone Company, has accepted the position of sales agent for the B. C. and Northern Electric and Manufacturing Co., Ltd., of Montreal. Mr. Paul F. Sise, managing director of the company, is now en route west, and when he arrives arrangements will be made to open offices in this city. Mr. Kent has just returned from an extended trip to the east. Mr. Kent, who has been spending the winter in California, is expected to return to the city in a few days."

Magnificently Gowned

The first presentation in this city of Kathryn Osterman's new comedy, "The Girl Who Looks Like Me," will occur at the Grand Opera House next Monday evening. With Miss Osterman as co-star is pretty Anna Belmont, another comedienne of the ninth commanding order, and a night of hearty laughter is promised by the management. "The Girls Who Looks Like Me" is described as legitimate farce — farce brilliant in conception, well dressed farce, snappy farce, keen, satirical, scintillating, yet clean and wholesome as mother's bread. Miss Osterman and Miss Belmont are sisters, and are said to make a handsome stage picture. Miss Osterman with her exquisite type of blonde beauty, and Miss Belmont with her striking brunette type, both gowned with a magnificence seldom seen outside of a reception given by Peterborough's 400. In constructing "The Girl Who Looks Like Me" the authors are said to have written an amusing story in a manner that holds the interest and wins almost continuous hilarity. There are numerous complications that are not untangled until the story comes to its happy finale, and the dialogue is spoken of as crisp and entertaining.

The comedy boasts of a distinct novelty in the fact that nearly all the fun is furnished by the feminine portion of the cast. Most of the action of the play revolves about two women, Kathryn Osterman as Erma Desmond and Anna Belmont as Phyllis Burnham. They are the pivots and become involved in more complications than can be imagined. The plot is sustained throughout the three acts, the solution of all the difficulties coming about two minutes before the last curtain.

POLICE

At yesterday's police court Frank Larone appeared in the witness box in the case against the man Biggs, whose dog bit the latter's child. Larone's child has been in the hospital recovering from the effects of the bite. The case was tried some days ago, but judgment withheld to see if Biggs would pay the medical bill, $5. Mr. Pousette appeared for the defendant, and said he would consent to paying $2. He wanted to see the by-law, saying he did not think a man could be held responsible for the actions of his dog; this would be for a civil court.

The case of George Shepherd, charged with forging a cheque for $10.50, with the name of Wm. Snowdon was then taken up. Shepherd said Mr. Kerr was acting for him, but Mr. Kerr was in Toronto. The prisoner said he would plead guilty, but asked that sentence be reserved until Mr. Kerr was present. The magistrate reserved sentence until next Wednesday on this case, as well as on the other forgery case, involving the forging of Mr. Snowdon's name to another cheque for $25 and passing both the same on Mr. Pappas, the George street cigar dealer. The case against Shepherd for getting a watch from Mr. C. S. McClelland, the Water street jeweller, was also held over for one week. Shepherd has said he wanted to change his mind and plead guilty to the forgery case and have the case dealt with summarily by the magistrate. Judgment was reserved for one week. The prisoner said he thought he could "fix up" the watch charge, and asked if he could make a statement regarding the forgery cases. His Worship replied, "You'd better wait a week and make your statement when I give sentence."

The dog case against Biggs was resumed. His Worship asked Larone if he knew the dog to be vicious, and whether he knew of it biting anyone else. He replied that Biggs had admitted the dog biting the child. Mr. Pousette claimed that this by-law does not provide for fining the owner of a dog unless such owner had been ordered to destroy the animal. The magistrate said there was power given in the by-law to fix a man whose dog has bitten someone. Mr. Pousette claimed that $5 was an excessive charge. He did not think the doctor would have charged Larone $5 if he had thought the latter was going to pay it. His Worship thought a dog bite was a serious matter, and Biggs should not kick about paying a dollar or two. He said doctors are funny with their charges. They are apt to send in a bill for $50 for a year's medical attendance, and perhaps they have not been an hour in the year. He said he would reserve judgment. If the dog comes into the city it would be destroyed.

Judge Sentenced Harry Orchard, Assassin, to Die

Caldwell, Idaho, March 18.—Harry Orchard, whose real name is Albert Horsley, was to-day sentenced to death for the murder of ex-Governor Steunenberg. He was born in Wooler, Ont., and came west some years ago, joining the Western Federation of Miners, whose officials, he declared, kept him as a paid assassin.

The judge recommended that the death sentence be remitted, but this does not necessarily mean life imprisonment, but possibly a shorter term.

Mayor Rush Rolls First Ball at Grand Opening of New Alleys

Last night the two new bowling alleys, operated by Mr. J. B. Hay, formerly sporting editor of the Toronto News, in Bracebridge's old opera house, was formally opened for business. There was a good attendance, and all present asserted that the six new sets of alleys are all that could be desired. The alleys are of modern type, and put in by the celebrated Brunswick Balke Company of Chicago. A bowling league is now being formed and will likely be a strong organization, as Peterborough has many skilled bowlers, both on the green and on alleys. Mr. Hay, the proprietor, was in Peterborough two years ago with the English bowlers at the time of their visit to Peterborough, and he also paid several visits to the city in connection with rugby affairs, being secretary of the O.R.F.U. He has made many friends in the city, and will doubtless meet with every success in his new undertaking. The alleys, return chutes, scoring boards, pins and balls are the best manufactured.

The opening ceremonies were scheduled to start at 8.30, but owing to the late arrival of the Toronto bowlers, it was 8.40 before Mayor Rush, Ald. Phelan, Mr. Denham and other prominent citizens inaugurated proceedings by throwing the first balls down the alleys. This was the signal to begin, and at once 30 devotees of the great indoor pastime set to work spilling timber.

The room presented a pretty and very animated appearance during the evening. The place has been newly decorated and renovated, and has undergone a complete transformation. Union Jacks are profusely spread about the walls, and everything has been done to make the surroundings attractive. The pin boys were attired in red sweaters and they presented a very neat appearance.

The feature of the evening was, of course, the appearance of the famous Brunswick, Balke team from Toronto, and they lived up to advance notices by defeating the local team two out of three games, the final game of the evening going to the Peterborough boys by the small margin of two pins.

Usually new alleys and new pins make a combination that bowlers find hard to fathom, but on this occasion the members of both teams showed exceptionally good form, and making all due allowance for the newness and consequent stiffness of the alleys the scores put up were remarkable.

Though defeated, the local team gave the visitors a strong run, and Wareham had the satisfaction of making high score for the night, hanging up a mark of 231, an unusually good score. None of the other local trundlers went over the 200 mark, though Charlie Frost narrowly missed attaining to that distinction. McElroy, too, with a little better luck would have exceeded the mystic figure. Hemsted bowled splendidly and was pronounced by the visitors as a bowler of exceptional promise.

W. Adams contributed the largest total for the B. B. C. team.

The visitors were royally entertained by the local bowlers, and they have invited their Peterborough friends to Toronto, and the trip will be made in the very near future.

The Examiner and Review played a match game, the Examiner team winning by a margin of 90 pins.

The scores in the big game were as follows:

Special Services at St. Paul's Church

St. Paul's Church is contemplating holding a series of special services next week, beginning a week from first. Preparation is already being made to make this week one of blessing to the members. The session met on Monday night; gave the movement their endorsement and pledged hearty co-operation. The prayer meeting this week will be devoted to special intercession for the outpouring of God's Spirit. A Women's prayer meeting will be held every afternoon at 3.30 next week, and a men's prayer meeting at 7.30. The pastor, the Rev. R. Pogue, will preach the Gospel every night. Miss Helen Davies will sing Gospel solos each evening. Every effort is to be made to make the meetings bright, and attractive. A special effort will be made, by personal invitation, to reach all those who declared a preference for St. Paul's at the recent census and who may not be regular attendants.

St. John's Mission Is Now Finished

Yesterday the mission held in connection with St. John's Church ended. Throughout the services in the church and Sunday school have been well attended and much enthusiasm and religious zeal has been awakened. The rector, Rev. Canon Davidson, has reason for congratulation on the successful consummation of his desire to arouse the members of his congregation and Christians generally throughout the city. He was most successful in his choice of speakers, who were one and all eminently qualified for the work in hand.

Attending Provincial Grand Lodge

Andrew R. Robson, District Master of the Loyal Orange Association of Peterborough, and W. G. Bartley, District Secretary, are attending the Provincial Grand Lodge of Ontario East in the town of Port Hope.

Rev. W. G. Hanna to Speak Here

Rev. W. G. Hanna, M.A., Provincial Secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance, will pay a visit to Peterborough in the interests of the Alliance next Sunday. The Rev. Mr. Hanna will preach at the morning service in the Mark Street Methodist Church, E. C., and in the evening he will speak in Knox Presbyterian Church, and will also address a mass meeting to be held in St. Paul's Church at the close of the evening service.

A Square Deal

Is assured you when you buy Dr. Pierce's family medicines—for all the ingredients entering into them are printed on the bottle-wrappers and their formulas are attested under oath as being complete and correct. You know just what you are paying for and that the ingredients are gathered from Nature's laboratory, being selected from the most valuable native medicinal roots found growing in our American forests and while potent to cure are perfectly harmless even to the most delicate women and children. Not a drop of alcohol enters into their composition. A much safer agent is used, both in extracting and preserving the medicinal principles used in them, viz.—pure triple-refined glycerine. This agent possesses intrinsic medicinal properties of its own, being a most valuable antiseptic and antiferment, nutritive and soothing demulcent.

Glycerine plays an important part in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in the cure of indigestion, dyspepsia and weak stomach, attended by sour risings, heart-burn, foul breath, coated tongue, poor appetite, gnawing feeling in stomach, biliousness and kindred derangements of the stomach, liver and bowels.

Besides curing all the above distressing ailments, the "Golden Medical Discovery" is a specific for all diseases of the mucous membranes, as catarrh, whether of the nasal passages or of the stomach, bowels or pelvic organs. Even in its ulcerative stages it will yield to this sovereign remedy if its use be persevered in. In Chronic Catarrh of the Nasal passages, it is well, while taking the "Golden Medical Discovery" for the necessary constitutional treatment, to cleanse the passages freely two or three times a day with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. This thorough course of treatment generally cures the worst cases.

In coughs and bronchial, throat and lung affections, except consumption in its advanced stages, the "Golden Medical Discovery" is a most efficient remedy, especially in those obstinate, hang-on coughs caused by irritation and congestion of the bronchial mucous membranes. The "Discovery" is not so good for acute coughs arising from sudden colds, nor must it be expected to cure consumption in its advanced stages—no medicine will do that—but for all the obstinate, chronic coughs, which, if neglected, or badly treated, lead up to consumption, it is the best medicine that can be taken.

He was surprised at how the sores healed—"I took your New Method Treatment for a serious blood disease with which I had been inflicted for twelve years. I had consulted a score of physicians, taken all kinds of blood medicine, visited Hot Springs and other mineral water resorts, but only got temporary relief. They would help me for a time, but after discontinuing the medicines the symptoms would break out again—running sores, blotches, rheumatic pains, looseness of the hair, swellings of the glands, palms of the hands scaling, itchiness of the skin, dyspeptic stomach, etc. I had given up in despair when a friend advised me to consult you, as you had cured him of a similar disease 8 years ago. I had no hope, but took his advice. In three weeks' time the sores commenced to heal up and I became encouraged. I continued the New Method Treatment for four months and at the end of that time every symptom had disappeared. I was cured 7 years ago and no signs of any disease since. My boy, three years old, is sound and healthy. I certainly can recommend your treatment with all my heart. You can refer any person to me privately, but you can use this testimonial as you wish." W. AS OTHERS SEE US

The people in England, who have been accustomed to look on Canada solely as a great agricultural country, comments the London Advertiser, are enlightened in a recent article in the London Times. They are told that in the great process which is going on in Canada, this Dominion is rapidly becoming a manufacturing country of the first rank. As The Times says, Canada would prefer that nurture and aid for this development should come from the mother country; but, instead, it is coming from the United States—a statement which is borne out by the fact that something like one hundred and fifty branch establishments of United States industrial concerns have begun active operations in the Dominion within the past four or five years. The inquiries constantly received from the heads of big manufactories on the other side of the border indicate that the inflow of United States capital and skill will steadily increase, aided by the depletion of that country's raw material. Instead, it is impossible to measure the economic pressure upon Canada from that source within the next few decades.

The Times freely admits that in the past comparatively little attention has been paid in the old country to the development of Canada's manufacturing industries, and recognizes that it is a subject which should appeal to the capitalist, the workman, the student of economics, and the statesman. Taking up Canada's industrial statistics, the writer dwells on the fact that while the number of persons returned by the census of 1901 as employed in manufactures was 344,035, or exactly one-twelfth of the entire population over ten years of age, the number of persons so employed during the five years following 1901 has increased at the rate of close on 10,000 a year, and the amount of wages paid by over $20,000,000 a year. In 1901 the amount of capital invested in manufactures in Canada was about $450,000,000, and the value of products $481,000,000, and the estimate is made that the growth is continuing at the rate of approximately $15,000,000 each year. The deduction from these statistics is that Canada is rapidly forcing herself to a place among the leading manufacturing countries of the world. The British manufacturer and capitalist are closing their eyes to the great natural advantages of this part of the empire, while the United States' competitors step in and reap the harvest. British apathy may retard Canada's progress somewhat; it cannot stop it.

Canada's growth industrially is also attracting notice in the United States. For instance, the New York Sun, which not so very long ago held a very poor opinion of Canada and Canadians, now cheerfully admits that we are "progressive and progressing." In its issue of Friday last the Sun says editorially:

"Comparison made on a per capita basis shows that Canada's manufacturing interests are relatively about three-quarters as big as our own. A considerable part of this Canadian increase is due to the establishment of American-owned factories across the border. Many millions of American dollars now find active and profitable employment in Canada in many different lines of industry. The most important enterprises, however, are distinctly Canadian. Iron and steel in their many ramifications and textiles are the leading industries, with lumber and wood working concerns a close third on the list. The range of products is wide, and in it there is included a large percentage of all the articles used and consumed in civilized communities.

"Some day the people of the United States may see the wisdom of effecting the closest possible economic relations with this progressive and progressing neighbor."

A BRIGHT BOY.

But He Lacked the Necessary Qualification and Lost the Job.

"So you have called in answer to my advertisement for an office boy, eh?" asked the head of the firm.

"Yes, sir," replied the youth. "You will find me a neat penman, sir."

"That's what we want."

"And good at figures."

"Yes."

"And always on time."

"Yes."

"And always willing to work."

"Yes."

"And a rapid messenger, as I know my way around the city."

"Yes."

"And I'm pretty fair at typewriting in case your stenographer gets sick."

"Splendid, my boy—splendid! Now, are you handy with your fists in a fight?"

"In—in a fight, sir?"

"Yes. Can you put it all over a boy your size if necessary?"

"I—I never fight, sir."

"But you look like a chap who could give a good account of himself in a scrimmage. I don't want you to go around looking for trouble, you understand, but if it comes along can you take care of yourself?"

"It's—it's wicked to fight, sir."

"Hum! Well, we need talk no further, I guess," said the head of the firm with a sign of disappointment. "You see, Smith, down the hall, is continually bragging about the fighting qualities of his red headed office boy, and I'm going to get one this time who can thrash that lad out of his boots. Sorry, son, as you seem to be a bright young fellow. Sure you weren't fooling?"

"I-yes, sir."

"Well, it's too bad, but I can't have that old pudding head blowing all the time about the scrapper he has. Take a look at his boy as you go out, and if you think you can best him in a scrap come back and the job is yours."

But the youth never returned.—A. B. Lewis in Judge.

The Easier Way.

"How I bated work in those days!" said Mark Twain, recalling his boyhood in Hannibal, Mo. "One morning my father led me into the garden and pointed to a bed of flowers that had a considerable number of weeds in it.

"'I want you,' said my father, 'to weed out this flower bed.'

"I examined the task ahead of me, and the more I looked at it the bigger it seemed to grow. Certainly I had never seen so many weeds in my life.

"'Wouldn't it be a simpler operation,' I said to my father, 'to flower out the weed bed?'"—Woman's Home Companion.

The Race as it Was.

"I see you are here," said the tortoise.

"Yes," replied the hare. "Are you going to race?"

"No; what would be the use? People would only say we were nature fakirs."

And while they stood there arguing a man came along and threw a bag over the head of the hare and took the tortoise along to make fashionable hairpins out of his back.—Detroit Tribune.

"REINCARNATION" IN INDIA.

Weird Stories That Babies Have Souls of British Officers.

Within the last few weeks a most extraordinary case of alleged reincarnation—claimed to be the soul of a British officer—has made its appearance in Burmah. It is the second of its kind in recent years, and has accordingly attracted widespread attention.

Reincarnation is a fundamental doctrine of Buddhism, and a reincarnation of a human identity, in human form, though changed in outward aspect, is called a "minza." As a rule, the "minza" is an ordinary looking child, in no way different from his childish companions.

A few years back A. W. Tucker, district superintendent of police in Pegu, was killed by a gang of dacoits whom he rashly attacked at close quarters after discharging his revolver and without waiting to reload it. His call to his orderly to fetch ammunition gave the clew to the dacoits, and they killed him.

Just about the time this tragedy was being enacted in one part of the district a humble Burmese woman gave birth to a baby boy who in time, before the days of his babyhood were well over, claimed to be no less a personage than the murdered police officer. So circumstantial were his accounts of the encounter with the dacoits as to appear the narrative of an eye-witness, and when questioned on various other points in connection with the life of the deceased officer he is asserted to have answered with such exactitude that the Burmese people who flocked to hear him discourse were convinced of the truth of his assertions. Peculiarities of action and speech were faithfully reproduced, and, generally, quite a sensation was created.

Within the last few weeks a still more interesting case of "minza" has made its appearance, and I cannot do better than quote the account of a Rangoon Times correspondent from Meiktilla:

"There is a little blue-eyed, light-haired boy here, between 3 and 4 years old, the son of hard-working and matter of fact Burmese parents belonging to the laboring classes, who until quite recently prattled like any other child of that age. The other day, however, he astonished his mother by gravely claiming that he was the late Major D. J. Welsh, Border Regiment, come to life again, and went on to describe the house where he had previously lived, the number of ponies he had, and other personal matters.

"His mother was frightened, and called in the neighbors, to whom the queer albino repeated his story, describing how he and two others—a lady and a gentleman—were drowned in the Meiktilla lake in a boating accident during a storm at night in March, 1904, when the three and only occupants of the boat perished.

"That is the year in which Mrs. Reade, Lieut. A. W. Quinlan, and Major Welsh, both of the Border Regiment, did lose their lives in this manner (as a consequence of omitting to put down the centreboard of their sailing boat).

"Large crowds assemble daily to hear the little child-man speak. Of course, skeptics will say that it is a 'put up job.' The answer to this is that Burmese coolies are not given to romancing to such an extent. Several methods have been applied to test the genuineness of the child's utterances, and people are satisfied that he has not been tutored.

"The parents would have to be wideawake sharpers indeed to succeed in foisting such a story on the public through the instrumentality of a mere infant, and there is no suggestion that they are not what they appear to be—viz.: simple-minded folk."

MISERABLE AND UNTRUTHFUL

Countess Says She Never "Squealed" on King Edward.

"A miserable and untruthful story has been running in the American papers about me for 12 years," said the Countess of Warwick to a reporter recently when interviewed at the Hotel Webster, New York.

"Twelve years ago there was a baccarat scandal in England, in which the present King was mixed up. Ever since then, at stated intervals, the American press has connected me with it, referring to me as the 'Babbling Brooke.' Just before my arrival it was printed again.

"I want to say there is not the slightest truth in it. At the time I was in mourning for my stepfather, and knew nothing about it. I never played cards in my life. I don't know one from another, and I have never been inside the house where this game occurred. It is the work of enemies who dare not publish it in the English papers, so get the American papers to injure me."

English Sunday Condemned.

Germans have no more friendly feeling towards the English Sabbath than Britons entertain towards the Continental Sunday. Just recently a conference was held at Frankfort, which had for its object the promotion of the observance of the Sabbath and the introduction of the rigid laws which prevail on that day throughout England.

The very idea seems to have set the Germans' teeth on edge, for in the same town recently a mass meeting was held to protest against the introduction of the English Sunday into Germany. The meeting was characterized by great enthusiasm. Herr Steinbach, the principal speaker, declared that the "English Sunday" would drive the population of Germany, which was now extremely sober, into the public-houses to drown the Sabbatarian dullness in beer.

Herr Hessenberg, another speaker, declared that even one Sunday in London brought on a severe attack of melancholia, necessitating a "cure" in order to restore his balance of mind.

In the opinion of Herr Steinfurth, the observance of Sunday in England was purely external. German people would rise up in thousands to resist any attempt to foist the "English Sunday" upon them.

A strongly-worded resolution to this effect was unanimously adopted.

NEW BEAUTY INSTRUMENTS.

Femininity Much Excited Over a New Face Flapper.

Fair woman's outfit for the preservation of her beauty is growing so large and all important that it will presently be necessary for her to have a separate dressing room or beauty surgical office in which to store these very valuable instruments. There are more of these aids to beauty invented every day, and many women keep as keen an outlook for the new things in this line as on new fashions in frocks.

Just now femininity is much excited over a new face flapper, with which the face is gently tapped with a view to restoring the contour and bracing up the muscles. The face flapper has a long handle and a disk at one end for flapping purposes.

There are new nasal clamps and masks much in use for the young daughters of faithful mothers who go about improving the shape of their offspring's nose in this manner as systematically as if they were proceeding with the education or moral training of the young person. Women who wish their faces to be smaller find bands for the purpose at all the beauty parlors, while women whose double chins are the troublesome point in their appearance are provided with chin straps which have holes for the ears, which keep the strap in place. All these masks, straps, nose clamps, etc., are made of rubber, which does no harm to the skin and is not uncomfortable.

ARRANGING FLOWERS.

The Japanese Can Teach Us Much In This Art.

Among the many arts and graces which we Americans have yet to learn is the arrangement of flowers so as to display them to the best advantage. We bring in from the fields or from the florist's the most exquisite blossoms and then ruin them and condemn them to an untimely end by crushing them into a vase entirely too small for their bulk or by allowing them practically to drown in a sea of unnecessary water.

It would do us, then, no harm to take a few lessons on the subject and to learn from some more favored nation the proper relation between flowers and their receptacles.

The Japanese, most expert people in this line, would tell us, for instance, that the fewer flowers in a vase the better the effect, so that they be not overwhelmed by its size.

The tall vase of roses illustrates this dictum admirably. It is actual cruelty, as well as a crime against taste, to cut rose stems so as to accommodate them to some small and stocky vase. This style of receptacle would be particularly good in opalescent glass, being thus adapted to all the varying hues of the roses.

The Origin of Gloves.

The origin of gloves is very ancient. Some authorities assert that they were known in Bible times from references made to "shoes" which were thought to be identical with gloves.

The first clear account of gloves comes, however, from Xenophon. This writer speaks of the Persians wearing gloves on their hands to protect them from the cold. Homer describes Laertes working in his garden with gloves on his hands to protect them from the thorns, and Varro mentions this apparel as being worn by the Romans.

Gloves have been tokens of solemn and important things from the ninth century. They were adopted as a rite of the church, and later the transferring of lands or titles was always attended with the presentation of gloves. In the eleventh century the method of challenging to single combat by throwing down a glove was instituted, and this custom still remains in some countries.

Gloves were not worn by women until after the reformation.

The Care of the Eyes.

A great many of the mysterious headaches with which women are afflicted must be put down to overstrained eyes, and this kind of headache can only be cured by giving the eyes a thorough rest, and, when a cure has thus been effected, great care in the use of the eyes in future is indispensable. Reading, writing or sewing in a dim and flickering light must be given up, and the common practice of attempting to read in a jolting train or omnibus must also be discarded. The eyes should never be used too long at a time, and, when much eye work is necessary, brief rests and bathings in hot water should be resorted to if the dreaded headache is to be kept at a distance.

Tickling or dry Coughs will quickly loosen when using Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. And it is so thoroughly harmless that Dr. Shoop tells mothers to use nothing else, even for very young babies. The wholesome green leaves and tender stems of a lung healing mountainous shrub give the curative properties to Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. It calms the cough, and heals the sensitive bronchial membranes. No opium, no chloroform, nothing harsh used to injure or suppress. Demand Dr. Shoop's. Take no other. All dealers.

Capital, $250,000.00 1,000,000 Shares 25c. each.

Good coal stock is a safe and sure investment. Galbraith shares are especially attractive.

Modest Capitalization Large Coal Reserves

This Company organized under the laws of the Northwest Territories of Canada, owns and operates the Galbraith mine located at Lundbreck, Alta. They have four vertical seams of coal traversing their property, aggregating over 40 feet in thickness. Three of these seams are developed to a depth of 350 feet, and as they pass through the Company's lands for nearly a mile, some idea of the amount of coal may be had.

Shipping Steadily

The present output of the mine is about 200 tons per day. These shipments will be rapidly increased, as the C.P.R. allows its cars to be loaded with coal for points in the U. S.

We are selling a limited number of these shares at the extremely low price of

in blocks of 100 or over. Tight money in the States makes it possible for us to give this unprecedented offer in stock that will be paying dividends inside of six months, and you are sure to realize a handsome profit.

The property is situated at Mancos, Colo., and consists of 100 acres, fully paid for. The Company expects to secure at least 400 acres or more, we are negotiating for it now and the terms are satisfactory and there is coal on the same, and they also intend to secure some Coal Mines of which they have the refusal. Some of the best coal mines in Colorado are in this district, as well as some of the richest gold and silver mines. In fact this is one of the richest parts for mineral in the State of Colorado, and the Company has the refusal to several prospects on reasonable and easy terms.

kar was a thug. [illegible] over the handful of coarse brown sugar he left on the counter? Didn't Burt tell you of that?"

Paul started. "Yes, by Jove, he did!" was his reply.

"Well, then," said Sylvia triumphantly, "that sugar was poor, and the thugs eat it before strangling any one, and father was strangled."

Beecot could not but be impressed. "It is certainly very strange," he said, looking at the book, "and it was queer your father should have been strangled on the very night when this Indian Hokar left the sugar on the counter. A coincidence, Sylvia, darling."

"No. Why should Hokar leave the sugar at all?"

"Well, he didn't eat it, and therefore, if he was a thug, he would have done so had he intended to strangle your father."

"I don't know," said Sylvia, with a look of obstinacy on her pretty face. "But remember the cruel way in which my father was killed, Paul. It's just what an Indian would do, and then the sugar—oh, I'm quite sure this hawker committed the crime."

Beecot shook his head and strove to dissuade her from entertaining this idea. But Sylvia, usually so amenable to reason, refused to discard her theory, and indeed Paul himself thought that the incident of the sugar was queer. He determined to tell Hurd about the matter, and then the hawker might be found and made to explain why he had left the goor on the counter. "But the sect of the thugs is extinct," argued Paul quickly; "it can't be, Sylvia."

"But it is," she insisted, "I'm sure." And from this firm opinion he could not move her. Finally, when he departed, he took the books with him and promised to read the novel again. Perhaps something might come of Sylvia's fancy.

The lovers spent the rest of the time in talking over their future, and Beecot looked hopefully toward making sufficient money to offer Sylvia a home. He also described to her how he had met Mrs. Krill and related what she was prepared to do. "Do you think we should accept the five hundred a year, Paul?" said Sylvia doubtfully. "It would put everything right, and so long as I am with you I don't care where we live."

"If you leave the decision to me, darling," said Paul, "I think it will be best to refuse this offer. Something is wrong, or Mrs. Krill would not be so anxious to get you out of the country."

"Oh, Paul, do you think she knows anything about the murder?"

"No, dear. I don't think that. Mrs. Krill is far too clever a woman to put her neck in danger. But there may be a chance of her daughter losing the money. Sylvia," he asked, "you saw Maud Krill. How old would you take her to be?"

"Oh, quite old, Paul," said Sylvia decisively; "she dresses well and paints her face, but she's forty."

"Oh, Sylvia, not so much as that."

"Well, then, thirty and over," insisted Sylvia. "Debby thinks the same as I do."

"Don't you think Debby's zeal may lead her to exaggerate?"

"It doesn't lead me to exaggerate," said Sylvia, slightly offended, "and I have eyes in my head as well as Debby. That girl, or that woman, I should say, is over thirty, Paul."

"In that case," said Beecot, his color rising, "I fancy I see the reason of Mrs. Krill's desire to get you out of the country. Maud," he added deliberately, "may not be your father's daughter, after all."

"What makes you think that?"

"Well, according to the marriage certificate and to Mrs Krill's admission, she was married to your father thirty years ago. If Maud is over thirty—can't you see, Sylvia?"

"Yes," Sylvia colored. "You mean she may be the same as I am?"

"Not exactly, dear," replied Paul, soothing her. "I mean that Mrs Krill may have been a widow and have had her little girl with her when she married your father. In that case Maud certainly could not get the money, and so Mrs. Krill wants you to leave England."

"I wish I would get it," said Sylvia, coaxingly.

Paul looked puzzled and rather sad. "I can't say, dear," he replied doubtfully. "Certainly the money is left to my daughter," but as the marriage with your mother unfortunately is void I fear you would not inherit. However," he said grimly, "there would be a certain pleasure in taking the money from that woman. Maud is a fool to put it in her hands," he laughed. "And then Hay would marry a poor bride," he ended maliciously.

Sylvia could not quite understand all this and gave up trying to solve the problem with a pretty gesture of indifference. "What will you do, Paul?" she asked.

"I'll see Hurd and tell him what you and Deborah say about the age of Maud Krill."

"Why not see Mr. Pash?"

"Because he is a traitor," replied Beecot darkly, "and, knowing he has lost your confidence, he will certainly try and give Maud Krill possession of the money. No, I'll speak to Hurd, who is my friend and yours. He is clever and will be able to unravel this tangle."

"Tell him about the goor also, Paul."

"Yes, I'll explain everything I can, and then I'll get him to go down to Christchurch and see what happened there when your father lived with Maud's mother."

"What did happen, Paul?" asked Sylvia anxiously.

"Nothing," he replied with an air not want to tell the girl about the fate of Lady Rachel Sandal, "but we may find in your father's past life what led to his murder."

"Do you think Mrs. Krill had anything to do with it?"

"My own, you asked that question before. No, I don't. Still, one never knows. I should think Mrs. Krill is a dangerous woman, although, I fancy, too clever to risk being hanged. However, Hurd can find out if she was in town on the night your father was killed."

"That was on the 6th of July," said Sylvia.

"Yes. And he was murdered at 12."

"After 12," said Sylvia. "I heard the policeman on his beat at a quarter past, and then I came down. Poor father was strangled before our very eyes," she said, shuddering.

"Hush, dear. Don't speak of it," said Paul, rising. "Let us talk of more interesting subjects."

"Paul, I can think of nothing till I learn who killed my poor father and why he was killed so cruelly."

"Then we must wait patiently, Sylvia. Hurd is looking after the matter, and I have every confidence in Hurd. And, by Jove," added Beecot, with an afterthought, "Mrs. Krill doubled the reward. Were she concerned in the matter she would not risk sharpening the wits of so clever a man as Hurd. No, Sylvia, whosoever strangled your father it was not Mrs. Krill."

"It was this Indian," insisted Sylvia, "and he's a thug."

Paul laughed, although he was far from thinking she might be wrong. Of course it seemed ridiculous that a thug should strangle the old man. In the first place, the thugs have been blotted out. In the second, if any survived, they certainly would not exercise their devilish religion in England, and in the third, Hokar, putting aside his offering strangled victims to Bhowanee, the goddess of the sect, had no reason for slaying an unoffending man. Finally, there was the sailor to be accounted for—the sailor who had tried to get the jewels from Pash. Paul wondered if Hurd had found out anything about this individual. "It's all very difficult," sighed Beecot, "and the more we go into the matter the more difficult does it get. But we'll see light some day. Hurd, if anyone, will unravel the mystery," and Sylvia agreed with him.

CHAPTER XVII.

For the next day or two Paul was kept closely to work in the office reading a number of tales which were awaiting his judgment. After hours he several times tried to see Billy Hurd, but was unable to meet him. He left a note at the Scotland Yard office, asking if Hurd had received his communication regarding Mrs. Krill, and if so, what he proposed to do concerning it. Hurd did not reply to this note, and Paul was growing puzzled over the silence of the detective. At length the answer came, not in writing, but in the person of Hurd himself, who called on

CLAIRVOYANT AIDS SLEUTHS.

Scotland Yard Officials Try to Penetrate Murder Mystery.

The so far impenetrable mystery which surrounds the savage murder of a woman named Dinsmuck, or Shaw, at her home in St. Paul's road, Camden Town, has driven Scotland Yard to the employment of novel expedients.

For about the first time in a big crime sensation the detectives have sought the aid of the press by sending photographed copies of postcards received by the victim the day before her terrible death.

An even stranger development has to be recorded—no less than the calling in of a famous clairvoyant who had volunteered to do his best to discover the murderer.

All arrangements having been made, the clairvoyant called at the police station to meet the detectives who are specially devoting themselves to the unraveling of the mystery, and went with them to the murdered woman's house.

Here a weird scene was enacted.

After a short inspection of the room, the clairvoyant lay down on the bed where the dead body was found, and apparently sank into a trance. Soon he began to speak in a rapt, tense voice. He described several persons, and he mentioned their names.

Then he proceeded to give a startlingly vivid description of the actual commission of the crime; pictured in detail the appearance of a certain man, and concluded by exclaiming, in answer to a question, "The man you want is on his way to Melbourne."

Altogether, it was an astonishing episode, which impressed even the usually impassive detectives with its seeming quality of reality. What actual value it may have remains to be seen.

FARMER'S QUICK STUNT.

Corn Cut and Turned Into Baked Loaves In Four Hours.

The reproach so often leveled against British agriculturists that they are slow and unprogressive can never be raised again after a demonstration of motor harvesting given at Kirton recently, when loaves were handed round baked from corn that had been standing in the fields four hours before.

The demonstration, which was given on the farm of Messrs. Dennis Brothers—one of the largest in the kingdom—showed that in up to date farm work England is well ahead of most countries. Several remarkable feats were accomplished.

A acre of standing corn was marked out in the fields, cut, bound, threshed, and ground by motor implements. An acre of ground was also plowed, drilled, harrowed, and sown with a new crop within seven and a half hours. This constitutes a world's record.

At 11.35 the tractor started its work by taking the threshing drum into the cornfield. Five minutes later it began to draw two harvesters. These not only cut the corn but bound it. Half a dozen men walking behind stacked it, and in exactly fifteen minutes what had been an acre of growing corn was standing on the field ready to be placed on the cart which the tractor proceeded to draw round the field.

By 1 o'clock the corn was lying at the side of the threshing drum. The tractor then got into position to drive the thresher. At 10 minutes past 1 a halt was called for luncheon. As soon as the threshing began the flour began to come out of the mill, which was being worked off a pulley on the threshing drum.

Made Money In Colonies.

A gentleman who admits to having succumbed to what he is pleased to call "that Carnegie feeling" is visiting Manchester.

Stylishly dressed and wearing a fur-trimmed overcoat, the unknown visitor approached a policeman at midnight and asked to be directed to a neighborhood in which common lodging-houses abound. The constable was startled by the request, but gave the desired information.

Shortly afterwards the policeman noticed the gentleman walking up Deansgate with a little crowd of wretchedly-clad and half-starved creatures around him. Invited to explain, the man with the fur coat said:

"The fact of the matter is I have only arrived back in Manchester today after an absence of eighteen years in the Colonies. My last night in Manchester was spent on one of the infirmary seats. I have just been up there now to invite as many outcasts as I could find to have a bed and a square meal."

Heart Strength

Heart Strength, or Heart Weakness, means Nerve Strength, or Nerve Weakness—nothing more. Positively, not one weak heart in a hundred is, in itself, actually diseased. It is almost always a hidden tiny little nerve that really is all at fault. This obscure nerve—the Cardiac, or Heart Nerve—simply needs, and must have, more power, more stability, more controlling, more governing strength. Without that the Heart must continue to fail, and the stomach and kidneys also have these same controlling nerves.

This clearly explains why, as a medicine, Dr. Shoop's Restorative has in the past done so much for weak and ailing Hearts. Dr. Shoop first sought the cause of all this painful, palpitating, suffocating heart distress. Dr. Shoop's Restorative—this popular prescription—is alone directed to these pale and wasting nerve centers. It builds; it strengthens; it offers real, genuine heart help.

If you would have strong Hearts, strong digestion, strengthen these leaves—re-establish them as needed, with

I Cure Pimples

My Remedy is Sure, Because it Removes the Cause

Bad blood is always responsible for pimples, blackheads and humours.

Trouble is the excretory organs become sluggish and fail to carry out the poisons, that constantly accumulate. Finally the blood absorbs them.

Pimples, eczema and boils are the common result.

I contend that to cure these the liver, kidneys and bowels must receive attention.

My remedy, known as Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut, invariably reaches the trouble.

For putting life into sleepy organs, for forcing out every kind of waste and foreign matter, for making health-sustaining blood, where can you find such efficiency as in Dr. Hamilton's Pills?

In a thousand cases I have demonstrated that Dr. Hamilton's Pills cure facial blemishes and skin diseases.

I look upon these pills as the best blood purifier and system builder of the age, and guarantee they will cure every complaint having its origin in a weak or debilitated blood supply.

Peterboro Goods Shown in London

As often contended by the Times, Peterborough is possibly more widely advertised throughout the world by "Peterborough canoes" than by any other article manufactured, grown or found here. Now the city is to be advertised at the Franco-British Exposition, to be held in London, England, by a picture of nine skiffs and canoes made by the Peterborough Canoe Co. The picture was taken yesterday afternoon. The five canoes and four skiffs are of highest quality, and will doubtless result in orders for the company and advertisement for the city.

NOW LISTEN!

Please read carefully what follows, and if you decide to take advantage of what the "Canada Southern Oil & Gas Co., Limited," of Tilbury, Ont. (no personal liability), is now offering you, the result will be that instead of getting 3 per cent. for your savings, you will get at least from 10 to 25 per cent. that others are harvesting.

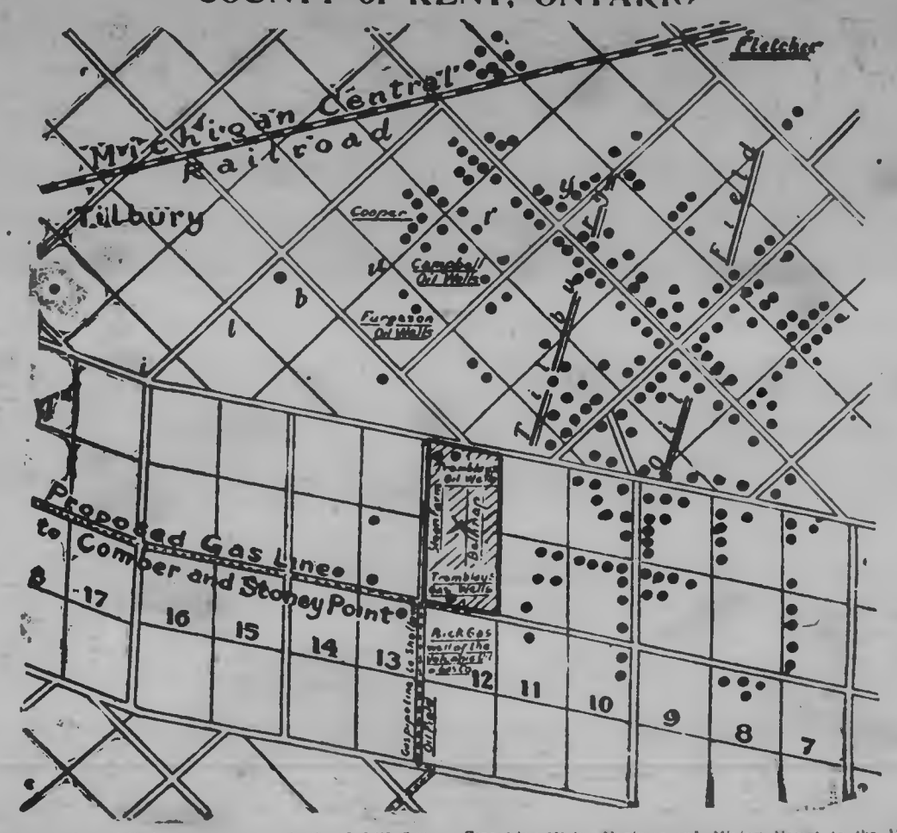
Your savings will be eight times more than the original amount by the mere fact of the higher rate of interest you will get.

Remember that this is no wildcat scheme, as you can see by the facts hereinafter mentioned.

Dr. Bell, the famous Canadian geologist, early in 1878 reported that there was an oil and gas field in the Townships of Tilbury and Romney County of Kent, Ont. As soon as the discovery of the oil was made in Tilbury in 1906 our American neighbors, who are experts in good things, did not hesitate to invest hundreds of thousands of dollars, and now, in fact, control the two-thirds interest in our oil field of Tilbury; and this happened because we Canadians hesitated to invest a few thousand dollars in the exploration of the oil mines of Tilbury, which already give a monthly production valued at $75,000, without adding the revenue derived from the gas.

We have said that this is not a wildcat scheme, because the "Canadian Southern Oil & Gas Co., Limited," has secured an option at a very moderate price on properties situated in the oil and gas field of Tilbury, upon which three successful tests have been made, being Lot No. 12, M. R. N., Tilbury East, 200 acres, indicated with a cross upon the map of the field.

COUNTY of KENT, ONTARIO



Three wells only have been drilled at an average depth of 1,400 feet.

The first one proves to be a rich gas well, the two others are good oil wells, combined with a strong production of gas.

The Company has also secured the franchises for the distribution and sale of natural gas into the Townships of Romney, Tilbury East, North and West, and also into the thriving villages of Comber and Stoney Point.

The gas well is properly equipped and already is supplying the motor power to the Romney oil field and is getting one-third of the gross revenue of the gas sold.

The oil wells are completely equipped with one 15 h. p. gas engine, derrick, tanks, boiler, pumps, tubing, pipe-line, jerk-line, jack, etc., and are producing daily. The oil is sold to The Imperial Oil Company, Sarnia, and is delivered at the tanks and shipped through its pipe-line to Pere Marquette R. R. Station at Merlin, a distance of 3 miles.

Our properties are already giving daily a net revenue of about $35.00—that is to say, more than 10 per cent. of the whole capital stock of the Company.

This revenue may be made four times greater by the drilling of other wells and the construction of the gas-line to Comber and Stoney Point.

Fritz Cirkel, Esq., of Montreal, consulting mining engineer and mining expert to the Dominion Government, who lately made an inspection of the said property, concluded his report as follows:

"In summarizing the actual results already obtained from the operations of the Sloan wells the writer is forced to the conclusion that the property under consideration is a very valuable one. Located as it is in the western extremity of the producing Tilbury oil field, in close proximity to wells which produce from 40 to 50 barrels of oil (and even more) per day of 24 hours (I refer to the Ferguson, Campbell and Cooper properties, located about 2,000 feet distant to the north, see plan attached hereto), it bids fair to become a producer of oil and natural gas of no small measure.

The Tilbury field has already the reputation of being a large producer and powerful companies have entered the district with a view of securing properties of known and established value.

There is one factor to which I would like to draw your special attention and that is the future of natural gas. To-day, the market in that in that part of the country, for this commodity is not sufficiently large to dispose of all the gas the wells can produce but there is no question that in the near future factories will be established on central points, which will eventually consume for various purposes, especially for power, all the gas which can be produced in the field.

Besides this there are quite a number of towns and villages in the western part of the Niagara Peninsula, which may use the gas for heating, lighting, and also for power purposes and it is only a question of time when this will be realized.

The economy of the application of natural gas to power purposes is already evidenced all through the field, as coal or any other power cannot be regularly obtained, and that at high figures. Having therefore, a powerful gas well on the (Sloan) property, it is evident that a great saving is effected from this source alone; for instance, for the operation of ten oil wells, the cost of power required per day would amount to between twenty and twenty-five dollars, which, in 300 working days per year, would represent a saving of from six thousand to seven thousand five hundred dollars.

In conclusion, I may say that this property, with proper and economic management, can be made highly remunerative; I entertain, no doubt, that if properly developed, it will show similar results as those of so many other locations in the vicinity, whose developments have of so many other locations in the vicinity, whose developments have been so vigorously pushed in the past.

Respectfully submitted,
(Signed) FRITZ CIRKEL.

HOW TO MAKE OUR SCHOOL BUILDINGS SAFE FOR PUPILS

Important Action Taken by Ohio Authorities In This Direction

Cement Schools.

Youngstown, Ohio, March 19.—Alarmed by the recommendation of Director of Schools, [illegible] Ashbaugh, that the Cleveland disaster might be repeated in any of the public school buildings in Youngstown, the Board of Education has called in a fireproofing engineer of national prominence, to formulate a plan for making the structures safe. The action is due to the existing state of public opinion, because many parents declare that if this cannot be done at once their children will be kept from school.

William Hale Ham, vice-president of the National Association of Owners Users for the section on Losses, Statistics and Insurance, has prepared a preliminary report on the fireproofing of school buildings, in which he points out where lies the greatest danger in buildings that are now in use, and makes recommendations as to the most economical method of making these buildings safe. He also describes the type of construction that should be adopted in new buildings to prevent a recurrence of the disaster at Cleveland.

Mr. Ham is a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers, and has spent the last ten years in the construction of fireproof buildings of reinforced concrete. His recommendations, he says, apply to the average school building in any town in the country, as strongly as to the schools in Youngstown. He says:—

"In view of the calamity that has overtaken Cleveland, there can be no question of the wisdom of the Youngstown Board of Education in taking whatever steps are necessary to make the school buildings that are now in use, safe, and to construct no school buildings which are not absolutely fireproof. How to accomplish these results without increasing the burdens of the taxpayers unduly, is the question of the moment, and to this end the writer makes the following general recommendations:—

FOR OLD BUILDINGS.

"All school buildings which are not known to be thoroughly fireproof should be examined by the School Committee, the Superintendent of Schools and the Chief of the Fire Department of the city.

"Steps should be taken to prevent rapid spread of fire, especially from the corridors to the main rooms. This can be accomplished in all old buildings quickly by the installation of a fireproof partition between the corridors and main rooms with steel doors having wire glass transoms, or with no transoms.

"If possible every school building should have an exit at the opposite end of the building from the stairways. The exit should be protected from fire by brick walls extending at least a foot from the building, no other opening into the space being allowed. Fire escapes should be made of steel or cast iron. The doors to these fire escapes should be unlocked every morning and opened. A fire drill should be instituted using the fire escapes and practice should be constant throughout the school year. In order that the children may not be frightened at the sound of alarm of fire, the practice should be carried out with regular fire alarm each week at no specified time.

REGARDING NEW BUILDINGS.

"Where the School Committee is limited for funds with which to build a fireproof school building, it should be impressed upon the architects that the interior of the building is the most important of all features, and that any saving that is to be made, should be made in the looks of the exterior and not in the construction of the interior of the building. It often occurs that for the sake of beautifying the city an elaborate exterior is designed. This is, of course, ideal, but where the maximum amount of space must be built for the minimum amount of money, a plain, almost severe, exterior with thoroughly fireproof floors and partitions should be the prevailing idea of construction.

"If the rooms are not too large, the cost of a thoroughly fireproof building, with reinforced concrete floors and columns, and a neat, brick exterior, can be constructed for approximately 10 per cent. increase in the cost over the construction of a brick and wood building. Insurance will soon bring down the cost of the investment to a point where one cannot afford to build otherwise than fireproof. In this type of a school building, children could be actually kept at work at their desks while the furniture in one part of the building was burning — there would be nothing else to burn in the building.

This type of construction is exceedingly well suited to school buildings, and should be investigated by every building committee before adopting a brick and wood building.

"Disasters due to fires in this country are unpardonable and we are criticised severely by foreign countries, where the lack of wood has been a blessing for years."

Shoulder Broken by Butcher's Rig

Early yesterday morning Mr. Jas. Walton, Kent street, had his shoulder broken by being struck and knocked down by a butcher's sleigh near the corner of King and Park streets. It seems that he was crossing the road very slowly. The butcher's horse turned Park corner sharply and the sleigh swung and knocked him down. He was removed to the sleigh to his home. Dr. Malcolm McCulloch was summoned, and, upon examination, found that Mr. Walton's shoulder had been fractured. Mr. Walton, in addition to a broken shoulder, was badly shocked.

Lady Cashier Returns Money

Yesterday a local merchant wore a broad smile, back of which is a story of business on the part of a local lady cashier. The history of the smile is thusly: Early yesterday morning a merchant went into the dry goods store of Messrs. Richard Hall & Son to pay a small account. When this business transaction was concluded Mr. Hall took him to the millinery rooms to show some recent work of the milliners' art. On the way down Mr. Hall's cashier called the merchant over and handed him $2.50.

"What is that for?" was his natural enquiry. Her explanation was that he a few days ago, among his deposits on the Dominion Bank, handed in an envelope of silver coins marked $10 and accepted as such, as is customary with merchants' deposits. This envelope, in the course of business, was handed to Richard Hall & Son, unopened by the bank. The cashier found the envelope to contain $12.50, and handed the balance back to the merchant, who had, while busy, put in $2.50 too much by mistake in his supposed $10 envelope.

Richard Lindsay Tried to Take Care of Wife and Family

Belleville, March 19. — A witness for the defence in the Lindsay case this morning said that Lindsay did his best for his wife and children, and never, so far as known, ill-treated them. I can not that the woman lived in convulsions.

Mr. W. J. Wilson, of Madoc, who appeared for Lindsay, made a stirring appeal for him, claiming that, though the man was unfortunate in some respects, he had done his best to take care of his family.

Crown Attorney Anderson laid stress on the fact that Lindsay knew when he left the house, that his wife was in a delicate condition, yet he stayed away from her, and was seen under the influence of liquor.

Judge Deroche gave a lengthy judgment, and formally discharged the prisoner, stating that though he had been living in an uncivilized state, he had done nothing making him amenable to the law.

Daughter of London Man Meets with Tragic Death

London, Ont., March 18. — Gladys Vroman, the 6 year old daughter of John Vroman, of 131 Duchess avenue, was so severely burned this afternoon that she died at Victoria Hospital this evening. The girl had been a cripple from her early childhood, being the victim of paralysis, which necessitated her being carried about at all times. She had been left alone in the house for a short time, having been placed near the large base-burner, and it is supposed she managed to support herself by the aid of a chair and opened the stove door, when the coals fell out upon her. The brother, who had been left in charge, had stepped away a few doors, and had only been absent a few minutes when he returned and found the girl's clothing enveloped in flames. He seized a blanket and quickly extinguished the fire, then immediately summoned a doctor, who called the ambulance and had the unfortunate girl removed to Victoria Hospital. Despite the best medical assistance she succumbed to her terrible burns at an early hour this morning.

Police Court Happenings

At yesterday's session of the police court Joseph Reynolds, W. Fallon and Stanley Meade were charged with stealing a quantity of clothing and brass from Mr. Roy.

When asked if the magistrate how they wanted to be tried, whether by him or by a jury, elected for summary trial.

Mr. Kerr acted for Reynolds and Mr. Gordon for the other two.

They all pleaded guilty. It seems that some of the goods were recovered.

Fallon and Reynolds were also charged with stealing brass valves and grating from Mr. E. Clarry.

Mr. Gordon noted that Mr. Fallon pleaded guilty, but said Reynolds had nothing to do with the theft. The chief said Reynolds could be proved guilty of selling some of the goods to Doig.

Mr. Wood, for the Crown, said that whilst Fallon exonerated Reynolds, he might not know from a legal standpoint whether Reynolds were guilty or not. The charge against Reynolds in the law case was withdrawn. Sentence was held over until two cases against John Doig were tried. He was charged with having had in his possession a quantity of clothing and other goods, the property, stolen from Mr. R. M. Roy.

Doig said he bought the goods, but did not know they were stolen at time of purchase. He intended to return the goods.

Hon. Mr. Kerr, who had to leave at noon, spoke in advance for accused's father, Mr. Reynolds, and said that the Reynolds boy had before this been in the county jail, but this did him no good. The prisoner is healthy and able to work. If he were sent to Central Prison he might learn a trade, but there was only one chance in a thousand of his being reformed there. He did not want the lad sent to mix with the blackguards at Central Prison. He asked for a suspended sentence.

Mr. Wood showed that a suspended sentence could not be imposed in Reynolds' case, as he had been convicted before.

The Doig case was then taken up again, and Doig said, "Your Worship, I'll plead guilty of the whole thing."

This included the charge as above specified, and another of running a junk business without a license, as well as another charge of receiving stolen goods, knowing them to be stolen.

Mr. Wood remarked that if there were no buyers of stolen goods there would be no thieves. Doig bought the goods, knowing them to be stolen. The boys, at the time the goods were sold, discussed the matter with Doig, telling him they were stolen. They tried to sell the stuff to George Stevens, but he refused to buy. This junk stealing must be stopped, and here is a good case to make an example. Doig had even buried the stolen goods.

The magistrate told Doig he had been so often in the police court he knew better. He sentenced him to six months in the common jail at hard labor.

—o—

Yesterday morning long before the police court opened a large deputation from the Labor Loathing League waited for the door to open.

The first case tried was that of John Duncan, charged with cruelly ill-treating a horse, by leaving it in the cold, uncovered. He pleaded not guilty.

Dr. Ransom, V., said on sturday night he saw a horse lying in a hole in the ground in the C. P. R. shipping pen, with mud, water and filth about it. The water off the round house was pouring on it. The horse was emaciated and helpless.

The groans of the horse could be heard at a great distance. The animal would have been frozen there. The only thing to be done was to shoot it, which was done by P. C. Newhill.

To the defendant witness said the horse was aged. He tried the veterinary test to try where it was stuffed or not, preventing the horse from getting up. He retracted the statement about the animal freezing, as it was not cold enough.

John Harwood said the horse seemed healthy when it walked into the car. The animal fell down, and Duncan had it removed to the yard or pen.

P. C. Murphy saw Duncan Sunday morning, when Duncan asked him to shoot the horse, but Newhill had done this the night before.

P. C. Newhill next described the horse lying in snow and slush as told by first witness. Several men tried in vain to get it up. The veterinary thought it should be shot, so he did this at 9.15.

The C. P. R. agent said the body is there still.

Mr. Duncan, in the box, said he did not own the horse. His brother was shipping horses. The floor of the car was slippery. The horse fell and would not get up, so after defending some of the car, he hauled him out. He did not know whose horse it was.

The magistrate said the evidence did not justify a conviction. The best thing to have done was to shoot the horse. There was not the wanton cruelty specified by the act.

The magistrate, despite Duncan's protests of not owning the horse, ordered him to have the body removed from the C. P. R.

—o—

At yesterday's session of the Police Court a young man named Stanley McCabe was charged with stealing a quantity of clothing from Mr. R. M. Roy's yacht. Mr. Gordon defended the prisoner, whom the evidence showed to be guilty. Mr Gordon put in a strong plea for leniency.

Rev. Canon Davidson also made a strong appeal for the prisoner. He said the defendant came from a very respectable family, but of late had fallen off from his religious duties. He had been out of work for some time and had evidently stolen the goods to wear. He said if the magistrate would deal as lightly as consistent with the demands of Justice. The Magistrate allowed him to go, reserving judgment until to-morrow morning.

Andrew Dobbin pleaded not guilty to having assaulted Samuel Innes.

Innes in the box said he was going home Saturday night. He met a young lady and took her home. Dobbin as witness was going home, hailed him and calling him a bad name, struck him twice and kicked him. He asked Dobbin what the trouble was. Innes took his coat off and shoved witness against a slab pile, and kicked him. Witness then went to a doctor to get his lip that Innes split open, fixed up. Defendant gave no explanation of his conduct. They had always been good friends.

For the defence, Sam Kennedy said on Saturday evening he was standing back of Cavanagh's hotel with others. Dobbin told Innes he wanted to speak to him. He told Innes he wanted him to keep away from his, witness' house, and not be looking through the windows. Saw no blows struck. He, Dobbin, and others went to Mrs. Bowman's shed and stood talking. Innes followed them. Innes called Dobbin. Dobbin, in the box, said Innes had been coming about his mother's house for two weeks. Innes is after a girl stopping there. Innes came one night recently and asked for the girl. Witness told him to go away and telephoned for the police. When Innes followed him to Mrs. Bowman's yard, witness did not hit him, but shoved him against the woodpile.

The Magistrate said the charge was not proven. Innes looked for trouble. Chief Roszel asked that complainant pay the costs, including $1.50 for horse hire. This he had to do, the costs amounting to $4.10.

Jacob Firman and W. Porter were charged with having stolen some scantling the property of Mr. Lynn. They elected to be tried summarily by the Magistrate and pleaded guilty. The Chief said he could prove that the prisoners had stolen other wood.—Mr. Lynn had had scantling stolen before and had marked this piece. Porter was then charged with vagrancy and pleaded guilty. He said he came from Havelock. "How long have you been in Peterborough?" asked his Worship. "About a week" replied Porter. "You have done pretty well for that length of time. They were each given one month in gaol. Firman is married but does not support his wife as he should and the Magistrate said it would be one mouth less for the wife to fill.

Old County Resident Has Passed Away

Yesterday morning one of the earliest settlers of this county passed away in St. Joseph's Hospital in the person of Mr. William Trennum, at the age of 79 years. The deceased, who was only ill a few weeks, was born at sea, and whilst young settled in the township of Smith. He was engaged there in the lumber business. The original bridges across Mud Lake and Pigeon Creek to Bobcaygeon were built by the late Mr. Trennum. For the past year he had been caretaker of the Locks Bridge.

Four children are left to mourn his loss. They are, Mrs. Hamilton, Bobcaygeon; Mrs. Crosby, Pennsylvania; Mrs. Jas. Cole, Pittsburg, and Mr. Trennum, of Harvey.

The funeral will take place at Bobcaygeon to-morrow afternoon.

Mr. Robt. Gibbs Buys Water St. Livery

Yesterday morning a well known local wholesale house commercial traveller stopped a Times representative and said, "Have you heard the latest? Bob Gibbs has bought out the McCollum & Lee livery business on Water street." This business, we might note, was in part, recently purchased by Mr. Davidson. Now, however, it seems Mr. Gibbs has purchased the outfit, and will conduct a thoroughly up to date livery business. The stables where he formerly had his livery on Chambers street will be used as boarding stables.

Claims That Drugs Did It

The prisoner George Shepherd, tried yesterday at the police court, and who pleaded guilty to forging two cheques on for $1050 and on for $25, and upon whom sentence will be passed next Wednesday, explains his acts by saying he was under the influence of drugs at the time and did not know what he was doing. He says he was using morphine heavily, having got into the habit whilst in the hospital.

An Interesting Debate

It is agreed that the debate to be held in Park Street Baptist Church on Monday, March 30th, will be listened to by a large audience. The young people of that church will take sides against those of Knox church, discussing the arguments that emmigration of Chinese and Japanese into Canada should be prohibited. Park street orators will uphold the negative and the Knox church speakers the affirmative. The evening will be rendered still more interesting by a splendid musical programme.

Y.M.C.A. Convention to be Held At Stratford

The 30th annual convention of the Young Men's Christian Association of Ontario and Quebec will be held at Stratford on Wednesday and Thursday, April 8th and 9th.

Chickens Cooked In a Glue Pot

Two young men of Tweed a few days ago were charged before the police magistrates of that town with stealing chickens. They pleaded guilty, but did not seem to have had much satisfaction out of the poultry. It seems that they were out on a spree when the theft was committed, and taking the chickens to the lodging house, proceeded to pluck and remove the other deparments of the interior. When the chickens were ready the young men put them into a pot and boiled them for some time. As they cooked the aroma which arose did not invite appetite, and by the time the birds were apparently ready for use, and taken from the pot, the surrounding atmosphere was so thick one could cut it with a knife. They ascertained that the pot they had used for culinary purposes had been used for melting glue. The chickens were not eaten, and the young men were allowed to go on suspended sentence.

Kathryn Osterman's Funny Play

Kathryn Osterman, who is styled the mirth communicating comedienne, will be the attraction at the Grand Opera House next Monday evening in her new three-act comedy "The Girl Who Looks Like Me", Miss Osterman will have the assistance of a well balanced company, including Ann Belmont. The action of the piece occurs all in one day, at the home of Prof. Hugo Stanley, at Beechwood Terrace on the Hudson. The Professor, who is a scientist, has been driven from his home by his wife, a termagant, five years before, and has gone to Asia. Six months previously the wife had disappeared, leaving the place in charge of Erma Desmond, who was engaged as her companion, and who was her exact double. Miss Desmond continues the deception of being Mrs. Stanley, because she could see no other way out of it.

The play opens with the servants very suspicious over the mysterious disappearance of Miss Desmond, they thinking it was Miss Desmond who has disappeared instead of Mrs. Stanley. Phyllis Burnham, a friend of Miss Desmond's, is let in on the real situation, and promises to assist if trouble comes. It does; the two women are kept busy thereafter, and right there is one of the peculiarities of the play.

The bulk of the work falls on Miss Desmond, which is played by Miss Osterman, while masquerading as Mrs. Stanley, and Anna Belmont as Phyllis Burnham. The arrival of a lawyer and his friend, the latter an old admirer of Miss Desmond's and the addition of the lawyer's friend Chester Clynch, to the ranks of the deceivers as followed by the arrival home of Prof. Stanley from Asia, Gilberta, his daughter from a boarding school, and Mrs. Baddly Bytton, a prominent divorcee, and friend of Mrs. Stanley. They entangle the situation, until no one knows who is who. The funniest comedies presented to the bogus Mrs. Stanley, nearly cornered in American public for some time.

Depressed by His Crime, Man Drank and Gave Way Secret

Pittsburg, March 19.—The body of Charles Bennett, buried last September at Carrick, a suburb, as a suicide, was disinterred yesterday and an autopsy held which shows that Bennett was murdered.

The disinterment and investigation were made by officials of Wheeling, W. Va., at which place Charles Cook, his girl wife, and Joseph White are under arrest charged with the murder. Cook and his wife are said to have confessed to the crime, implicating White. The alleged murder was committed on the West Virginia State Fair grounds, Wheeling Island, the death occurring Sept. 21, and robbery was the object.

Bennett, who was only 16 years old, was selling novelties at the fair, trying to earn money to take him to college, and he displayed $45 in a public place. Mrs. Cook, the girl's sister, a pretty childish girl, according to the confession, enticed Bennett to a secluded spot, where he was assaulted and beaten on the head until either dead or unconscious, and his body thrown into the river. Four days later the body was found in Belmont county, Ohio, and after a superficial examination, the coroner rendered a verdict of suicide and sent the body to relatives here for interment.

Cook, who had been playing the piano in saloons, and the girl, who gave roller skating exhibitions, according to the confession, used the money to defray their wedding and honeymoon expenses.

Cook, it is said, gave the first clue to his crime during an attack of despondency while drinking. The confession followed after a sweating process.

The examination yesterday revealed serious wounds on the skull, affecting the brain. No trace of bullet wounds was found, and decomposition was too far advanced to decide definitely whether drowning or the blows were the immediate cause of death.

BURGLARS BROKE INTO HOUSE AND GAGGED TWO MEN

Fired Gun on Entering the House—One Victim Dashed for the Window But was Caught

Thorneaville, Ont., March 19.—A daring robbery occurred here about 2.30 this morning. Messrs. Brooks and Howes, who are residing over a jeweller's store, were awakened by hearing a noise at the door. Brooks, getting up, walked towards the door and spoke in a loud tone, asking who was there. The answer was a report from a gun, and bullets smashed through the window. Howes was awakened by this time, and got up, as three burglars walked in on them and began to fire in all directions.

Howes, grabbing his money, hid it under the carpet and made a dash for the window and tried to escape, but all in vain. He was grabbed, tied, and gagged with one of the sheets on the bed, which was cut in pieces for the purpose. Brooks by this time had been bound, and both were put in bed. The daring three kept on looking for their valuables, and found eight dollars in Brooks' pocket, and Howes' watch. Then they made good their escape.

The burglars are supposed to be Indians of Moravlantown, which is situated southeast from here about six miles.

Indication of Mild Weather

Crowds of crows attracted the attention of many residents of Springville yesterday. A big flock was noticed at 7.45, and until nine o'clock there was a constant stream of the black birds travelling west to northwest. One of the birds dropped down in the yard of a local farmer and consumed a piece of fish or something which was apparently too heavy to carry any other way. The farmer became greatly interested in the migration. The birds were apparently divided into sections of about two dozen, and there were hundreds of these sections with their leaders and scouts, marshalled with wonderful precision. There was a striking similarity in the shape of the sections as they flew directly toward the woods. One flock was composed of birds very different from the crow. They were smaller and had a different method of flying, sailing along more like the swallow. All were in good voice, and their chorus was a decided novelty. The main body had passed at about nine o'clock, but straggling were still following in the wake. This migration is considered the best indication of mild weather.

Mr. T. Bradburn's Bill

Mr. T. E. Bradburn's bill to be submitted by the Ontario legislature, concerning the administration of this city is a most comprehensive affair. It includes a system of management of the city and its fiscal details, the control of the waterworks, Board of Education, and the control of various enumerated factories of the city. Assessment and the purchase of property are also touched on. Whatever may be the final adjudication of the bill, the citizens of Peterborough have faith in the handling of the bill by Mr. Bradburn, who has shown himself a true representative of local interests.

Will Not Accept

Quebec, March 20.—Captain John T. Walsh, of the Canadian Pacific Ry. Steamship service, who was here Monday, stated that unless the wages paid by the company in Montreal are accepted here, the ships of the company will undoubtedly be sent to either Three Rivers or Montreal.

Making Good.

There is no way of making lasting friends like "Making Good;" and Doctor Pierce's medicines well exemplify this, and their friends, after more than two decades of popularity, are numbered by the hundreds of thousands. They have "made good" and they have not made drunkards.

A good, honest, square-deal medicine of known composition is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It still enjoys an immense sale, while most of the preparations that have come into prominence in the earlier period of its popularity have "gone by the board" and are never more heard of. There must be some reason for this long-time popularity and that is to be found in its superior merits. When once given a fair trial for weak stomach, or for liver and blood affections, its superior curative qualities are soon manifest, hence it has survived and grown in popular favor, while scores of less meritorious articles have suddenly flashed into favor for a brief period and then been as soon forgotten.

For a torpid liver with its attendant indigestion, dyspepsia, headache, perhaps dizziness, foul breath, nasty coated tongue, with bitter taste, loss of appetite, with distress after eating, nervousness and debility, nothing is so good as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It's an honest, square-deal medicine with all its ingredients printed on bottle-wrapper—no secret, no hocus-pocus humbug, therefore don't accept a substitute that the dealer may possibly make a little bigger profit. Insist on your right to have what you call for.

Don't buy Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription expecting it to prove a "cure-all." It is only advised for woman's special ailments. It makes weak women strong and sick women well. Less advertised than some preparations sold for like purposes, its sterling curative virtues still maintain its position in the front ranks, where it stood over two decades ago. As an invigorating tonic and strengthening nervine it is unequaled. It won't satisfy those who want "booze," for there is not a drop of alcohol in it.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, the original Little Liver Pills, although the first pill of their kind in the market, still lead, and when once tried are ever afterwards in favor. Easy to take as candy—one to three a dose. Much smaller but very potent.

I was pale and emaciated, suffered from nervous exhaustion and dyspepsia. Little things that went wrong in the house bothered me. The doctor advised different treatments, but they didn't help. He said that my low condition of health was due to weakness that might never be cured. Ferrozone had a peculiar grateful effect and built me up quickly. The ills I suffered from are cured. I am now strong and vigorous, and was made so by Ferrozone." (Signed) Mrs. H. S. Gold.

THE BUDGET

The significant part of Mr. Fielding's budget is the glimpse into the future. He predicts a falling revenue for the next fiscal year. This, The Montreal Star thinks, is an official recognition of the strained financial conditions which have existed for some time and whose effect on the purchasing power of the people will naturally reduce the amount of imported goods consumed. Unfortunately, this period of lower revenues will be also a period of increased expenditures, though the increases will be on capital account. Both Mr. Fielding and Mr. Foster appear to be amazed at the moderation of this young country in the matter of running into debt, so that these additions to the public debt will apparently do no more than satisfy our two financial leaders that the nation is at all events not a financial "molly-coddle."

Expenditures on so important and permanent a work as the new Transcontinental Railway are not to be measured by the same standards as wasteful expenditures on political post offices, party wharves, etc. When we have borrowed and invested the money, we will have the railway to show for it; and the railway ought to be an encourager of settlement if not an earner of revenue. Expenditures on the Quebec Bridge should for the future fall, too, into this class. We ought to be through with the farce of dealing with a private company which puts up precious little money of its own and only acts as a conduit through which public money flows to a public undertaking. The government ought to recognize its responsibilities in this matter at once, and see that not a plan is drawn nor a bolt driven which its engineers do not authorize and for which it does not hold itself fully answerable.

Canada is entering upon a building time, and we must expect to increase the mortgage on the farm; but there never can be a time when it is unnecessary for a Government to watch closely the expenditure of money as when it is pouring out borrowed funds in a large stream. The two facts that the money is borrowed and not taken from the pockets of the people, and that there is a lot of it to spend, are likely to encourage extravagance and carelessness. But it is just at this time that the Ministers must be on their guard. When it is easy to be wasteful, they should feel under the deeper obligation to see that there is no waste.

Special Services at St. Paul's Church

St. Paul's Church is contemplating holding a series of special services next week beginning a Sabbath first. Preparation is already being made to make this week one of blessing to the numbers. The session met on Monday night; gave the movement their endorsement and pledged hearty co-operation. The prayer meeting this week will be devoted to special intercession for the outpouring of God's Spirit. A Women's prayer meeting will be held every afternoon at 3.30 next week, and a men's prayer meeting at 7.30. The pastor, the Rev. R. Pogue, will preach the Gospel every night. Miss Helen Davies will sing Gospel solos each evening. It is proposed to make the meetings bright, and attractive. A special effort will be made, by personal invitation, to reach all those who declared a preference for St. Paul's at the recent census and who may not be regular attendants.

EVENING IN THE WEST

TWILIGHT SCENE IN STREETS OF PRAIRIE TOWN IN SUMMER.

Spirit of Good Comradeship Prevails —Townspeople Gather In the Main Thoroughfare to Discuss Civic Problems — Women Compare Babies and Bonnets—Evenings Devoted to Innocent Recreations.

As odd a thing as one can see in the west is the main street of a prairie town, or rather village, on a summer evening, and it is indeed a unique sight.

The street is invariably very wide, space not being of as much consideration as in the more crowded parts of the Dominion. It is fortunate that such is the case, for the main street in summer, in addition to its more ordinary functions, is used as a sort of drawing-room, or perhaps playroom, where the townspeople, like one big family, amuse themselves.

The work and stress and heat of the day are over, and the evening is long as well as lovely. The tension of buying and selling, plowing and harrowing, churning and washing, is suspended, and the workers are relaxed. A spirit of good comradeship prevails in the west, and it is collectively rather than individually that the people like to take their relaxation.

Hence the saddler drops in to talk over the stirring events of the day with the postmaster, until perhaps a barefooted urchin pokes his head in the door and proclaims that "there's a cove in the saddler-shop," whereupon the vendor in leather composedly strolls over to wait upon his customer. The postmaster, thus left to himself, reads the postcards of the community at his leisure, and distributes them, together with the news gleaned therefrom, to the owners, or to others, as the case may be.

The bank clerk, the teacher and others play a spirited game of baseball, together with the butcher's assistant (who is probably a college student), right in the middle of the street until such time as the "preacher" wants a pound and a half of chops, when the game is suspended while the appetite of the minister's family is furnished with an antidote.

A row of men in their shirt-sleeves seated upon the edge of the plank sidewalk, discuss the political situation. Other men on their doorsteps read the Winnipeg dailies, and shout out to the neighbors comments—usually very spicy and pointed—upon the editorials, etc.

The new "bread-mixer," the latest patented washing machine, and the merits of "canning" over and above the old method of "preserving" "down east" all receive their share of discussion, and sociability reigns. And should there be a lady so unfortunate as to be belated with her ironing she refuses to be done out of her social evening by stress of circumstances, but brings out her ironing board to the side door, places it across the backs of two kitchen chairs or on the top of the rain barrel

Children bicycle up and down at will, and vary the proceedings with "prisoners' base" until they are hot and tired, when they repair to the "ice cream parlor," purchase five-cent ices and bring them out to enjoy them more fully on the doorsteps, while up and down the boardwalk stroll the young people—"children of a larger growth"—brandishing their racquets and awaiting their "turn" at the club tennis ground.

Chinamen issue forth from the restaurant, and with the greatest complacency empty their dishwater on a vacant lot nearby, while at the same time they exchange Oriental signals with the laundryman, Tong Yeak, across the way.

In from a twenty-mile drive, covered with dust and glory, comes the doctor, deposits his horse at the livery and vanishes into his drug store. He is the only secretive member of western society, and that only for conscience sake. Endowed with true western loquacity, he is dying to give the leading symptoms of his latest country case, if only professional etiquette did not forbid! However, he mentions casually to his clerk that "Mrs. Tom Gorham of Grove Farm will pull through alright this time!" whereupon the clerk slips out for a minute, and in no time the good news spreads far and wide.

Presently down the street comes the telegraph operator, flapping an ominous looking yellow envelope, and inquiring in loud, cheery tones if there is anybody "in" from the "east trail." A score of voices answer, "Yes! Bill Anstruther, the young Englishman who is hired with Jack Sinclair, is in town somewhere." A single shrill voice announces that "he is in the barber's shop," whereupon the said "Bill," hearing his name bandied about from mouth to mouth, appears, towelled and lathered, at the door of the barber's shop (attended, razor in hand, by the no less interested tonsorial artist) and demands to know "What's the row?" The telegraph message is forthwith confided to his care, to be delivered to a neighbor two miles or so south of him on the "Smith trail," and after the telegraph operator assures the public that the message contains "no bad news of Smith's boy at the Klondike," but is only "a matter of wheat," society subsides to its former happy state, and Bill's shaving proceeds.

Thus, with various innocent interests and recreations the evening speeds away. Perfect unanimity prevails—all know each other's business, pleasures, losses, gains, happiness and grief. A bond of sympathy and good-fellowship binds all together.

Instead of that, however, after the "kids" are captured and put to bed, and the grown-ups have a farewell gossip, untrammelled by the "little pitchers," the young farmers "hitch up" and "hit the trail"—cries of "Good-night," "Ta-ta," "See you tomorrow" and "So long" sound across and over, in and out; one door after another closes upon the only privacy the family knows, lights twinkle awhile and then go out, and the whole busy, happy, social "town" is wrapped in deep, dreamless sleep — the sleep of those who work.

THE DRAGON FLY.

Singularly Adapted to Its Life of Aerial Piracy.

No one could fail to be struck with the singularly perfect adaptation of the dragon fly's structure to a life of aerial piracy. The four wings are large and in proportion to their weight enormously strong. Each is supported by a wonderfully arranged network of slender ribs, which give the necessary rigidity to the thin, transparent membrane forming its basis. The muscles by which the wings are moved are massive and powerful and are so arranged among themselves that the animal is capable of steering its course with an unerring accuracy which any bird might envy. In this power it is largely aided by a marvelous keenness of sight, for in addition to the two great, gorgeously colored compound eyes which make up so much of the head the insect possesses three smaller "simple" eyes, making five eyes in all. The prey when overtaken is seized and devoured by means of powerful, sharply toothed jaws.

An animal which lives such an active life naturally requires a very perfect breathing apparatus, and this is amply provided by a system of holes on the sides of the body which open into an elaborate network of air tubes, supplying every part of the system. The air in these tubes is constantly renewed by the regular compression and dilatation of the body by special muscles.—Chambers' Journal.

HIBERNATION.

How and Why Some Animals Exist All Winter Without Food.

The philosophy or nature of hibernation and why and how it is that the hibernating creatures can go so long without food are interesting studies.

In the first place, the creature in order to enable it to sustain life throughout the long winter during which it hibernates is endowed with the capacity of accumulating within its body a large quantity of fat. This fat is to the animal what a well stocked coal cellar is to a fire, and until the whole of it has been consumed the tissue of the body proper remains untouched. It has been ascertained that animals can endure the waste of tissue until it amounts to 40 per cent of their normal weight. Should the weight be reduced beyond that point the result is death. But nature comes to the rescue of the hibernating creatures in another way. When the hibernation begins, respiration and digestion almost cease (in some cases they cease absolutely), and the circulation is only just active enough to sustain life. As a consequence of this the wear and tear is reduced to the minimum, and the creature is enabled to pull through.

Horses and Music.

Regimental horses have been the subjects of musical tests, and nearly all enjoyed the experience, only a very small percentage of the animals remaining indifferent to sweet harmonies, while equally few showed active dislike. The great majority were soothed, inspirited or excited by music. Most of the horses, like the war chargers one may suppose them to be, enjoyed the bugle above any other instrument and neighed gallantly when it was sounded, but thoroughbreds and colts generally were found to prefer the shrill treble of the fife, which roused them to great and sometimes unmanageable enthusiasm. This was the more significant because the fife was an unfamiliar instrument to them, not being generally used, as is the bugle in the French army.—Paris Cor. London Telegraph.

Model of Economy.

A certain farmer who lives out in the county and who is noted for his closeness in money matters has a twelve-year-old son, who is as industrious as his father is penurious.

Recently the father and son made a compact whereby the latter would receive 10 cents for every cord of wood he sawed and piled in the wood shed. Immediately the boy became very busy at the wood pile, and his earnings have been piling up at a rapid rate, his mother keeping her son's hard earned savings for him.

"What are you going to do with all your money?" the thrifty youth was recently asked.

"Goin' to buy a new saw with it," was the reply.

Benjamin Constant.

Benjamin Constant, having sided with Napoleon during the hundred days, felt the need of justifying himself when Louis XVIII. returned to power. He wrote the king a letter with that end in view and called upon Mme. Recamier to discuss the subject. She asked him quietly:

"Have you finished your letter?"

"Yes."

"Are you satisfied with it?"

"Entirely satisfied. I have almost persuaded myself."

Marrying.

Everybody is expected to marry once, and there is not much talk when you marry the first time, but people look wise when you marry the second time and roar when you marry the third time.

Very Interesting.

"What do you find so very interesting about society?" asked the ordinary person.

"Watching people trying to get in," answered Miss Cayenne.

Time is the great comforter of grief, but the agency by which it works is exhaustion.—Landon.

FINE PRINTS.

Care With Which They Are Treated by Amateurs and Collectors.

How careful collectors and amateurs of fine engravings are of their treasures is illustrated by a written agreement that a local firm of dealers in such things had to sign recently when they wanted to borrow several particularly rare engravings for an exhibition they were to have in their galleries. The owner of the prints insisted that from the time the box in which the prints were sent to the dealers was opened in the shop no hands but those of the junior partner of the firm were to touch them. The owner stipulated expressly that the member of the firm was to take them out of the box, frame them himself, hang them on the walls and when the show was over follow the prints back through these various stages until a porter was ready to screw the cover of the packing box on again. The prints were so rare and fine that the junior partner cheerfully agreed to all of these conditions for the sake of showing the engravings.

That the prints were extremely rare may be appreciated from the fact that before two of them in particular came into the private collector's possession he made a special journey to Stuttgart, Germany, to see them, and when he looked at them he left an open order to a dealer in that city to buy them, no matter what they cost. He got them, but he paid the highest price ever known for such engravings to bring.

CRANKY METAL.

Moods and Mystery That Are Embodied in a Piece of Steel.

A cutlery company will make a hundred razors from the same piece of steel by the same process, and part of the razors will be good and part of them bad. It may be fifty of one kind or seventy-five or twenty-five—nobody knows. The maker doesn't know; the buyer doesn't know. Barbers say that even the price doesn't seem to make much difference. You may get a good razor for a quarter or a bad one for $5. And the same razor will get a contrary edge today, so that you can hardly shave with it, and tomorrow, without additional sharpening, it will work like a charm.

One tap will go on a bolt easily and stay there. Another tap will hardly go on at all. A third may be screwed on tight and snug and yet keep coming off in spite of all that can be done.

Sometimes men that work with machines have a premonition of coming disaster, as do the men that sail on the seas or thread the winding paths of the big woods. Nature as well as pieces of mechanism seems able to communicate to man why they are in a calamitous and threatening mood.

Madrid and Its Climate.

Along the Mediterranean shore Spain presents a narrow ribbon of fertile, delightful country. The region is often called "the garden of Spain."

It is a great contrast to pass from these tropical shores to the wind swept plains of interior Spain. The level country inclosed by the Guadarrama and the Cantabrian mountains forms in the west an extensive wheat growing region. Toward the east as the rainfall decreases pasturage encroaches upon arable culture. In New Castile, on the south of the Guadarrama and in about the center of Spain, the political capital has been placed. The level country in which it has been dropped, as if by accident, is for the most part a waterless plain, swept in winter by the piercing winds from the naked mountains of the north, sweltering in summer under the effect of the sun's rays on bare rock and soil.

The climate of Madrid has been tersely described by its inhabitants as "three months of winter and nine of hades."

Honey Ants.

Certain Mexican ants are selected by their kindred as storehouses of honey. They are fed with honey until the abdomen speedily becomes smooth and round and so filled with honey that the skin is transparent. These ants are doomed to pass the remainder of their lives as mere honey cells, from which their kindred extract the honey when it is required. There are several specimens of these ants in the British museum with the honey still within their transparent bodies. The Mexicans raid the nests of these ants for the sake of the honey that their bodies contain, and the ants are eaten raw as sweetmeats.

The Full Particulars.

The other day a lady who lives in our town entered a grocery store and asked to be shown a good kind of breakfast cereal.

The clerk took down a package and said:

"Madam, this is a predigested food."

"Oh, is that so?" she returned. "And by whom?"

Good For an Appetite.

"You must have a good appetite," remarked the thin man enviously. "What do you take for it?"

"In all my experience," replied the plump one, "I have found nothing more suitable than food."

Good coal stock is a safe and sure investment. Galbraith shares are especially attractive.

Modest Capitalization Large Coal Reserves

This Company organized under the laws of the Northwest Territories of Canada, owns and operates the Galbraith mine located at Lundbreck, Alta. They have four vertical seams of coal traversing their property, aggregating over 40 feet in thickness. Three of these seams are developed to a depth of 350 feet, and as they pass through the Company's lands for nearly a mile, some idea of the amount of coal may be had.

Shipping Steadily

The present output of the mine is about 200 tons per day. These shipments will be rapidly increased, as the C.P.R. allows its cars to be loaded with coal for points in the U. S.

We are selling a limited number of these shares at the extremely low price of

The Company expects to secure at least 400 acres or more, we are negotiating for it now and the terms are satisfactory and there is coal on the same, and they also intend to secure some Coal Mines of which they have the refusal. Some of the best coal mines in Colorado are in this district, as well as some of the richest gold and silver mines. In fact this is one of the richest parts for mineral in the State of Colorado, and the Company has the refusal to several prospects on reasonable and easy terms.

In our opinion the prospects of the Company are very bright, and a rapid advance in the price of the stock is sure to take place in the near future. Full information can be had by calling at our office.

CONTINUED.

The young man had just finished his frugal meal and was sitting down to an evening's work when there came a knock to the door. Hurd, dressed in his usual brown suit, presented himself, looking cool and composed. But he was more excited than one would imagine, as Paul saw from the expression of his eyes. The detective accepted a cup of coffee and lighted his pipe. Then he sat down in the armchair on the opposite side of the fireplace and prepared to talk. Paul heaped on coals with a lavish hand, little as he could afford this extravagance, as the night was cold and he guessed that Hurd had much to say. So, on the whole, they had a very comfortable and interesting conversation.

"I suppose you are pleased to see me?" asked Hurd, puffing meditatively at his brier.

Paul nodded. "Very glad," he answered, "that is, if you have done anything about Mrs. Krill?"

"Well," drawled the detective, smiling, "I have been investigating that murder case."

"Lady Rachel Sandal's?" said Beecot eagerly. "Is it really murder?"

"I think so, though some folks think it suicide. Curious you should have stumbled across that young lord," went on Hurd musingly, "and more curious still that he should have been in the room with Mrs. Krill without recollecting the name. There was a great fuss made about it at the time."

"Oh, I can understand Lord George," said Beecot promptly. "The murder, if it is one, took place before he was born, and, as there seems to have been some scandal in the matter, the family hushed it up. This young fellow probably gathered scraps of information from old servants, but from what he said to me in the cab I think he knows very little."

"Quite enough to put me on the track of Lemuel Krill's reason for leaving Christchurch."

"Is that the reason?"

"Yes. Twenty-one years ago he left Christchurch, at the very time Lady Rachel was murdered in his public house. Then he disappeared for a time and turned up a year later in Gwynne street, with a young wife whom he had married in the meantime."

"Sylvia's mother?"

"Exactly. And Miss Norman was born a year later. She's nearly twenty-one, isn't she?"

"Yes. She will be twenty-one in three months."

Hurd nodded gravely. "The time corresponds," said he. "As the crime was committed twenty-three years back and Lord George is only twenty, I can understand how he knows so little about it. But didn't he connect Mrs. Krill with the man who died in Gwynne street?"

"No. She explained that. The name of Krill appeared only a few times in the papers and was principally set forth, with the portrait, in the handbills. I shouldn't think Lord George was the kind of young man to bother about handbills."

"All the same, he might have heard talk at his club. Every one isn't so stupid."

"No; but, at all events, he did not seem to connect Mrs. Krill with the dead man, and, even with regard to the death of his aunt, he fancied she might not be the same woman."

"What an ass he must be!" said Hurd contemptuously.

"I don't think he has much brain," confessed Paul, shrugging his shoulders, "but he asked me if I thought Mrs. Krill was the same as the landlady of the Red Pig, and I denied that she was. I don't like telling lies, but in this case I hope the departure from truth will be pardoned."

"You did very right," said the detective. "The fewer people know about these matters the better, especially a chatterbox like this young fool."

"Do you know him?"

"Yes, under the name of the Count de la Tour. But I know of him in another way, which I'll reveal later. Hay is still fleecing him?"

"He is. But Lord George seems to be growing suspicious of Hay," said Paul related the conversation he had with the young man.

Hurd grunted. "I'm sorry," he said. "I want to catch Hay redhanded, and if Lord George grows too clever I may not be able to do so."

"Well," said Paul, rather impatiently, "never mind about that fellow just now, but tell me what you have discovered."

"Oh, a lot of interesting things. When I got your letter of course I at once connected the opal serpent with Aaron Norman and his change of name with the murder. I knew that Norman came to Gwynne street over twenty years ago—that came out in the evidence connected with his death. Therefore, putting two and two together, I searched in the newspapers of that period and found what I wanted."

"A report of the case?"

"Precisely. And after that I hunted up the records at Scotland Yard for further details that were not made public. So I got the whole story together, and I am pretty certain that Aaron Norman, or, as he then was, Lemuel Krill, murdered Lady Rachel for the sake of that precious brooch."

"Ah," said Paul, drawing a breath, "now I understand why he fainted when he saw it again. No wonder, considering it was connected in his mind with the death of Lady Rachel."

"Quite so. And no wonder the man kept looking over his shoulder in the expectation of being tapped on the shoulder by a policeman. I don't wonder also that he locked up the house and kept his one eye on the ground and went to church mostly to pray. What a life he must have led." Upon my soul, bad as the man was, I'm sorry for him."

"So am I," said Paul. "And, after all, he is Sylvia's father."

"Poor girl, to have a murderer for a father!"

Beecot turned pale. "I love Sylvia for herself," he said with an effort, "and if her father had committed twenty murders I would not let her go. But she must never know."

"No," said Hurd, stretching his hand across and giving Paul a friendly grip, "and I knew you'd stick to her. It wouldn't be fair to blame the girl for what her father did before she was born."

"We must keep everything from her, Hurd. I'll marry her and take her abroad sooner than she should learn of this previous murder. But how did it happen?"

"I'll tell you in a few minutes." Hurd rose and began to pace the narrow limits of the attic. "By the way, do you know that Norman was a secret drinker of brandy?"

Paul nodded, and told the detective what he had learned from Mrs. Krill. Hurd was much struck with the intelligence. "I see," said he; "what Mrs. Krill says is quite true. Drink does change the ordinary nature into the opposite. Krill sober was a timid rabbit; Krill drunk was a murderer and a thief. Good Lord, and how he drank!"

"How do you know?"

"Well," confessed Hurd, nursing his chin, "Pash and I went to search the Gwynne street house to find if possible the story alluded to in the scrap of paper Deborah Junk found. We couldn't drop across anything of that sort, but in Norman's bedroom, which nobody ever entered, we found brandy bottles by the score under the bed, ranged along the walls, filling cupboards, stowed away in boxes. I had the curiosity to count them. Those we found ran up to 500, and Lord knows how many more he must have got rid of when he found the bottles crowding him inconveniently."

"I expect he got drunk every night," said Paul, thinking. "When he locked up Sylvia and Deborah in the upper room—I can understand now why he did so—he could go to the cellar and take possession of the shop key left on the nail by Bart. Then, free from all intrusion, he could drink till reeling. Not that I think he ever did reel," went on Beecot, mindful of what Mrs. Krill had said; "he could stand a lot, and I expect the brandy only converted him into a demon."

"And a clever business man," said Hurd. "You know Aaron Norman was not clever over the books. Bart said those, but from all accounts he was a Shylock when dealing, after 7 o'clock, in the pawnbroking way. I understand now. Sober, he was a timid fool; drunk, he was a bold, clever villain."

"My poor Sylvia, what a father," sighed Paul. "But this crime"—

"I'll tell you about it. Lemuel Krill and his wife kept the Red Pig at Christchurch, a little public house it is, the outskirts of the town, frequented farm laborers and such like. The

CLIMBED MOUNT ROBSON.

Clergyman Explores Highest Peak of the Canadian Rockies.

Rev. G. R. B. Kinney, B. A., pastor of the James Bay Methodist Church, of Victoria, B. C., is an explorer as well as a parson.

In company with Dr. Coleman, geologist of the University of Toronto, and generally considered one of the first geologists in Canada, and his brother, a big rancher, who has made a number of similar excursions in past years, Mr. Kinney left Yaggan on Aug. 1 last, and did not return to civilization until the 11th of December, when they arrived at Edmonton. Their objective point was to climb the summit of Mount Robson, a virgin peak and the highest of all the Canadian Rockies, said to be 13,700 feet above the sea level. Twice they went through the famous Yellow Head Pass, where the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway will be built, passing the pack trains and camps of the surveyors. The route through the pass and eastward has been decided upon. The grade is the lowest of any of the Transcontinental Railway routes, Mr. Kinney says, the average grade being only one-tenth of one per cent., whilst the steepest anywhere is only fourtenth of one per cent. The scenery is not very rugged, there not being many high mountains in the vicinity. The track will, however, pass a number of beautiful lakes, including Yellow Head Lake, which is a little west of the pass, a very fine sheet of water eight or ten miles in length. The trains will run along the shore of this lake as well as of Moose Lake, a larger body of water lying farther west, the waters of which flow into the Fraser River. Its shores are covered with timber, largely Douglas fir, right down to the water's edge.

Mount Poole is a pyramid-like mountain, not far from Yellow Head Lake, a landmark towering far above its fellows, although its height does not exceed 9,000 feet above sea level. Mount Robson is quite near where the new railway will pass. It rises 10,800 feet above the surrounding valley, a truly gorgeous sight with its almost precipitous sides and with the covering of perpetual snow on its upper part.

FATHER AND SON.

Pathetic Tragedy of the War Between the States.

Not all the sad stories of wartime come from the battlefield. Many a heartbreak is not recorded on the list of the killed and wounded. The civil war knew no more tragic occurrence than the following incident, taken from the New York Sun: A soldier had enlisted from his home in Georgia, where his father remained undisturbed through the struggle. The young man fought through the war without a scratch, save a slight wound which left him a little deaf. This affliction he never mentioned in his letters.

After the surrender he sent his father word that he would reach home about a certain date. Travel then was uncertain, and he could not tell just when he would arrive.

His father prepared to receive him. He had brought out the best plate, which had been secreted for a long time, and with gold which had been exhumed he bought such substantials and delicacies as the southern market at that time afforded. As many of the old time neighbors as were living in the vicinity were invited to the home coming.

The young soldier arrived on the plantation the night before the earliest date he had mentioned. It was late, and the family had retired, but the dog heard the noise and began to bark. The sound roused the father, who rose and got his shotgun. The country was overrun at the time with stragglers and sneak thieves. The father, gun in hand, went to the door, saw the approaching figure and challenged it. The young man, being deaf, made no reply, but still advanced, whereupon the father raised his gun and fired. His son fell, shot through the heart.

It was a pitiful sight to see that almost crazed father carrying his lifeless son into the home which had been made ready to welcome him. The next day the guests arrived. Instead of joyously greeting the returned soldier they gazed at the still form, wrapped in the flag for which the young man had bravely fought. Every private burial ground had in it a grave made by the war, but no funeral like that ever took place in the vicinity or possibly in the whole south.

Weak Women

To weak and ailing women, there is at least one way to help. But with that way, two treatments must be combined. One is local, one is constitutional, but both are important, both essential.

Dr. Shoop's Night Cure is the Local.

Dr. Shoop's Restorative, the Constitutional.

The former—Dr. Shoop's Night Cure—is a topical mucous membrane suppository remedy, while Dr. Shoop's Restorative is wholly an internal treatment. The Restorative reaches throughout the entire system, making the repair of all nerve, all tissue, and all blood ailments.

The "Night Cure", as its name implies, does its work while you sleep. It soothes sore and inflamed mucous surfaces, heals local weaknesses and discharges, while the Restorative, eases nervous excitement, gives nauseous vigor and ambition, builds up wasted tissues, bringing about renewed strength, vigor, and energy. Take Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—as a general tonic to the system. For positive local help, use as well

NOW LISTEN!

Please read carefully what follows, and if you decide to take advantage of what the "Canada Southern Oil & Gas Co, Limited," of Tilbury, Ont (no personal liability), is now offering you, the result will be that instead of getting 3 per cent. for your savings, you will get at least from 10 to 25 per cent. that others are harvesting.

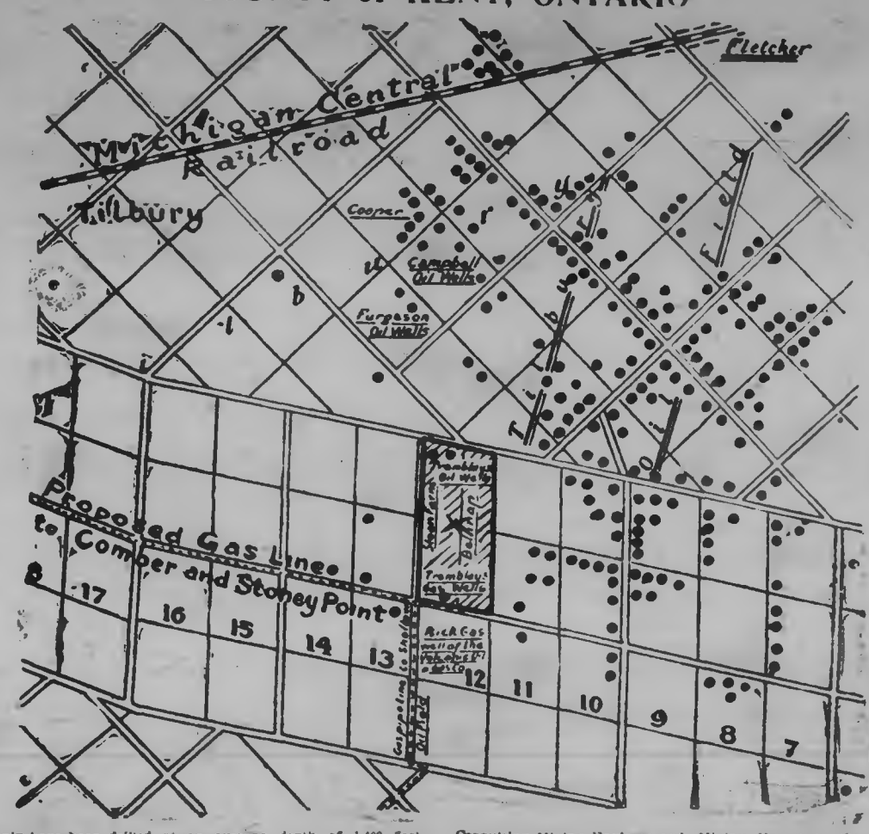
Your savings will be eight times more than the original amount by the mere fact of the higher rate of interest you will get.

Remember that this is no wildcat scheme, as you can see by the facts hereinafter mentioned.

Dr. Bell, the famous Canadian geologist, early in 1878 reported that there was an oil and gas field in the Townships of Tilbury and Romney County of Kent, Ont. As soon as the discovery of the oil was made in Tilbury in 1906 our American neighbors, who are experts in good things, did not hesitate to invest hundreds of thousands of dollars, and now, in fact, control the two-thirds interest in our oil field of Tilbury; and this happened because we Canadians hesitated to invest a few thousand dollars in the exploration of the oil mines of Tilbury, which already give a monthly production valued at $75,000, without adding the revenue derived from the gas.

We have said that this is not a wildcat scheme, because the "Canada Southern Oil & Gas Co., Limited," has secured an option at a very moderate price on properties situated in the oil and gas field of Tilbury, upon which three successful tests have been made, being Lot No. 12, M. R. N., Tilbury East, 200 acres, indicated with a cross upon the map of the field.

COUNTY of KENT, ONTARIO



Three wells only have been drilled at an average depth of 1,400 feet.

The first one proves to be a rich gas well, the two others are good oil wells, combined with a strong production of gas.

The Company has also secured the franchises for the distribution and sale of natural gas into the Townships of Romney, Tilbury East, North and West and also into the thriving villages of Comber and Stoney Point.

The gas well is properly equipped and already is supplying the motor power to the Romney oil field and is getting one-third of the gross revenue of the gas sold.

The oil wells are completely equipped with one 15 h. p. gas engine, derrick, tanks, boiler, pumps, tubing, pipe-line, jerk-line, jack, etc., and are producing daily. The oil is sold to The Imperial Oil Company, Limited, and is delivered at the tanks and shipped through its pipe-line to Pere Marquette R. R. Station at Merlin, a distance of 3 miles.

Our properties are already giving daily a net revenue of about $35.00—that is to say, more than 10 per cent. of the whole capital stock of the Company.

This revenue may be made four times greater by the drilling of other wells and the construction of the gas-line to Comber and Stoney Point.

Fritz Cirkel, Esq., of Montreal, consulting mining engineer and mining expert to the Dominion Government, who lately made an inspection of the said property, concluded his report as follows:

"In summarizing the actual results already obtained from the operations of the Sloan wells the writer is forced to the conclusion that the property under consideration is a very valuable one. Located as it is in the western extremity of the producing Tilbury oil field, in close proximity to wells which produce from 40 to 60 barrels of oil (and even more) per day of 24 hours (I refer to the Ferguson, Campbell and Cooper properties, located about 2,000 feet distant to the north, see plan attached hereto), it bids fair to become a producer of oil and natural gas of no small measure.

The Tilbury field has already the reputation of being a large producer and powerful companies have entered the district with a view of securing properties of known and established value.

There is one factor to which I would like to draw your special attention and that is the future of natural gas. To-day, the market in that in that part of the country, for this commodity is not sufficiently large to dispose of all the gas the wells can produce but there is no question that in the near future factories will be established on central points, which will eventually consume for various purposes, especially for power, all the gas which can be produced in the field.

Besides this there are quite a number of towns and villages in the western part of the Niagara Peninsula, which may use the gas for heating, lighting, and also for power purposes and it is only a question of time when this will be realized.

The economy of the application of natural gas to power purposes is already evidenced all through the field, as coal or any other power cannot be regularly obtained, and that at high figures. Having therefore, a powerful gas well on the (Sloan) property, it is evident that a great saving is effected from this source alone; for instance, for the operation of ten oil wells, the cost of power required per day would amount to between twenty and twenty-five dollars, which, in 300 working days per year, would represent a saving of from six thousand to seven thousand five hundred dollars.

In conclusion, I may say that this property, with proper and economic management, can be made highly remunerative; I entertain, no doubt, that if properly developed, it will show similar results as those of so many other locations in the vicinity, whose developments have of so many other locations in the vicinity, whose developments have been so vigorously pushed in the past.

Respectfully submitted,
(Signed) FRITZ CIRKEL
Consulting Mining Engineer and Mining Expert to the Dominion Government graduate Technical Academy, Germany."

Judge Says no Man Could Trump Up Story Told by Harry Orchard

Fully Believes All the Horrible Narratives of Murderous Career

Prisoner Speaks

Caldwell, Idaho, March 20. — In sentencing Harry Orchard, or Albert Hazley, the Canadian, and recommending the commutation of his sentence, Judge Wood reviewed the case from the time of the killing of Frank Steunenberg to the present, including the arrest of Orchard.

"I am more than satisfied that the defendant now at the bar of this court awaiting final sentence has not only acted in good faith in making the disclosure that he did, but that he also testified fully and fairly to the whole truth, withholding nothing that was material and declaring nothing which had not actually taken place.

It was the particular province of the court to observe and follow this witness upon the former trials, and I am of the opinion that no man living could conceive the stories of crime told by the witness and maintain himself under the merciless fire of the leading cross-examination attorneys of the country, unless upon the theory that he was identifying to facts and circumstances which had an actual existence within his own experience.

JURY'S VERDICT IMMATERIAL.

"In passing upon this question it is immaterial that juries in the two cases tried have declared that they were not satisfied of the guilt of the defendants on trial. The statute of the state imposes a bar to conviction on the testimony of an accomplice alone, no matter though he may be believed by the jury, unless there is other independent evidence tending to connect the defendant on trial with the commission of crime. And, again, in each of the cases tried, the court, at the written request of each of the defendants, instructed the jury that a verdict of not guilty did not mean that the defendant on trial was innocent, but rather that his guilt had been proven beyond a reasonable doubt in the manner and form prescribed by law.

"For these reasons it is at once apparent that the verdict of the jurors referred to are not necessarily at variance with the views here expressed. I am thoroughly satisfied that under the facts in this case the court has a plain duty to perform, and that the authorities quoted leave no alternative in the matter, and under these authorities the defendant must be recommended to the clemency of the pardoning board with the full assurance that it is not to be presumed that the unlimited title to mercy, which the defendant has acquired by testifying to the truth, will not be sacredly afforded to him by the board, in which power to pardon or commute is vested by the State constitution. The recommendation of the court to the Pardon board is that the sentence of the court about to be imposed upon the defendant be commuted and that the death penalty be remitted.

STATES FURTHER REASONS.

"Aside from the reasons already given for this recommendation there is another reason, in my opinion, which should appeal strongly to the court and to the pardoning board for remitting the death penalty against the defendant. For several years a series of atrocious crimes have been committed in this and other States, and the confession and testimony of this witness is the first direct evidence which has been secured fixing responsibility for a considerable number of said crimes.

"This defendant," continued Judge Wood, "also testified to a long series of most atrocious crimes committed by himself and others in the State of Colorado, and he was corroborated in such details in relation thereto that there can be no doubt about his participation therein.

"It is impossible to believe that such a series of crimes can be committed with many persons connected therewith without one or more of said parties sooner or later yielding to the remorse of conscience and joining his defendant in confirmation of the disclosures which he has already made.

PRISONER SPEAKS.

Judge Wood, after reading his ruling, formally sentenced Orchard and fixed May 15 as the date for the execution. Orchard asked permission to speak, and it was granted. He thanked the court for the review of the case given and for the kindly remarks in regard to him. He repeated that he had told the whole truth, and that no promise or immunity or of mercy had concluded tears were streaming from his eyes, and he all but broke down as he again in broken voice thanked Judge Wood for his recommendation to the Board of Pardons.

Orchard was then taken back to the penitentiary at Boise. The Board of Pardons meets April 1.

IMMUNITY PLAN DENIED

Lemyer, March 19.—"I know nothing about what will be done with Orchard," said James McParland, the detective, who secured the confession of Orchard, to-day. "He was never promised immunity and never asked any. I do not know whether his sentence will be commuted or not.q.

Ernest Mills, acting secretary for the Western Federation of Miners, said today that the Federation would remain passive in regard to the disposition to be made of Orchard's case.

"If Judge Wood made the statement credited to him," said Mr. Mills, "there is little doubt that he is paving the way for freedom for Orchard. It has been claimed all along that Orchard has been promised freedom by Governor Gooding of Idaho for making the confession he made at the trials. That the political ring back of this has promised to go down the line for Orchard is also a well known fact.

Three Brides Made Protestant by His Holiness

Kingston, March 20.—A Protestant clergyman of Kingston states that since the Pope's proclamation forbidding priests of the Roman Catholic Church to perform mixed marriages, he had married three young Catholic ladies to Protestant young men. The former intended to join their husband's churches in any event, and have done so, but they would liked to have been married by their own pastor.

Their action in marrying Protestants prevents them from receiving the sacraments of their former church hereafter.

Nearly a Thousand Farmers Arrive from United States

North Portal, Sask., March 20.—Nearly one thousand land seekers and prospective settlers came in at this point over the Soo Line yesterday from the United States, and it looks as if the total number for the week will form a new record for this port of entry. Fifty cars of settlers' effects were passed through customs, chiefly belonging to men from the American middle west, who had taken up land along the Soo line and west of Moosejaw last fall. Indications are that so far from immigration being checked by the poor crop showing of last season, it promises to assume record proportions so far as the States are concerned.

The movement is starting unusually early owing to mild weather, and so far compares favorably with the big movement of two years ago. The class of settlers is very superior, and the money they are bringing in must greatly relieve the financial stringency. Several big steam plowing outfits have come in from the south through here this week.

"The Village of Lakefield Wants to be Moved"

When the Redistribution Committee met yesterday at the Parliament Buildings a map was brought down describing the four new constituencies in New Ontario. These are Fort Francis and Kenora, which have been formed from portions of the former ridings of Port Arthur and Fort William, and Sudbury and Temiskaming, which comprise a district formerly belonging to East and West Nipissing.

Premier Whitney stated to the committee that the village of Lakefield, in Peterborough county, wanted to be moved. Lakefield is in one riding for the Dominion and another for the Legislature. The meeting was adjourned until Tuesday.

English Church Hymnal Has Been Completed

The Hymnal Committee of the Church of England in Canada was at last completed the final revision of the Book of Common Praise. The committee met yesterday in St. Luke's Church, Toronto, and a large number of clergymen from all over Canada attended.

Throughout the policy of "unity by inclusion" has been followed, and the hymnal as presented to the Synod will contain 704 hymns. The secretary of the committee, Mr. J. Edward Jones, will go to England in June to see the musical edition through the press. The words edition will be issued as early as possible, probably in June, and a copy sent to each member of the General Synod, so that members will have a chance of becoming thoroughly familiar with the book before being called upon to vote upon its acceptance at the General Synod meeting to be held at Ottawa in September.

New Bowling Alley Has a Charter

It may not be generally understood but it is nevertheless a fact that the new bowling alley, opened two days ago by Mr. Hay, formerly of the Toronto News editorial staff, is a close corporation. This means that the general public is or could not be admitted unless such persons belong to or join the Peterborough Bowling Club. This, while not prohibiting the playing by desirable people, as such may and will be admitted to full privileges, but it ensures a select body of players on this Peterborough's latest place of amusement. The bowling club has been chartered by the Provincial Government with a capital of $40,000. One point of worthy notice is that the club may not sell or have any connection with the sale of intoxicants. This means that the host who has so many friends to the good and wants, naturally, to win out, is sure that no suspicion may attach to his returning home after eight o'clock p.m. at night. All joking apart though, the new bowling alley has caught on, and full particulars may be seen in the columns hereafter.

One day, hearing a clerk say to a customer, "No, we have no, had any for a long time," the proprietor, unable to countenance such an admission, began to work himself into the usual rage. Fixing a glassy eye on his clerk, he said to the customer:

"We have plenty in reserve, ma'am, plenty downstairs."

Whereupon the customer looked dazed; and then, to the amazement of the proprietor, burst into hysterical laughter and quit the shop.

"What did she say to you?" demanded the proprietor of the clerk.

"We haven't had any rain lately."

But if those sensitive citizens imagine for a moment that the press is going to act the role of innocent bystander and neglect its duty of exposing that which it knows to be wrong on the part of the public servants of the city, then they have but a cloudy comprehension of the functions of a newspaper.

Katyryn Osterman Captivates Audience

It is rarely seen in any play where there are two female characters so nearly equal in strength and versatility as the two parts assumed by the delightful comediennes Kathryn Osterman and Anna Belmont who will come to the Grand Opera House next Monday evening in the merry gale of laughter "The Girl Who Looks Like Me". The play itself stands alone in the field of farce comedy, being infinitely superior with more genuine laughs, more intricate situations, which develop in a perfectly natural manner, than any comedy that has yet been presented in this city. Kathryn Osterman is a really clever comedienne. Those of the fair sex who are successful in comedy work are none too plentiful, but the faculty to produce genuine humor of a wholesome sort is possessed in a marked degree by this clever actress. Miss Osterman is a great favorite wherever she appears. She has a part in her new offering that fits her capitally, and she is said to play it with a buoyancy and abandon that is refreshingly delightful. She is called upon to express many shades of feeling and she responds to the demand in a most artistic manner. In no other part in which she has been seen does she display such admirable art as characterizes her Erma Desmond.

Beauty

How to Get It. How to Keep It

A plain woman can be made pretty and a pretty one can keep her beauty if a little care and attention are given to the details of the daily toilet. A fresh, clear complexion, well kept hair, teeth, hands and nails, will do much to enhance a woman's good looks.

Of course her complexion is at once both a woman's greatest charm and her greatest trial, yet a few simple rules are all she needs to follow in order to have the proverbial "peaches and cream complexion."

An effective way of keeping your skin soft, smooth and white, is to put a handful of rolled oats or common oatmeal in the water every time you wash your face and hands. Use sufficient to make the water milky. Then dry the skin on a soft towel and apply liberally instead of powder or cosmetics, a simple wash made as follows:—

Obtain at your drug store Rose Water, 2 ounces; Cologne Spirits, 1 ounce; Eppotone (skin food, 4 ounces. Put the Eppotone in a pint of hot water (not boiling) and after dissolved strain and let cool. Then add the Rose Water and Cologne Spirits.

This wash can be easily made at home. It does not cost much and is better than all the widely advertised "beauty preparations" you can buy.

If you will only follow the above directions regularly every day you will have a complexion that will be a source of both admiration and envy among your friends.

HARRY SAUNDERS DECLINES TO TESTIFY AT THE GOULD INQUIRY

Young Woman Had Suggested to Her Lover that They Both take Poison--Doctor's Story of Girl's Death

Toronto, March 20.—After having refused to give evidence at the inquest but later agreeing to do so on condition that he would be protected, Dr. A. C. Ashton Fletcher, charged with the murder of Jessie Helen Gould, testified last night that he had performed an operation, but only after it had become absolutely necessary on account of the girl's serious condition.

Harry Saunders, who is held on a similar charge, refused to give evidence on the advice of his counsel, Mr. [illegible], Police and Chief Coroner Johnson, who conducted the investigation, ordered that he be committed.

The inquest was adjourned until Monday night.

Lucius S. Alward, of the city clerk's department, produced the death certificate, which stated that Jessie Helen Gould had died of acute septic peritonitis caused by a ruptured pustule.

Questioned by County Crown Attorney Drayton, Dr. J. H. Todd said that he first saw the deceased on Tuesday morning, March 10, at 75 Shuter street.

"I was called by telephone to give an anesthetic. There were present the patient, a woman whom I took to be a nurse, Dr. Fletcher and two other women.

"When I went in the patient's pulse was a little weak and we gave her a little strychnine and then administered ether to admit of an operation.

OPERATION PERFORMED.

"Was an operation performed?" asked the coroner.

"Yes, by Dr. Fletcher," replied Dr. Todd. She rallied after the operation. I saw her again Tuesday night at the Western Hospital. I went there to see a patient of my own; I noticed Dr. Fletcher's hat and asked the nurse if he was there. Then I went and saw the patient."

To Mr. Drayton, the witness stated that he did not diagnose the case or examine the patient, though he did form the opinion that her illness was the result of blood poisoning. He had discussed the probable cause of death with Dr. Fletcher, who stated that septicaemia might have developed from a ruptured pustule and that this might have caused the condition attributed to a criminal operation.

Dr. Fletcher had asked him if he would put down the cause of death as a ruptured pustule, and Dr. Todd had replied that he could not say. Witness stated that he had been asked over the 'phone if he could perform an autopsy, but this was impossible, as permission could not be obtained.

THE POST-MORTEM.

Dr. Gideon Silverthorn read the finding of the post-mortem examination. The conclusion was that death had been caused by Septicaemia. No other cause was evident.

Dr. Silverthorn stated that the examination was made very difficult by reason of the large quantity of embalming fluid which had been injected into the body.

"Did you say no other poison caused that death?" asked Mr. Curry.

"I saw no evidence of it," replied Dr. Silverthorn.

"Because you did not there see a body with the head blown off did you reach the conclusion that death was due to septic poisoning?" asked the coroner.

Organ of the Roman Church Urges Mexico To Prepare for War

City of Mexico, March 20.—El Tiempo, the organ of the Catholic church in the Republic of Mexico, published on its first page yesterday an article which appeared in a New York newspaper recently in which the writer advocates the purchase by the United States of the Peninsular of Lower California.

Commenting editorially on the article, the paper urges that Mexico immediately begin to prepare for a war with the United States, as it is declared that the Northern Republic failing to obtain the consent of Mexico for the sale of the peninsula and its harbor, Magdalena Bay, they will take it by force of arms.

The editor speculates on the result of the predicted war, saying, Japan would take advantage to seize the Philippines should it occur, and that the Republic of Colombia would undertake to regain Panama.

It is pointed out that England has large interests in the Republic of Mexico, and in the immediate vicinity of Magdalena Bay, and that the United States is determined to obtain the harbor for strategic reasons before the completion of the Panama Canal. The editorial in not taken seriously by the rest of the press, and is looked upon as the views of the clerical party. El Tiempo has always been pronouncedly anti-American.

Mr. J. J. Turner Chosen as Deputy Grand Master

At yesterday's session of the Grand Lodge of the A. O. U. W. of Ontario the officers for the ensuing year were chosen. Mr. James McEwing, of Drayton, was elected Overseer on the first ballot. Among the Deputy Grand Masters chosen is Mr J. J. Turner, manager of the Grand Opera House here. Mr. Turner has been connected with the order for a number of years, and is one of the most enthusiastic, hard working members of the local branch of the order, and the Peterborough district is fortunate in having a man of Mr. Turner's ability as their Deputy Master.

The annual meeting of 1909 will again be held in Toronto.

At yesterday's session of the Orange Grand Lodge of Eastern Ontario, which is in convention at Port Hope, decided to hold the convention of 1909 at Napanee. The election of officers was the main item of business transacted, and in all cases except the election for the position of auditors, the choice of the convention was unanimous. Mr. Geo. PETERBOROUGH, MARCH 21, 1908

MR. OSLER AND PARLIAMENT

The recent attack upon Mr. F. B. Osler is provocative of thought and enquiry. Mr. Osler's course in public life has been characterized by marked uprightness and intolerance of graft, political favoritism and underhand electoral schemes. Whilst some of his remarks concerning political opponents have been clothed in pointed language, public speakers of both political parties have been known to settle what they deemed irregularities with the iron hand devoid of a velvet cover. Why Mr. Osler should be abused because of his connection with the C. P. R., Canada's chief source of the immense flood of immigration now pouring in to populate her far Western Provinces, is beyond intelligent explanation. In attacking Mr. Osler as a director of the Canadian Pacific Railway is practically an insinuation that this gentleman has used, and might use, his position as such to gain undue favors for the railway or a direct attack upon the railway and its management. Mr. Osler's life-long history, in private, professional or public life is an uncontradictable argument against even suspicion that he might try for political favors for the great Canadian highway on whose Board he sits. That an attack is subsiying against the C. P. R. means that an attack is made on Canada's present and future prosperity. The C. P. R. has done more, and is doing more to populate the rich western fields of the Dominion than all other agencies combined. It is but natural to suppose that so stupendous an undertaking as this transcontinental highway will have enemies in some localities. Whilst in the aggregate the C. P. R. is a chain holding together Provinces, each with individual interests at stake, occasionally a link may seem to bind tightly in places. This great nation-making road, which spares neither time, money nor intelligence in its desire for the best only, is not altogether a philanthropic undertaking. It is a huge business and should occasional friction be manifest at places in the West, the road must not be judged by scattering criticisms, but by what it effects throughout the whole Dominion. Mr. Osler, as a director of the Company, may safely be trusted to perform his duties to the road, without in the least using his position towards the furtherance of its interests unduly through political wire pulling.

POLICE

At Thursday's session of the police court Joseph Reynolds, W. Fallon and Stanley McCabe were charged with stealing a quantity of clothing and brass from Mr. Roy.

When asked by the magistrate how they wanted to be tried, whether by him or by a jury, elected for summary trial.

Mr. Kerr acted for Reynolds and Mr. Gordon for the other two.

They all pleaded guilty. It seems that some of the goods were recovered.

Fallon and Reynolds were also charged with stealing brass valves and gratings from Mr. E. Clarry.

Mr. Gordon noted that Mr. Fallon pleaded guilty, but said Reynolds had nothing to do with the theft. The chief said Reynolds could be proved guilty of selling some of the goods to Doig.

stolen from Mr. R. M. Roy.

Doig said he bought the goods, but did not know they were stolen at time of purchase. He intended to return the goods.

Here Mr. Kerr, who had to leave town at noon, spoke in advance for his client's father, Mr. Reynolds, and said that the Reynolds boy had before this been in the county jail, but this did him no good. The prisoner is healthy and able to work. If he were sent to Central Prison he might learn a trade, but there was only one chance in a thousand of his being reformed there. He did not want the lad sent to mix with the blackguards at Central Prison. He asked for a suspended sentence.

Mr. Wood showed that a suspended sentence could not be imposed in Reynolds' case, as he had been convicted before.

The Doig case was then taken up again, and Doig said, "Your Worship, I'll plead guilty of the whole thing."

Mr. Wood remarked that if there were no buyers of stolen goods there would be no thieves. Doig bought the goods, knowing them to be stolen. The boys, at the time the goods were sold, discussed the matter with Doig, telling him they were stolen. They tried to sell the stuff to George Stevens, but he refused to buy. This junk stealing must be stopped, and here is a good case to make an example. Doig had even buried the stolen goods.

The magistrate told Doig he had been up often in the police court he knew better. He sentenced him to six months in the common jail at hard labor.

NOW LISTEN!

Please read carefully what follows, and if you decide to take advantage of what the "Canada Southern Oil & Gas Co., Limited," of Tilbury, Ont. (no personal liability), is now offering you, the result will be that instead of getting 3 per cent. for your savings, you will get at least from 10 to 25 per cent. that others are harvesting.

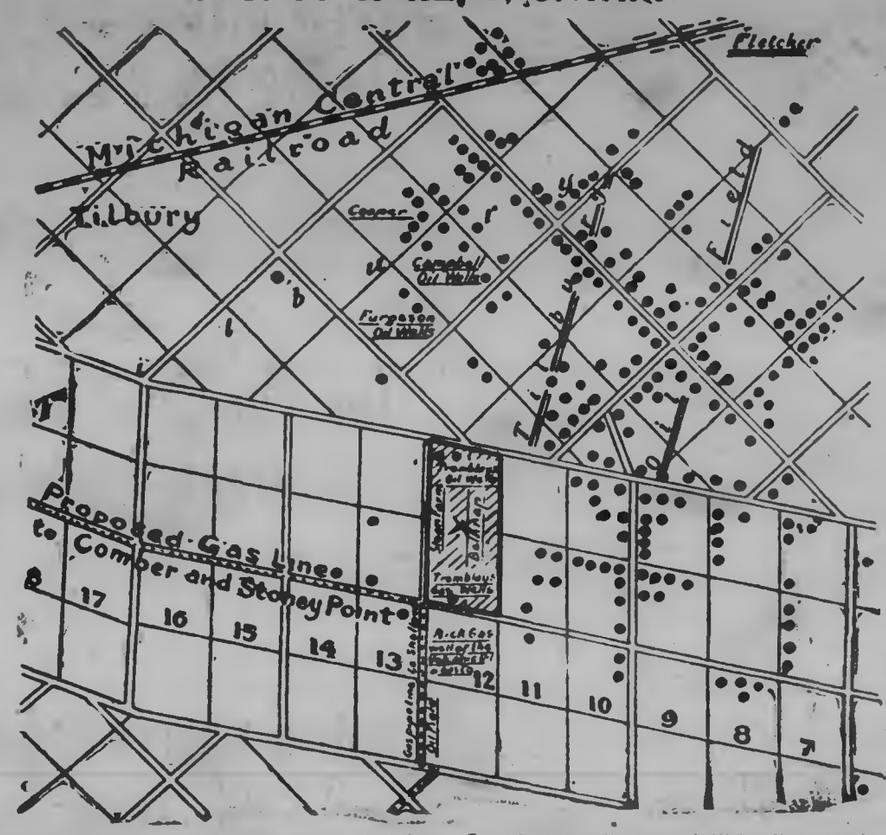
Your savings will be eight times more than the original amount by the mere fact of the higher rate of interest you will get.

Remember that this is no wildcat scheme, as you can see by the facts hereinafter mentioned.

Dr. Bell, the famous Canadian geologist, early in 1878 reported that there was an oil and gas field in the Townships of Tilbury and Romney, County of Kent, Ont. As soon as the discovery of the oil was made in Tilbury in 1906, our American neighbors, who are experts in good things, did not hesitate to invest hundreds of thousands of dollars, and now, in fact, control the two-thirds interest in our oil field of Tilbury; and this happened because we Canadians hesitated to invest a few thousand dollars in the exploration of the oil mines of Tilbury, which already give a monthly production valued at $75,000, without adding the revenue derived from the gas.

We have said that this is not a wildcat scheme, because the "Canadian Southern Oil & Gas Co., Limited," has secured an option at a very moderate price on properties situated in the oil and gas field of Tilbury, upon which three successful tests have been made, being Lot No. 12, M. R. N., Tilbury East, 200 acres, indicated with a cross upon the map of the field.

COUNTY of KENT, ONTARIO



Three wells only have been drilled at an average depth of 1,400 feet.

The first one proves to be a rich gas well, the two others are good oil wells, combined with a strong production of gas.

The Company has also secured the franchisee for the distribution and sale of natural gas into the Townships of Romney, Tilbury East, North and West and also into the thriving villages of Comber and Stoney Point.

The gas well is properly equipped and already is supplying the motor power to the Romney oil field and is getting one-third of the gross revenue of the gas sold.

The oil wells are completely equipped with one 15 h. p. gas engine, derrick, tanks, boiler, pumps, tubing, pipe-line, jerk-line, jack, etc., and are producing daily. The oil is sold to The Imperial Oil Company, Sarnia, and is delivered at the tanks and shipped through its pipe-line to Pere Marquette R. R. Station at Merlin, a distance of 3 miles.

Our properties are already giving daily a net revenue of about $35.00 —that is to say, more than 10 per cent. of the whole capital stock of the Company.

This revenue may be made four times greater by the drilling of other wells and the construction of the gas-line to Comber and Stoney Point.

Fritz Cirkel, Esq., of Montreal, consulting mining engineer and mining expert to the Dominion Government, who lately made an inspection of the said property, concluded his report as follows:

"In summarizing the actual results already obtained from the operations of the Sloan wells the writer is forced to the conclusion that the property under consideration is a very valuable one. Located as it is in the western extremity of the producing Tilbury oil field, in close proximity to wells which produce from 40 to 60 barrels of oil (and even more) per day of 24 hours (I refer to the Ferguson, Campbell and Cooper properties, located about 2,000 feet distant to the north, see plan attached hereto), it bids fair to become a producer of oil and natural gas of no small measure.

The Tilbury field has already the reputation of being a large producer and powerful companies have entered the district with a view of securing properties of known and established value.

There is one factor to which I would like to draw your special attention and that is the future of natural gas. To-day, the market in that section of the country, for this commodity is not sufficiently large to dispose of all the gas the wells can produce but there is no question that in the near future factories will be established on central points, which will eventually consume for various purposes, especially for power, all the gas which can be produced in the field.

Besides this there are quite a number of towns and villages in the western part of the Niagara Peninsula, which may use the gas for heating, lighting, and also for power purposes and it is only a question of time when this will be realized.

The economy of the application of natural gas to power purposes is already evidenced all through the field, as coal or any other power cannot be regularly obtained, and that at high figures. Having therefore, a powerful gas well on the (Sloan) property, it is evident that a great saving is effected from this source alone; for instance, for the operation of ten oil wells, the cost of power required per day would amount to between twenty and twenty-five dollars, which, in 300 working days per year, would represent a saving of from six thousand to seven thousand five hundred dollars.

In conclusion, I may say that this property, with proper and economic management, can be made highly remunerative; I entertain, no doubt, that if properly developed, it will show similar results as those of so many other locations in the vicinity, whose developments have of so many other locations in the vicinity, whose developments have been so vigorously pushed in the past.

Respectfully submitted,
(Signed) FRITZ CIRKEL.

They have four vertical seams of coal traversing their property, aggregating over 40 feet in thickness. Three of these seams are developed to a depth of 350 feet, and as they pass through the Company's lands for nearly a mile, some idea of the amount of coal may be had.

What they offer at 25c per Share for a short time

The property is situated at Mancos, Colo., and consists of 160 acres, fully paid for. The Company expects to secure at least 400 acres or more, we are negotiating for it now and the terms are satisfactory and there is coal on the same, and they also intend to secure some Coal Mines of which they have the refusal. Some of che best coal mines in Colorado are in this district, as well as some of the richert gold and silver mines. In fact this is one of the richest parts for mineral in the State of Colorado, and the Company has the refusal to several prospects on reasonable and easy terms.

In our opinion the prospects of the Company are very bright, and a rapid advance in the price of the stock is sure to take place in the near future. Full information can be had by calling at our office.

was pretty good, but the couple didn't look to making their fortune. Mrs. Krill was a farmer's daughter."

"A Buckinghamshire farmer," said Paul.

"How do you know? Oh (on receiving information), Mrs. Krill told you so? Well, considering the murder of Lady Rachel, she would have done better to hold her tongue and have commenced life with her dead husband's money under a new name. She's a clever woman, too," mused Hurd. "I can't understand her being so unnecessarily frank."

"Never mind. Go on," said Paul impatiently.

Hurd returned to his seat and refilled his pipe. "Well, then," he continued, "Krill got drunk and gave his wife great trouble. Sometimes he thrashed her and blacked her eyes, and he treated their daughter badly too."

"How old was the daughter?"

"I can't say. Why do you ask?"

"I'll tell you later. Go on, please."

"Well, then, Mrs. Krill always revenged herself on her husband when he was sober and timid, so the couple were evenly matched. Krill was master when drunk, and his wife mistress when he was sober—a kind of seesaw sort of life they must have led."

"Where does Lady Rachel come in?"

"What an impatient chap you are," remonstrated Hurd in a friendly tone. "I'm coming to that now. Lady Rachel quarreled with her father over some young artist she wanted to marry. He would not allow the lover to come to the hall, so Lady Rachel said she would kill herself rather than give him up."

"And she did," said Paul, thinking of the suicide theory.

"There you go again. How am I to tell you all when you interrupt?"

"I beg your pardon. I won't do so again."

Hurd nodded smilingly and continued. "One night—it was dark and stormy—Lady Rachel had a row royal with her father. Then she ran out of the hall saying her father would never see her alive again. She may have intended to commit suicide certainly or she may have intended to join her lover in London. But whatever she intended to do, the rain cooled her. She staggered into Christchurch and fell down insensible at the door of the Red Pig. Mrs. Krill brought her indoors and laid her on a bed."

"Did she know who the lady was?"

Hurd shook his head. "She said in her evidence that she did not, but living in the neighborhood she certainly must have seen Lady Rachel sometimes. Krill was drunk as usual. He had been boozing all the day with a skipper of some craft at Southampton. He was good for nothing, so Mrs. Krill did everything. She declares that she went to bed at 11, leaving Lady Rachel sleeping."

"Did Lady Rachel recover her senses?"

"Yes—according to Mrs. Krill—but she refused to say who she was and merely stated that she would sleep at the Red Pig that night and would go on to London next morning. Mrs. Krill swore that Lady Rachel had no idea of committing suicide. Well, about midnight Mrs. Krill, who slept in one room with her daughter, was awakened by loud shouts. She sprang to her feet and hurried out; her daughter came also, as she had been awakened and was terrified. Mrs. Krill found that her husband was raving mad with drink and smashing the furniture in the room below. The skipper"—

"What was the skipper's name?"

"Jessop—Jarvey Jessop. Well, he also, rather drunk, was retiring to bed and stumbled by chance into Lady Rachel's room. He found her quite dead and shouted for assistance. The poor lady had a silk handkerchief she wore tied tightly round her throat and fastened to the bedpost. When Jessop saw this, he ran out of the inn in dismay. Mrs. Krill descended to give the alarm to her neighbors, but Krill struck her down and struck his daughter also, making her mouth bleed. An opal brooch that Lady Rachel wore was missing, but Mrs. Krill only knew of that the next day. She was insensible from the blow given by Krill, and the daughter ran out to get assistance. When the neighbors entered, Krill was gone, and, notwithstanding all the search made for him, he could not be found."

"And Jessop?"

"He turned up and explained that he had been frightened on finding the woman dead. But the police found him on his craft at Southampton, and he gave evidence. He said that Krill when drunk and like a demon, as Mrs. Krill told you, had left the room several times. The last time he came back, he and the skipper had a final drink, and then Jessop retired to find—the body. It was supposed by the police that Krill had killed Lady Rachel for the sake of the brooch, which could not be discovered"—

"But the brooch"—

"Hold on. I know what you are about to say. We'll come to that shortly. Let me finish this yarn first. It was also argued that, from Lady Rachel's last words to her father and from the position of the body—tied by the neck to the bedpost—she had committed suicide. Mrs. Krill, as I said, declared the deceased lady never mentioned the idea of making away with herself. However, Krill's flight and the chance that, being drunk, he might have strangled the lady for the sake of the brooch while out of the room, made many think he was the culprit, especially as Jessop said that Krill had noticed the brooch and commented on the opals."

"He was a traveler in jewels once, according to his wife."

"Yes, and left that to turn landscaper. Afterward he vanished, as I say, and became a stumbling-block to Christmas

"What was the skipper's name?"

street. Well, the jury at the inquest could not agree. Some thought Lady Rachel had committed suicide and others that Krill had murdered her. Then the family didn't want a scandal, so in one way and another the matter was hushed up. The jury brought in a verdict of suicide by a majority of one, so you can see how equally they were divided. Lady Rachel's body was laid in the family vault, and nothing more was heard of Lemuel Krill."

"What did Mrs. Krill do?"

"She stopped on at the inn, as she told you. People were sorry for her and helped her, so she did very well. Mother and daughter have lived at the Red Pig all these years, highly respected, until they saw the handbills about Krill. Then the money was claimed, but as the circumstance of Lady Rachel's fate was so old nobody thought of mentioning it till this young lord did so to you, and I, as you see, have hunted out the details."

"What is your opinion, Hurd?" asked Paul, deeply interested.

"Oh, I think Krill murdered the woman and then cut to London. That accounts for his looking over his shoulder, etc."

"But how did he get money to start as a bookseller? Premises are not leased in Gwynne street for nothing."

"Well, he might have got money on the brooch."

"No. The brooch was pawned by a nautical gentleman." Paul started up. "Captain Jessop, perhaps. You remember?" he said excitedly.

"Ah," said Hurd, puffing his pipe with satisfaction, "I see you understand. I mentioned that about the brooch to hear what you would say. Yes, Jessop must have pawned the brooch at Stowley, and it must have been Jessop who came with the note for the jewels to Pash."

CLIMBED MOUNT ROBSON.

Clergyman Explores Highest Peak of the Canadian Rockies.

Rev. G. R. B. Kinney, B. A., pastor of the James Bay Methodist Church, of Victoria, B. C., is an explorer as well as a parson.

In company with Dr. Coleman, geologist of the University of Toronto, and generally considered one of the first geologists in Canada, and his brother, a big rancher who has made a number of similar excursions in past years, Mr. Kinney left Yaggan on Aug. 1 last, and did not return to civilization until the 11th of December, when they arrived at Edmonton. Their objective point was to climb the summit of Mount Robson, a virgin peak and the highest of all the Canadian Rockies, said to be 13,700 feet above the sea level. Twice they went through the famous Yellow Head Pass, where the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway will be built, passing the pack trains and camps of the surveyors. The route through the pass and eastward has been decided upon. The grade is the lowest of any of the Transcontinental Railway routes, Mr. Kinney says, the average grade being only one-tenth of one per cent., whilst the steepest anywhere is only fourtenth of one per cent. The scenery is not very rugged, there not being many high mountains in the vicinity. The track will, however, pass a number of beautiful lakes, including Yellow Head Lake, which is a little west of the pass, a very fine sheet of water eight or ten miles in length. The trains will run along the shore of this lake as well as of Moose Lake, a larger body of water lying farther west, the waters of which flow into the Fraser River. Its shores are covered with timber, largely Douglas fir, right down to the water's edge.

Mount Poole is a pyramid-like mountain, not far from Yellow Head Lake, a landmark towering far above its fellows, although its height does not exceed 9,000 feet above sea level. Mount Robson is quite near where the new railway will pass. It rises 10,000 feet above the surrounding valley, a truly gorgeous sight with its almost precipitous sides and with the covering of perpetual snow on its upper part.

FATHER AND SON.

Pathetic Tragedy of the War Between the States.

Not all the sad stories of wartime come from the battlefield. Many a heartbreak is not recorded on the list of the killed and wounded. The civil war knew no more tragic occurrence than the following incident, taken from the New York Sun: A soldier had enlisted from his home in Georgia, where his father remained undisturbed through the struggle. The young man fought through the war without a scratch, save a slight wound which left him a little deaf. This affliction he never mentioned in his letters.

After the surrender he sent his father word that he would reach home about a certain date. Travel then was uncertain, and he could not tell just when he would arrive.

His father prepared to receive him. He had brought out the best plate, which had been secreted for a long time, and with gold which had been exhumed he bought such substantials and delicacies as the southern market at that time afforded. As many of the old time neighbors as were living in the vicinity were invited to the home coming.

The young soldier arrived on the plantation the night before the earliest date he had mentioned. It was late, and the family had retired, but the dog heard the noise and began to bark. The sound roused the father, who rose and got his shotgun. The country was overrun at the time with stragglers and sneak thieves. The father, gun in hand, went to the door, saw the approaching figure and challenged it. The young man, being deaf, made no reply, but still advanced, whereupon the father raised his gun and fired. His son fell, shot through the heart.

It was a pitiful sight to see that almost crazed father carrying his lifeless son into the home which had been made ready to welcome him. The next day the guests arrived. Instead of joyously greeting the returned soldier they gazed at the still form, wrapped in the flag for which the young man had bravely fought. Every private burial ground had in it a grave made by the war, but no funeral like that ever took place in the vicinity or possibly in the whole south.

PAIN

Pain in the head—pain anywhere, has its cause. Pain is congestion, pain is blood pressure—nothing else usually. At least, so says Dr. Shoop, and to prove it he has created a little pink tablet. This tablet—called Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablet—causes blood pressure away from pain centers. Soothes—refreshes—pleasantly delightful. Quickly, though safely, it surely equalizes the blood circulation.

If you have a headache, it's blood pressure.
If it's a painful periods with women, same cause.
If you are sleepless, restless, nervous, it's blood congestion—blood pressure. That much is a certainty, for Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets stop it in 20 minutes, and the tablets simply distribute the unnatural blood pressure.

Bruise your finger, and doesn't it get red, and swell, and pain you? Of course it does. It's congestion, blood pressure. You'll find it where pain is—always. It's simply Common Sense.

We sell at 25 cents, and cheerfully recommend

Scow was Launched Yesterday

Yesterday morning, amid the cawing of crows, the prophecies of an early spring and general talk of hard times, a scow, to be used in carrying the dredged matter from the river bottom, was launched from the Government shipyards at Riverside park. To get the boat to the water a large channel had to be cut in the ice, which gave quite a number of men employment. Mr. Hickey, the local ship-wright, had charge of the construction, so it is unnecessary to say the result was a good job.

Thinks Report Exaggerated

Havelock Standard: Wm. Parcels, formerly of this town, now of Peterborough, was sentenced to one month in the gaol in that city on Tuesday on a charge of stealing wood and vagrancy. Jacob Firman, a companion of Parcels, also received a like sentence. The Examiner in referring to the matter states that Parcels wore a street car conductor's coat, which he had been manoeuvering in around Havelock as a policeman, and that it is alleged he would arrest innocent immigrants and bring them to the town hall, where he would extract money from them in return for their freedom. Wouldn't that jar you? The Examiner should cut out such absurd fairy tales.

What Ails You?

Do you feel weak, tired, despondent, have frequent headaches, coated tongue, bitter or bad taste in morning, "heartburn," belching of gas, acid risings in throat after eating, stomach gnaw or burn, foul breath, dizzy spells, poor or variable appetite, nausea at times and kindred symptoms?

If you have any considerable number of the above symptoms you are suffering from biliousness, torpid liver with indigestion and dyspepsia. Dr Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is made up of the most valuable medicinal principles known to medical science for the permanent cure of such abnormal conditions. It is a most efficient liver invigorator, stomach tonic, bowel regulator and nerve strengthener.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" is not a patent medicine or secret nostrum, a full list of its ingredients being printed on its bottle-wrapper and attested under oath. A glance at its formula will show that it contains no alcohol, or harmful habit-forming drugs. It is a fluid extract made with pure, triple-refined glycerine, of proper strength, from the roots of the following native American forest plants, viz., Golden Seal root, Stone root, Black Cherrybark, Queen's root, Bloodroot, and Mandrake root.

The following leading medical authorities, among a host of others, extol the foregoing roots for the cure of just such ailments as the above symptoms indicate: Prof. R. Bartholow, M. D., of Jefferson Med. College Phila.; Prof. H. C. Wood, M. D., of Univ. of Pa.; Prof. Edwin M. Hale, M. D., of Hahnemann Med. College, Chicago; Prof. John King, M. Peterborough Should Follow

The city engineer of Kingston reported to the City Council that the public meeting places are very defective in the matter of exits in case of fire or a panic from any cause. He finds that there are only three places which meet the legal requirements of exits and fire escapes. Two of these are theatres and one a church. Most of the others would prove veritable death traps in case of a panic in the audience. There are, the Times believes, many such places in Peterborough. It is the duty of the Council to take action to have these places either closed or put in order.

Special Services at St. Paul's

St. Paul's Church is contemplating holding a series of special services next week beginning a Sabbath first. Preparation is already being made to make this week one of blessing to the members. The session met on Monday night; gave the movement their endorsement and pledged hearty co-operation. The prayer meeting this week will be devoted to special intercession for the outpouring of God's Spirit. A Women's prayer meeting will be held every afternoon at 3.30 next week, and a men's prayer meeting at 7.30. The pastor, the Rev. R. Pogue, will preach the Gospel every night. Miss Helen Davies will sing Gospel solos each evening. It is proposed to make the meetings bright, and attractive. A special effort will be made, by personal invitation, to reach all those who declared a preference for St. Paul's at the recent census and who may not be regular attendants.

THE GOULD INQUEST

"It is my opinion that death was caused by septic poisoning. It is a matter of opinion rather than of actual knowledge," replied Dr. Silverthorn.

"The question asked," observed the coroner, "recalls the remark made by Mr. Justice Mabee on one occasion that when you find a man beside the road with his head full of buckshot, it is hardly worth while making an internal examination for poison."

Dr. Cotton concurred in the report presented by Dr. Silverthorn.

WERE WITH SICK GIRL.

Mrs. Lottie Grice, 313 Yonge street, stated that she met Miss Gould on Monday, March 9, at 63 1-2 Mutual street.

"I know Harry Saunders," said the witness, "and he had told me that Miss Gould was very ill. Mrs. Weller and I went over to see her. The landlady had told her that she could not stay longer than that night. She was removed to 75 Hunter street. I saw her again on Tuesday morning, and she looked much worse. Saunders came in, and they sent him for Dr. Fletcher. I didn't see him do anything to the patient before the arrival of Dr. Tood. There was no operation that I saw."

Mrs. Susan Laughlin, of 63 1-2 Mutual street, stated that Miss Gould came to her house and took a room on Thursday, March 5th.

"She had no visitors," said Mrs. Laughlin. "A doctor came to see her on Saturday, and told me that the patient had inflammation. The room was never paid for. I did not know the girl's name. A young man met her at the door on Sunday, and she went out. She was up on Monday morning."

DR. FLETCHER'S STORY.

"Saunders came to me about two weeks ago," said Dr. Fletcher, "and spoke to me about a young lady he was engaged to. I found that she was ill, and I gave him a prescription. I used no instrument of any kind. On March 9 I saw her at 63 1-2 Mutual street. Saunders had asked me to see her, and I found that she was exceedingly sick. I gave a prescription to stop the pain. On Monday I sent a nurse, and on Tuesday morning I was telephoned for. On arriving I sent Saunders for another doctor, and asked him to give an anaesthetic for me, and I got to meet an operation which seemed necessary to relieve her pain. She was afterwards removed to the Western Hospital, but died that night.

"How much money was Saunders to pay you?" asked Mr. Drayton.

"There was no money mentioned," replied the witness.

Mrs. Annie Ward, who attended the patient as nurse, stated that she was present at the operation referred to by Dr. Fletcher.

Harvey L. Alexander, a brother-in-law of the deceased, stated that he had been given to understand that pneumonia was the cause of death.

Speaking with reference to the case last night, Harry Saunders stated that he and Jessie Helen Gould were to have been married in June. She had for some weeks previous to her death appeared very despondent, and had suggested that they both should commit suicide.

Death of Miss Sarah Snyder

Yesterday afternoon one of the most generally known, and particularly in church circles, respected, ladies of this city, passed away in the person of Miss Sarah Snyder, at the family residence, McDonel street. The late Miss Snyder was a daughter of the late Mr. Wm. Snyder, one of Peterborough's leading citizens and one of the best known lumbermen of this part of the country. The deceased had been a sufferer for some months from a cancerous tumor of the stomach, to which she finally succumbed after a long illness characterized by Christian endurance under physical suffering. Miss Snyder, among other relatives, leaves to mourn her loss, her brother Edward, Inspector of the Northwest Mounted Police, and James of this city. Full particulars as to the funeral are not available at this time, but will be contained in Monday's issue. It will likely be held on Monday.

In Toronto an army of unemployed men, marched to the city hall and demanded work. The unemployed in this town are ambitious and content to let work look for them.

FURNACE ACCIDENT
MOULDER'S HAND INJURED

Mr. William Burdett who works for the Canadian Westinghouse Co., at Hamilton, and resides at 198 Simcoe Street East, says: "As the direct result of a heavy mould being rolled over, as I was assisting other workmen to line a furnace, I sustained a severe injury to my left hand. Had this mould fallen it would undoubtedly have crushed both fingers and hand, as it was, I escaped with a bruised, blackened, and much swollen member. By the next morning my hand was so cramped and stiffened it was impossible to hold or lift any object. By noon the same day there was no improvement, although my hand had been bathed and well rubbed with liniments we had in the house. My wife having used Zam-Buk previous to this, now persuaded me to send for a box, which I did. Regular applications of this ointment well rubbed in over the injuries and swollen member, soon drew out all discolorations, banished the swelling and worked so effectually that by the beginning of the week my hand was well again and I could go to work. I have suffered no inconvenience since and would recommend Zam-Buk to all workmen." The secret of Zam-Buk's clean and painless healing lies in the fact that it imitates Nature's own "healing by first intention." It is composed of pure vegetable saps and juices, which soothe the pain and allay inflammation by effective antiseptic and germicidal action. No toiler should be without it!

BEN HOWARD, THE CRACK INDIAN RUNNER, OF HIAWATHA, MEETS DEATH ON THE RAILROAD TRACK

Came to Peterborough Saturday for a Load of Oats and Left His Team at the Munro House Shed

Inquest This Morning

The mangled remains of an Indian, supposed to be that of Ben Howard, the famous Indian runner, of Hiawatha, were found on the G. T. R. tracks yesterday morning.

Howard was in the city on Saturday, and late in the afternoon he called at Peterborough Cereal Mills for a load of oats, and at that time was under the influence of liquor. He then drove to the Munro House, where he left his team and, it is thought, he had started to walk home when he was struck by a passing train.

The body was mangled practically beyond recognition, and Coroner Dr. Gray when notified gave orders to have it removed to Comstock's undertaking rooms, where an inquest will be held this morning at eleven o'clock.

Howard was seen in the city on Saturday night between the hours of seven and eight o'clock. Yesterday morning shortly before noon Coroner Dr. Gray was notified that an Indian, having a post card, addressed "Ben Howard, Hiawatha," in his inside coat pocket, had been killed on the G. T. R. tracks near Downers Corners. Dr. Gray at once notified Mr. A. Comstock.

About 3.30 the body was brought to the G. T. R. platform on a freight train, and was met there by Mr. Comstock's rig. The body was then brought direct to his undertaking establishment, where it lies awaiting a coroner's inquest.

The inquest will be held this morning at 11 o'clock by Coroner Gray at Comstock's establishment, to ascertain, if possible, the cause of death, and circumstances leading thereto.

The Times was informed that Howard started Saturday night to walk home. It is supposed that he had procured liquor somewhere on Saturday, and this accounted for his leaving his team behind and starting for home. The theory of the death as founded on condition of the remains is that the deceased was struck by, or fell from a passing train late Saturday night, felt unconscious, and was run over by a later train subsequently.

The body is terribly mangled. The head is badly cut and bruised, and the limbs broken.

The deceased was about twenty years of age, and did not have a reputation for indulging in intoxicants. It will be remembered that Howard entered and came very nearly winning the Thanksgiving Day road race from Lakefield to the city.

The high county constable, we understand, sent word to relatives of the deceased at Hiawatha.

Prince Rupert City Council

The Prince Rupert Empire is publishing burlesque reports of the city council, of which the following is a specimen:—

"I beg to report that the month just ended has been a strenuous one for the police and my force deserves all the credit it gets for the efficient manner in which they have discharged their several duties. I have to report that only 13 cases of officers asleep on their beats have been reported to me, and a few cases of insubordination. Our method of stamping out crime has proved highly effective. The first serious case was that of a man who was found sleeping in a doorway. He was charged with impersonating a policeman, he was convicted, and was fined $200 or a week in jail; he served his time. The next serious case was that of a man who was caught red-handed staking a mineral claim on the Indian reserve—or rather on that part of it that is in dispute between the G. T. P. and the Government. There was no difficulty in securing a conviction in this case, and the accused was sentenced to 21 years with hard labor. Another man who attempted to erect a tent on land belonging to the railway company was sentenced to six years with hard labor and thirty lashes. (Applause). A woman who was wheeling a perambulator on the sidewalk was fined $50 and costs; and J. H. Baron, manager of the G. T. P. railway, for running over three children with an automobile, was severely censured. A saloonkeeper who beat his wife with a poker was fined $10; and last month a man who talked back to a policeman was sentenced to one month pumping gasoline into the Government tank. The only cases in which we failed to secure convictions, were four charges of murder and several charges of theft. In view of this brilliant record, I would suggest to your honorable body, than an increase be made in my salary, as I find my present means inadequate. Two of my automobiles must be replaced this year, and I must have an improved airship."

May Erect a New Sunday School Building

It is altogether probable that in the near future work will be started on a new Sunday school building for the George Street Methodist Church. The present building is inadequate, as the membership of the school is rapidly increasing, and already there is more scholars on the roll than the building will seat.

When asked yesterday afternoon by the Rev. Mr. Pearson, pastor of the church, whether they thought such a step should be taken, the scholars of the school unanimously decided that something should be done, as the church has now to be used in the capacity of a class room.

Empresses May Go To Three Rivers

Montreal, March 21. — In case the longshoremen at Quebe continue in their present belligerent attitude in regard to wages at the opening of navigation this spring, the Canadian Pacific is preparing itself so be able to move the landing places of the Empress steamers from the Ancient Capital to Three Rivers. To this end a thousand feet of the new Bureau wharf at the latter place has just been leased by agents of the company and the probabilities are to-day that Quebec will lose the advantage of the Empress trade and become little more than a way station on the journey across the Atlantic.

The Bureau wharf is said to be most advantageously situated for warping up big vessels. It is eighteen hundred feet long and the depth of water the whole length of it is quite sufficient to allow the largest vessel in the St. Lawrence trade to steam right up alongside of it. So calm is the water and so slight the current that it is thought the Empress boats will be able to crawl alongside under their own steam, and without the aid of tugs.

Aside from this the Canadian Pacific Railway already has every facility on hand for the handling of freight. A loop line runs around the whole dock front, with spurs running down to the river at either end and connected with a straight line along the wharves. Thus it may be seen that the addition of a few side tracks and switches would provide all the railway tracks necessary.

Three Rivers is offering every inducement to the company to make the change. Quebec, on the other hand, is doing its best to pacify the longshoremen, and arrange to have the Empress trade remain.

No Rupture in Thaw Family Over Divorce Proceedings

New York, March 21.—In an authoritative statement to-day Franklin Bartlett, counsel for Harry K. Thaw and his mother, Mrs. William Thaw, emphatically denied that there had been any disagreement between the members of the Thaw family.

"The stories from Pittsburg that there has been a disagreement between the members of Harry K. Thaw's family over the suit of Evelyn Thaw for the annulment of her marriage to H. K. Thaw are absolutely without foundation," said Mr. Bartlett. "There has been no controversy of any kind in Mr. Thaw's family."

This statement was made at the request of Mrs. Thaw, who is now in Pittsburg.

Speaking of the opinion expressed recently by the alienist, Dr. Allan McLane Hamilton, that Harry K. Thaw is a hopeless paranoiac, Mr. Bartlett said that on two occasions recently he had seen Mr. Thaw in the Matteawan State Hospital, and had held long conferences with him. On both occasions, he said, Harry Thaw seemed to him to be perfectly sane.

"Although I am not a physician or an alienist," said Col. Bartlett, "this view is based on experience derived from the examination of hundreds of men in my experience as a lawyer, as a regimental commander and in political life."

That Dummar Report Contradicted

Some excitement was created about the market weigh scales office Saturday morning when a gentleman from North Dummer spread the intelligence that Mr. Thos. Newell, who was reported some days ago as having been shot in the leg, and since missing, had died. However, diligent inquiries made during the afternoon prove that this sensational statement was without foundation. In fact there is good reason to believe that Mr. Newell has been located and very far from dead.

Extorting Money

Montreal, March 21.—A sentence of one year's imprisonment was imposed in the Court of Sessions by Judge Piche upon an Italian named Guiseppe di Lorio. Accused was found guilty of having threatened to murder a Canadian Pacific Railway foreman, if he did not give him $20. The foreman told Chief Carpenter of the threat, and that di Lorio had promised to meet him at a certain place when the money was to be delivered. Detectives were placed in hiding near the spot and arrested the accused as soon as he received the money.

A Japanese Pack of Cards

Mr. Jas. Dunslow, who recently returned after an extended trip to the Old Country, brought with him a unique curiosity in the shape of a genuine Japanese pack of cards. This pack consists of forty-six cards. The suits are five in number, but are not divided as are our cards into kings, queens, knaves, spots, etc., but into some emblems whose significance as cards is known only to the Sons of Nippon. The cards have a plain black back. The faces, hand-painted, show poppies, chrysanthemums, rising suns, birds, vines, colored leaves, baskets and other devices. How one would play a little game of "Draw" with such complicated cards could only be solved by the brain of an Oriental. The cards are about two inches long by an inch and a half broad. Mr. Dunslow was presented with this pack whilst crossing to St. John, N.B., on the "Corsican" by a Japanese secretary of the Nippon Legation at Washington, D.C. This Japanese diplomat places a high value on the cards, as they were painted by an artist friend of his in Tokio.

By the way, has your wife presented you with the bill for that "perfect dream of a hat", yet?

"THERE'S A REASON"

Mr. D. H. Moore Stands Ninth in Honor List

Mr. D. H. Moore, one of Peterborough's best known insurance men, has gained the distinction of being ninth in the honor list of the Sun Life Assurance Co. for February. This company, it might be explained, every month issues an honor list, showing the work done by its representatives throughout the world. Mr. Moore stood highest among the agents of the whole Dominion, excepting, of course, the cities of Toronto and Montreal, as regards the volume of insurance written during February. This speaks volumes for the business tact and ability as well as personal popularity of Mr. Moore, that he should rank so high among the hundreds of bright, hustling insurance agents, and The Times offers its respectful congratulations.

New Orange Lodge to be Organized Tonight

To-night the new Orange Lodge will be formally organized in the Orange Hall, Simcoe street, at eight o'clock. Bro. A. Robson, District Master, has called a meeting of the District Lodge, to visit all the new officers and perform the duties connected with the event. The new lodge will be known as "The Duke of Manchester Lodge, No. 60." This name has been selected, as the new Master-elect, Bro. W. H. G. Armstrong, was a member of a well known lodge in Ireland, of which that nobleman, as well as Bro. Armstrong's father and grandfather were members, and took an active part.

Some of the grand lodge officers are expected to be present and assist in the organization of the new lodge, which will open with a large membership.

Major Strickland Has Passed Away

The many friends in this city of Major D'Arcy Strickland, Inspector of Mounted Police, will regret to learn that this well known gentleman and efficient officer, has passed away. His death occurred at Port Saskatchewan, Alta., on Friday, the cause of death being dropsy.

The late Major Strickland was the eldest son of Mr. H. C. Strickland, of "The Homestead," Lakefield. The deceased spent his boyhood days in that village, and went to the Northwest some years ago. Since joining the Mounted Police his ability, physique and affability gained his rapid promotoin, and he was regarded as one of the most efficient officers on the force. His untimely death will be a great loss to the service, as well as to a large circle of friends and relatives. Major Strickland leaves a wife and family to mourn his loss.

Fined for Peddling without License

At Saturday's session of the police court the adjourned case of Louis Florence was settled. It will be remembered that last Monday Florence was charged with peddling goods not his own manufacture without a license, against the provisions of by-law No. 1136 of this city. It seems that the defendant bought augur bits from the Rapid Tool Co. and sold them throughout the city among the blacksmiths.

Florence pleaded not guilty, but the evidence showed the contrary. His Worship imposed a fine of $5 with $4.85 costs.

New Regulations Will Reduce Emigration from Britain

London, March 21.—At a meeting of the Central Unemployed Body attention was called to Premier Asquith's recent speech to the unemployed. The chairman stated that the emigrants to be sent out would be those certified as suitable by the Dominion Agent. Some others might be accepted who expressed a willingness to engage in farm work, but the scheme of emigration to Canada must considerably decrease.

FEES TO PAY.

At a meeting in Birmingham of the Distress Committee a letter in respect to a 160-acre farm grant mentioned that there was a registration fee of ten dollars, cultivation of the land for six months in each of three years, and "considerable expense was added to the ten dollars in other ways." One of the members said it was only right that this should be made known. He considered it unfair to emigrate their townsmen to a country where they would find conditions as bad or worse than here.

Another member read a letter received from an emigrant stating that 10,000 Britishers were out of work in Toronto.

The Saturday Review says that Canada is as bad as the Transvaal, or worse, deporting Indians, who are something more than British subjects. Many of them have medals which proclaim they had actually fought British battles.

POLICE

At this morning's session of the police court the young men arrested by P. C. Newhall for alleged theft of goods from the Canadian General Electric Co., and allowed to go, at the special evening session, on their own recognizances, will appear for trial. It seems that the young men recently arrested and tried for thefts from this establishment did not include a full list of those suspected of pilfering from the C. G. E. Co. One of the young men to be tried to-day hold a good position in the wood department, and is alleged to have stolen a quantity of mahogany and other valuable wood. A quantity of high priced wood was found by P. C. Newhall at the home of the defendant.

East Ward Fishermen Have Poor Luck

Three old-time enthusiastic ice fishermen, who live in the East Ward, went a-fishing. They wended their way mile after mile, seeking fresh fields and pastures new, each laden with ploughing through snowdrifts and wiping off perspiration from their respective brows, until a spot near the golf links was reached. Here rods and lines were unlimbered, hooks attached and bait applied. For bait they used pieces of fat pork. When their appliances were ready, the trio of enthusiastic sports sat them down and got busy — that is, they were busy holding their rods. Hour after hour went by and nary a bite. At last one of the fishermen let out a whoop and said, "Whisht, boys, I've got a bite." He had. After a tussle the prey was landed, a somewhat undersized sunfish. After another long wait, without any more sunfish applying, it began to snow, and the veterans made for home. They did not care lots for ownership of the sunfish, but left it behind. These fishermen are going to try again this week with minnows for bait.

Apsley

The political pot is boiling full time just now, and it takes some people guessing to know which side of the fence to jump to.

What might have been a serious accident happened here a short time ago, when C. R. D. tried to crawl through the same hole in the political fence that Alex. M. D. went (through some time ago, but owing to a swelled head he got, from being offered the nomination for "Grit candidate" for East Peterborough, (which he could not accept, having pledged his support to the "Tories) he got stuck, but help arrived in time to save him. He is expected to pull through all right with a few applications of "Government salve" which is a great balm for political wounds.

The "Grits" are going around with crape on their sleeve, mourning the loss of one with such a great "pull" and no "push", but what is one side's loss is the other's gain.

Rev. W. G. Hanna, Provincial Secretary of Lord's Day Alliance, Addresses Mass Meeting in St. Paul's

Last night in St. Paul's Church, after conclusion of the special service, Rev. Mr. Hanna, Provincial Secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance, addressed a mass meeting on the subject of observance of the Sabbath. The church at this meeting was about half full. Had it been more generally known that this eloquent speaker was to have spoken no doubt but what the edifice would have been packed.

Mr Hanna, on being introduced, said there are many clauses in the Sunday observance law that prevent a full working of the same. Many a man who says to his employer, "I want my day of rest," is told, "Yes, you are entitled to your day of rest, as many as you want of them, but we will put another man in your place." The matter of handling railway freight was then taken up. There can be no prosecution unless the attorney-general of the province consents. In British Columbia the attorney-general absolutely refused to prosecute. In Manitoba it has partly been enforced. In Quebec and Nova Scotia the law has not been enforced. In the eight months since the act has been enforced, 75,000 out of 150,000 workers have been freed. The labor unions have been asked to ascertain how many have been freed on Sundays. The people of Canada must and will see that all these men will be free.

Referring to Sunday editions of the newspapers, the speaker said that the Lord's Day Act had in Buffalo alone cut down the circulation immensely. In Quebec also the Sunday issues have been reduced greatly. An American, whose word is good, Mr. Dwight L. Moody, said he would sooner put his hands to the elbow in a tar barrel than touch a Sunday paper. "They are unclean," said the speaker. In places where there is a branch of the Alliance and the law is violated by a citizen, the latter, if spoken to quietly, and his offence called to his knowledge, the trouble generally ceases. Sports of all kinds when reported to the Alliance in Toronto, with exact dates and names, are looked into. The names of the informants are kept secret. If necessary the attorney-general is communicated with, and then the trouble ceases. In some cases, such as factories, steam and electric plants where work is done on Saturday, and the cases of violations by foreigners, and yet acquainted with Canadian customs, only two per cent. of such cases have to be dealt with by law. The Alliance seeks, backed by the church, to secure rest on the day of rest. God gave man 70 years to live with one day in seven to rest. Even a piece of machinery, such, for instance, as a locomotive, is the better for getting a rest one day in seven. With the great steamers, where immense amounts of capital is tied up, possibly half a million dollars in each, these steamers are laid off one day in seven. But with the men, the working man, no rest is given them on the seventh day. In South Carolina there are more murders than in Great Britain with so much larger a population. Why? Because the former contains a lawless people. Most of those men who work seven consecutive days are, doing so involuntarily, and they break down in health. In the Dominion Government Blue Book for 1907 there were killed on the railways of Canada 578 men and 1,697 were injured.

The speaker then went on to show the respective percentages of inefficiency of men on the American railways. This inefficiency is due to the lack of a day of rest. Many railway men have children that they never see awake. These railway employees are manly men and deserving of sympathy. Mr. Hanna went on to give several instances of railway men who are overworked that came under his own personal observation. Despatchers, who have the safety of hundreds of people in their keeping, do not get the rest they require. The travelling public runs immense risks through men not getting their proper rest. The [illegible] works at Sydney, C.B., was shown, and the hand work of the employees there demonstrated. On account of employees there being overworked four men were burnt to a few charred bones. Canada has immense possibilities and her population may soon be fifteen millions. The question then will be what will or what can we do with the Chinese and other foreigners? China can send a million emigrants and never miss them.

The Central Alliance in Toronto cannot do all the work alone. It wants the prayers and assistance of the whole country. The Alliance is not a money gathering scheme. Money given will be gratefully received and honestly used. When the time comes that the Alliance can say to the government, we must have a day of rest, all who aid the cause are doing a good work, and the railways and industrial concerns must keep the Sabbath.

After the singing of a hymn and the pronouncing of the benediction by Mr. Hanna, the meeting closed.

ROBBERS ATTACK AND BRUTALLY BEAT TWO AGED PEOPLE

Entered Store and Assaulted Mrs. Davis of Toronto and Then Robbed the Register of Cash

Toronto, March 21.—As a result of a brutal attack made upon her, Mrs. Davis, mother of Alfred C. Davis, proprietor of a liquor store at 691 Yonge street, lies in a serious condition at her home, 11 Gloucester street, to-day.

At nine o'clock last night Mrs. Davis was alone in the liquor store, her son having gone out a few minutes before. She was busy serving customers when a clean shaven, well-dressed man entered, and after standing back from the counter for a few minutes, said that he had an appointment with Mr. Davis. Mrs. Davis asked him if he would wait, but the man shook his head and asked if he might use the telephone.

WAITED TILL OTHERS LEFT.

The telephone is in the rear of the store, behind the counter. To the east of it is a small room used for bottling liquor. The man's object in asking to telephone was, no doubt, to see if any other person was in the room. The man did not look at the book, but took the receiver off the hook and then said something about not being able to get his number. The store had cleared by this time, and in the course of her movements, Mrs. Davis had gone towards the telephone. Turning quickly, the man struck her over the left eye with his fist and then hit her four times in the face.

Screaming, Mrs. Davis fell to the floor.

As she lay there the man kicked her several times in the side and breast. The blow over the eye was so terrific that a blood vessel was broken.

When her son went out, Mrs. Davis recovered from the till the larger bills and transferred them to Mr. Davis' desk near the telephone. Between $20 and $30 were left in the till, and as soon as Mrs. Davis fell the man ran behind the counter, cleaned out the drawer, even to the coppers, and then left.

Just as he opened the door, Thomas Pardo, of 42 Irwin avenue, who was passing, stepped up.

"What's all the screaming about?" he asked the man.

"Some one has robbed the place and beaten Mrs. Davis," was the reply. The man then ran along Gloucester street as if to examine the back of the building. Mr. Pardo watched him and then entered the store.

Mrs. Davis was bleeding profusely from her wounds and was in a semi-conscious condition. She was assisted to her home and Dr. Britton summoned. He was of the opinion that that the man who struck her had a piece of metal in his hand.

This morning Mrs. Davis was in great pain. The kicks she received have affected her lungs, and she breathed with difficulty. As Mrs. Davis is nearly 60 years of age, the shock to her has been a great one.

Acting Detective McKenney and Plain Clothes Policeman Levitt were on the scene as soon as possible, but so far there have been no arrests.

AGED MAN ATTACKED

Scarcely an hour before Mrs. Davis was attacked, Jacob Haskin, aged 67 years, who with his son keeps a grocery store almost directly opposite the liquor store, was attacked and badly beaten.

"I was sitting at a window in the dinging room," said the aged Mr. Haskin to a reporter, "around 8 o'clock. My son had gone out with my other son, who had just arrived from New Orleans. I was reading the evening papers when I heard a knock at the back door. I called 'Who's there?' 'I am a neighbor,' was the reply. 'I called to tell you that your ducks have got out.'

"I keep a few ducks," continued Mr. Haskin, "and naturally I p got up and went out. The yard was dark, but I could make out a man, and just then he struck me with his fist just over the left temple. I fell down and began to call for help. I owe it to making so much noise that I am no worse off this morning. The man who, in order to get into the yard, had to climb a fence, bolted for it again, and disappeared."

Mr. Haskin was born in Warsaw, Poland, and has lived in Toronto for 25 years. He formerly kept a grocery store on Bay street, near Queen street.

ROBBER GETS NOTHING.

Fortunately, when his sons went out, Mr. Haskin locked the front door, thus foiling any scheme the robbers may have concocted to rob the till. Considerable money was in the cash drawer at the time, and Mr. Haskin congratulated himself to-day in escaping so lightly.

Gloucester street and its vicinity have enjoyed an unenviable notoriety of late in the matter of hold-ups and robberies. The two attacks last night bring the total up to five within a month.

William Lizert, a mining man, and W. P. Pickard, a student, living in Gloucester street, were attacked, badly beaten, and robbed within half a block of each other almost at the same moment. J. Macpherson was knocked down and robbed, curiously enough, directly in front of the home of Mrs. Davis. Two arrests were made in the Lizert-Pickard affair, but the accused proved alibis and were let go. No arrests have yet been made in the three remaining cases.

Mystery Surrounds Death of Fred Munday --Murder is Suspected

Chatham, March 21. — Mystery surrounds the death of Fred Munday, keeper of the St. Ann's Club, St. Ann's Island, Mitchell Bay.

The story told by his wife is that yesterday morning Munday got up at 3 o'clock to light the fire. She got up about 6 o'clock, and when she went into the kitchen found Munday lying on the floor with a bullet wound in his breast. She had not heard any report in the meantime, although she is a very light sleeper.

When Dr. Ingram, of Dover Centre, went over to the island to examine the body, he could find no revolver, but Mrs. Munday produced it from a drawer in another room, where she had put it. Mrs. Munday had told the news of the tragedy to an Indian and he came across the bay in a canoe, although the water is still full of ice.

A few days ago the Joy Club, another resort on the bay, was burned and was supposed to have been set on fire. Several guns were in the club house and have been missing since the fire. One of these belonged to W. B. Wells, of Dover Centre, and yesterday afternoon it was brought back to him by a man who threatened that if he told the circumstances under which the gun was brought back, Mr. Wells would receive a bullet in his breast.

It is thought that Munday may have known something of the Joy Club fire and that others mixed up in it were afraid that he might talk too much, as he was rather weak-minded.

Beauty

How to Get It. How to Keep It

A plain woman can be made pretty and a pretty one can keep her beauty if a little care and attention are given to the details of the daily toilet. A fresh, clear complexion, well kept hair, teeth, hands and nails, will do much to enhance a woman's good looks.

Of course her complexion is at once both a woman's greatest charm and her greatest trial, yet a few simple rules are all she needs to allow in order to have the proverbial "peaches and cream complexion."

An effective way of keeping your skin soft, smooth and white, is to put a handful of rolled oats or common oatmeal in the water every time you wash your face and hands. Use sufficient to make the water milky. Then dry the skin on a soft towel and apply liberally instead of powder or cosmetics, a simple wash made as follows:—

Obtain at your drug store Rose Water, 2 ounces; Cologne Spirits, 1 ounce; Eppotone (skin food, 4 ounces. Put the Eppotone in a pint of hot water (not boiling) and after dissolved stain and let cool. Then add the Rose Water and Cologne Spirits.

This wash can be easily made at home. It does not cost much and is better than all the (widely advertised "beauty preparations" you can buy.

If you will only follow the above directions regularly every day you will have a complexion that will be a source of both admiration and envy among your friends.

HOW CHILDREN ARE QUICKLY STRENGTHENED

Develop Them with Ferrozone, Which Makes Rich Blood, Hardy Muscle, Steady Nerves.

Children brought up on Ferrozone are known by their strong, rugged frames their chubby cheeks and healthful appearance.

Mothers find it an indispensable tonic and body builder, and in thousands of homes no other remedy is used.

EVERY CHILD IMPROVES ON FERROZONE

Mrs. E. Montgomery, of Pittsburg, writes: "A little niece came to visit me and nothing but pale and haggard looks. I started her on a course of Ferrozone. The change that girl underwent in a few weeks was marvellous. Her appetite chirped up, she had more spirit and strength, and a rosy color came into her cheeks that I never saw there before. I weighed my niece about the time she started to pick up, and in seven weeks she gained almost eight pounds, and just looked the picture of health. I think this should be an example to many mothers, and I hope that others will try Ferrozone for their little boys and girls. I am thoroughly convinced that it's the most strengthening tonic it has my strongest endorsement."

The reason Ferrozone works so beneficially with Ferrozone is that it acts directly on the blood, freeing it of all unhealthy matter, at the same time giving it an additional supply of iron.

This at once results in more strength more spirit and renewed vitality. Just one tablet at meal time works wonders.

Refuse to accept any article the druggist may say is just as good. Get Ferrozone, and the result we guarantee will be satisfactory. Price 50c per box or six boxes for $2.50, at all dealers.

BRINGING BACK TO LIFE

Paris affords us the story of a young girl of Versailles who is said to have been restored to life several hours after apparent death by a process compounded of rhythmic electrification and hypnotism. Unfortunately an overdose of morphine killed the patient soon after her revival. She had become violently hysterical while telling her story of a soul parting from a body.

There are enough tales on record of seeming miracles such as this to fill a small library. No one of them has added to our knowledge of the border line between life and death. No new story of the class fails to appeal to our keen interest in the most vital and baffling of human problems.

The circumstances at Versailles indicate a person in a trance. Out of a similar condition Miss Ida Sharp of Stockton, N. J., was awakened by electricity a few years ago to tell of a wonderful visit to heaven, says the New York World commenting on the report.

Apparently dead in January, 1901, Mrs. Christina Hirt of St. Louis dead plans discussed for embalming her body. Fright awakened her. At St. Joseph, Mo., John A. Hart came to himself at the first touch of a knife in what was to have been a post-mortem examination. Trances are recorded which have lasted for hours, for days, even for months. Thoughtful visit even for months. The fancied visions of celestial regions is not an uncommon accompaniment, showing the relation between trance and hysteria.

The restoration of a person drowned comes nearer than any event in human experience to a raising from the dead. Left alone, such a person will never come back to life. Somewhere, nobody knows just where, he will cross the irretraceable line. He has had his last moment of earthly consciousness. Yet up to a certain point a vital spark remains, which may be kindled into flame. It alone that flicker of latent life, which keeps him upon revival from having a marvellous tale to tell.

Pain soon quickly stopped. A 25 cent box of Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets will kill any pain, everywhere, in 20 minutes. Besides they are thoroughly safe. Painful periods with women, neuralgia, etc., quickly easy after one tablet. All dealers.

Local Company Doing Well

Yesterday morning Mr. W. A. Edwards, proprietor of the Crystal, who has a company on the road playing the nearby towns and villages, received a telephone message from Campbellford, stating that on Thursday night scores of people had to be refused admission to the opera house there to see the Crystal Amusement Co., as the place was full. Mr. Edwards only took the opera house there for three days when his company opens in Havelock. He may postpone the Havelock engagement and fill the date at Campbellford, and open in Havelock after Lent is over. The present success of the company effectually cancels the old time superstition about 13 being an unlucky number. The company opened on Friday (an unlucky day), March 13th, and the first picture exhibited showed 13 people sitting at a table.

OUR TIMBER SUPPLY.

Need For Protection and Proper Treatment of Canadian Forests.

France is one of the greatest timber importing countries of Europe. Over $30,000,000 were paid in 1906 by this country for wood brought in from other countries, American and European.

This includes over $20,000,000 worth of wood (mostly pine) used for building purposes, and $500,000 for mine props alone. The great amount of wood used for paper pulp and a few minor purposes brings the total up to the thirty million dollars.

On this timber another $10,000,000 was paid in freight—mostly to other countries, for the French flag is flown by only about ten per cent. of the ships in which this wood is carried. And import duties claim another sum of $6,000,000.

The quantity of wood exported from France, on the other hand, in 1906, did not amount to more than $16,400,000.

Yet the forests of France are by no means small. They cover an area of over 23,500,000 acres. Of this a little over a ninth (2,707,000 acres) is in the hands of the state, and is very carefully managed. Over a seventh of the area (3,472,000 acres) is under the control of the departments and communes and is not so carefully looked after. The rest is in private hands and often large tracts are sold to speculators and recklessly cut, everything of value being taken off them.

This state of affairs demonstrates the wisdom of the course pursued in almost the whole of Canada, namely, keeping the ownership of the forests in the hands of the crown, so that the Dominion and the different Provincial Governments may have the power to make regulations for the cutting, with the result that practically all of the forests may be so treated as to give continuous crops of wood and become a permanent asset of the people.

Canada at present is one of the few countries in the world that can export timber, having a surplus over that required for its own use. Such a surplus is a most valuable asset, and promises—far from decreasing in value—to increase rapidly and greatly in years to come, owing to the growing scarcity of wood.

It is for this country, therefore, to exercise great care both in protecting the timber it has and in providing for future supplies from the same ground. This will require the employment of a large number of men, many of them possessing a high degree of technical and scientific training. It is gratifying to note that already some steps have been taken to care for our timber and provide a staff of trained men to look after it. Much more remains to be done, and it is for the people of Canada to see that arrangements are made for the proper care of one of her most valuable resources.

LIKE FEAST OF THE WOLF.

Quebec Celebration Causes Friction In Eastern Province.

There is still a good deal of friction at Quebec over the participation of outsiders in the coming celebration. It is only just to say, however, that the following article from La Verite reflects the opinion of a very small portion of the population of the ancient capital.

La Verite claims that it will not be a Catholic celebration in August next, as the good people of Quebec expected, but the celebration of Canada as a whole. It is not the foundation of Quebec by the French, no; they want to celebrate the capture of the city by the English. It is not, so it appears, the three hundredth anniversary of the planting of the cross and the flag of our ancestors on Cape Diamond, but instead the 149th anniversary of the defeat of our heroes by the English troops.

"We wished to celebrate the commencement of our history, but they will instead celebrate the beginning of British domination in this country. The symbol which they propose to acclaim is the angel of peace, but to what peace do they refer. If it is the peace that the generosity of our people caused to reign around Quebec, so much the better, but it is the more extended peace which they are going to commemorate. It is the peace following the abolition of the French language in several of the provinces. It is the peace following the destruction of Catholic schools in New Brunswick, in Manitoba, in Alberta and Saskatchewan.

"In a word it is the peace which reigns after the wolf has eaten the lamb and sleeps after his bloody repast."

Preserving Niagara Falls.

Persistent efforts are to be made in Congress at Washington to prevent the re-enactment of what is known as the Burton law, passed in 1906, governing the disposition of the waters of the Niagara Falls. The object of the enactment was to conserve the waters of the falls against the encroachment of commercial enterprises. It was destined, as a purely temporary measure, to be supplanted by a general convention or treaty on this subject between the United States and Canada which is intended to cover also the disposition of other waters forming a boundary line between the two countries.

The Burton law expires in less than a year and a half. Those opposing its re-enactment for ten years, as is proposed in some quarters, declare this is a distinct advantage to the Canadians, who because such a large portion of the falls are on the Canadian side of the river, are content to let existing conditions remain, in preference to agreeing to a treaty which will restrict the privileges they now enjoy. The International Waterways Commission, which is made up of members from the United States and Canada, has turned in a mass of information on the whole question, which has been laid before the two Governments for their consideration. The United States Government is anxious that some disposition shall be reached in the whole matter, and that at an early date. It wants a treaty prepared and ratified at this session of Congress, if possible.

MODERN POACHING.

Country Thieves Use Many New and Artful Contrivances.

As years pass on, poaching, like everything else, becomes more scientific. The old hempen net which the poacher used to hang across a field-gate at night for hares has given place to one of silken cord, and the cheap bull's-eye lantern to the more costly but more handy electric torch. Perhaps the most dangerous improvement, from the game-preserver's point of view, says a writer in "Chambers's Journal," is the substitution of the motor-bicycle or motor-car for the old-fashioned one-horse trap. It might be imagined that the motor-bicycle would be of little use for carrying game; but only the other day a motor cyclist was arrested near a Midland town with five newly-killed hares in a box behind the seat. Parisian papers tell of well-organised gangs who raid the coverts near the French capital by the aid of apparatus worth hundreds of pounds, who have relief funds for those injured in affrays, and who retain lawyers to defend those captured by keepers. Happily this sort of thing is still unknown in England.

After Pheasants.

Not unnaturally the pheasant stands at the head of the poacher's list. If a poacher can be sure of a quiet half-hour in the covert, he slips in, sets a net across a run, sends his lurcher slinking round through the undergrowth, and presently, with a flutter and a flop, a fine cock-bird is fast in the net, next moment to be transferred to the poacher's pocket. A method of taking pheasants which was more common a few years ago than it is now was that of "smoking." The first essential is to discover a tree where the birds roost. Then, upon a dark, still night, the poacher goes to the spot armed with a handful of sulphur and the lid of an old biscuit-box. A fire of dry leaves is lighted upon the lid, the illumination being carefully concealed by a coat hung round it. As soon as the leaves have blazed up the sulphur is flung on the flames, and the lid held up under the bough on which the pheasants are roosting. Soon the suffocating fumes take effect. With a rustle and thump a fat bird thuds upon the ground. One after another they drop, and with luck the poacher may get half a dozen from a single tree.

Drugged Barley.

Another favorite plan is to soak barley or wheat for some hours in warm water. When the grain is thoroughly softened, the water is strained off and strong spirit poured over the wheat. The swollen grains absorb the spirit, and the doctored bait is then spread in one of the glades where the birds feed. It is an odd fact that most birds seem to like alcohol. Pheasants are no exception. The not unnatural result is that the finest birds—those which have secured the lion's share of the feast, are soon reeling about helplessly drunk. The poacher, who has been lying "doggo" near by, has nothing to do but jump up and wring their necks. Another method of the pheasant poacher deserves mention for its very ingenuity. It owes its success to the well-known pugnacity of our finest game bird. A game cock is armed with steel spurs of great length and keenness, and dropped where a pheasant has been observed to crow. The pheasant will allow no rival within its domain, and presently comes strutting out of covert. Naturally, he stands no more chance than a man armed with a paper-knife would against a Western desperado with a bowie. He is killed in a few seconds. The poacher picks up the dead bird, catches his game-cock, and moves on in search of fresh victims.

The Birds' Caps.

An old-fashioned way of catching rooks when they become too numerous to suit the farmer was to bury in the plough land little conical bags of paper, the sides smeared with bird-lime and a bait at the bottom. The same plan has been adopted with considerable success for the capture of pheasants. The bait is barley, and the bird completely blinded by the cap which clings so tightly to its head, falls an easy victim to man or dog. In an open field you will often see small pieces of brushwood stuck into the ground at intervals. These are set by the keeper for the purpose of hooking up the nets of night poachers for partridges. Partridges roost upon the ground, and by means of a long, light net dragged across the grass by two men a whole covey is often captured at one swoop. This form of poaching is only possible on a dark night, and at such a time the a dark night, and at such a time the branches, and, therefore, they get their nets entangled in them. But some have nowadays taken to lining the ground side of their nets with some stiff glazed stuff. A net so protected will slide over most obstacles.

Unfeeling.

A certain drill sergeant whose severity had made him unpopular with his company was putting a squad of recruits through the funeral exercise. Opening the ranks so as to admit the passage of the supposed cortege between them, the instructor by way of practical explanation walked slowly down the lane formed by the two ranks, saying as he did so:

"Now I'm the corpse. Pay attention."

Having reached the end of the party, he turned round, regarded them steadily with a scrutinizing eye for a moment or two, then remarked:

"Yours 'ands is right, and your 'eads is right, but you 'aven't got that look of regret you ought to 'ave."

Rats Grind Off Their Teeth.

A curiously marked stone has been found at Colebrooke, Devonshire, England, in the middle of a wheat rick, and geologists who have seen it express the opinion that the markings on the stone were caused by rats using it to grind their teeth, which otherwise grow to an inordinate length.

Some rats have been even known to starve owing to their teeth getting too long.

Mount Clemens, Michigan

Mount Clemens is famous throughout America as an all year round health resort, and thousands of people bear testimony to the benefits derived from its mineral waters in cases of rheumatism and kindred diseases. For bilious and liver troubles, nervous disorders, general debility, etc., the efficiency of its waters is wonderful; seventy-five per cent. of rheumatics are cured and 90 per cent. benefited. Write to Mr. J. D. McDonald, District Passenger Agent Grand Trunk Railway System, Toronto, for handsome descriptive booklet telling you all about it.

NOW LISTEN!

Please read carefully what follows, and if you decide to take advantage of what the "Canada Southern Oil & Gas Co., Limited," of Tilbury, Ont. (no personal liability), is now offering you, the result will be that instead of getting 3 per cent. for your savings, you will get at least from 10 to 25 per cent. that others are harvesting.

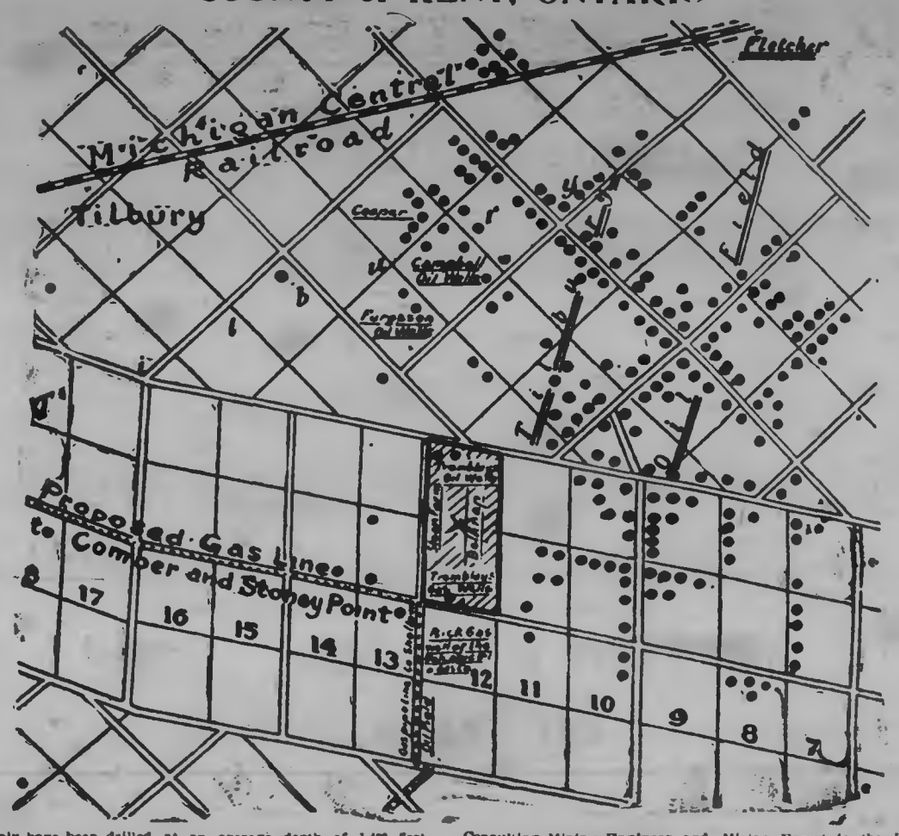
Your savings will be eight times more than the original amount by the mere fact of the higher rate of interest you will get.

Remember that this is no wildcat scheme, as you can see by the facts hereinafter mentioned.

Dr. Bell, the famous Canadian geologist, early in 1878 reported that there was an oil and gas field in the Townships of Tilbury and Romney County of Kent, Ont. As soon as the discovery of the oil was made in Tilbury in 1906, our American neighbors, who are experts in good things, did not hesitate to invest hundreds of thousands of dollars, and now, in fact, control the two-thirds interest in our oil field of Tilbury; and this happened because we Canadians hesitated to invest a few thousand dollars in the exploration of the oil mines of Tilbury, which already give a monthly production valued at $75,000, without adding the revenue derived from the gas.

We have said that this is not a wildcat scheme, because the "Canadian Southern Oil & Gas Co., Limited," has secured an option at a very moderate price on properties situated in the oil and gas field of Tilbury, upon which three successful tests have been made, being Lot No. 12, M. R. N., Tilbury East, 200 acres, indicated with a cross up on the map of the field.

COUNTY of KENT, ONTARIO



Three wells only have been drilled at an average depth of 1,400 feet.

The first one proves to be a rich gas well, the two others are good oil wells, combined with a strong production of gas.

The Company has also secured the franchises for the distribution and sale of natural gas into the Townships of Romney, Tilbury East, North and West and also into the thriving villages of Comber and Stoney Point.

The gas well is properly equipped and already is supplying the motor power to the Romney oil field and is getting one-third of the gross revenue of the gas sold.

The oil wells are completely equipped with one 15 h. p. gas engine, derrick, tanks, boiler, pumps, tubing, pipe-line, jerk-line, jack, etc., and are producing daily. The oil is sold to The Imperial Oil Company, Sarnia, and is delivered at the tanks and shipped through its pipe-line to Port Marquette R. R. Station at Merlin, a distance of 3 miles.

Our properties are already giving daily a net revenue of about $35.00—that is to say, more than 10 per cent. of the whole capital stock of the Company.

This revenue may be made four times greater by the drilling of other wells and the construction of the gas-line to Comber and Stoney Point.

Fritz Cirkel, Esq., of Montreal, consulting mining engineer and mining expert to the Dominion Government, who lately made an inspection of the said property, concluded his report as follows:

"In summarizing the actual results already obtained from the operations of the Sloan wells the writer is forced to the conclusion that the property under consideration is a very valuable one. Located as it is in the western extremity of the producing Tilbury oil field, in close proximity to wells which produce from 40 to 50 barrels of oil (and even more) per day of 24 hours (I refer to the Ferguson, Campbell and Cooper properties, located about 2,000 feet distant to the north, see plan attached hereto), it bids fair to become a producer of oil and natural gas of no small measure.

The Tilbury field has already the reputation of being a large producer and powerful companies have entered the district with a view of securing properties of known and established value.

There is one factor to which I would like to draw your special attention and that is the future of natural gas. To-day, the market in that in that part of the country, for this commodity is not sufficiently large to dispose of all the gas the wells can produce but there is no question that in the near future factories will be established on central points, which will eventually consume for various purposes, especially for power, all the gas which can be produced in the field.

Besides this there are quite a number of towns and villages in the western part of the Niagara Peninsula, which may use the gas for heating, lighting, and also for power purposes and it is only a question of time when this will be realised.

The economy of the application of natural gas to power purposes is already evidenced all through the field, as coal or any other power cannot be regularly obtained, and that at high figures. Having therefore, a powerful gas well on the (Sloan) property, it is evident that a great saving is effected from this source alone; for instance, for the operation of ten oil wells, the cost of power required per day would amount to between twenty and twenty-five dollars, which, in 300 working days per year, would represent a saving of from six thousand to seven thousand five hundred dollars.

In conclusion, I may say that this property, with proper and economic management, can be made highly remunerative; I entertain, no doubt, that if properly developed, it will show similar results as those of so many other locations in the vicinity, whose developments have of so many other locations in the vicinity, whose developments have been so vigorously pushed in the past.

Respectfully submitted,
(Signed) FRITZ CIRKEL.

What they offer at 25c per Share for a short time

The property is situated at Mancos, Colo., and consists of 160 acres, fully paid for. The Company expects to secure at least 400 acres or more, we are negotiating for it now and the terms are satisfactory and there is coal on the same, and they also intend to secure some Coal Mines ot which they have the refusal. Some of che best coal mines in Colorado are in this district, as well as some of the richert gold and silver mines. In fact this is one of the richest parts for mineral in the State of Colorado, and the Company has the refusal to several prospects on reasonable and easy terms.

In our opinion the prospects of the Company are very bright, and a rapid advance in the price of the stock is sure to take place in the near future. Full in information can be had by calling at our office.

"Ha," said Paul, walking excitedly about the room. "Then it would seem that Jessop and Krill were in league?"

"I think so," said Hurd, staring at the fire, "and yet I am not sure. Jessop may have found that Krill had killed the woman and then have made him give up the brooch, which he afterward pawned at Stowley, though why he should go near Mrs. Krill's old home I can't understand."

"Is Stowley near her old home?"

"Yes—in Buckinghamshire. However, after pawning the brooch I expect Jessop lost sight of Krill till he must have come across him a few days before the crime. Then he must have made Krill sign the papes ordering the jewels to be given up by Pash so that he might get money."

"A kind of blackmail, in fact."

"Well," said Hurd doubtfully, "after all, Jessop might have killed Krill himself."

"But how did Jessop get the brooch?"

"Ah, that I can't tell you, unless Norman himself picked it up in the street. We must find these things out. I'm going to Christchurch to make inquiries. I'll let you know what I discover," and Hurd rose.

"One minute," said Paul hastily. "Do you think Miss Krill is the dead man's child?"

"Of course. She's as like her mother as two peas. Why do you ask?"

Paul detailed what Sylvia and Deborah had said. "So if she is over thirty," said Beecot, "she can't be Krill's child or else she must have been born before Krill married his wife. In either case, she has no right to the money."

"It's strange," said Hurd musingly. "I'll have to look into that. Meanwhile, I've got plenty to do."

"There's another thing I have to say."

"You'll confuse me, Beecot. What is it?"

"The sugar and that hawker," and Paul related what Sylvia had said about thuggism. Hurd sat down and stared. "That must be bosh," he said, looking at the novel, "and yet it's mighty queer, I say," he took the three volumes, "will you lend me these?"

"Yes. Be careful. They are not mine."

"I'll be careful. But I can't dip into them just yet, nor can I go into the Hindoo business, let alone this age of Miss Krill. The first thing I have to do is to go to Christchurch and see"—

"And see if Mrs. Krill was at home on the night of the 6th of July."

Hurd started. "Oh," said he dryly, "the night the crime was committed, you mean? Well, I didn't intend to look up that point, as I do not see how Mrs. Krill can be implicated. However, I'll take a note of that," and this he did and then continued: "But I'm anxious to find Jessop. I shouldn't be at all surprised to learn that he committed the double crime."

"The double crime?"

"Yes. He might have strangled Lady Rachel and twenty years later have killed Krill. I can't be sure, but I think he is the guilty person."

CHAPTER XVIII.

THE next afternoon Hurd was on his way to the former abode of Mrs. Krill. During the journey he glanced at his notes and arranged what inquiries he should make. It struck him as strange that Mrs. Krill should have told Paul of her association with the Red Pig, considering the reputation of the place in connection with Lady Rachel Sandal's murder or suicide. It would have been better had Mrs. Krill changed her name by letters patent and started a new life on her dead husband's money. The detective could not understand the reason for this unnecessary frankness.

Before leaving town he took the precaution to call on Pash and note down a description of the sailor—presumably Jessop—who had tried to obtain possession of the jewels on the morning after the crime had been committed in Gwynne street. He learned that the man (who had given no name) was tall and stout, with the flushed skin of a habitual drinker of strong waters and reddish hair mixed with gray. He also had a scar running from his right temple to his mouth, and although this was partly concealed by a beard, yet it was distinctly visible. The man was dressed in blue serge, carried his large hands slightly clinched and rolled in his gait. Hurd noted these things down and had little doubt that he would recognize the man if he came across him. Connecting him with the individual who had pawned the brooch at Stowley, Hurd fancied he might be Jessop. He resolved to look for him in Southampton, as, judging from the evidence given at the inquest on Lady Rachel's remains, that was the port of call for the mariner.

At the station immediately before that of Christchurch, Hurd glanced at a telegram which he produced out of his pocketbook and then leaned out of the carriage window. A pretty, daintily dressed little woman saw him and at once entered the carriage with a gay laugh. She was Miss Aurora Qian, and Paul would have been considerably astonished had he overheard her conversation with Mr. Hurd. But the detective and the actress had the compartment to themselves and talked freely.

"It's the safest place to talk in," explained Miss Qian, producing a bag of chocolate and eating during the conversation. "Of course, I told the landlady at the Red Pig that my brother was coming down, so we can go there right enough. But walls have ears. I don't think railway carriages have, though, and we have much to say, Billy."

"Have you found out anything, Aurora?" asked Hurd.

"Not much. A great deal considering I have been in the place only twenty-four hours. It's a good thing I'm out of an engagement, Billy, or I shouldn't have time to leave London or to look after that man Hay. I am a good sister."

"Well, you are. But there's money in the business also. If I can get that thousand pounds, you'll have your share."

"I know you'll treat me straight, Billy," said the actress, with much satisfaction. "I always say that my brother is as square a man as I know."

"The deuce you do," said Hurd, rather vexed. "I hope you don't go telling every one that I am your brother, Aurora?"

"Only one or two special friends—not Hay, you may be sure. Nor does that nice Mr. Beecot know that we are brother and sister."

"You'd best keep it dark and say nothing, Aurora. It's just as well you left the private detective business and went on the stage. You talk too much."

"Oh, no, I don't," retorted Miss Qian, eating a sweet. "Don't be hasty, Billy, or I'll tell you nothing."

Her brother shrugged his shoulders. He was very fond of Aurora, but he saw her many faults, and she certainly had too long a tongue for one engaged in private matters. "What about Hay?" he asked.

Aurora raised her eyes. "I thought you wanted to know of my discoveries at Christchurch?" she said, pouting.

"Well, I do. But Hay"—

"It's strange," said Miss Qian, nodding with a faraway look. "It would seem that Mrs. Krill knew of the whereabouts of her husband before she saw the handkerchief."

"And possibly about the murder also," said Hurd.

Brother and sister looked at one another. The case was becoming more and more interesting. Mrs. Krill evidently knew more than she chose to admit. But at this moment the train stopped, and they got out. Hurd took his handbag and walked into the town with his pretty sister tripping beside him. She gave him an additional piece of information before they arrived at the Red Pig. "This Hokar is not at all popular," she said. "They say he eats cats and dogs. Yes. I've talked to several old women, and they say they lost their animals. One cat was found strangled in the yard, and"—

"Strangled!" interrupted the detective. "Hum, and the man's an Indian, possibly a thug."

"What's a thug?" asked Aurora, staring.

Hurd explained. "I ran through the book lent by Beecot last night," he added, "and was so interested I sat up till dawn"—

"You do look chippy," said his sister candidly, "but from what you say, there are no thugs living."

"No, the author says so. Still, it's queer, this strangling, and then the cruel way in which the man was murdered. Just what a Hindoo would do. The sugar, too"—

"Oh, nonsense! Hokar left the sugar by mistake. If he had intended to

CLIMBED MOUNT ROBSON.

Clergyman Explores Highest Peak of the Canadian Rockies.

Rev. G. R. B. Kinney, B. A., pastor of the James Bay Methodist Church, of Victoria, B. C., is an explorer as well as a parson.

In company with Dr. Coleman, geologist of the University of Toronto, and generally considered one of the first geologists in Canada, and his brother, a big rancher, who has made a number of similar excursions in past years, Mr. Kinney left Yaggan on Aug. 1 last, and did not return to civilization until the 11th of December, when they arrived at Edmonton. Their objective point was to climb the summit of Mount Robson, a virgin peak and the highest of all the Canadian Rockies, said to be 13,700 feet above the sea level. Twice they went through the famous Yellow Head Pass, where the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway will be built, passing the pack trains and camps of the surveyors. The route through the pass and eastward has been decided upon. The grade is the lowest of any of the Transcontinental Railway routes, Mr. Kinney says, the average grade being only one-tenth of one per cent., whilst the steepest anywhere is only fourtenth of one per cent. The scenery is not very rugged, there not being many high mountains in the vicinity. The track will, however, pass a number of beautiful lakes, including Yellow Head Lake, which is a little west of the pass, a very fine sheet of water eight or ten miles in length. The trains will run along the shore of this lake as well as of Moose Lake, a larger body of water lying farther west, the waters of which flow into the Fraser River. Its shores are covered with timber, largely Douglas fir, right down to the water's edge.

Mount Poole is a pyramid-like mountain, not far from Yellow Head Lake, a landmark towering far above its fellows, although its height does not exceed 9,000 feet above sea level. Mount Robson is quite near where the new railway will pass. It rises 10,800 feet above the surrounding valley, a truly gorgeous sight with its almost precipitous sides and with the covering of perpetual snow on its upper part.

Ten Months' Revenue.

The financial statement of the Dominion for the month of January and for the first ten months of the current fiscal year shows an increase of $394,337 in the total revenue for the last month, as compared with January, 1907, and an increase of $9,374,542 for the ten months. The total expenditure on consolidated fund account for the ten months was $56,332,534, an increase of $10,650,229. Of this increase $2,033,244 is chargeable to the January figures for payment of subsidy increases to the provinces, amounting to $1,500,000, and of interest charges on the public debt, totalling $2,623,459, both falling due last month. For the ten months the surplus of revenue over expenditure on consolidated fund account amounted to $24,691,734. The total expenditure on capital account, as entered on the books of the Finance Department up to Jan. 31, was $22,245,429, of which $17,446,975 was chargeable to Public Works, Railways and Canals. The National Transcontinental Railway is, of course, responsible for much of this amount.

Indigestion

Stomach trouble is but a symptom of, and not in itself a true disease. We think of Dyspepsia, Heartburn, and Indigestion as real diseases, yet they are symptoms only of a certain specific Nerve sickness—nothing else.

It was this fact that first correctly led Dr. Shoop in the creation of that now very popular Stomach Remedy—Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Going direct to the stomach nerves, alone brought that success and favor to Dr. Shoop and his Restorative. Without that original and highly vital principle, no such lasting accomplishments were ever to be had

Close of the Mission Services

Yesterday morning Rev. Canon Davidson, rector of St. John's Church, preached a powerful sermon on the Holy Communion, handling his subject in a manner that showed deep thought and careful consideration. In response to his invitations conveyed during the morning service, the church was even more crowded at the evening service, which was the last in connection with the St John's mission. The music at this service was especially good, the choir being augmented by full orchestra under Mr. Gliddon. At both services the specially selected mission hymns were sung.

Do You Open Your Mouth

Like a young bird and gulp down whatever food or medicine may be offered you? Or, do you want to know something of the composition and character of that which you take into your stomach whether as food or medicine?

Most intelligent and sensible people now-a-days insist on knowing what they employ whether as food or as medicine. Dr. Pierce believes they have a perfect right to insist upon such knowledge. So he publishes broadcast and on each bottle-wrapper, what his medicines are made of and verifies his statements. That he feels he can well afford to do so because the entire ingredients of which his medicines are made are studied and understood, and have their superior curative virtues so attested by leading medical writers of all the several schools of practice, recommend each of the several ingredients of which "Favorite Prescription" is made for the cure of the diseases for which it is claimed to be a cure. You may read what they say for yourself by sending a postal card request for a free booklet of extracts from the leading authorities, to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., and it will come to you by return post.

For the cure of woman's peculiar weaknesses, irregularities and derangements giving rise to frequent headaches, backache, dragging-down pain or distress in lower abdominal or pelvic region accompanied, oftimes, with a debilitating pelvic catarrhal drain and kindred symptoms of weakness, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a most efficient remedy. It is equally effective in curing painful periods, in giving strength to nursing mothers and in preparing the system of the expectant mother for baby's coming, thus rendering childbirth safe and comparatively painless. The "Favorite Prescription" is a most potent, strengthening tonic to the general system and to the organs distinctly feminine in particular. It is also a soothing and invigorating nervine and cures nervous exhaustion, nervous prostration, neuralgia, hysteria, spasms, chorea or St. Vitus's dance, and other distressing nervous symptoms attendant upon functional and organic disease of the distinctly feminine organs.

A host of medical authorities of all the several schools of practice, recommend each of the several ingredients of which "Favorite Prescription" is made for the cure of the diseases for which it is claimed to be a cure. St. Paul's Special Services Begun

Yesterday evening the special revival services in connection with St. Paul's Church began. These meetings promise to be most interesting, and the initial one of last night was enjoyed by the large congregation present. Rev. Miss Helen Davies rendered the gospel solos in her usual inimitable way.

Ingeniously Funny

Critics everywhere declare "The Girl Who Looks Like Me" to be one of the most ingeniously funny comedy offerings of the past decade. The laughter loving comedienne Kathryn Osterman who is making a tremendous hit everywhere comes to the Grand Opera House to-night. She will be accompanied by her clever sister Anna Belmont. Here is a brief outline of the story of "The Girl Who Looks Like Me."

Professor Hugo Stanley, a scientist in order to escape for a time, the unbearable actions of an eccentric wife, goes on a long trip to Asia. His wife decides to get a divorce in secret. To conceal her procedure from relatives and friends, she engages her perfect counterpart, Irma Desmond, as a companion. After establishing the latter in her household, Mrs. Stanley disappears leaving Miss Desmond to impersonate her, both socially and in the conducting of the household. Nobody suspects the deception. Friends, relatives and servants, alike accept Miss Desmond as the real Mrs. Stanley, without question, which gives rise to all manner of funny complications.

Finally, Professor Stanley arrives home unexpectedly. Miss Desmond's dismay is terrible and in her frantic efforts to repulse the attempted reconciliation of the likewise completely deceived Professor, until the return of his eccentric wife, she raises a "rough house" to the extent of creating the impression that she is insane. This gives rise to the most excruciatingly funny comedy, situations and climaxes until everything is brought to a happy ending by explanations and reparations.

Hindoos, as British Subjects, Demand Protection

Vancouver, B.C., March 23.—Five hundred Hindoos met yesterday in the Sikh Temple, and after many exciting speeches protested against their exclusion and deportation from Canada and emphasizing the fact that this would be a strong weapon in the hands of those preaching sedition in India, sent the following cable to John Morley, Secretary for India:

"We protest against deportation and exclusion from Canada. As British subjects we claim protection throughout the Empire. If our interests are overlooked by others those in India must necessarily reason your Government's neglect."

The cable was signed by Uday Ram, who is a nephew of Dr. Davis Oband, a Hindoo of high caste, who came to British Columbia to sign out the land, but who is now agitating in India.

Inquest on "Ben" Howard's Body was Postponed

Deceased was Terribly Mangled and Had Many Bones Broken

Post Mortem on Monday

Yesterday morning at 11 o'clock Coroner Dr. Gray began an inquest on the body of the young Hiawatha Indian, Ben Howard, supposed to have been killed by a G. T. R. train near Downer's Corners some time on Saturday night or early Sunday morning. The following gentlemen were sworn in as a jury:

James Henry, Thomas Henry, Arthur Hall, P. O'Keefe, T. C. Holden, Thos. Hooper, Robt. Pullcback, Ed. Lee Welch, Ed. Jewett, John Blackford, Geo. Frost, Walter Reid, W. L. Taylor, R. Dyell.

The jury then elected Mr. Holden as foreman.

Coroner Gray explained the young man's death as far as known and advised them as to their duties in the matter. The jury gathered in the back of the furniture shop and viewed the body, which lay on a plank inside a long wicker basket. The sight of the poor fellow was enough to touch the hearts of the most callous and expressed in death in its most grim and revolting phases. The face and head were covered with traces of coagulated blood. The skull had been smashed in just back of the forehead. Acting under instructions of Coroner Gray Mr. Comstock, Junior, with a large pair of shears, quickly cut away the clothing of the deceased. As it was, the trousers and under clothes were torn to ribbons in the horrible catastrophy which so suddenly took away the life of this young Indian athlete, just in the prime of his strength. When fully exposed to view, Howard's body showed evidence of not only having been terribly mangled to death, but also of having been dragged for some considerable distance from where death was dealt out. The skin of the hands was simply torn off in strips. Judging by appearance in a casual glance, the neck was broken. The upper bone of the right arm was fractured and almost protruded through the skin at the elbow. The legs were both broken, the ankle of the left leg being smashed to pulp. Other injuries were visible to detail which, however, would only be to cater to morbid tastes. On the little finger of the right hand was a heavy gold ring, and in the pockets of the deceased were found a silver watch and ten cents in silver.

Mr. Gray advised the jury to order a post-mortem examination on the body of the deceased, and suggested that the physician performing the same should have an assistant. It was moved by Mr. Holden, seconded by Mr. Taylor and carried, that a post-mortem be held as advised by the coroner to ascertain, among other matters, what the stomach of the deceased had contained.

The inquest was adjourned until 10 a.m. Monday, to be held in the Council Chamber.

Mr. Madden Howard, father of the deceased, and other relatives were present at the inquest, as were several Indians from Hiawatha. It seems that a Mr. Crowley, a farmer living in the neighborhood of Hiawatha, whilst driving home about 8 p.m. Saturday had in his sleigh part of the way an Indian whose description compares with that of Howard's. This Indian got off the sleigh at Downer's Corners to walk along the G. T. R. tracks on his way towards Hiawatha. Mr. Crowley advised his passenger to look out for the engine, when the Indian replied, "Oh, thanks, that's all right; I'll keep out of the way of trains."

Howard's body, whilst terribly broken and mangled, shows a strong muscular development, and was in a good state of nourishment. It is thought that an effort will be made to ascertain how and from whom the deceased procured liquor whilst in the city on Saturday. It seems that the engine of the 8.40 Belleville train on arrival at its destination was badly spattered with blood.

To be a Hard Year for Catarrh Sufferers

Noted Authority Gives Advice to Prevent and Relieve Catarrh

The coming months will be a harvest for the doctors and patent medicine manufacturers unless great care is taken to keep the feet dry, also dress warmly.

This is the advice of a well known authority and should be heeded by all who are subject to rheumatism, kidney and bladder troubles and especially catarrh. While the latter is considered by most sufferers an incurable disease, there are a few men or women who will fail to experience great relief from the following simple home prescription, and if taken in time it will prevent an attack of catarrh during the entire season.

Here is the prescription which any one can mix: Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsparilla, three ounces. Shake well in a bottle and use in teaspoonful doses after each meal and again at bedtime.

These are most reputable ingredients, and can be obtained from any good prescription pharmacy at small cost.

The Compound Kargon in this prescription acts directly upon the eliminative tissues of the kidneys to make them filter and strain from the blood, the poisons that produce all forms of catarrhal affections. Relief is often felt even after the first few doses, and it is seldom that the sufferer ever experiences a return attack within the year.

This prescription makes a splendid remedy for all forms of blood disorders and such symptoms as lame back, bladder weakness and rheumatism pains are entirely dispelled.

As this valuable, though simple, recipe comes from a thoroughly reliable source, it should be heeded by every afflicted reader.

Coroner Dr. Cray Attacked and Assaulted By a Bad Gang at an Early This Morning

While on his way home at midnight Coroner Dr. Gray was attacked by a gang of rowdies at the G. T. R. crossing on Charlotte street and received a bad cut above the eye, which was still very painful at an early hour this morning.

Dr. Gray was accompanied on the way home by Mr. Duston, the assistant post office inspector, and at the Charlotte street crossing he caught up with six men. One of them struck the doctor over the eye as he was passing, stunning him for the moment. But Dr. Gray soon recovered his presence of mind and grabbed his assailant by the coat collar, and giving him to understand he was a prisoner, proceeded to march him off to the police station. The other five would-be hold-up men tried in vain to free their friend, but the coroner held on tightly to his assailant, calling as loud he could for the police.

But no blue coat arrived, and the dauntless five again made an effort to set their pal at liberty at the market, but the brawny old doctor succeeded in landing his prisoner in the police station, after having further trouble with his friends on Simcoe street.

When taken to the station the man gave this name as Patrick Lowry, but would not reveal the identity of his associates, who are still at large. Lowry will appear in to police court this morning.

Two Girls Tried to Quit Convent--Jumped from Fourth Storey

They Sprained Ankles and Were Caught --Were Injured Internally

Returned to Institution

Cincinnati, March 23.—Jennie Pennington, 14 years old, of Toronto, Ont., and Mary Cupps, 15, of Pittsburg, risked their lives yesterday afternoon to escape from the Convent of the Good Shepherd.

The two girls escaped out of a fourth storey window with the aid of a rope made of a bed sheet torn in strips, but their rope was not long enough, and they had to leap from the second storey, sustaining injuries which later resulted in their recapture. Both of them have severely sprained ankles, and the Toronto girl is injured internally, in addition.

Notwithstanding their injuries, they dragged themselves down town, where their limping and blanched faces attracted the attention of a policeman, who took them to the Central Station. There they admitted that they had fled from the convent, but insisted they walked out of the doors.

The absence of the girls had not been discovered by the sisters in charge of the convent when the police telephoned them. Both were returned to the institution this morning, and will be closely guarded during the future.

Tokio, March 23.—The Mutsu Maru, an 800 ton coasting steamer belonging to the Nippon Yusen Kaisha Line, was sunk in collision with the Hidoyoshi Maru, 696 tons, at 2.30 this morning, two miles from Todohokko, near Hakodate.

The captain of the Mutsu Maru, a majority of her 244 passengers and 43 of the crew perished. The Hidoyoshi Maru and another steamer rescued the survivors.

In the Realm of Sport

By a score of 6 to 1 the Chieftains defeated the West End team in a fast game at Brock street rink last night, thereby winning the junior championship of the city.

The game was fast and clean throughout, but rather one-sided, as the Chieftains made a runaway of it. Both teams are very fast, and some of these youngsters ought to make good in intermediate company another winter.

HAMILTON STILL HAS A CHANCE FOR MONTREAL FRANCHISE

Hamilton, March 23.—There is still a good prospect of Hamilton getting the Montreal franchise in the Eastern League this year, and the deal may be completed this week. President Pat. Powers was here last week, talking matters over with Wm. Stroud, who was a prominent figure in the old Canadian and International Leagues. On Saturday Mr. Stroud received a telegram announcing that Hamilton had a splendid chance, and requesting that particulars as to the grounds, etc., be sent on to New York without delay. If Hamilton gets the franchise there will be no international league. Fred Paige, the promoter, has agreed to turn over his option on Britannia Park. It is the intention of the present officers of the Montreal Club if it is transferred to Hamilton to put the Montreal team and outfit complete in Hamilton. Stroud is prepared to supply all the capital or organize a joint stock company. There will be no trouble arranging the financial end of it.

TORONTO PLAYERS REPPORT.

University of Virginia, Charlottesville, Va., March 23 — The Toronto team started training here today. Besides Manage Kirby, five players reported, viz., Woods, Phyle, Kinney, Jennings and Fred Pearson. The last-named is a new semi-professional catcher from Chicago, who is being given a trial. Pearson used to catch in an American Association, but was out of the game last year with appendicitis. Woods and Phyle are in better condition than they were last spring. Kirby received a wire from Armbruster saying he would report when his wife recovers from illness, which he expects will be in a few days. Weather here warm and inviting, and the players worked outdoors today in a cage at the University of Virginia.

Death of Mr. Archie Moffat

Archie Moffatt, one of Peterborough's most generally known and universally popular men, has passed away. Mr. Moffatt's death took place Sunday night at the residence of his brother-in-law, Mr. Alexander Gibson, 585 George street. The deceased was 35 years of age and was one of the best known young men in Peterborough. Mr. Moffatt was for years connected with the hardware establishment of the late Mr. John Bertram, and after being connected with several firms here, occupied an important position with Mr. Adam Hall this city.

After spending some years in the west Mr. Moffatt was connected with the Cavendish Lumber Company, and had been most of his time in the north. He contracted pneumonia, which was the immediate cause of his death. Mr. Moffatt leaves to mourn his loss a widowed mother and three sisters. They are Mrs. Starr, of Toronto, Mrs. Alex. Gibson of Peterborough, and Miss Moffatt. The funeral will take place this afternoon at 2.30 o'clock from the residence of Mr. Alex. Gibson, 585 George street.

Prominent Chatham Officer Here

One of Chatham's leading military officers, in the person of Col. Rankin, of that town, who is on his way to Ottawa, remained over Sunday here to visit his former school mate, Mr Green, barrister, and Mr. John Wood of Belmont avenue, his first teacher. The colonel is commanding officer of the 24th Regiment of that burg, and is going to interview the Minister of Militia with the view of having his regiment take part in the Quebec west, come to H. R. Spring Assizes Opened Yesterday--Chief Justice Mulock Presiding

Yesterday afternoon a large number of citizens belonging to this city and county, possibly more to the latter, gathered in the corridors of the county buildings to the east of Victoria Park, to hear the cases to be tried before Chief Justice Mulock in the High Court of Justice.

Mr. Mulock was obliging enough to the state of local justice as affected by this court, and told the grand jury to retire and appoint their foreman. If possible he suggested the propriety of saving the county the costs of a petty jury. The grand jury was as follows: David Burgess, John Carlisle, George W. Fitzgerald, Edward Gibson, R. Northey, Conn O'Brien, N. Payne, J. Rogers, Alex. Thompson, A. Taylor, T. Walsh, P. White.

In the case of Hill vs. Cavanagh, the first witness called was Mrs. D. Hill, who said she lives in Dummer, and described the lot and situation that she has owned for five years. She bought the lot. Mr. Cavanagh owned the adjoining land last spring, and sold it to her last April, when she took possession. There was only a small fence between her and the adjoining property. She took out over 700 rails and scantling from her own property and bought wire and paid four men to erect a fence. Afterwards she heard Cavanagh had sold the land to Mr. Davis. The purchaser, W. Davis, came to her and said if he knew who had bought it he would not have purchased it. She would not have spent the money on improvements if she did not think she owned the property.

To Mr. Sherry, Norwood, witness could not remember what her husband or sons were doing the week before or after the transaction in question.

The next witness, Mr. R. D. Hill, senior, told of the sale of the property by Mr. Cavanagh to Mrs. Hill. The price paid was $225. She was to pay and paid $10 down and pay $90 at the end of October out of the factory.

Here the grand jury, who had been sent out by his lordship to consider the case against the young man Mien charged many months ago with rape, returned to the court and said their verdict was "No bill." His lordship commended them on their verdict, saying if the evidence, as seen before by him were the same in this case, the jury was quite right in returning a verdict of no bill. He told them they might then go and make the customary inspection of Peterborough's county buildings, and asked them to report to him at 9 a.m.

Again the Hill-Cavanagh case was resumed. On cross-examining Mr. Hill, it seemed as though Mr. Sherry was up against it as to evidence. Mr. O'Connell offered objections to many questions, most of which were sustained by his lordship. Mr. Hill could not remember who, if anybody, was at this place the week before the transaction involved, on that week or the next week. Here Mr. Sherry asked witness "Were you ever convicted and sent to the penitentiary?" His lordship asked "What has this question to do with the matter?" To Mr. O'Connell, Hill said it was forty years ago since he did two years and some months in jail. He was convicted about forty years ago of stealing a pig. The other offence was of a boyish nature. Mr. O'Connell took exception to raking up the past history of a man buried under 40 years oblivion.

The petty jury was here dismissed and told to go to the treasurer's office and get their fees as their services would not be required.

Mr. Knox on the witness stand said that he has a lot near the spot affected. The land affected is only good for pasture purposes. He had built fences, but one in particular had taken three days to build forty-five rods.

The deeds of the property were then produced by Mr. O'Connell and carefully looked over by Mr. Sherry.

Mr. Sherry quoted several cases in support of his client's contention, reading several pages of cases already tried.

REDUCING THE WAIST LINE IN BOTH SEXES

Men and women with heavy, pendulous abdomens who wish to reduce them quickly and safely are usually advised to go in for certain tiresome twisting and bending exercises that, as a matter of fact, they should carefully avoid, as being dangerous rather than beneficial.

A far better plan is to use the following three simple household remedies, which can be obtained of any druggist at small cost, viz.: 1-2 ounce Marmola, 3-4 ounce Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic, and 4 3-4 ounces Syrup Simplex. These are mixed together at home and taken a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime.

These three make a mixture that is not only perfectly harmless, but actually quite beneficial to the system, regulating the digestion, purifying the blood, and clearing the complexion of pimples and blotches. Its chief and surprising benefit is in the rapid, natural manner in which it reduces the fat person to the normal, beautiful lines of a fine physique, it having been known to cause the reabsorption of as much as a pound of fat a day. Moreover, it does it symmetrically, so that no wrinkles or flabby skin are left behind. Strange to say, neither dieting nor excessive is advised when this simple home remedy is being used, for it will produce results independently of either, and so the patient is instructed to eat whatever he or she fancies, and is also permitted to take things easy.

Dr. Fletcher and Harry Saunders will Appear Today

Toronto, March 23.—Dr. Ashton F. Fletcher and Harry Saunders, charged with the murder of Jessie Gould, who died in the Western Hospital after an operation by Dr. Fletcher, were up for preliminary examination before Magistrate Denison this morning, but an adjournment till to-morrow was granted at the request of Mr. J. Walter Curry, who appeared for the prisoners, and who wished the case held until after the inquest is concluded this evening.

Flexible Cord Must Go Say Canadian Underwriters

Toronto, March 23.—The Canadian Fire Underwriters' Association has sent out a bulletin respecting the use of flexible cord, which says:

"On and after June 1st next, approved reinforced cord must be used exclusively in all warehouses, manufacturing establishments and retail stores. Where this cord is used in conjunction with brass sockets, they must be provided with 3-8 inch nipples and bushings. Reinforced cord must in all cases enter clear through the bushing, and be of such a cross section that it will not be necessary to cut off the insulation or any part thereof to enable the cord to enter the bushing. This will confine the use of flexible cord to such places as residences, churches, fixtures and other places where it will not be exposed to mechanical injury, but in such other places the Code rule will be called for where cords are long or exposed to injury. Rulings on specific cases will be cheerfully furnished upon application.

"The various supply houses have undertaken to have approved cord on hand, so that there should be no difficulty in carrying out these requirements. We would respectfully suggest that firms laying in a stock of reinforced cord would consult us or submit samples thereof. The class of reinforced cord which is required should be provided with an outer weather-proof braid slicked down with a smooth finish, and should be approved."

Big Rush of Americans Into the West Commences

Winnipeg, March 23.—The rush of Americans into Canada has begun. Five special trains came in Saturday. Most of the settlers are from Illinois, Ohio, Indiana, Iowa, Nebraska, Minnesota and North and South Dakota.

Almost all are experienced farmers, and many of them have from $10,000 to $30,000 with which to purchase land and erect first class improvements.

Another Publication for Peterborough

From this book and job department of The Times to-day comes a new and interesting publication bearing the title of "The Local Index." This little booklet is of vest-pocket size, and is just what its name suggests—an index to the city of Peterborough and contains, besides the usual facts and figures to be found in an ordinary directory, such interesting and useful information as the different railway time tables, street cars schedule, postal rates, fire alarm boxes, the classic telephone pay stations, stage lines, and distribution of all mails, public schedule of classes at the Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A., a carefully prepared table of distances and fares to outside points, and many other things to help the busy man. There is also a specially prepared map of the city with an index to all the streets and avenues.

Mr. Chas H. Reid, of The Times staff, is the publisher of this convenient city reference, and intends issuing "The Local Index" monthly, and the fact that we have printed 2,000 copies for the initial number, speaks well for a large circulation. The April number carries about three hundred classified business cards, but there appears no display advertising whatever. It is the intention of the publisher, however, to carry a limited amount of advertising in the future.

Taking it all in all, we think this publication will prove to be popular with the citizens of Peterborough and especially with strangers in the city.

Attack on Fortress will be Part of Great Celebration

Quebec, March 23.—On behalf of the Royal National Commission on the Quebec tercentenary, the Governor-General has cabled to Lord Elgin, Colonial Secretary, asking him to invite to the coming fetes a representative of the Town of Brouages, Champlain's natal town, as well as representatives of the families of Wolfe, of Montcalm, of Levis, of Murray, of Guy Carleton and of Simon Fraser, the former chief of Fraser's Highlanders, who performed such prodigies of valor at the taking of Quebec.

Lord Elgin has been asked to attend personally, or to send a representative, and also to invite Australia to send one representative, South Africa four, New Zealand one, Newfoundland one, France one, and the United States one.

France and the United States are also expected to send fleets to participate in the fetes.

The commissioner's present at the inaugural meeting Saturday were Mayor Garneau, Hon A. Turgeon, Senator Drummond, Col. Dobson and Byron E. Walker. With a very few exceptions, which have to be submitted to the Prince by cable, the official programme for the reception of the Prince of Wales and for the tercentenary fetes was finally approved.

The Prince will land on the morning of Wednesday, July 22, when he will be officially received by his Excellency the Governor-General, and in all probability will be presented with an address by the Parliament of Canada.

Sad Errand of Mr. P. Warner

Mr. Peter Warner, of Barnardo avenue, has returned home after his trip for the sad duty of burying his brother-in-law, Mr. Alexander Fleming, one of the trio of gentlemen killed near Kaladar. The right arm of the deceased was cut. The back of his head was cut open. His body was dragged along the track for two and a half miles. Mr. Warner went to Norwood, where he met the remains, which were laid to rest in the family plot near Baltimore, to the south of Roseneath.

DIET vs. COSMETICS

Good Food Clears the Complexion

The best "Beauty Doctor" in the world is a good, pure food. Rich, greasy, or poorly cooked foods will ruin the finest complexion a woman was ever blessed with, and all the cosmetics and treatments she may give it will only cover up, not remove the blemishes.

The treatment must come from the inside, for the pores of the skin must have the proper food to be healthy.

A lady living in the West of London, England, writes as follows:

"Grape-Nuts food has done me a world of good. Some years ago I fell a victim to a serious illness, which did great damage to my constitution. I gave up hope of ever recovering my natural good health until last winter, when tempted to try Grape-Nuts more from a liking for that kind of food than from any hope of it doing me good.

"I found to my surprise after trial of a week or two that I was getting quite plump, my voice much stronger, and my complexion was becoming beautifully clear. In fact, since eating Grape-Nuts my friends say I look 10 years younger, and I believe them, as my glass tells me it is true."

PETERBOROUGH, MARCH 24, 1908

ONTARIO REDISTRIBUTION

The Whitney redistribution proposals in Ontario will give representation to the increased population of the province—which is chiefly gathered in Toronto and in New Ontario—by adding to the size of the Legislature rather than disturbing existing electoral boundaries. This is following the line of least political resistance; but, it is adding to the cost of legislation in the province. The Legislature will now cross the hundred mark which makes a fairly large House to transact the Provincial business for some two million people. Then the addition of every new member of the House means the creation of another centre of political activity, with all its mischievous surroundings in the way of "patronage", privilege-seeking and office-hunting.

It would require courage for a Minister to take advantage of a redistribution bill to actually reduce the number of representatives by any considerable number; but such courage would commend itself highly to the non-party tax-payers. Yet it is obvious that, if every increase in population is to be met by simply adding a few members to the Legislature, we will after a time have Legislatures as large as the Federal Parliament now is; and the Federal Parliament is half as large as the body which governs—not only the forty millions of the United Kingdom—but the three hundred and fifty millions of the British Empire as well. We ought to pay some attention to proportion, and some heed to the length of the taxpayer's purse.

Cellar was Flooded

A few days ago Supt. Henderson of the local waterworks, received a hurry up call by a professional gentleman, who said, over the 'phone, "For goodness sake hurry up and get your men up to my house. One of your mains has burst and the cellar is being flooded." Mr. Henderson, with men and tools, quickly went to the gentleman's residence, and here, sure enough, the cellar was inundated to a depth of about a foot. The gentleman's wife had made a brave sallie, and had waded through water up to her knees to rescue goods stored there. The householder, after giving his opinion in red-hot language about the waterworks and its system in general, told Mr. Henderson to locate the trouble and have the water stopped. The latter gentleman quickly ascertained that no outside main had burst. The trouble lay in that the householder had by mistake turned on the tap controlling his outside water service, and whether by the outside or connection being broken or the tap left open, the flood was caused by water he himself had turned on and let run. The damage was quickly adjusted, and the householder was less severe in his condemnation of the waterworks system.

Wrecked.

A large and robust Irishwoman appeared in a New York court recently to prosecute a case in which her husband was charged with having beaten her. The defendant, a small, stoop shouldered man, had the appearance of having been run through a thrashing machine and seemed scarcely able to stand. The judge surveyed the two with an amused light in his eyes.

"You say this man beat you?" he asked the woman.

"He did not," the prosecuting witness said with emphasis, folding her powerful arms. "He knocked me down."

Mount Clemens, Michigan

Mount Clemens is famous throughout America as an all year round health resort, and thousands of people bear testimony to the benefits derived from its mineral waters in cases of rheumatism and kindred diseases. For bilious and liver troubles, nervous disorders, general debility, etc., the efficiency of its waters is wonderful; seventy-five per cent. of rheumatics are cured and 90 per cent. benefited. Write to Mr. J. D. McDonald, District Passenger Agent Grand Trunk Railway System, Toronto, for handsome descriptive booklet telling you all about it.

NOW LISTEN!

Please read carefully what follows, and if you decide to take advantage of what the "Canada Southern Oil & Gas Co., Limited," of Tilbury, Ont. (no personal liability), is now offering you, the result will be that instead of getting 3 per cent. for your savings, you will get at least from 10 to 25 per cent. that others are harvesting.

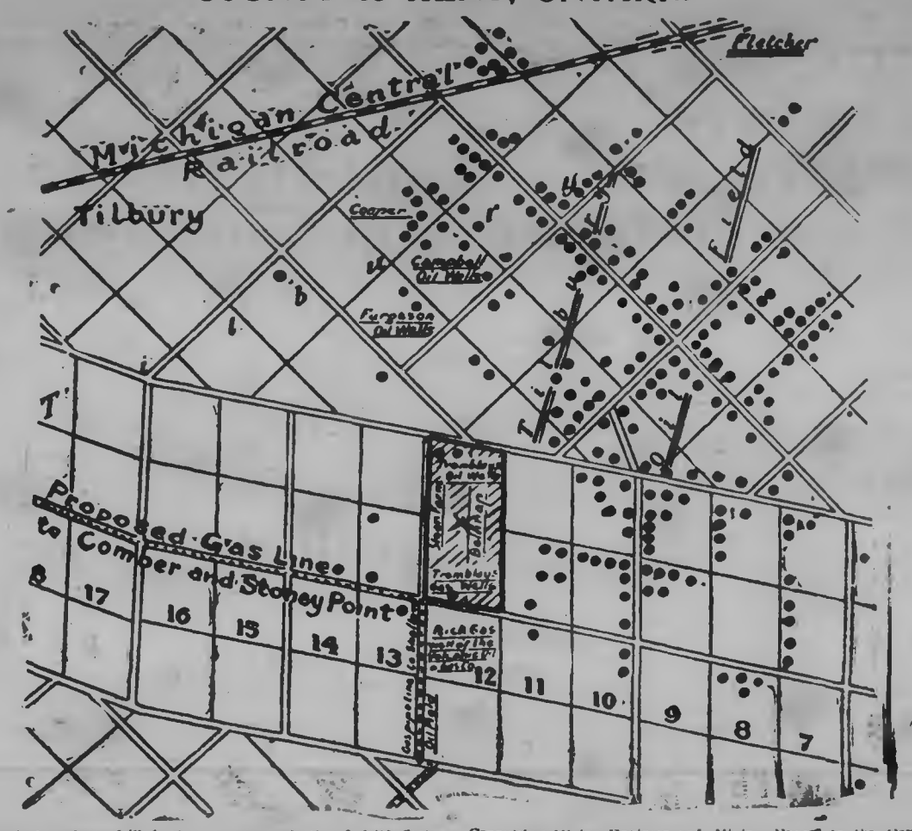
Your savings will be eight times more than the original amount by the mere fact of the higher rate of interest you will get.

Remember that this is no wildcat scheme, as you can see by the facts hereinafter mentioned.

Dr. Bell, the famous Canadian geologist, early in 1878 reported that there was an oil and gas field in the Townships of Tilbury and Romney, County of Kent, Ont. As soon as the discovery of the oil was made in Tilbury in 1906 our American neighbors, who are experts in good things, did not hesitate to invest hundreds of thousands of dollars, and now, in fact, control the two-thirds interest in our oil field of Tilbury; and this happened because we Canadians hesitated to invest a few thousand dollars in the exploration of the oil mines of Tilbury, which already give a monthly production valued at $75,000, without adding the revenue derived from the gas.

We have said that this is not a wildcat scheme, because the "Canadian Southern Oil & Gas Co., Limited," has secured an option at a very moderate price on properties situated in the oil and gas field of Tilbury, upon which three successful tests have been made, being Lot No. 12, M. R. N., Tilbury East, 200 acres, indicated with a cross upon the map of the field.

COUNTY of KENT, ONTARIO



Three wells only have been drilled at an average depth of 1,400 feet.

The first one proves to be a rich gas well, the two others are good oil wells, combined with a strong production of gas.

The Company has also secured the franchises for the distribution and sale of natural gas into the Townships of Romney, Tilbury East, North and West and also into the thriving villages of Comber and Stoney Point.

The gas well is properly equipped and already is supplying the motor power to the Romney oil field and is getting one-third of the gross revenue of the gas sold.

The oil wells are completely equipped with one 15 h. p. gas engine, derrick, tanks, boiler, pumps, tubing, pipe-line, jerk-line, jack, etc., and are producing daily. The oil is sold to The Imperial Oil Company, Sarnia, and is delivered at the tanks and shipped through its pipe-line to Fere Marquette R. R. Station at Merlin, a distance of 3 miles.

Our properties are already giving daily a net revenue of about $35.00—that is to say, more than 10 per cent. of the whole capital stock of the Company.

This revenue may be made four times greater by the drilling of other wells and the construction of the gas-line to Comber and Stoney Point.

Fritz Cirkel, Esq., of Montreal, consulting mining engineer and mining expert to the Dominion Government, who lately made an inspection of the said property, concluded his report as follows:

"In summarizing the actual results already obtained from the operations of the Sloan wells the writer is forced to the conclusion that the property under consideration is a very valuable one. Located as it is in the western extremity of the producing Tilbury oil field, in close proximity to wells which produce from 40 to 60 barrels of oil (and even more) per day of 24 hours (I refer to the Ferguson, Campbell and Cooper properties, located about 2,000 feet distant to the north, see plan attached hereto), it bids fair to become a producer of oil and natural gas of no small measure.

The Tilbury field has already the reputation of being a large producer and powerful companies have entered the district with a view of securing properties of known and established value.

There is one factor to which I would like to draw your special attention and that is the future of natural gas. To-day, the market in that in that part of the country, for this commodity is not sufficiently large to dispose of all the gas the wells can produce but there is no question that in the near future factories will be established on central points, which will eventually consume for various purposes, especially for power, all the gas which can be produced in the field.

Besides this there are quite a number of towns and villages in the western part of the Niagara Peninsula, which may use the gas for heating, lighting, and also for power purposes and it is only a question of time when this will be realised.

The economy of the application of natural gas to power purposes is already evidenced all through the field, as coal or any other power cannot be regularly obtained, and that at high figures. Having therefore, a powerful gas well on the (Sloan) property, it is evident that a great saving is effected from this source alone; for instance, for the operation of ten oil wells, the cost of power required per day would amount to between twenty and twenty-five dollars, which, in 300 working days per year, would represent a saving of from six thousand to seven thousand five hundred dollars.

In conclusion, I may say that this property, with proper and economic management, can be made highly remunerative; I entertain, no doubt, that if properly developed, it will show similar results as those of so many other locations in the vicinity, whose developments have of so many other locations in the vicinity, whose developments have been so vigorously pushed in the past.

Respectfully submitted,
(Signed) FRITZ CIRKEL.

Modest Capitalization Large Coal Reserves

This Company organized under the laws of the Northwest Territories of Canada, owns and operates the Galbraith mine located at Lundbreck, Alta. They have four vertical seams of coal traversing their property, aggregating over 40 feet in thickness. Three of these seams are developed to a depth of 350 feet, and as they pass through the Company's lands for nearly a mile, some idea of the amount of coal may be had.

The present output of the mine is about 200 tons per day. These shipments will be rapidly increased, as the C.P.R. allows its cars to be loaded with coal for points in the U. S.

What they offer at 25c per Share for a short time

The property is situated at Mancos, Colo., and consists of 160 acres, fully paid for. The Company expects to secure at least 400 acres or more, we are negotiating for it now and the terms are satisfactory and there is coal on the same, and they also intend to secure some Coal Mines of which they have the refusal. Some of the best coal mines in Colorado are in this district, as well as some of the richest gold and silver mines. In fact this is one of the richest parts for mineral in the State of Colorado, and the Company has the refusal to several prospects on reasonable and easy terms.

In our opinion the prospects of the Company are very bright, and a rapid advance in the price of the stock is sure to take place in the near future. Full information can be had by calling at our office.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

Any even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Application for entry must be made in person by the applicant at a Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-agency for the district in which the land is situate. Entry by proxy may, however, be made at an Agency on certain conditions by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

The homesteader is required to perform the homestead duties under one of the following plans:

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each on and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) A homesteader may, if he so desires, perform the required residence duties by living on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of his homestead. Joint ownership in land will not meet this requirement.

(3) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of a homesteader has permanent residence on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of a homestead, or upon a homestead entered for by him in the vicinity, such homesteader may perform his own residence duties by living with the father or mother.

(4) The term "vicinity" in the two preceding paragraphs is defined as meaning not more than nine miles in a direct line exclusive of the width of road allowances crossed in the measurement.

(5) A homesteader intending to perform his residence duties in accordance with the above while living with parents or on farming land owned by himself must notify the agent for the district of such intention.

Six months' notice in writing must be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa, of intention to apply for patent.

[illegible] given him it away."

"I expect he never thought any one would guess he was a thug. The novel is not one usually read nowadays. It was the merest chance that Miss Norman came across it and told Beecot."

"I don't believe in such coincidences," said Aurora dryly, for in spite of her fluffy, kittenish looks she was a very practical person. "But here we are at the Red Pig. Nice and comfy, isn't it?"

The inn was certainly very pretty. It stood on the very verge of the town and beyond stretched fields and hedgerows. The house itself was a white-washed, thatched, rustic cottage with a badly painted sign of a large red sow. Outside were benches, where topers sat, and the windows were delightfully old fashioned, diamond paned casements. Quite a Dickens inn of the old coaching days was the Red Pig.

But Hurd gave the pretty, quaint hostel only a passing glance. He was staring at a woman who stood in the doorway shading her eyes with the palm of her hand from the setting sun. In her the detective saw the image of Deborah Junk, now Tawsey. She was of the same gigantic build, with the same ruddy face, sharp, black eyes and boisterous manner. But she had not the kindly look of Deborah, and of the two sisters Hurd preferred the one he already knew.

"This is my brother, Miss Junk," said Aurora, marching up to the door. "He will only stay until tomorrow."

"You're welcome, sir," said Matilda in a loud and hearty voice, which reminded the detective more than ever of her sister. "Will you please walk in and 'ave some tea?"

Hurd nodded and repaired to the tiny sitting room, where he saw the photograph of Hay on the mantelpiece. Aurora, at a hint from her brother, went to her bedroom to change her dress, and Hurd spoke to Matilda when she brought in the tray. "I know your sister," said he.

Miss Junk nearly dropped the tray. "Lor', now, only think! Why, we ain't wrote to one another for ten years. And I left London eleven years back. And how is she, sir, and where is she?"

"She is well. She has a laundry in Jubilee town, near London, and she is married to a fellow called Bart Tawsey."

"Married!" cried Matilda, setting down the tray and putting her arms akimbo just like Deborah. "Lor', and me still single. But now I've got this 'ouse and a bit put by I'll think of gittin' a 'usband. I ain't a-goin' to let Debby crow over me."

"Your sister was in the service of Mr. Norman before she took up the laundry," observed Hurd, pouring out a cup of tea.

"Was she, now? And why did she leave?"

The name of Norman apparently was unknown to Matilda, so Hurd tried the effect of another bombshell. "Her master

"Oh, he's all right. He's going to marry Miss Krill and her money and is getting cash together by fleecing young Sandal. That fool will play and keeps losing his money, although I've warned him."

"Then don't warn him. I wish to catch Hay redhanded."

"Ah," Miss Qian nodded, "you may catch him redhanded in a worse matter than gambling."

"Aurora, you don't mean to say he has anything to do with the murder of Aaron Norman?"

"Well, I don't go so far as to say that, Billy. But when I got settled in the private sitting room of the Red Pig on the plea that I had come down for a change of air and expected my brother"—

"Which you do without any lies."

"Yes, that's all right, Billy," she said impatiently. "Well, the first thing I clapped eyes on was a portrait of Grexon Hall in a silver frame on the mantelpiece."

"Hum," said Hurd, nursing his chin in his hand, "he may have given that to Miss Krill during the engagement."

"I dare say," rejoined the actress tartly, "for he has been engaged for many a long day—my two years."

"I thought so," said Hurd triumphantly. "I always fancied the meeting at Pash's office was a got up thing."

"What made you think so?"

"Because, when disguised as the Count de la Tour, I overheard Hay address Miss Krill as Maud, and it was the first time she and her mother came to his rooms. Sandal was there, and gambling went on as usual. I lost money myself," said Hurd, with a grimace, "in order to make Hay think I was another pigeon to pluck. But the mention of the Christian name on so short an acquaintance showed me that Hay and Miss Krill had met before. I expect the meeting in Pash's office was a got up game."

"You said that before, Billy. How you repeat yourself! Yes, there's an inscription on the portrait—'From Grexon to Maud, with much love.' Sweet, isn't it, when you think what an icicle the man is? There is also a date. Two years ago the photograph was given. I admired the photograph and asked the landlady who was the swell."

"What's the landlady's name?"

"Matilda Junk."

Hurd almost jumped from his seat. "That's queer," he said. "The woman who is devoted to Miss Norman and who nursed her since she was a baby is called Deborah Junk."

"I know that," said Aurora. "I'm not quite a fool, Billy. I mentioned Deborah Junk, whom I saw at the inquest on Norman's body. The landlady said she was her sister, but she had not heard of her for ages. And this Matilda is just like Deborah in looks—a large Dutch doll with beady eyes and a badly painted face."

"Well, that's a point," said Hurd, making a note. "What did she say about the photograph?"

"Oh, that it was one of Mr. Hay, who was Miss Krill's young man, and that they had been engaged for two years"—

"Matilda seems to be a chatterbox."

"She is. I got a lot out of her."

"Then there can be nothing to conceal on the part of Mrs. Krill?"

"Well," said Aurora, throwing the empty sweetmeat bag out of the window and brushing her lap, "so far as I can discover, Mrs. Krill is a perfectly respectable person and has lived for thirty years as the landlady of the Red Pig. Matilda acknowledged that her mistress had inherited the money of Lemuel Krill, and Matilda knows all about the murder."

"Matilda is wrong," said the detective dryly; "Miss Krill gets the money."

Aurora smiled. "From what I heard, Miss Krill has to do what her mother tells her. She's nobody, and her mother is all the world. Matilda confessed that her mistress had behaved very well to her. When the money came she gave up the Red Pig to Matilda Junk, who is now the landlady."

"With a proviso she should hold her tongue."

"No. Mrs. Krill, so far as I can learn, has nothing to conceal. Even if it becomes known in London that she was the landlady of a small pub I don't think it will matter."

"Did you ask questions about Lady Rachel's murder?"

"No. You gave me only a hint when you sent me down. I didn't like to venture on ground I wasn't sure of. I'm more cautious than you."

To Get Rid of Mice.

The Sandwich Islands.

While the Sandwich Islands were nominally Christian territory in 1862, they have since reverted to heathenism through the influx of Chinese, Japanese and Koreans as well as many Mexicans.

Asbestus Shingles.

Asbestus shingles made of asbestus fiber and cement absorb 5 per cent of their weight in water.

Silk Culture.

Piedmont, Italy, produces about three times as many cocoons as any other Italian province and in proportion to its size is perhaps the most prolific silkworm district of the world.

Velvet.

In connection with the insistently clinging character of velvet it may be noted that this stuff takes its name from the Italian "velluto," shaggy, offering in this respect a parallel with "satin," which comes from the Latin "seta," a bristle.

Ten Months' Revenue.

The financial statement of the Dominion for the month of January and for the first ten months of the current fiscal year shows an increase of $384,337 in the total revenue for the last month, as compared with January, 1907, and an increase of $9,374,542 for the ten months. The total expenditure on consolidated fund account for the ten months was $56,332,534, an increase of $10,650,229. Of this increase $2,033,244 is chargeable to the January figures for payment of subsidy increases to the provinces, amounting to $1,500,000, and of interest charges on the public debt, totalling $2,633,450, both falling due last month. For the ten months the surplus of revenue over expenditure on consolidated fund account amounted to $24,691,736. The total expenditure on capital account, as entered on the books of the Finance Department up to Jan. 31, was $22,245,499, of which $17,446,975 was chargeable to Public Works, Railways and Canals. The National Transcontinental Railway is, of course, responsible for much of this amount.

Weak Kidneys

Weak Kidneys surely point to weak Kidney Nerves. The Kidneys, like the Heart, and the Stomach, find their weakness, not in the organ itself, but in the nerves that control and guide and strengthen them. Dr. Shoop's Restorative is a medicine specifically prepared to reach these controlling nerves. To doctor the Kidneys alone, is futile. It is a waste of time, and of money as well.

If your back aches or is weak, if the urine scalds, or is dark and strong, if you have symptoms of Bright's or other distressing or dangerous kidney disease, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative a month—Tablets or Liquid—and see what it can and will do for you. Druggists recommend and sell

And if a man, my brother.

He spurns my cry, nor pity feel,

What though of strange and alien race
Of unfamiliar form and face
He is a man, my brother.

His heart a stone, his conscience dead,
He is a man, my brother.

But down to him that love doth stretch,

The Farmer's Wife

Is very careful about her churn. She scalds it thoroughly after using, and gives it a sun bath to sweeten it. She knows that if her churn is sour it will taint the butter that is made in it. The stomach is a churn. In the stomach and digestive and nutritive tracts are performed processes which are almost exactly like the churning of butter. Is it not apparent then that if this stomach-churn is foul it makes foul all which is put into it?

The evil of a foul stomach is not alone the bad taste in the mouth and the foul breath caused by it, but the corruption of the pure current of blood and the dissemination of disease throughout the body. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery makes the sour and foul stomach sweet. It does for the stomach what the washing and sun bath do for the churn—absolutely removes every tainting or corrupting element. In this way it cures blotches, pimples, eruptions, scrofulous swellings, sores, or open eating ulcers and all humors or diseases arising from bad blood.

If you have bitter, nasty, foul taste in your mouth, coated tongue, foul breath, are weak and easily tired, feel depressed and despondent, have frequent headaches, dizzy attacks, gnawing or distress in stomach, constipated or irregular bowels, sour or bitter risings after eating and poor appetite, these symptoms, or any considerable number of them, indicate that you are suffering from biliousness, torpid or lazy liver with the usual accompanying indigestion, or dyspepsia and their attendant derangements.

The best agents known to medical science for the cure of the above symptoms and conditions, as attested by the writings of leading lights and practitioners of all the several schools of medical practice, have been skillfully and harmoniously combined in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. That this is absolutely true will be readily proven to your satisfaction if you will but mail a postal card request to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., for a free copy of his booklet of extracts from the standard medical authorities, giving the names of all the ingredients entering into his world-famed medicines and showing what the most eminent medical men of the age say of them.

POLICE

Yesterday morning long before the doors leading to that favorite club room of the Sons of Rest were opened, the pavements was crowded to the curb with men anxious to hear the C. G. E. Co. case. Mr. Gordon appeared for G. A. Scott and Mr. Kerr for G. W. Allen. These men were charged with stealing mahogany from the company above noted.

The first case was that of Allen, who pleaded not guilty to stealing a quantity of mahogany and pine lumber, and elected to be tried by the magistrate.

The first witness, Mr. G. A. Scott, said that he got some mahogany, about two boards, from Allen, about a year ago. The lumber was a gift, made at Allen's boarding house on Chamberlain street. Allen was taking care of the C. G. E. Co. patterns. Witness bought one board from the company. Allen told him he bought the boards from the company and showed him the bills. Witness identified the two boards in court, worth about seventy-five cents. Allen had showed him his receipts from the company about a week ago. Witness knew nothing about a pine door and window frame.

Percy Gilbert, next witness, works at the C. G. E. Co. He bought some mahogany from Allen last summer about twelve feet, worth eight cents a foot. Allen bought it for witness from the C. G. E. Co., and said he had a receipt, but did not show it.

Mr. Layfield, accountant of the C. G. E. Co., identified a receipt for cash sale of mahogany sold to prisoner in March, 1907. Long pieces are worth 10 cents a foot, but short pieces only half the value. Allen had charge of the department where the mahogany is kept.

Mr. Kerr asked witness, "Are you sure of the mahogany found?"

Mr. Layfield replied "Yes."

P. C. Newhall, to the box, told of having gone to the residence of the defendant and having found a cabinet made of mahogany but lined with cedar.

The magistrate congratulated the defendant on his being guilty, and, to use a slang expression known to most of the police court frequenters, "let him off."

The case against Scott was then tried. Scott, who committed was charged with stealing mahogany and other lumber from the C. G. E. Co. and pleaded not guilty. Several witnesses, including P. C. Newhall, were heard.

Mr. Layfield, sworn, said that the only way to get lumber or such goods out of the works was by throwing the same over the fence of the works.

Mr. Munroe, foreman, testified as to Scott's ability as a workman. If there was any wood to be got he would send over a requisition to Mr. Clinton. The work in question was used to make patterns.

His Worship gave a fair judgment in this case.

—The proposed new Orange Lodge was organized last night at a district meeting.

Crime Caused Jessie Gould's Death---Verdict of Coroner's Jury

Saunders Told Reporter That the Girl Had Threatened to Shoot Him

Was Forced Into Affair

Toronto, March 24. — "That Jessie Helen Gould came to her death in the city of Toronto, in the county of York, on March 19, 1908, as a result of a criminal abortion produced upon the said Jessie Helen Gould."

The above verdict was returned last night by the coroner's jury after two sittings under Chief Coroner A. J. Johnson. The jury failed to place the responsibility of the operation upon the shoulders of anyone. Harry Saunders, who, with Dr. Ashton Fletcher, is charged with the murder of Jessie Gould, was not put on the stand.

STORY TOLD TO A REPORTER.

Mr. James Percy Haverson testified that he saw Harry Saunders while he was sitting on the bench at the last sitting of the inquest. Saunders told him that he "was fixed into the affair." The girl had threatened to shoot him if she did not get a doctor to get her out of the trouble, and that she always had an idea that she would like to die herself. He arranged with Dr. Ashton Fletcher for the care of the girl. The doctor had asked him fifty dollars, but he finally consented to twenty. The girl still bothered him and he took her to Dr. Fletcher's house on College street. He remained downstairs while Dr. Fletcher and the girl went upstairs. In three-quarters of an hour the doctor and the girl came downstairs again. She suffered from cramps or pains on the way home. He said that he had asked her what the doctor had done, and she replied, "Not much."

At this point Saunders had evidently suspected that Mr. Haverson was a reporter, and would say no more.

AFTER THE ARREST.

Detective Alexander G. Mackie arrested Saunders in a moving picture show on Yonge street. Saunders admitted to him that he had kept company with the girl. He knew Dr. Fletcher previous to the time of the trouble. He said that after the girl had bothered him for some time he had arranged with Dr. Fletcher and had taken her to Dr. Fletcher's house, where she was alone with the doctor upstairs for three-quarters of an hour. Dr. Fletcher had told Saunders that the girl would be all right in a few days. She got worse and went to the hospital. He accompanied her in the ambulance, and left her there. The next thing he heard was when the undertaker notified him of the death of the girl.

EYETCHER WAS CAUTIONED.

Detective Harry Twigg, accompanied by Detective Sockett, arrested Dr. Ashton Fletcher and took him to the detective headquarters, where, after being cautioned by Inspector Duncan, he stated that after the Sunday examination, he visited the girl on Monday and then again on Tuesday, when he decided that an operation was necessary, as a miscarriage had practically taken place.

Chief of Detectives, Walter Duncan, corroborated Detective Twigg's evidence regarding the interview in the inspector's office on March 14th.

Ennismore Man Loses Bag of Flour

A few days ago one of Ennismore's best known residents, Mr. T. Crough, whilst returning home from the city, was minus a bag of flour. It seems that Mr. Crough came into the city with a load of farm produce, disposed of the same, and purchased his supplies to take back to the farm. As he was driving out to Ennismore three men jumped aboard his sleigh to get a ride over the intervening hills. As Mr. Crough drove through the "Long Swamp," this side of the lake, his dead head passengers left the sleigh. As Mr. Crough was approaching the floating bridge he happened to turn around and inspect his load. After making a careful count, Mr. Crough found that a bag of flour he had purchased in the city was "non est." In plain English, the bag of flour was missing. He turned his team about and drove several miles back towards the city, seeking his lost bag, but it was not to be found.

The usual bunch of citizens that gathers daily about the market weigh scales office had quite a joke on this Ennismore citizen who lost his goods.

West Peterborough Loses the Township of South Monaghan --Lakefield Goes to East Riding

Some Big Changes in Constituencies by Redistribution

Lakefield Satisfield

The Redistribution Committee at yesterday afternoon's sitting at the Parliament Buildings adhered to the request of the village of Lakefield by placing it in the electorate division of East Peterborough. West Peterborough loses the township of South Monaghan, which goes into its own county of Northumberland. A number of other changes were also made in several districts before the committee adjourned.

Toronto, March 24. — The proposed redistribution was made public this afternoon.

Mr. Whitney first announced a number of additional constituencies which he suggested remain unchanged. They are as follows: Three Bruces, East and West Elgins, Haldimand, East and West Kents, East and West Lambtons, Lincoln, Monck, North and South Perths, East, West and Centre Simcoes, four Torontos, East, West and South Wellingtons and Welland.

Thus constituencies, on motion of the Prime Minister and Mr. Sam Clarke (Northumberland) will remain as at present.

The Brants were subjected to a change, the township of Burford going from South Brant to North Brant.

In Hastings the municipality of Huntington goes from the west riding into the east riding.

In Huron there will be some changes, and a re-arrangement of the three constituencies, North, Centre and South.

In Middlesex it is proposed to move the township of Metcalfe and the town of Strathroy from West into North Middlesex, and the township of Lobo from North into West Middlesex.

In Northumberland the eastern riding is to remain as at present, while the township of South Monaghan is to be included in the western riding.

When Mr. Whitney reached this announcement, Mr. Clarke, of West Northumberland, put in, "And have us risk our lives crossing the lake?"

"You know," replied the Prime Minister, "that it is our doctrine to adhere as far as possible to county boundaries. The township belongs to Northumberland, and should not be in another county riding. However, I am open to suggestions. You have as much right to make them as I."

In the Peterboros, West Peterboro is to lose the township of South Monaghan, which goes into its own county of Northumberland, while the village of Lakefield — "solely at the request of the village," said Mr. Whitney — goes into East Peterborough.

In York county the municipality of Stouffville, which at present is cut in two, will all go into East York, while the municipality of North Toronto will be taken out of East York and go into West York.

"Cardwell at present is a made-up constituency," commented Mr. Whitney. It is now proposed to take from it the township of Albion and place it in Peel, in which county it is situated. The balance will remain as it is.

"The intention is to put Leeds and Brockville back somewhere where they were," observed Mr. Whitney. In the meantime, both constituencies stand over.

Quaker Football Team will Not go to Vancouver

At the meeting of the Quaker Football Club, held in the Y. M. C. A. parlors last night, it was decided not to send a team to Vancouver to compete for the Peoples' Shield representative of the championship of Canada. The Quakers have for some time past anticipated making the trip west, but owing to a disappointment with regard to financial matters the members decided not to make the journey this spring. The club will, however, continue under the name of the Quaker Football Club for another year and will make an effort to again capture the championship of the Midland League for 1908. The silver trophy emblematic of the league championship, has been won by the Quakers for the past two years, and if they succeed in winning the cup a third time, it will be their personal property. Another meeting will be held in the near future when arrangements will be made for practises.

Harry Orchard, the Assassin, Has Right to State's Clemency

Judge Who Tried him Says His Frank Testimony Against Haywood Entitles Him to Merciful Consideration

Boise, Idaho, March 24.—Governor Gooding will to-day receive official notice, as is required by law, from Judge Freemont Wood of the sentence of Harry Orchard, the self-confessed murderer of former Governor Steunenberg.

Judge Wood, in speaking of the matter yesterday, said:

"By the statutes of Idaho the common law is made the rule of decision in all cases not inconsistent with the legislative laws of the United States and of the State.

"At the common law when the court or magistrate accepted an accomplice as a witness against a co-defendant, the law implied a promise on the part of such court or magistrate to recommend such accomplice to the merciful consideration of the State, provided the accomplice thus accepted as a witness was subsequently convicted of the same offence.

"This right has been declared to be a part of our judicial system by the supreme court of several states.

"The right, however, to such recommendation for clemency depends upon the accomplice thus accepted as a witness testifying fully and fairly to the entire transaction involved, and it is this fact that makes it necessary for the trial court to review the evidence of the accomplice before judicially determining that such accomplice is entitled to the recommendations of the court for any degree of executive clemency.

"The accomplice, Orchard, having testified fully and fairly when accepted as a witness, the court recommends the omission of the death penalty."

Mormons Flock Into the West by the Hundreds

Cardston, Alb., March 24.—A very heavy movement of Mormons from Utah is in progress to this section, the population of the town being temporarily doubled and all accommodation exhausted. The season's trek from Utah promises to assume proportions of an invasion, and it is threatened that shortly there will be more Mormons north than south of the International boundary. The people are, however, industrious and good citizens, and very welcome, except for their peculiar religious views. It is likely several Mormon separate schools will be established in Southern Alberta this year.

Government Ownership a Pronounced Failure in the West

The Telephone System of Manitoba Shows a Great Loss

An Advance in Rates

Winnipeg, Man., March 25.—So far as this province is concerned government ownership of telephones is not meeting with the success which was promised while the present government was canvassing the province for re-election. The speakers told the people that under government ownership existing telephone charges would be cut in two and that after several years of operation the rates would be still further reduced. They cited the Bell schedules as ridiculous and exhorbitant and quoted the dividends being paid by the Bell concern.

All these assertions and promises are forgotten no what the provincial government has purchased the Bell system in Manitoba, and instead of a reduction in rates an advance has been ordered in certain classes. The province paid $3,300,000 for the Bell lines and equipment, and when the purchase price was announced Francis Dagger, a telephon expert, who is known all over the American continent, declared that at the price paid by the government the system could not be run on a paying basis unless the rates were advanced.

The local government then apparently began to realize the fact that at least a million dollars too much had been paid to the Bell people, and some competent experts alleged an excess payment of a much greater sum. To make a favorable showing an order was issued by the commission appointed to look after the workings of the system that under no circumstances would free telephones be allowed, and the ninety instruments for which no revenue was being received under the Bell regime were taken out unless the users cared to pay the regular rates to have them remain. This increased the earnings of the system by some $2,500 a year. But this was not enough, so an order has now been issued informing all doctors and nurses that in future their yearly rate will be $6.00, instead of $40 under the Bell rule, and thus another $3,000 or $4,000 is added to the yearly receipts of the Department of Telephones.

These two items, however, amount to little, and now the commission is considering other ways to increase the revenue, while the general service given to subscribers is no better—than—before. In fact, many persons assert that the Manitoba government is not giving as good service as the Bell company did under the same conditions. The promise of reduced rates seems as far from fulfilment as ever, and whenever a member of the provincial Department of Telephones or a member of the commission is asked when the promised reduction of rates is likely to become effective, he replies with the now stereotyped phrase, "I have nothing for publication on the matter."

Suit to Divorce Harry Thaw Regarded as a Game to Get Liberty

New York, March 24.—What is regarded by those who have closely followed the Thaw divorce annulment proceedings as the most significant statement that has been made, came yesterday in the form of a positive denial by Col. Franklin Bartlett, counsel for Mrs. William Thaw, that there was a disagreement between the members of the Thaw family. Stories of the warring times that are said to have been in progress are set at rest in the most positive terms, and the declaration is made that Thaw, at the present time, is perfectly sane.

Simultaneously with the statement of Col. Bartlett comes the rumor that there is to be no annulment or even a divorce for Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, because a friendly commission would declare her husband sane when this point in the proceedings was reached. It is said that this would stop as an end of her time caressing Thaw with her fair hands, and he much of his time with gazing in a devoted, dog-like manner at her, then the trouble between the two cannot be, the knowing ones insist, very serious. At least, it is declared they are certainly not so serious that they cannot be smoothed out in no time at all.

The statement of Col. Bartlett, made with the authorization of Mrs. Wm. Thaw, was as follows:

"The stories emanating from Pittsburg in the past few days to the effect that there has been a disagreement or controversy between the members of Harry K. Thaw's family over the suit of Evelyn Thaw for the annulment of her marriage to Harry K. Thaw are absolutely without foundation. Mrs. Thaw has been a devoted wife to Mr. Thaw's family."

"Speaking of the opinion" expressed by the alienists, Dr. Allan McLane Hamilton, that Harry K. Thaw was a hopeless paranoiac, Mr. Bartlett said that on two occasions recently he had seen Mr. Thaw in the Matteawan State Hospital, and had held long conferences with him. On both occasions, he said, Harry Thaw seemed to him to be perfectly sane.

"Although I am not a physician or an alienist," said Col. Bartlett, "this view is based on experience derived from the examination of hundreds of men in my experience as a lawyer, as a regimental commander, and in political life."

Canadian on Trial for One of the Blackest of Crimes

Detroit, Mich., March 24. — The fight for a jury to try Percy Bowin for murder ended just before noon to-day when the twelve men were accepted by both sides.

In spite of the fact that the introduction of testimony had not yet begun, the doors of Judge Phelan's court room were besieged this forenoon by a still larger crowd of would-be spectators than that which fought for admission Monday. Women were in the minority, although the judge's order excluded boys and girls under 16 from the room alone kept out a number of girls who sought admission.

The trial will apparently take the entire week. Forty-three witnesses will be heard, of whom ten are women. They come from Canada, New York and Detroit.

The Detroit girl, who has been known as Bowin's sweetheart, will be called by the prosecution as a witness, and is expected to prove one of the strongest for that side.

Bowin, however, is positive that his sweetheart will say nothing that might fasten a sentence of life imprisonment upon him.

"They think they have her at their beck," he said to-day. "But they will find out the difference when she is on the witness stand.

"I am positive I will be acquitted," he continued. "The only bit of real evidence they have against me is my trying to sell a pair of earrings in Buffalo, and that may not be so dangerous if explained. These women who have been summoned may tell of my life of dissipation, but they can say nothing that will convict me of murder."

Bowin still betrays no emotion in court, and few chance spectators would believe that he is the prisoner on trial for one of the blackest of crimes.

E. J. W. Burton Superannuated

Ottawa, March 24.—The superannuation is announced of Mr. E. J. W. Burton, Collector of Customs at Port Hope. He is placed on the retiring list, with an allowance at the rate of $840 a year, dated from July 1, 1908. The position of collector at Port Hope will now be filled, and it is expected the appointment will go to W. S. Hatcher, who has been discharging the duties of assistant to the collector.

TO SMASH RECORDS.

Hamilton, March 24. — James Reynolds, the famous long distance walker, announced to-day that he would walk from Port Hope to Toronto on June 14 on a wager of $300 that he completes the journey in thirty-three hours.

Woman Has Right to Drink in a Saloon Bar

Kingston, March 24.—Mabel Bushey, aged 18, was found in an Ogdensburg, N.Y., saloon drinking at the bar like a man. Policemen arrested her, though she was very indignant. So long as she conducted herself decently, she said, it was her privilege to drink beer wherever she desired.

"Just because I have the courage of my convictions and walk in the front door and drink what I please is no reason why I should be arrested, while women here who have their intoxicants delivered at their homes are immune."

Her mother said Mabel was of age and could go to a saloon if she desired.

The magistrate sent the girl to a home at Troy, N.Y., until she is 21.

In the Realm of Sport

BASKBALL.

The Toronto players had their first open-air work out this afternoon. The weather was sunny and warm, like a Canadian July day. Pitcher Kilroy worked on the rubber, and looks like a real good twirler. He is a great fielding pitcher. He is ambitious, twirling with either hand, but depending chiefly on his right. He is also a good left-hand hitter. Bill Phyle is pretty heavy, but is sprier and livelier than he was last year. He is very anxious to make the team, and Cockman will have to go some to beat him.

Wetzel is just as fast as ever and as a fielder is all to the good. Eddie Rudolph, Dick's brother, is bigger than the boy twirler, and plays the outfield pretty well. He is not likely to supplant any of the regulars however. Kelly is somewhat heavy himself, but is working hard to get in shape.

He kept the others going all the time. He was out in the hot sun for three and a half hours yesterday, and took a lot off. Jamieson is a rather light for the coming, but is a willing worker.

Catcher Pearson may make the team, though not fully covered from his recent illness. A bunch of players are expected to-night.

Pain can be quickly stopped. A 25 cent box of Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets will kill any pain, everywhere, in 20 minutes. Besides they are thoroughly safe. Painful periods with women, neuralgia, etc., quickly cease after one tablet. All dealers.

Local Walker Selling Cards

Dave Hartley, the local pedestrian, is out with a letter to the press, saying that he is in constant training at the Y. M. C. A. under Dick Baker. He explains that his failure to win out at Kansas City was due to illness for three days of the race here. He expects, however, to win here. His letter incidentally calls attention to cards he is selling at a nickel. Surely the citizens of Peterborough, might, in view of Hartley's past accomplishments, have put up enough to pay his training expenses and saved this local runner having to peddle these five cent cards. Still, as it has come to this, let all his admirers pay in their nickels and buy his cards.

Happy Old Age

(Most Likely to Follow Proper Eating

Engineering Magazine

As old age advances, we require less food to replace waste, and food that will not overtax the digestive organs, while supplying true nourishment.

Such an ideal food is found in Grape-Nuts, made of whole wheat and barley by long baking and action of diastase in the barley which changes the starch into sugar.

The phosphates also, placed up under the bran-coat of the wheat, are included in Grape-Nuts, but left out of white flour. They are necessary to the building of brain and nerve cells.

"I have used Grape-Nuts", writes an Iowa man, "for 8 years and feel as good and am stronger than I was ten years ago. I am over 74 years old and attend to my business every day.

"Among my customers I meet a man every day who is 97 years old and attributes his good health to Grape-Nuts and Postum which he has used for the last 5 years. He mixes Grape-Nuts with Postum and says they go fine together.

"For many years before I began to eat Grape-Nuts, I could not say that I enjoyed life or knew what it was to be able to say 'I am well.' I suffered greatly with constipation, now my habits are as regular as ever in my life.

"Whenever I make extra effort I depend on Grape-Nuts food and it just fills the bill., I can think and write a great deal easier."

THE ELECTION LAW

Mr. Aylesworth's amendments to the Dominion election law are in the direction of greater security to the public. The provision that all contributions towards the election of a candidate shall be published, together with the names of the contributors and that no company or corporation shall make such contributions is valuable, and if it is strictly enforced valuable, and if it is strictly enforced ought to be productive of of a great deal of good. The value of all laws lies in the enforcement of them, and this is specially true of those relating to elections.

That there was great necessity for very stringent legislation for the prevention of corrupt practices at elections has long been only too evident When the present form of voting was adopte dthe hope was expresse dthat it would render corruption futile, because no one could be sure that the corrupted voter "delivered the goods," but it was soon seen that this was too optimistic a view to take of the case, and that there was just as much crooked work done as in the past. The remedy, so far as it can be applied by legislation, lies, we think, in publicity. We do not believe that public men have any desire to practice bribery or resort to improper means to carry elections, but they get into a contest an dwhen the fighting blood is roused, conscience is apt to have to stand aside. Often men are absolutely convinced that what they are advocating is for the public benefit, and they justify to themselves almost any means of securing it. If, however, it becomes the law that all contributions to election funds shall go through a certain channel, and that a strict account of all receipts and disbursements of such funds shall be published, the effect cannot be otherwise than good. Candidates will then be in a position to refuse even the most indirect sanction to corrupt practices, and their accredited representatives will not dare indulge in them. We are not so simple-minded as to suppose that there will be no way of getting around the most stringent law that ingenuity can devise, but the more difficult such a way is made, the less likely it is to be resorted to.

The provision against contributions from companies and corporations seems to be similar to one contained in a Bill introduced by a private member, upon which we commented at the time. Probably no one will welcome such a law more heartily than the companies and corporations themselves. The penalties upon persons hiring or letting conveyance to take people to the polls is made heavier. There are worse practices than this one, but it is subject to such abuses that it ought to be stopped. The sooner the people learn that an election is their business quite as much as that of the candidate, and are compelled to go to the polls themselves in such way as they find most convenient, the better. The other provisions in the Bill seem to be well devised, but after all is said on the subject, we come down to the fundamental principle that the remedy for corrupt practices at elections lies with the voters themselves. It is a strange comment upon popular government that it is necessary to pass stringent laws to keep a free people from allowing themselves to be corrupted. It is the fashion to talk of the priceless heritage of the franchise, but many a man's franchise has a market quotation at every election.

THE BASEBALL CURVE

An Old Timer's Story of the Game That First Saw It.

IT WAS USED BY AN AMATEUR

According to This Old Professional Player, Arthur Cummings Was the Young Pitcher Who Was the Originator of the In and Out Shoots.

Speaking about the early history of baseball the other day, an old time professional player said there were many things not known generally.

"There is, for instance, the matter of curve pitching. Who pitched the first curved ball? No; don't name any of the men that won pennants and got $10,000 a year. The pioneer wasn't a professional, but an amateur—that is, he was an amateur until his curves made him famous.

"His name was Arthur Cummings, and he was a New York boy, a tall, thin young fellow with hair as blond as a chorus girl's. How he came to discover curve pitching I don't know, but it was generally believed afterward that he hit on it by accident. He tried it out for the first time in 1867 in a game between two scrub teams in Washington.

"The famous Excelsior club of New York was then visiting Washington as the guest of the old National club, and the two played a series of games on the old White lot. Toward the end of the series some one suggested that the young New Yorkers who had come over with the Excelsiors make up a scrub nine and play a nine of Washington boys as a sort of comic interlude.

"The suggestion was adopted, and the New York nine consisted of four or five Excelsior substitutes and a number of other young fellows, among them Arthur Cummings. The Washington nine was made up in the main of players belonging to the Junior Nationals, the crack amateur team of Washington.

"Cummings was a rising young pitcher, but no one thought that there was anything remarkable about him, and the Junior Nationals prepared to knock him out of the box. But when the first batsman fanned out the Washingtonians began to look surprised.

"'It's the darndest thing I ever saw,' said this batsman. 'I struck right out at all three balls, and every one of them seemed to jump aside just as it got near the plate. One jumped outward, another inward, and the third seemed to rise. Maybe I'm beginning to see things.'

"It puzzled Jewell, the catcher, too, not to speak of Al Mills, the umpire. Jewell caught all of the balls because it was then the custom for the catcher to stand far back and catch on the first bounce, but it made him dizzy.

"The second batsman of the Junior Nationals went to the bat and walloped the air three times too. Al Mills came up close to the plate to see what was wrong. It looked to him as if Cummings were wild.

"'Just keep your head there,' he said to the third batsman, 'and you'll get your base on balls.'

"This third batsman had a steady hand, and, sure enough, he got his base on balls. Cummings pitched the ball, and it seemed to be coming straight for the plate, when suddenly, just as it was ten feet or so away, it curved out and missed the plate by a foot. Mills called a ball.

"The next ball came straight on, but the batsman, hoping to hit it and profiting by his experience, swung his bat far out. But, instead of curving out like the last one, it seemed to jump. It crossed the plate on a level with the batsman's eyes.

"That scared him, and he just stood there without making a move until a succession of wild balls sent him to first base. The fourth batsman struck out so easily that it was pathetic.

"Well, sir, Cummings began to get more control over the ball after that first inning, and Mills had to admit that it was coming over the plate; but, except by accident, not a single Junior National batsman could touch it. It jumped; it sank; it wabbled from side to side. Mills rubbed his eyes and wondered how the thing was done. Cummings merely smiled.

"In the fifth inning one of the Nationals by dumb luck landed on the sphere and drove it into the next county. There were two men on bases at the time, and this home run brought them home. That gave the Nationals three runs. So far as I know, they made no other runs in the whole game.

"After it was all over the whole town buzzed about Cummings' queer pitching. As for him, he was as silent as the grave.

"'How do you make the ball curve?' asked a hundred persons.

"'Does it curve?' Cummings would say, innocent-like.

"And then he would shut up and be come a clam.

"When he got back to New York he was signed by the champion Athletics and became their star pitcher. Other pitchers watched him and got on to the trick, but it was three years before anybody did it as well as he. During those three years his team kept the championship.

"And that, so far as I know, is the story of the origin of the curve ball."

The Funny Part.

"Was there anything really humorous about your show?"

"Yes," answered the manager, "the critics said some things about it next day that were really funny."—Washington Star.

LINES TO LOUISA.

[The same being our forty-seventh maid who has gone to smash elsewhere.]

A week ago we had a maid
Whose memory will never fade.
You should have seen Louisa!
She plied the plates on which we dined
So very high they called to mind
The leaning tower of Pisa.

At other times they did not lean
When carried by our kitchen queen
(Whose other name was Dennis),
But rose as straight as spire or tree,
And then her model seemed to be
The campanile, Venice.

The leaning tower was first to go,
And when it hit the floor below
The havoc was appalling!
At once another crash occurred,
And then, alas, we knew we heard
The campanile falling!

I see its shattered remnants yet.
'Twas half our wedding dinner set—
The other half was Pisa.
My chatelaine her protest filed.
"Pray leave," she cried, "ere I go wild,
For Pelion on Ossa piled
Would be your next, Louisa!"

Modern Archaeology.

Pat was having an argument with a friend who was well posted in ancient history.

"How foolish of you to contend that the ancient Irish were more advanced than the ancient Egyptians," said his friend. "Why, the Egyptians must have even understood electricity, as wires corresponding to our own telegraph wires have been found in Egypt."

"That may be," answered Pat, "but the fact that no wires have been found in Ireland proves beyond a doubt that the Irish were in the habit of using wireless telegraphy."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Mount Clemens, Michigan

Mount Clemens is famous throughout America as an all year round health resort, and thousands of people bear testimony to the benefits derived from its mineral waters in cases of rheumatism and kindred diseases. For bilious and liver troubles, nervous disorders, general debility, etc., the efficiency of its waters is wonderful; seventy-five per cent. of rheumatics are cured and 90 per cent. benefited. Write to Mr. J. D. McDonald, District Passenger Agent Grand Trunk Railway System, Toronto, for handsome descriptive booklet telling you all about it.

NOW LISTEN!

Please read carefully what follows, and if you decide to take advantage of what the "Canada Southern Oil & Gas Co., Limited," of Tilbury, Ont. (no personal liability), is now offering you, the result will be that instead of getting 3 per cent. for your savings, you will get at least from 10 to 25 per cent. that others are harvesting.

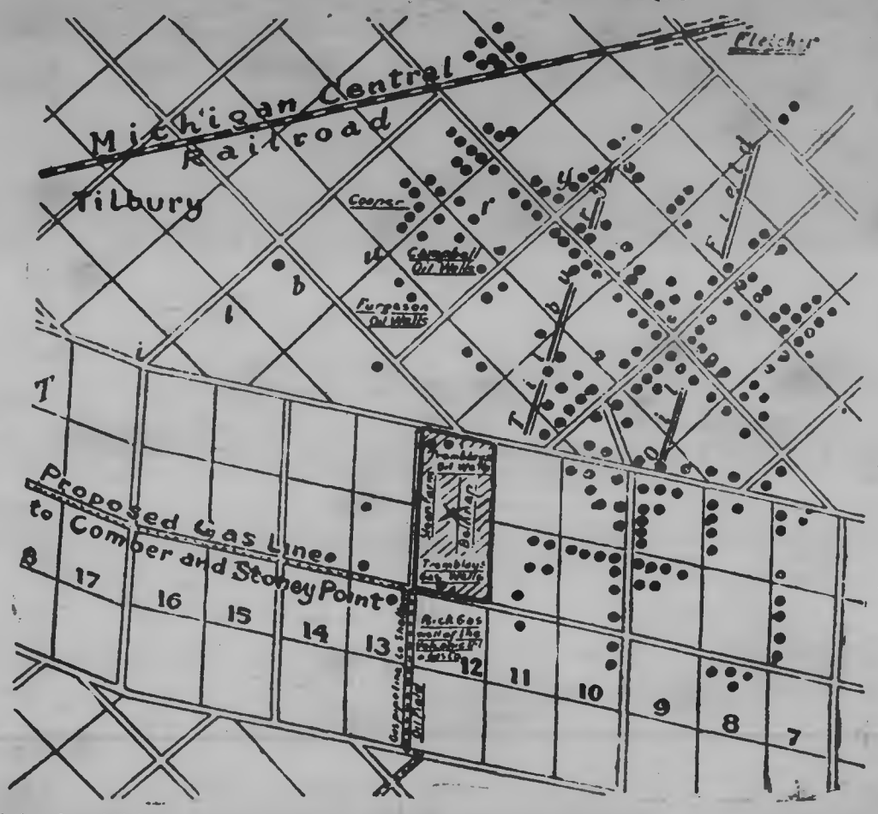
Your savings will be eight times more than the original amount by the mere fact of the higher rate of interest you will get.

Remember that this is no wildcat scheme, as you can see by the facts hereinafter mentioned.

Dr. Bell, the famous Canadian geologist, early in 1878 reported that there was an oil and gas field in the Townships of Tilbury and Romney, County of Kent, Ont. As soon as the discovery of the oil was made in Tilbury in 1906, our American neighbors, who are experts in good things, did not hesitate to invest hundreds of thousands of dollars, and now, in fact, control the two-thirds interest in our oil field of Tilbury; and this happened because we Canadians hesitated to invest a few thousand dollars in the exploration of the oil mines of Tilbury, which already give a monthly production valued at $75,000, without adding the revenue derived from the gas.

We have said that this is not a wildcat scheme, because the "Canadian Southern Oil & Gas Co., Limited," has secured an option at a very moderate price on properties situated in the oil and gas field of Tilbury, upon which three successful tests have been made, being Lot No. 12, M. R. N., Tilbury East, 200 acres, indicated with a cross upon the map of the field.

COUNTY of KENT, ONTARIO



Three wells only have been drilled at an average depth of 1,400 feet.

The first one proves to be a rich gas well, the two others are good oil wells, combined with a strong production of gas.

The Company has also secured the franchises for the distribution and sale of natural gas into the Townships of Romney, Tilbury East, North and West and also into the thriving villages of Comber and Stoney Point.

The gas well is properly equipped and already is supplying the motor power to the Romney oil field and is getting one-third of the gross revenue of the gas sold.

The oil wells are completely equipped with one 15 h. p. gas engine, derrick, tanks, boiler, pumps, tubing, pipe-line, jerk-line, jack, etc., and are producing daily. The oil is sold to The Imperial Oil Company, Sarnia, and is delivered at the tanks and shipped through its pipe-line to Pere Marquette R. R. Station at Merlin, a distance of 3 miles.

Our properties are already giving daily a net revenue of about $55.00—that is to say, more than 10 per cent. of the whole capital stock of the Company.

This revenue may be made four times greater by the drilling of other wells and the construction of the gas-line to Comber and Stoney Point.

Fritz Cirkel, Esq., of Montreal, consulting mining engineer and mining expert to the Dominion Government, who lately made an inspection of the said property, concluded his report as follows:

"In summarizing the actual results already obtained from the operations of the Sloan wells the writer is forced to the conclusion that the property under consideration is a very valuable one. Located as it is in the western extremity of the producing Tilbury oil field, in close proximity to wells which produce from 40 to 60 barrels of oil (and even more) per day of 24 hours (I refer to the Ferguson, Campbell and Cooper properties, located about 2,000 feet distant to the north, see plan attached hereto), it bids fair to become a producer of oil and natural gas of no small measure.

The Tilbury field has already the reputation of being a large producer and powerful companies have entered the district with a view of securing properties of known and established value.

There is one factor to which I would like to draw your special attention and that is the future of natural gas. To-day, the market in that in that part of the country, for this commodity is not sufficiently large to dispose of all the gas the wells can produce but there is no question that in the near future factories will be established on central points, which will eventually consume for various purposes, especially for power, all the gas which can be produced in the field.

Besides this there are quite a number of towns and villages in the western part of the Niagara Peninsula, which may use the gas for heating, lighting, and also for power purposes and it is only a question of time when this will be realized.

The economy of the application of natural gas to power purposes is already evidenced all through the field, as coal or any other power cannot be regularly obtained, and that at high figures. Having therefore, a powerful gas well on the (Sloan) property, it is evident that a great saving is effected from this source alone; for instance, for the operation of ten oil wells, the cost of power required per day would amount to between twenty and twenty-five dollars, which, in 300 working days per year, would represent a saving of from six thousand to seven thousand five hundred dollars.

In conclusion, I may say that this property, with proper and economic management, can be made highly remunerative; I entertain, no doubt, that if properly developed, it will show similar results as those of so many other locations in the vicinity, whose developements have of so many other locations in the vicinity, whose developments have been so vigorously pushed in the past.

Respectfully submitted,
(Signed) FRITZ CIRKEL.

This Company organized under the laws of the Northwest Territories of Canada, owns and operates the Galbraith mine located at Lundbreck, Alta. They have four vertical seams of coal traversing their property, aggregating over 40 feet in thickness. Three of these seams are developed to a depth of 350 feet, and as they pass through the Company's lands for nearly a mile, some idea of the amount of coal may be had.

The present output of the mine is about 200 tons per day. These shipments will be rapidly increased, as the C.P.R. allows its cars to be loaded with coal for points in the U. S.

"Well, I'll tell you everything now," said Hurd, and gave a rapid sketch of what he had learned from the newspapers and the Scotland Yard papers relative to the Sandal affair. Aurora nodded.

"But Matilda Junk said nothing of that. She merely stated that Mr. Lemuel Krill had gone to London over twenty years ago and that his wife knew nothing of him until she saw the handbills."

"Hum," said Hurd again as the train slowed down to the Christchurch station, "it seems all fair and aboveboard. What about Jessop?"

"Knowing so little of the Lady Rachel case, I didn't inquire about him," said Aurora. "I've told you everything."

"Any one else stopping at the inn?"

"No. And it's not a bad little place, after all. The rooms are clean and the food good and the charges low. I'd rather stop at the Red Pig, small as it is, than at the big hotel. The curries—oh, they are delightfully hot!" Miss Qian screwed her small face into a smile of ecstasy. "But, then, a native makes them."

Hurd started. "Curries—a native?"

"Yes—a man called Hokar."

"Aurora, that's the man who left the sugar on the counter of Norman's shop. I forgot you don't know about that," and Hurd rapidly told her of the episode.

"It's strange," said Miss Qian, nodding with a faraway look. "It would seem that Mrs. Krill knew of the whereabouts of her husband before she saw the handbills."

"And possibly about the murder also," said Hurd.

Brother and sister looked at one another. The case was becoming more and more interesting. Mrs. Krill evidently knew more than she chose to admit. But at this moment the train stopped, and they got out. Hurd took his handbag and walked into the town with his pretty sister tripping beside him. She gave him an additional piece of information before they arrived at the Red Pig. "This Hokar is not at all popular," she said. "They say he eats cats and dogs. Yes. I've talked to several old women, and they say they lost their animals. One cat was found strangled in the yard, and"—

"Strangled!" interrupted the detective. "Hum, and the man's an Indian, possibly a thug."

"What's a thug?" asked Aurora, starting.

Hurd explained. "I ran through the book lent by Beecot last night," he added, "and was so interested I sat up till dawn"—

"You do look chippy," said his sister candidly, "but from what you say, there are no thugs living."

"No, the author says so. Still, it's queer, this strangling, and then the cruel way in which the man was murdered. Just what a Hindoo would do. The sugar, too"—

"Oh, nonsense! Hokar left the sugar by mistake. If he had intended to [illegible] he would have given himself away."

"I expect he never thought any one would guess he was a thug. The novel is not one usually read nowadays. It was the merest chance that Miss Norman came across it and told Beecot."

"I don't believe in such coincidences," said Aurora dryly, for in spite of her fluffy, kittenish looks she was a very practical person. "But here we are at the Red Pig. Nice and comfy, isn't it?"

The inn was certainly very pretty. It stood on the very verge of the town and beyond stretched fields and hedgerows. The house itself was a whitewashed, thatched, rustic cottage with a badly painted sign of a large red sow. Outside were benches, where topers sat, and the windows were delightfully old fashioned, diamond paned casements. Quite a Dickens inn of the old coaching days was the Red Pig.

But Hurd gave the pretty, quaint hostel only a passing glance. He was staring at a woman who stood in the doorway shading her eyes with the palm of her hand from the setting sun. In her the detective saw the image of Deborah Junk, now Tawsey. She was of the same gigantic build, with the same ruddy face, sharp, black eyes and boisterous manner. But she had not the kindly look of Deborah, and of the two sisters Hurd preferred the one he already knew.

"This is my brother, Miss Junk," said Aurora, marching up to the door. "He will only stay until tomorrow."

"You're welcome, sir," said Matilda in a loud and hearty voice, which reminded the detective more than ever of her sister. "Will you please walk in and 'ave some tea?"

Hurd nodded and repaired to the tiny sitting room, where he saw the photograph of Hay on the mantelpiece. Aurora, at a hint from her brother, went to her bedroom to change her dress, and Hurd spoke to Matilda when she brought in the tray. "I knew your sister," said he.

Miss Junk nearly dropped the tray. "Lor', now, only think! Why, we ain't wrote to one another for ten years. And I left London eleven years back. And how is she, sir, and where is she?"

"She is well. She has a laundry in Jubilee-town, near London, and she is married to a fellow called Burt Tawsey."

"Married!" cried Matilda, setting down the tray and putting her arms akimbo just like Deborah. "Lor', and me still single. But now I've got this 'ouse and a bit put by I'll think of gittin' a 'usband. I ain't a-goin' to let Debby crow over me."

"Your sister was in the service of Mr. Norman before she took to the

"Here we are at the Red Pig," [illegible] Hurd, pouring out a cup of tea.

"Was she, now? And why did she leave?"

The name of Norman apparently was unknown to Matilda, so Hurd tried the effect of another bombshell. "Her master was murdered under the name of Lemuel Krill!"

"Mercy!" Matilda dropped into a chair with a thud which shook the room. "Why, that's my ladies' husband and father."

"What ladies?" asked Hurd, pretending ignorance.

"My ladies, Mrs. Krill and Miss Maud. They had this 'ouse and kep' it for years respectable. I worked for 'em ten, and when my ladies comes in for a forting, for a forting there is, they gave me the goodwill of the Red Pig. To think of Debby being the servant of poor Mr. Krill as was killed. Who killed 'im?"

"Doesn't your mistress know?"

"She!" cried Matilda indignantly and bouncing up. "Why, she was always a-lookin' for him, not as she loved him overmuch. And as he is dead, sir, it's no more as what he oughter be, seeing as he killed a poor lady in this very 'ouse. You'll sleep in 'er room tonight," added Matilda, as if that was a pleasure. "Strangled, she was."

"I think I heard of that. But Lady Rachel Sandal committed suicide."

Matilda rubbed her nose after the Deborah fashion. "Well, sir, my ladies were never sure which it was, and, of course, it was before my time considerable, being more nor twenty year back. But the man as did it is dead and left my ladies his money, as he oughter. An' Miss Maud's a-goin' to marry a real gent" Matilda glanced at the photograph. "I allays said he was a gent, bein' so 'aughty like and wearing evening dress at meals, late."

$100.00 paid by Dr. Shoop for any recent case of Grippe or acute Cold that a 25 cent box of Preventics will not break. How is this for an offer? The Doctor's supreme confidence in these little Candy Cold Cure Tablets—Preventics—is certainly complete. It's a $100 against 25 cents—pretty big odds. And Preventics—remember, contain no quinine, no laxative, nothing harsh nor sickening. Pneumonia would never appear if early colds were always broken. Safe and sure for feverish children. 48 Preventics 25c. All dealers.

An English Amenity.

A striking difference between our manners and those of our English cousins was shown one day at a garden party. The hostess, an American, was speaking to one of her guests, an Englishwoman of rank.

"Dear Lady B.," she said, "here are some sandwiches which I made with my own hands, particularly for you. You know I've often told you about our American sandwiches and how good they are. Here are different sorts, lettuce and cucumbers, if you care for 'grass,' or if you like a savory better try the cream cheese ones with pimentoes. I've some sweet ones, too, raisins and nuts chopped together—which will you try first?"

She held a plate in each hand, a plate filled with dainty looking sandwiches, and they were extended invitingly toward her guest, who looked at them critically, then said in the clear, high pitched voice of the well bred Englishwoman:

"Oh, thank you, so kind of you, but do you know I never touch the measly things?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Chance For a Mono Man.

A clever teacher who has the power of calling out originality in her pupils says that she would have no use for text books if she took time to answer all the startling questions asked in the classroom. One day the attraction of gravitation was under discussion when one of the boys said that he didn't see any need of it, anyway.

"It seems to me," said he, "there's no particular use in having the earth attract things. Now, when the apple fell and made Newton think out the reason for it, that apple might just as well have stayed where it was until somebody gathered it."

"You play ball, don't you?" asked the teacher. "Well, suppose you knock the ball very high, what happens?"

"It falls."

"But if there were no attraction toward the earth it wouldn't fall. Don't you think that might prove inconvenient?"

"My," cried the boy, "what a lucky chance for a home run!"

Himalayan Hospitality In a Snow Enveloped Hovel.

In spite of a poverty which limits their good intentions the inhabitants of central and south central Asia display a charming hospitality. Such, at least, is the impression gained from Mr. Ellsworth Huntington's book, "The Pulse of Asia."

At Matayan, a village in the province of Ladakh, the habitable portion of the upper Indus valley, a friendly villager invited Mr. Huntington to dive down from the crust which covered eight or ten feet of snow into a one story house. This was at an elevation of 10,500 feet.

Although it was April 11, the snow, even on a level, was higher than the tops of the houses. Where it had been shoveled off the flat roofs it formed high banks, protecting them from the wind and making them the favorite sitting room at that season and even in winter, for the sunshine is always warm in that dry, cloudless climate.

When the mule black cows had been driven and pulled out of the way Mr. Huntington descended to an almost closed shed used for the two or three hardy sheep and goats and was ushered, stooping, into a dark cave containing a little pony, shaggy like all the animals. Bending low once more, he climbed over a high sill and was in the warm, close family living room.

Light and air came in through a hole in the roof a foot square surmounted by a chimney pot a foot high made of three stones set up to keep out the snow. A few bits of ragged cloth on the mud floor for sleeping purposes, a half dozen metal utensils and an iron pot full of Himalayan tea, kept warm over some embers, comprised all the visible equipment for housekeeping.

After the host had persuaded Mr. Huntington to take a seat on the floor a half palsied old woman insisted upon adding out for him a bowl of tea. It was surprisingly good in view of the fact that a poor grade of tea leaves had been steeped half an hour or more with milk, butter, salt and soda. In richer houses Mr. Huntington was often served with tea which had been improved by being churned violently in a slender, greasy black churn, twenty inches long by four in diameter, in order to mix the rancid butter well into the compound before it was turned into the drinking bowls.

Rheumatism

I have found a tried and tested cure for Rheumatism! Not a remedy that will straighten the distorted limbs of chronic cripples, nor turn back growths back to flesh again. That is impossible. But I can now surely kill the pains and pangs of this deplorable disease.

In Germany—with a Chemist in the City of Darmstadt—I found the last ingredient with which Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy was made a perfected, dependable prescription. Without that last ingredient, I successfully treated many many cases of Rheumatism; but now, at last, it uniformly cures all curable cases of this here-to-fore much dreaded disease. These mad-like grammar wastes, found in Rheumatic Blood seem to dissolve and pass away under the action of this remedy as freely as does sugar when added to pure water. And then, when dissolved, these poisonous wastes freely pass from the system, and the cause of Rheumatism is gone forever. There is now no real need—no actual excuse to suffer longer without help. We sell, and in confidence recommend

THE GIRL WHO EARNS HER LIVING

One of the marvellous developments of modern life is the advent of woman as a co-laborer with man throughout the entire industrial field.

It follows then that woman must adapt herself to new conditions. But this can't be done in one generation nor in ten. In consequence she lives in an environment of unhygienic conditions, unsuited to her temperament and constitution.

The incessant strain upon her nervous system by reason of the new vocations she has taken up, strikes at the very foundation of her physical stability.

Work becomes worry, and this means destruction to the nervous system.

Very complex in her physical relations to life, disease early seizes upon the woman who works, and she must therefore guard jealously anything that would tend to destroy her vitality or health.

Probably nothing is of more service than Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and every girl and woman can employ this grand remedy with gratifying results.

As a system tonic and blood renovator, no treatment gives such results.

For maintaining good digestion, healthy appetite and the proper performance of the duties of the liver and kidneys, it is impossible to equal Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

Dusky, sallow complexion is changed to a healthy, ruddy glow, which proves that Dr. Hamilton's Pills circulate blood that is rich and nourishing.

Weak organs are filled with new life and vitality; weakness, irregularities and the common ills are prevented, and this means much to those who have lived in that half-sick, half-well condition that seems so hard to overcome.

When you feel poorly, when the head aches, back feels lame, and a drowsy, tired feeling creeps through you —that's what tells of the need of Dr. Hamilton's Pills; try them.

Sold in yellow boxes, 25c. each of five for $1.00, at all dealers, and satisfaction guaranteed.

"There's a Reason"

A Woman's Back

Has many aches and pains caused by weaknesses and falling, or other displacement, of the pelvic organs. Other symptoms of female weakness are frequent headache, dizziness, imaginary specks or dark spots floating before the eyes, gnawing sensation in stomach, dragging or bearing down in lower abdominal or pelvic region, disagreeable drains from pelvic organs, faint spells with general weakness.

If any considerable number of the above symptoms are present there is no remedy that will give quicker relief or a more permanent cure than Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It has a record of over forty years of cures. It is the most potent invigorating tonic and strengthening nervine known to medical science. It is made of the glyceric extracts of native medicinal roots found in our forests and contains not a drop of alcohol or harmful, or habit-forming drugs. Its ingredients are all printed on the bottle-wrapper and attested under oath as correct.

Every ingredient entering into "Favorite Prescription" has the written endorsement of the most eminent medical writers of all the several schools of practice more valuable than any amount of non-professional testimonials—though the latter are not lacking, having been contributed voluntarily by grateful patients in numbers to exceed the endorsements given to any other medicine extant for the cure of woman's ills.

You cannot afford to accept any medicine of unknown composition as a substitute for this well proven remedy of known composition, even though the dealer may make a little more profit thereby. Your interest in regaining health is paramount to any selfish interest of his and it is an insult to your intelligence for him to try to palm off upon you a substitute. You know what you want and it is his business to supply the article called for.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are the original "Little Liver Pills" first put up by old Dr. Pierce over forty years ago, much imitated but never equaled. Little sugar-coated granules—easy to take as candy.

POLICE

When the Police Court yesterday was about half over, a hurried and noisy rush was made up the stairs leading to the room by a number of excited citizens anxious to hear the trials in progress. As they rushed up, a couple of boys headed them. His Worship, looking over his glasses with outstretched index finger pointed at the boys said "Get out! If you cannot enter the court like human beings, instead of like animals, you must keep away!" The boys missed their anticipated intellectual treat.

At yesterday's police court, the first case tried was that of F. LaBarge, charge with having been disorderly in a public place. The prisoner pleaded guilty to having "had a bit of a scrap" in Holland's hotel. Mr. Holland said it was "a fair fight, no kicking or biting". His Worship remarked "I think about $2 is the cost of such fighting." LaBarge was then charged with having committed an assault upon one Henry Cassel, and pleaded not guilty. He elected to be tried by the Magistrate. The case was enlarged until to-morrow morning. Lebarge, who voluntarily called and gave himself up yesterday, was allowed to go on his own recognizance to appear for trial.

John Lowry was charged with assaulting Dr. Gray, Sherbrooke street, on Monday night. The prisoner said he was going home that night and was hit by some one. He struck back and hit Dr. Gray. Dr. Gray said he went into the post office Monday night and waited till about 12 o'clock to see Mr. Durston, the Post Office Inspector. The latter went to witness' residence to get some medicine. At the corner of Charlotte and George street, were several men, one standing by himself. The man swung his arm and struck witness, inflicting a bruise on his eyebrow. This man was alone. Witness was dazed for a moment and then collared the man and took him to the police station. The other man tried to get his prisoner away, Mr. Ed. Finney happened along with his stick and then the other man ran. Mr. Durston went to the station with them. The Magistrate said to the prisoner, "You were out with a gang and were drinking. You cannot strike inoffensive men, walking peaceably along the street. I fine you $10". The prisoner, who had not the price was sent to Castle Nesbitt in default.

Dr. Gray asked if the prisoner had ever been in gaol and said "I hate to have the poor fellow sent there." "I can understand that," said His Worship, "We must have order kept on our streets, however."

Albert Wright was greeted by the Magistrate with the words, "Oh, you are here again!" The charge was being disorderly. Albert was let go to appear on Thursday.

Wesley another young man was charged with having been "D and D". The prisoner pleaded not guilty and wanted to get the matter fixed up at once. He said he thought P. C. Manary five must have been out of order when he arrested him. He was let go on his own promise to appear tomorrow for trial.

Mr. Gordon made a strong plea for the young man, Scott, who had some scraps of wood, said to have been taken from the C. G. E. Co. The pieces were worth about one thirty-second of a cent each. They were evidently taken as being of no value. The Magistrate then read off a long list of goods alleged to have been taken by prisoner. He went on to read his decision, and dismissed the charge.

Then a slight passage of arms took place between Chief Ronzel and Mr. Gordon, as to whom should return the goods alleged to have been stolen, to the C. G. E. Co. The Magistrate decided that the two long mahogany boards, included in the goods, had not been proven to be stolen.

Campbellford Passes Steel Company By-Law

Messrs. W. Rudkins, collector of inland revenue in this city, and Mr. Jas. Davidson were yesterday congratulated by their many friends over the passing on Monday at Campbellford of the by-law giving the Canadian Steel Company a rise of five acres, fixed assessment for 10 years, and a supply of power at $10 per horse-power. The vote was almost unanimous, being 280 for and 8 against the by-law. Campbellford is developing 5,000 horse-power out of which they have sold the Steel Company 1,500 horse-power. The company will commence at once to erect buildings at a cost of $60,000, and will employ 100 men to start.

In addition to these local capitalists, it might be added that a number of local men, apart form them, are interested in the new factory. A number of American capitalists are also concerned. Peterborough tried to get this industry, but the village of Campbellford offered power at a cheaper rate than we could quote Campbellford gives them power a $10 per horse power.

Pain can be quickly stopped. A 25 cent box of Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets will kill any pain, everywhere, in 20 minutes. Besides they are thoroughly safe. Painful periods with women, neuralgia, etc., quickly cease after one tablet. All dealers.

SURELY THIS CITY HAS SET A TELE-PHONE EXAMPLE

The Times has Shown Conclusively that a Dual System of Telephones Neither Pays or is Wanted

The town of Lindsay has now a problem to solve that only experience, gained first hand, or by what has been done elsewhere, can fortell the result. The Bell Telephone Co., with their proverbial promptness in catering to the needs of their patrons arranged some time ago for placing a new switch board of most modern type in that town. Lindsay, it seems, has developed symptoms of an epidemic that has struck and died a quick but natural death elsewhere. That town has now to encounter that seemingly plausible tale about an opposition telephone service. This means that certain gentlemen, for reasons prompted by Utopian desire for the acquisition of good hard dollars, have persuaded some of the good citizens that the only thing between them and prosperity is a telephone service in opposition to the Bell Telephone Co. As far as we can learn the citizens of Lindsay, with money to invest in an opposition telephone service, have been pumped full of hot air argument showing that the Bell Telephone Co. are charging too much for service; that the Bell Co. is a monopoly with a capital "M"; that telephone connection and service can be given, with big profit at about half the price heretofore charged; that a company started in Lindsay will soon branch out and have connections, outside the town, from say, Omemee to Thibet or Benares, India. Right here in Peterborough we have had the same old chestnut dirge sung. There are a few of our local citizens who listened to the voice of the charmer when a similar tale of opposition was told here. These citizens are still alive but it would take a reformed prize-fighter, still in good trim, to talk to them about stock in any opposition to the Bell Co. If the Bell Co. were exhorbitant in their charges, careless in their service, or had any real fault behind their system The Times would be the first to show such up. The past history of Peterborough, as far as telephone matters are concerned, has demonstrated, beyond dispute, that a dual system of 'phones means loss to those who try it and disgust on the part of those who have to answer calls made by two separate, and too often, confused telephone bells. We have also seen the way in which a second telephone company branches out and gives connections with places at a distance. Here, the Ontario Telephone Co. did branch out and establish outside connections. Three telephones at Chemong Village, a year or so after this company started operations, were connected with the central exchange here. Citizens, for a consideration, had the glorious privilege of speaking over six whole miles of wire. However, the whole local plant, including its six mile extension, practically moribund from inception, passed from its short life to the realms of defunct and mistaken enterprise.

Used Breast Pin in an Attempt to Commit Suicide

Geo. Shepherd Tries to Solve the Great Mystery

Gets Two Years in Pen.

At yesterday's session of the police court, the young man, George Shepherd, who had pleaded guilty to forging and passing two cheques, one for $10.50 and the other for $25, was present for sentence. The cheques were cashed by Mr. Pappas, the George street cigar dealer, and were signed with the name of William Snowdon. The prisoner also pleaded guilty to having obtained a gold watch from Mr. C. S. S. Mitchell, the Water street jeweler.

His Worship took up the forging charge first, and asked the prisoner if he had anything to say.

Shepherd said "No," and handed a long letter to the magistrate, which the latter read.

His Worship said, "Yes, that's a plausible letter, and shows you have education and ability to make a decent living. Your letter does not tell the truth. Thousands of cheques are issued daily, and if merchants have to treat every cheque with suspicion, business would be paralyzed. You say you are a victim of the morphine habit. You have a bad police record in several places of committing forgery. The best and kindest thing to do is to put you behind walls so you can be cured of the habit. The sentence of the court is that you be confined in the Penitentiary at Kingston for the period of two years. The magistrate told Shepherd that a few years ago he might have been hanged for forgery.

Here the prisoner suddenly dagged his tie pin, one rather longer and stouter than ordinary from his tie, and ripping open his vest on the left side, made ten or twelve vicious stabs at his chest just opposite his heart.

Mr. John Hogan, the local reporter, quickly sprang at the crazed man and grabbed one arm, whilst the chief of police and other reporters seized the man and took the weapon from him.

A doctor was at once telephoned for, and Dr. Leech arrived in a few minutes. By the time the doctor arrived the prisoner had been removed to one of the cells. Dr. Leech made an examination of the would-be suicide, and ascertained that no material damage had been done.

In a spot about the circumference of a silver half dollar there were the marks of fully 15 to 20 punctures. This showed the determined and crazed attempt of the man to do away with himself, as he only had about half a minute between when he began to puncture himself, and when he was grabbed. The attempted suicide was committed as Shepherd sat in the prisoner's box and the reporters who grabbed him, and who sprang the instant they saw what he was doing, sat only about three feet away. From the prisoner's talk after the affair it was to be supposed that Shepherd had attempted suicide Tuesday night with the same pin. The number of punctures also would convey this idea. The doctor gave him a sedative and pronounced him out of immediate danger. Shepherd was searched thoroughly after the affair, and a large number of lead pencils, a fountain pen, keys and other articles were taken from him.

It might be added that Chief Ressel noted that $2.10 was found on the prisoner when arrested, and wanted to know what to do with the amount found.

His Worship thought that the $2.10 should be returned to Mr. Pappas, who had cashed the forged cheques.

Mr. Pappas, however, replied, "No, your Worship, this poor fellow is in trouble; I don't want that money, let him keep it."

The money was left in possession of the defendant.

Two Kingston Youths Fight Duel with Revolvers

Kingston, March 25.—The shooting of a lad named O'Reilly yesterday afternoon near a marsh in the east end of the city has caused quite a sensation. The lad has stated that he and another had a dispute and that he was challenged to a revolver duel, with the result that he was wounded in the neck. The authorities are investigating.

Rev. Canon Tucker's Address at Men's Association Banquet

The banquet held last night under the auspices of the Men's Association of All Saints' Church was a very gratifying success. About 175 young men were seated around tables well laden with most tempting viands, and it is needless to say that ample justice was done thereto, after which the least of reason began.

The chair was occupied by Mr. Andrew Graham, of the Men's Association, who expressed his pleasure at seeing such a large number of young men present.

Alderman Huller and Messrs. J. H. McClellan, Jas. Edgar and W. J. Howden delivered short addresses, each congratulating the association on the success of the banquet, and gave very interesting information regarding the growth and expansion of All Saints'.

Rev. Canon Tucker, of Toronto, was the speaker of the evening, and his address was listened to throughout with rapt attention. He said he was somewhat surprised to see so large a church meeting for men. His experience of men's meetings, as a rule, was a very small, almost vanishing, body of men, filling a very few back seats, and a very large body of women filling the remainder of the hall. There is in the social order and in church life an important place for men. Men were not yet abolished, notwithstanding the prominent place lately taken by the suffragettes. There was a certain amount of responsibility cast upon the shoulders of men what only they could perform, and he was glad to see that the young men of All Saints' were coming forward to take their share of the work. Life in this twentieth century is very rapid. To live at this period was a most glorious thing, and he could only wish that he were twenty-five years younger, that he might enjoy so much more of it. If he had his choice there was no land in which he would sooner live than in Canada. It is said that the twentieth century is Canada's, but the twentieth century gives Canada a world-wide mission. There are two ways of looking on life. One is to see how much we can get out of our neighbor, to see how much we can do the other fellow; the other is to do good to the other fellow. The latter aspect of life is a joyous aspect. The great instrument for doing good is the church, and the church needed the help of all young men in order that they and the church might do the fullest amount of good.

He discussed the work which had been done by the disciples and the missionaries throughout the world, and showed that there was yet ample room for the energies of the laymen. The mission of the church is to do good, and to do that it must have the help of the young men.

He concluded with an eloquent appeal to everyone present to join the church and the Men's Association.

The proceedings were brought to a close with a few remarks by the rector, and a vote of thanks to the Rev. Canon Tucker.

Thus gave Mr. McNulty the nomination.

Bars An Arobistic Newspaper

Washington, March 25. — Postmaster General Meyer has issued an order declaring non-mailable the Italian publication known as "La Question Sociale", a weekly published at Paterson, N. J. The postmaster at Paterson has been instructed to refuse admission to the mails of issues of the publication on the ground that they are immoral, pernicious and harmful to the interests and welfare of the people. This action is a departure from previous practice and is said to have been based on Section 3,893 of the Revised Statutes, which covers "every article or thing intended or adapted for any indecent or immoral use."

"La Question Sociale," it is charged, advocated murder by dynamite, the murder of enlisted men of the United States Army, the officers of the police force and the burning of houses of private citizens. It is said to have a circulation of 30,000 among the Italian population and openly announces itself as "socialistic-anarchistic."

New Cars a Success

New York, March 25.—New York, a city where transit conditions and facilities have been a constant vexing municipal problem, was introduced to a novelty in surface car transportation when pay-as-you-enter cars were placed in operation on Madison avenue line from Harlem to Brooklyn bridge. The Public Service Commission has ordered that no more than 76 passengers may be carried in a car at one time, so that there will be no crowding. Seats are provided for thirty-eight passengers, and thirty-seven passengers can be accommodated standing. One hundred and fifty of the new cars were in operation Saturday, and railroad officials pronounced them a success.

A. H. Atkinson Gored to Death in His Stables

Cobourg, March 25.—Mr. A. H. Atkinson, a well known farmer, residing near Dartford, in Percy township, lost his life on Saturday by being attacked by a vicious bull. Mr. Atkinson was found lying at the door of his stable, with injuries in the breast, which resulted in his death a few minutes after he was carried into the house. One arm was broken also. He was a son-in-law of Mr. Edwin Macklin, who resides near Cobourg, and is survived by his widow and six children. The funeral took place at Percy.

POLICE

John Anderson was charged with having been found drunk on Tuesday night, and pleaded guilty. He was fined and paid $2.

John Simpson also contributed $2 for the same offence.

Chas. Haley was charged with having been drunk and disorderly. He acknowledged being drunk, but denied the disorderly charge. A young man Fowler said the defendant came into his restaurant and raised trouble about paying for his meal. He also used bad language. The prisoner, who lives in Havelock, was fined $3, but did not have the necessary collateral.

Farmers Took Vengeance on Gypsies

Vienna, March 24.—The plague of gypsies in Croatia and Hungary has resulted in terrible reprisals by the farmers, who have suffered greatly from the depredations of these marauders. Nineteen gypsies, comprising an entire band, died suddenly near Tompokovac, Croatia, after eating portions of a cow which they found dead in a forest. It was afterwards found that the body of the cow was poisoned.

In a neighboring district sixteen gypsies belonging to another band died after eating hares which had been poisoned by the farmers and left dying in the fields. Both Croatia and Hungary are overrun with gypsies, who rob wayfarers, levy blackmail, burn lonely farmhouses, and are often accused of stealing children. The authorities have been unable to deport them and imprisonment apparently has no effect on them.

German Trade on the Decrease

Berlin, March 24.—According to the official Labor Gazette there was a further deterioration in the industrial situation in Germany last month. The trades principally affected, were iron founding, weaving, toy and leather-glove making. There was also a decline in the demand for machines, but in most of the workshops engaged in their manufacture the slackness of employment was met by a shortening of hours, and dismissals were thus avoided. The mining and electrical and chemical industries maintained their favorable conditions. The figures sent in by the sick funds which report to the Imperial Statistical Office showed a decline of 73,700 persons employed, as against 5,000 in the corresponding month last year. From the report of the Central Labor Bureau for Berlin it would appear that the situation is considerably worse in the capital than in other parts of the Empire. The demand for labor has fallen off 40 per cent.

Australia Shows Big Increase

Ottawa, Ont., March 25.—A report received by the Trade and Commerce Department from Trade Commissioner J. S. Larke, of Sydney, Australia, gives figures of the Commonwealth's trade for 1907. The total imports were £51,898,380, and the total exports £72,913,647. The growth in imports during the year was £7,080,000, and the exports increased by £3,000,000. Mr. Larke says financial conditions in Australia are sound and the outlook for continued, steady growth in the prosperity of the Commonwealth is good.

He reports many inquiries from persons who desire to emigrate to Canada. These are a fine class of men a considerable number being recent British immigrants who have not found conditions in Australia to their liking, and now desire to take up land in the Canadian West.

Chas. Carmichael Takes an Over Dose of Morphine

Toronto, March 25.—Charles Grant, Carmichael, a School of Practical Science student, died at the General Hospital this morning at half-past nine from morphine poison.

Carmichael took about ten grains of the stuff late last night while at the St. Alban's Hotel, Bloor and Bathurst street, and was found unconscious about eleven o'clock. Dr. F. W. Rolph was summoned to attend him, and as the condition of the young man was very serious, Dr. W. S. Evans was called into consultation. Both doctors worked over him until twelve o'clock, when he was taken to the hospital in Ellis' ambulance. Dr. Rolph accompanied him to the hospital, and was in constant attendance until he died.

Carmichael was 30 years of age. He graduated as an electrical engineer three years ago, and went to St. Louis. He returned to Toronto last fall to complete his fourth year, and was looked upon as a clever student in electrical studies. Deceased had not been about the University buildings for the past five days; He had been drinking heavily, but it was not known that he was addicted to the use of morphine. He boarded at 667 Euclid avenue, but as he travelled a great deal he had no permanent home.

He was born in Norwood, Ont., and no relatives survive him. He was in comfortable circumstances, and so far as his friends are aware, he had no reason to suicide.

Chief Coroner Johnson was notified of the circumstances surrounding the death and will investigate.

Decide to Have Post Mortem Examination in Suspicious Death

Last night a number of local citizens were unpalatably the exigencies of modern usage to attend at an inquest that the ordinary citizen would not have taken part in for dollars.

The inquest the question was that on the body of the late W. E. Weaver, who was burned at Anson, on the G. T. R. Grand Junction Railway.

It seems that Weaver was buried at Anson in a lat[illegible]mber in 1903. It seems further that the old true story of "Cherchez la femme" counts in this case. Evidence as far as could be adduced by the Times last night showed that the ostensible cause for suspicion of the deceased's death arose from that old yellow-eyed demon of a woman's jealousy. To get back to facts, Mr. D. Bellegheim, the Hunter street undertaker, getting word from Toronto of the suspicion of foul play on the part of this man buried two years ago yesterday, with an assistant, went down to the place of burial. Right here it might be mentioned that Mr. Bellegheim, before taking this trip, was accompanied by Mr. Miller, a detective from the Ontario Government.

Mr. Miller is one of the smartest detectives that has done business in this section, and is a successor to the late Mr. Murray.

It seems that when Messrs. Bellegheim and Miller arrived at the graveyard they found some four or five feet of snow over the grave. Mr. Bellegheim and his assistant quickly dug through this and raised the coffin containing the remains of the deceased.

After the jury were sworn in and the other usual formalities complied with, they viewed the body.

The shortest description of this will best assimilate with popular taste, as the body had been two years underground.

The jury decided to have a post-mortem examination, which will be held by Doctors Bouchier and Young. The next meeting of the jury will be held on April 8th.

Action Should be Taken To Prohibit Child Labor

Washington, March 25. — President Roosevelt to-day sent a special message to Congress in which he calls attention to certain measures as to which he thinks there should be action by the Congress before the close of the present session.

After declaring that child labor should be prohibited throughout the nation, he renewed his recommendation for the immediate re-enactment of an employer's liability law, drawn to conform to the recent decision of the Supreme Court; and urges that action be taken along the line of the recommendations he has already made concerning injunctions in labor disputes.

Dealing with the other measures, including that of the Inter-State Commerce law, the anti-trust law, strikes, financial legislation, tariff revision, and waterways commission, the President says, in part:

"I again call attention to the urgent need of amending the Interstate Commerce law, and especially the anti-trust law along the lines indicated in my last message. The Interstate Commerce law should be amended so as to give railroads the right to make traffic agreements subject to these agreements being approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission and published on all of their details. The Commission should also be given the power to make public and pass upon the issuance of all securities hereafter issued by railroads doing an Interstate Commerce business. A law should be passed providing in effect that when a federal court determines to place a common carrier of other public utility concern under the control of a receivership, the attorney-general should have the right to nominate at least one of the receivers; or else in some other way the interests of the stockholders should be consulted, so that the management may not be wholly re-delivered to the man or men the failure to whose policy may have necessitated the creation of the receivership. Receiverships should be used, not to operate roads, but as speedily as possible to pay their debts and return them to the proper owners.

A Small Blaze

In the Realm of Sport

LACROSSE.

Two additional nominations for places on the C. L. A. Council have been received by Secretary W. H. Hall. They are Blaney McGuire of Orangeville and Jos. G. Murphy of the Young Torontos. According to a wire from Brampton, Thomas E. Henry will also be a candidate.

There is very little lacrosse fever in Peterborough yet. Whether or not the city will be represented in the C. L. A. is not known. A meeting will be held at an early date to consider the prospects. There is plenty of material for a good intermediate twelve.

In order to avoid trouble, such as occurred last year when players signed certificates indiscriminately, Woody Taygart this morning put in the following amendment:

Add to Sec. 1, Page 13, a clause: "Any player who has signed a certificate to play for one club cannot sign another certificate during the same season unless the one signed has been cancelled and returned to the C. L. A. Secretary by the club for which said player has signed previous to his having played on said certificate."

In his campaign circular Mr. J. M. Kearns, of Arthur, says: "I have been a lacrosse player nearly all my life, have served on the Council of the C. L. A. and as second and first vice-president of the association. If elected to be president I shall endeavor to have carried out the ulres of the association as settled at the convention, and to deal fairly and honestly with every matter and person coming before the executive."

SKI JUMPING RECORD.

John Evanson, of Duluth, broke the American ski record yesterday afternoon with a jump of 131 feet in the last tournament of the season. The former record was 124 feet, made by Evanson at Ishpeming, Mich., four weeks ago. Ole Fehring, of Duluth, jumped 125 feet, but fell. Four others distanced the former American record. The new mark is the more remarkable because the day was warm and it was necessary to haul snow from nearby woods to prepare the slide for jumping.

MONTREAL WILL STICK.

Lack of ready money was what put the Montreal Club in a bad way, and President Powers, as soon as he looked over the situation, did not hesitate to make overtures elsewhere for the sale of the franchise. His action made the Montreal people come to time, and the indications are now that Montreal will remain in the circuit.

President McCaffery has received Gettman's and Grimshaw's contracts, the only now being three of the Toronto contracts outstanding, and these will be along at any time.

Krehn, the pitcher who has turned up at Charlottesville, the Toronto camp, looking for a trial, is a big fellow, six feet tall, weighs 200 pounds, and was coach at Lee and Washington Universities. He will pitch Friday in the first game.

Rube Waddell has entered an indignant denial to the reports that he was inconvenienced in the least by the local option situation in the South.

With Wagner out of the game, and possibly Chance, some of the National League twirlers are figuring on improving upon their pitching averages for this year.

BURNS PUTS UP $2,500 DEPOSIT.

London, March 25.—Tommy Burns has deposited $2,500 in connection with his proposal to fight two of the best English heavyweights in one ring in Paris in April.

FOREIGN COLLIERS USELES.

Washington, March 24. — In a speech in the Senate yesterday in connection with the ocean mail subsidy bill, Senator Hale dwelt upon the importance of auxiliary ships for the navy, and said: "If there should be war no Government would allow us to use one of the foreign colliers now connected with our fleet, and without them our magnificent fleet would be as useless as a painted ship upon a painted ocean."

Growing Stronger

Apparently, with Advancing Age

"In 1896 at the age of 66 years, I collapsed from excessive coffee drinking," writes a man in Mo. "For four years I shambled about with the aid of crutches or cane, most of the time unable to dress myself without help.

"My feet were greatly swollen, my right arm was shrunken and twisted inward, the fingers of my right hand were clenched and could not be extended except with great effort and pain. Nothing seemed to give me more than temporary relief.

"Now, during all this time and for about 30 years previously, I drank daily an average of 6 cups of strong coffee—rarely missing a meal.

"My wife at last took my case into her own hands and bought some Postum. She made it according to directions and I liked it fully as well as the best high-grade coffee.

"Improvement set in at once. In about 6 months I began to work a little, and in less than a year I was very much better, improving rapidly from day to day. I am now in far better health than most men of my years and apparently growing stronger with advancing age.

"I am busy every day at some kind of work and am able to keep up with the procession without a cane. The arm and hand that were once almost useless, now keep far ahead in rapidity of movement and beauty of penmanship."

"There's a Reason." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

PETERBOROUGH, MARCH 25, 1908

SOCIALISM AND REFORM IN ENGLAND

Mr. Rosebery, who is always interesting, independant and candid, and whose "splendid isolation" furnishes little comfort to either of the great parties, opposes the liberal plans of upper-house reform on the ground that socialism has become "an activ emenace" and that a strong second chamber is more needed before. In fact, Lord Rosebery intimates that, much as he hates protection, he would allay himself with the Chamberlain-tory party that is committed to a protective policy in order to avoid the greater evils and dangers of socialism.

Other statesmen besides Rosebery have lately sounded similar warnings against socialism as an "active menace" owing to the adoption of a socialist platform by the last Trade Union Congress, the growing radicalism of the labor party, and like signs and symptoms. But it is very instructive to observe that none of the party leaders and none of the factions cares to resist certain large social reforms that are being proposed and demanded, and that some influential organs deplore as "socialistic" in their tendency. All the politicians are anxious to draw a distinction between socialism and social reform. The latter is necessary and inseparable from progress, they all say. The leading tory says that his all say. One leading tory says that his party is at war with the liberals on "constitutional" measures, but quite ready to treat in a fair, open-minded spirit all their "social" measures. Old-age pensions, small holdings, proper housing, eight hours for miners, minimum wages, and strict regulation for the sweated industries, taxation of land values—these are social reform measures. Restriction of the power of the lords, abolition of the vested interest feature of the liquor traffic, semi-secularization of the schools—these are constitutional proposals, and as to them the government may be fought bitterly without fear of offending the democratic masses.

Lord Rosebery does not indicate where socialism begins in his judgment and mere reform ends. If he expects the upper house to see and scent "socialism" in old-age pensions, for example, in housing bills, in interference with sweated industries, he is likely to be disappointed in some respects, for all observers agree that Mr. Balfour and his fellow leaders of the tory party will advise the lords to make large concessions to the government as regards social legislation. But the government itself drew the line yesterday at the so-called "right to work" bill, and John Burns, the labor member of the cabinet, declared that if it had made any mistake up to the vote on that bill it was the mistake of going too far.

DESIRE OF DISTINCTION.

Quaint Illustration of a Peculiar Phase of Human Nature.

In "Doc Gordon," by Mary E. Wilkins-Freeman, is a quaint illustration of a peculiar phase of human nature. It develops with the visits of the two doctors to their poorer patients:

James drove all the morning with Dr. Gordon about the New Jersey country. The country people were either saturnine with an odd shyness, which had something almost hostile in it, or they were effusively hospitable, forcing apple jack upon the two doctors. James was much struck by the curious unconcern shown by the relatives of the patients and even by the patients themselves. In only one case, that of a child suffering from a bad case of measles, was much interest evinced. The majority of the patients were the very old and middle aged, and they discussed and heard discussed their symptoms with much the same attitude as they might have discussed the mechanism of a wooden doll. If any emotion was shown, it was that of a singular inverted pride. "I had a terrible night, doctor," said one old woman, and a smirk of self conceit was over her ancient face. "Yes, mother did have an awful night," said her married daughter, with a triumphant expression. Even the children clustering about the doctor looked unconsciously proud because their old grandmother had had an awful night. The call of the two doctors at the house was positively hilarious. Quantities of old apple jack were forced upon them. The old woman in the adjoining bedroom, although she was evidently suffering, kept calling out a feeble joke in her cackling old voice.

"Those people seem positively elated because that old soul is sick," said James when he and the doctor were again in the buggy.

"They are," said Dr. Gordon; "even the old woman herself, who knows well enough that she has not long to live. Did you ever think that the desire of distinction was one of the most, perhaps the most, intense purely spiritual emotion of the human soul? Look at the way these people live here, grubbing away at the soil like ants. The most of them have in their lives just three ways of attracting notice, the momentary consideration of their kind—birth, marriage, sickness and death. With the first they are hardly actively concerned; even with the second many have nothing to do. There are more women than men, as usual, and, although the women want to marry, all the men do not. There remains only sickness and death for a standby, so to speak. If one of them is really sick and dies, the people are aroused to take notice. The sick person and the corpse have a certain state and dignity which they have never attained before. Why, bless you, man, I have one patient, a middle aged woman, who has been laid up for years with rheumatism, and she is fairly vainglorious, and so is her mother. She brags of her invalid daughter. If she had been merely an old maid on her hands, she would have been ashamed of her, and the woman herself would have been sour and discontented. But she has fairly married rheumatism. It has been to her as a husband and children. I tell you, young man, one has to have his little footstool of elevation among his fellows, even if it is a mighty queer one, or he loses his self respect, and self respect is the best jewel we have."

Much Wanted.

The following advertisement, quoted from a Boston paper of a date early in the nineteenth century by Mr. Janson in "The Stranger in America," shows that the domestic problem is not one of modern manufacture. But what mistress of today would dare to impose such conditions on the hindrance in the kitchen?

Much Wanted: A neat, well behaved female to do kitchen work in a small family in Charlestown, near Boston. She may pray and sing hymns, but not over the dishkettle. She may go to meeting, but not belong to the congregation of midnight worshipers.

Inquire at Repertory office, near Boston.

A Natural Fortress.

In the northern part of Madagascar is the most remarkable natural fortress in the world. It is occupied by a wild tribe who call themselves the People of the Rocks. The fortress is a lofty and precipitous rock of enormous size, 1,000 feet high and eight square miles in area. Its sides are so steep that it cannot be climbed without artificial means. Within it is hollow, and the only entrance is by a subterranean passage.—St. James' Gazette.

Thrift.

There is an old fashioned word that ought to come into use again—thrift. There are a distressing number of shiftless people in the world, and, while we shall call no names, we hope every reader will pause at this paragraph and think seriously of thrift and shiftlessness.

The Changed View.

Every man takes care that his neighbor does not cheat him. But a day comes when he begins to care that he does not cheat his neighbor. Then all goes well. He has changed his market cart into a chariot of the sun.—Emerson.

A Little Balk.

Cassidy—Ah, well, no wan kin prevint w'at's past an' gone. Casey—Ye could if ye only acted quick enough. Cassidy—Go long, man! How could yer? Casey—Stop it before it happens.

A common danger produces unanimity.—Latin Proverb.

—Mr. Jack Dunslow, who recently returned to the city after an extended tour of Great Britain, has brought here the first set of "Diavolo," the game that of late has set Europe wild. This game consists mainly of a celluloid, rubber and metal affair, shaped like an old-fashioned egg boiler, or like two capital Y's placed back to back. The trick is to catch this double jointed elusion diabolo on a string suspended between two miniature fishing poles. The man who can whirl this diabolo in the air and catch it on return on the string aforesaid is entitled to a certificate of good character by the most exacting temperance sporting league.

The Outing Magazine for April

The Outing Magazine for April is an editorial achievement. Not only are some of the best names in magazine writers found in it, but several subjects of the utmost concern to Americans are handled here with an inclusiveness of style, a vigor of presentation and a mastery of picturesqueness that is unusual, even in this day of magazines.

In the April issue Miss Agnes C. Laut, shrewed and experienced observer of current affairs, writes upon "The New Spirit of the Farm." The author vividly shows how Science, by its discoveries, has made farming a profession, and has rung the knell of the old-time farmers who refused to tolerate book learning". While she incidentally tells of the work of the agricultural colleges and of the government experiment stations, she devotes the most of her article to the human story of what the new farming is and what it means to present-day life.

Mr. Vance Thompson, globe trotter and student of men, contributes an article called "The Vagabonds of France". Mr. Thompson mingled with the French tramps for a period and found them to be unique among the hobos of the earth.

Mr. Robert Dunn, in an article entitled "Saving College Graduates", describes the work of the University Clubs in New York City, such as those of Columbia, Yale, Cornell, Harvard, Princeton, Brown and Pennsylvania.

"The Practical Motor Boat", by H. P. Ferrell, will be found of value to any who are interested in the cost of journeying comfortably by water.

Mr. Ralph D. Paine in his April instalment of Old Salem Ships and Sailormen, presents some new facts and several new true stories of personal achievement bearing upon the topic of privateering in the Revolution.

For the amateur poultryman, an article by Horace P. Sandow, entitled "Profitable Chicken Raising", will provide many useful hints.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

NOW LISTEN!

Please read carefully what follows, and if you decide to take advantage of what the "Canada Southern Oil & Gas Co., Limited," of Tilbury, Ont (no personal liability), is now offering you, the result will be that instead of getting 3 per cent. for your savings, you will get at least from 10 to 25 per cent. that others are harvesting.

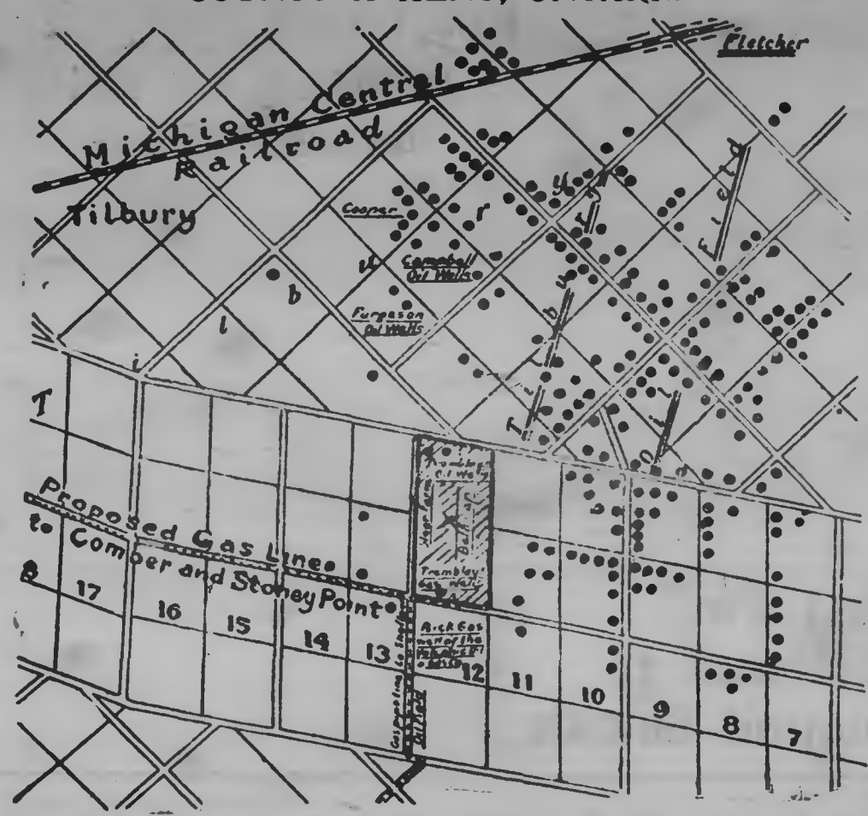
Your savings will be eight times more than the original amount by the mere fact of the higher rate of interest you will get.

Remember that this is no wildcat scheme, as you can see by the facts hereinafter mentioned.

Dr. Bell, the famous Canadian geologist, early in 1878 reported that there was an oil and gas field in the Townships of Tilbury and Romney, County of Kent, Ont. As soon as the discovery of the oil was made in Tilbury in 1906, our American neighbors, who are experts in good things, did not hesitate to invest hundreds of thousands of dollars, and now, in fact, control the two thirds interest in our oil field of Tilbury; and this happened because we Canadians hesitated to invest a few thousand dollars in the exploration of the oil mines of Tilbury, which already give a monthly production valued at $75,000, without adding the revenue derived from the gas.

We have said that this is not a wildcat scheme, because the "Canadian Southern Oil & Gas Co., Limited," has secured an option at a very moderate price on properties situated in the oil and gas field of Tilbury, upon which three successful tests have been made, being Lot No. 12, M. R. N., Tilbury East, 200 acres, indicated with a cross upon the map of the field.

COUNTY of KENT, ONTARIO



Three wells only have been drilled at an average depth of 1,400 feet.

The first one proves to be a rich gas well, the two others are good oil wells, combined with a strong production of gas.

The Company has also secured the franchises for the distribution and sale of natural gas into the Townships of Romney, Tilbury East, North and West and also into the thriving villages of Comber and Stoney Point.

The gas well is properly equipped and already is supplying the motor power to the Romney oil field and is getting one-third of the gross revenue of the gas sold.

The oil wells are completely equipped with one 15 h. p. gas engine, derrick, tanks, boiler, pumps, tubing, pipe-line, jerk-line, jack, etc., and are producing daily. The oil is sold to The Imperial Oil Company, Sarnia, and is delivered at the tanks and shipped through its pipe-line to Pere Marquette R. R. Station at Merlin, a distance of 8 miles.

Our properties are already giving daily a net revenue of about $25.00—that is to say, more than 10 per cent. of the whole capital stock of the Company.

This revenue may be made four times greater by the drilling of other wells and the construction of the gas-line to Comber and Stoney Point.

Fritz Cirkel, Esq., of Montreal, consulting mining engineer and mining expert to the Dominion Government, who lately made an inspection of the said property, concluded his report as follows:

"In summarizing the actual results already obtained from the operations of the Sloan wells the writer is forced to the conclusion that the property under consideration is a very valuable one. Located as it is in the western extremity of the producing Tilbury oil field, in close proximity to wells which produce from 40 to 60 barrels of oil (and even more) per day of 24 hours (I refer to the Ferguson, Campbell and Cooper properties, located about 2,000 feet distant to the north, see plan attached hereto), it bids fair to become a producer of oil and natural gas of no small measure.

The Tilbury field has already the reputation of being a large producer and powerful companies have entered the district with a view of securing properties of known and established value.

There is one factor to which I would like to draw your special attention and that is the future of natural gas. To-day, the market in that in that part of the country, for this commodity is not sufficiently large to dispose of all the gas the wells can produce but there is no question that in the near future factories will be established on central points, which will eventually consume for various purposes, especially for power, all the gas which can be produced in the field.

Besides this there are quite a number of towns and villages in the western part of the Niagara Peninsula, which may use the gas for heating, lighting, and also for power purposes and it is only a question of time when this will be realised.

The economy of the application of natural gas to power purposes is already evidenced all through the field, as coal or any other power cannot be regularly obtained, and that at high figures. Having therefore, a powerful gas well on the (Sloan) property, it is evident that a great saving is effected from this source alone; for instance, for the operation of ten oil wells, the cost of power required per day would amount to between twenty and twenty-five dollars, which, in 300 working days per year, would represent a saving of from six thousand to seven thousand five hundred dollars.

In conclusion, I may say that this property, with proper and economic management, can be made highly remunerative; I entertain, no doubt, that if properly developed, it will show similar results as those of so many other locations in the vicinity, whose developments have of so many other locations in the vicinity, whose developments have been so vigorously pushed in the past.

Respectfully submitted,
(Signed) FRITZ CIRKEL.

Good coal stock is a safe and sure investment. Galbraith shares are especially attractive.

Modest Capitalization Large Coal Reserves

This Company organized under the laws of the Northwest Territories of Canada, owns and operates the Galbraith mine located at Lundbreck, Alta. They have four vertical seams of coal traversing their property, aggregating over 40 feet in thickness. Three of these seams are developed to a depth of 350 feet, and as they pass through the Company's lands for nearly a mile, some idea of the amount of coal may be had.

The present output of the mine is about 200 tons per day. These shipments will be rapidly increased, as the C.P.R. allows its cars to be loaded with coal for points in the U. S.

What they offer at 25c per Share for a short time

The property is situated at Mancos, Colo., and consists of 160 acres, fully paid for. The Company expects to secure at least 400 acres or more, we are negotiating for it now and the terms are satisfactory and there is coal on the same, and they also intend to secure some Coal Mines of which they have the refusal. Some of the best coal mines in Colorado are in this district, as well as some of the richest gold and silver mines. In fact this is one of the richest parts for mineral in the State of Colorado, and the Company has the refusal to several prospects on reasonable and easy terms.

In our opinion the prospects of the Company are very bright, and a rapid advance in the price of the stock is sure to take place in the near future. Full information can be had by calling at our office.

CONTINUED.

"Was he ever down here—this gentleman?"

"He's been comin' and goin' fur months, and Miss Maud loves 'im somethin' cruel. But they'll marry now an' be 'appy."

"I suppose your ladies sometimes went to see this gent in town?"

"Meanin' Mr. Hay," said Matilda artlessly. "Well, sir, they did, one at a time and then together. Missus would go and miss would foller, an' miss an' missus together would take their joy of the Towers an' shops and Mme. Tusord's and sich like, Mr. Hay allays lookin' after 'em."

"Did they ever visit Mr. Hay in July?"

"No, they didn't," snapped Matilda, with a change of tone which did not escape Hurd, "and I don't know, sir, why you ask them questions."

"My good woman, I ask no questions. If I do, you need not reply. Let us change the subject. My sister tells me you make good curries in this hotel."

"Hokar do, me bein' but a plain cook."

"Oh! He's an Indian?"

"Yes, he is, sir. A pore Indian castaway as missus took up with when he come here drenched with rain and weary. Ah, missus was allays good and kind and Christianlike!"

Privately Hurd thought this description did not apply very well to the lady in question, but he was careful not to arouse Matilda's suspicions again by contradicting her. He pretended to joke. "I wonder you don't marry this Indian and keep him here always to make the curries I have heard of."

"Me marry a black!" cried Matilda, tossing her rough head. "Well, sir, I never," her breath failed her, "an' him goin' about the country."

"What do you mean by that?"

"What I say," said Miss Junk. "He'll stop here, Christianlike, for days and then go orf to sell things as a 'awker. My par was a 'awker, sir, but a white, white man of the finest."

Hurd was about to ask another question, when a husky voice was heard singing somewhat out of tune. "What's that?" asked Hurd irritably.

"Lor', sir, wot nerves you 'ave! 'Tis only Cap'n Jessop makin' hisself 'appy-like."

"Captain Jessop!" Hurd laughed. He had run down his man at last.

CHAPTER XIX.

APPARENTLY Matilda Junk was quite ignorant of anything being wrong about her ladies, although she did shirk the question regarding their possible visit to London in July. However, Hurd had learned that Grexon Hay not only was an old friend, but had been engaged to Maud for many months. This information made him the more certain that Hay had robbed Rescot of the opal brooch at the time of the accident and that it had passed from Mr. Hay's hands into those of the assassin.

"I wonder if Mrs. Krill murdered her husband in that cruel way," thought the detective, sitting over his tea. "But what could have been her object? She could have gone up on learning from Hay that Aaron Norman was her husband, as I believe she did, and could then have made him give her the money by threatening him with the murder of Lady Rachel. I daresay Aaron Norman in his Krill days did strangle that lady to get the opal brooch, and his wife could have used what she knew to govern him. There was no need of murder. Hum! I'll see about getting the truth out of Hay. Aurora," he cried. "Oh, there you are," he added as she entered the room. "I want you to go back to town this night."

"What for, Billy?"

"Can you get Hay into trouble?"

Aurora nodded. "I have proofs of his cheating Lord George and others, if that's what you mean," she said, "but you didn't want them used."

"Nor do I. He's such an eel he may wriggle out of our clutches. But can't you give a party and invite Lord George and Hay and then get them to play cards. Should Hay cheat, denounce him to George Sandal."

"What good would that do?" asked Miss Qian, with widely open eyes.

"It will make Hay confess about the brooch to save himself from public shame. His reputation is his life, remember, and if he is caught red handed cheating he'll have to clear out of town."

"Pooh, as if that mattered! He's going to marry Miss Krill."

"If Miss Krill keeps the money, and I doubt if she will."

"But, Billy"—

"Never mind. Don't ask me any more questions, but go and pack. This Captain Jessop is in the bar drinking. I may probably have to arrest him. I got a warrant on the chance of finding him here. I can arrest him on suspicion and won't let him go until I get at the truth. Your business is to bring Hay to his knees and get the truth out of him about the opal serpent. You know the case?"

"Yes," grumbled Aurora, "I know the case. But I don't like this long journey tonight."

"Every moment is precious. If I arrest Jessop, Matilda Junk will tell her ladies, who will speak to Hay, and then he may slip away. As the brooch evidence is so particular, and, as I believe he can give it if coerced, you can see the importance of losing no time."

Miss Qian nodded and went away to pack. She wanted money and knew Billy would give her a goodly share of the reward. In a few minutes Miss Junk of the Red Pig learned that Miss Qian was suddenly summoned to town and would leave in an hour. Quite unexpectedly she enabled her to pack.

Some twenty minutes later Miss Qian was driving in a hired vehicle to the railway station on her way to trap Grexon Hay.

When she was safely off the premises, Hurd walked to the telegraph office and sent a cipher message to the Yard, asking for a couple of plain clothes policemen to be sent down. He wanted to have Hokar and Miss Matilda Junk watched, also the house, in case Mrs. Krill and her daughter should return. Captain Jessop he proposed to look after himself. But he was in no hurry to make that gentleman's acquaintance, as he intended to arrest him quietly in the sitting room after dinner. Already he had informed Matilda that he would ask a gentleman to join him at the meal and taste Hokar's curry.

The thought of the curry brought the Indian to his mind, and when he got back to the Red Pig he strolled round the house, inspecting the place, but in reality keeping eyes and ears open to talk to the Hindoo. Thinking he might meet the man some time, Hurd had carefully learned a few phrases relating to thuggism—in English, of course, since he knew nothing of the Indian tongues. These he proposed to use in the course of conversation with Hokar and watch the effect. Soon he found the man sitting cross legged under a tree in the yard, smoking. Evidently his work for the day was over, and he was enjoying himself. Remembering the description given by Bart, the detective saw that this was the very man who had entered the shop of Aaron Norman. He wore the same dress and looked dirty and disreputable—quite a waif and a stray.

"Hello!" said Hurd casually. "What are you doing? Talk English, eh?"

"Yes, sir," said Hokar calmly. "I spike good Englis. Missionary teach Hokar Englis."

"I'm glad of that; we can have a chat," said Hurd, producing his pipe. He also produced something else with which he had provided himself on the way back from the postoffice. In another minute Hokar was staring at a small parcel of coarse brown sugar. With all his oriental phlegm the man could not keep his countenance. His eyes rolled until they threatened to drop out of his head, and he looked at Hurd with a certain amount of fear. "Goor," said that gentleman, pointing to the sugar with the stem of his pipe. "Goor!"

Hokar turned green under his dark skin and half rose to go away, but his legs failed him, and he sat still trying to recover himself. "So you worship Bhowanee?" went on his tormentor.

The Indian's face expressed lively [illegible] "Of the great goddess."

"Yes, dialee, you know. Did you [illegible] Tuponnee after you used your [illegible] on Aaron Norman?"

$100.00 paid by Dr. Shoop for any recent case of Grippe or acute Cold that a 25 cent box of Preventics will not break. How is this for an offer? The Doctor's supreme confidence in these little Candy Cold Cure Tablets—Preventics—is certainly complete. It's a $100 against 25 cents—pretty big odds. And Preventics—remember, contain no quinine, no laxative, nothing harsh nor sickening. Pneumonia would never appear if early colds were always broken. Safe and sure for feverish children. 48 Preventics 25c. All dealers.

An English Amenity.

A striking difference between our manners and those of our English cousins was shown one day at a garden party. The hostess, an American, was speaking to one of her guests, an Englishwoman of rank.

"Dear Lady B.," she said, "here are some sandwiches which I made with my own hands, particularly for you. You know I've often told you about our American sandwiches and how good they are. Here are different sorts, lettuce and cucumbers. If you care for 'grass,' or if you like a savory better try the cream cheese ones with pimentoes. I've some sweet ones, too, raisins and nuts chopped together—which will you try first?"

She held a plate in each hand, a plate filled with dainty looking sandwiches, and they were extended invitingly toward her guest, who looked at them critically, then said in the clear, high pitched voice of the well bred Englishwoman:

"Oh, thank you, so kind of you, but do you know I never touch the newsy things?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Chance For a Home Run.

A clever teacher who has the power of calling out originality in her pupils says that she would have no use for text books if she took time to answer all the startling questions asked in the classroom. One day the attraction of gravitation was under discussion when one of the boys said that he didn't see any need of it, anyway.

"It seems to me," said he, "there's no particular use in having the earth attract things. Now, when the apple fell and made Newton think out the reason for it, that apple might just as well have stayed where it was until somebody gathered it."

"You play ball, don't you?" asked the teacher. "Well, suppose you knock the ball very high, what happens?"

"It falls."

"But if there were no attraction toward the earth it wouldn't fall. Don't you think that might prove inconvenient?"

"My," cried the boy, "what a bully chance for a home run!"

Sulphur and Silver.

When one takes sulphur internally it causes a gas, called sulphureted hydrogen, to be given off by the skin. This blackens silver; hence when taking sulphur it is wise not to wear silver trinkets.

Peter the Great consumed baked goose stuffed with apples and considered it a fine dish.

A Royal Wedding Feast.

When Violante Viscouti was married to Duke Lionel, son of Edward III. of England, at Milan, the wedding dinner consisted of eighteen courses, including suckling pigs, fish, hares, veal, quail, partridge, trout, beef, capons, lamb chickens, carp, peacocks, ducks, cheese and cherries. Some of the fish and game were incrusted in gold.

Stylishly dressed and wearing a trimmed overcoat, the unknown [illegible] approached a policeman at [illegible] and asked to be directed to [illegible] neighborhood in which common [illegible] houses abound. The constable was startled by the request, but gave the desired information.

Shortly afterwards the policeman noticed the gentleman walking up Deansgate with a little crowd of wretchedly-clad and half-starved creatures around him. Invited to explain, the man with the fur coat said:

"The fact of the matter is I have only arrived back in Manchester today after an absence of eighteen years in the Colonies. My last night in Manchester was spent on one of the infirmary seats. I have just been up there now to invite as many outcasts as I could find to have a bed and a square meal."

Heart Strength

Heart Strength, or Heart Weakness, means Nerve Strength, or Nerve Weakness—nothing more. Positively, not one weak heart in a hundred is, to-day, actually diseased. It is almost always a hidden tiny little nerve that really is all at fault. This obscure nerve—the Cardiac, or Heart Nerve—simply needs, and must have, more power, more stability, more controlling, more governing strength. Without that the Heart must continue to fail, and the stomach and kidneys also have those same controlling nerves.

This clearly explains why, as a medicine, Dr. Shoop's Restorative has in the past done so much for weak and ailing Hearts. Dr. Shoop first sought the cause of all this painful, palpitating, suffocating heart distress. Dr. Shoop's Restorative—this popular prescription—is alone directed to these weak and wasting nerve centers. It builds; it strengthens; it offers real, genuine heart help.

If you would have strong Hearts, strong digestion, strengthen those Nerves—re-establish them as needed, with

If You Read This

It will be to learn that the leading medical writers and teachers of all the several schools of practice recommend, in the strongest terms possible, each and every ingredient entering into the composition of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for the cure of weak stomach, dyspepsia, catarrh of stomach, "liver complaint," torpid liver, or biliousness, chronic bowel affections, and all catarrhal diseases of whatever region, name or nature. It is also a specific remedy for all such chronic or long standing cases of catarrhal affections and their resultants, as bronchitis, throat and lung diseases (except consumption) accompanied with severe coughs. It is not so good for acute colds and coughs, but for lingering, or chronic case it is especially efficacious in producing perfect cures. It contains Black Cherry bark, Golden Seal root, Bloodroot, Stone root, Mandrake root and Queen's root—all of which are highly praised as remedies for all the above mentioned affections by such eminent medical writers and teachers as Prof. Bartholow, of Jefferson Med. College; Prof. Hare, of the Univ. of Pa., Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., of Bennett Med. College, Chicago; Prof. John King, M. D., of Cincinnati; Prof. John M. Scudder, M. D., of Cincinnati; Prof. Edwin M. Hale, M. D., of Hahnemann Med. College, Chicago, and scores of others equally eminent in their several schools of practice.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" is the only medicine put up for sale through druggists for like purposes, that has any such professional endorsement—worth more than any number of ordinary testimonials. Open publicity of its formula is the best possible guaranty of its merits. A glance at this published formula will show that "Golden Medical Discovery" contains no poisonous, harmful or habit-forming drugs and no alcohol—chemically pure, triple-refined glycerine being used instead. Glycerine is entirely unobjectionable and besides is a most useful agent in the cure of all stomach as well as bronchial, throat and lung affections. There is the highest medical authority for its use in all such cases. The "Discovery" is a concentrated glyceric extract of native, medicinal roots and is safe and reliable.

Those present at the meeting were Ald. Bradburn, chairman; Mayor Rush, Alderman Johnston, Morgan, and Gill.

Hotelmen Must Get Busy Very Quickly

This is the time of year that the holders of hotel licenses have to get busy, and, if they want to do business next year, must place their applications for a renewal of license in with License Inspector Jos. Stewart.

Yesterday a Times representative called at Mr. Stewart's office, and asked how things were coming along. Mr. Stewart replied that only some three or four of the local hotelmen had placed their applications with him for a renewal. Mr. Stewart explained that all applicants for renewal must apply on or before April 1st to get their licenses renewed, or granted, as the case may be.

The License Commissioners met on Tuesday, April 21st, to consider the applications and determine to whom licenses shall be granted.

Former Local Citizen Awarded a Medal

The Vancouver World has the following about a former local citizen: "The medal of the Royal Humane Society has been awarded to Mr. John Erskine, the young bank clerk, who saved the life of at least one young lady at the city reservoir in Stanley Park last January. Mr. Erskine, who is a clerk in the Canadian Bank of Commerce, jumped into the icy water of the reservoir to rescue a young lady who had fallen through the ice, the rescuer treading water while he held the young lady's head so that she could breathe, while assistance from other quarters was being rendered. Mr. Erskine has resided in Vancouver two years, having come here from Peterborough, Ont."

Hand Terribly Mangled

While employed in a Steam Laundry, the left hand of Mr. Ab. Wheeler, Marine and Stationary Engineer, of 146 Front street, Belleville, Ont., became caught and was accidently drawn into a hot mangle. He says: "As soon as possible the machinery was stopped and my hand was extricated, but not before the flesh on the palm of the hand was literally cooked to the bone and the fingers flattened out of shape. My hand and arm became frightfully swollen to the elbow an dthe hand presented a shocking sight. No one can imagine what I now suffered and endured. Not only was it hard to bear on account of the cruel pains, but it was a great shock to my nervous system. It was some time after the injury before the cooked flesh could be removed from the palm and then only a very little at a time. As soon as it had been well removed, healing balms were applied, but as the improvement was so slow I obtained permission from the doctor for Zam-buk to be used exclusively, as several of my men friends, (having previously used it for severe injuries) spoke in the highest terms of its unusual healing qualities and urged me to give it a trial. From the commencement Zam-buk soothed and relieved the pain and drew out the soreness. I now began to enjoy a good night's rest and sleep, as up to this time I had not had much rest or sleep either day or night. In about three weeks the palm of my hand was nicely healed over thro' daily application of this wonderful remedy Zam-buk, and all inflammation and swelling was thoroughly banished from both han dand arm."

Many medical men to-day freely extol the merits of Zam-buk. It possesses a wide range of usefulness, being especially recommended for eczema, bad legs, piles, running sores, ulcers, pimples, boils, raw chapped hands, scalp diseases, barber's rash, cold sores, festering sores, poisoned wounds, cuts, bruises, burns, scalds, and all diseased, injured and inflamed or irritated conditions of the skin. Of all druggists and stores, fifty cents box or from the Zam-buk Co., Toronto.

Galician Beat a Man to Death--Hid His Body

Winnipeg, Man., March 26.—Waxyl Andrewczuk, a Galician, confessed that he beat Alexander Ozanac to death because Ozanac told the chief game warden that Andrewczuk had shot a moose out of season.

He waylaid his victim on a lonely trail, killed him, and hid the body in the bush, then went to the window and boasted that Ozanac would perform no more on him.

A man named Chas. Clifford found Ozanac's deserted ox-team, and later saw the accused wiping blood from his clothes in the snow.

Bowin Jury is Now Completed--Negro Juror Rejected

Detroit, Mich., March 26.—At noon to-day there was still a vacant chair in the jury box in Judge Phelan's court, where Percy Bowin is on trial for the murder of aged Mrs. Catherine Welch. The regular panel of talesmen has been exhausted and two special venires have been drawn and summoned, but if the jury is not completed to-day it is probable that a third lot will have to be drawn.

The youthful prisoner, unconcerned and apparently proud of the notoriety that has come to him, continues to take an active interest in the selection of the jury. He sits just behind his attorney and confers with him about the release or retention of talesmen, apparently trusting a great deal to his own powers of character reading. The one negro juror who was the first man tentatively accepted on both sides, and who was allowed to keep his seat for three days undisturbed was finally dismissed at Percy's request.

To-day nearly a dozen men were dismissed for cause when they admitted that they had already formed an opinion about the case, and the prisoner's guilt, which would take much evidence to remove.

MOTHER SAT NEAR WITNESS.

Mrs. Bowin, the prisoner's grey-haired mother, from Woodville, Ont., dressed quietly in black and with her blood-shot eyes and pale face, speaking of sleepless nights and much worry, sat for several hours to-day next to Post, the son of the murdered woman, from Ohio. She did not know that he was to be the first witness against her son, and is counted a strong witness for the prosecution. Finally, however, she was given a chair just behind her son, where she sits with her head bowed on her hand and a look of deep pain on her face. The young prisoner not only betrays no concern about his own fate, but he displays no affection nor care for his old mother's anguish. He rarely looks toward her or speaks to her.

Later.—The Bowin jury was completed at 12.50.

No $2,500 License Fee, By-Law is Quashed

Toronto, March 26. — Mr. Justice Britton gave judgment this afternoon quashing the high license by-law passed in the town of Collingwood. By this enactment the $2,500 fee for liquor licenses, decided on by Collingwood Council, is knocked out.

His lordship holds that the Legislature, in passing the by-law which permitted this action by the council, did not intend that prohibition should be obtained in such a manner. The proper fee for a place like Collingwood, he thinks, is about $450, and for large cities $1,200. If $450 is not enough he is of the opinion that a figure between $450 and $1,200 would be proper. Instead of that he says they have fixed a fee, which, as far as he knows, is the highest in the world.

LATER.

Mr. Justice Britton has given out judgment quashing the Collingwood by-law raising the cost of licenses, from $250 to $2,500. His lordship holds that it was not intended by the Legislature that the power should be given for the purpose of passing what practically amounts to prohibition.

He considers that a license fee of about $450 would be about fair for Collingwood.

His lordship says, in part: "The main ground of objection, and the only one that requires consideration is that this by-law is ultra vires of the said municipal council, in that the same was not passed in the bona fide exercise of the powers of the council, but in order to prohibit the issue of tavern and shop licenses in the said municipality.

THE AMENDMENT'S INTENT.

"The amendment to the License Act creates new fees, called License duties. In a city of more than 100,000 the duty for a tavern license shall be $1,200. In a city having a population of 10,000 only and a town of more than 5,000 and not more than 10,000, the duty for a tavern license shall be $450.'

His lordship points out that section 11 provides that the council of a municipality may by by-law increase the amount beyond that provided in the Act. Other sections, however, provide that in a city of more than 100,000 such as Toronto it cannot be raised above $1,200, but that in a town such as Collingwood with 7,400 population, if the council's view is correct, the duty can be placed at $2,500 or more.

"The test of the validity of the by-law in question must depend upon the good faith of the council in passing it.

"There is no technicality about this, it is the broad question on its merits."

His lordship points out that to decide this it was necessary to consider the object of the Legislature, and the circumstances under which, and how, and why, the council passed the by-law.

"It was not intended by the Legislature that local prohibition should be brought about in this way."

OVERRIDE LOCAL OPTION.

"If this by-law, in fact, prohibits, then what was intended to be brought about in a certain definite way and to be approved of by 3-5 of the electors, can be accomplished in an entirely different way, and subject only to a majority.

"I can only repeat that in my opinion that was not the intention of the Act."

His lordship further points out that if the powers are not used for merely regulating purposes than the Provincial law, under which the by-law was passed, is being evaded and not properly regarded by the members of the council.

His lordship then recites the circumstances shown to have preceded the passing of the by-law, which apparently showed the intention of prohibition.

IMPROPER MOTIVES.

His lordship concludes: "Even if the majority of the electors approve it as a by-law of the council, and if tainted, as in my opinion, it was, by improper motives at the beginning and in passing it, it cannot be made good by a majority of the electors sanctioning it.

"The by-law should be quashed with costs."

Should Drink : Plenty of Water

Nature's Great Remedy for Rheumatism and Kidney Trouble

"The people here do not drink enough water to keep healthy," exclaimed a well known authority. "The numerous cases of stomach trouble, kidney and bladder diseases and rheumatism are mainly due to the fact that the drinking of water, nature's greatest medicine, has been neglected.

"Stop loading your system with patent medicines and cure-alls; just get on the water wagon. If you are really sick, why, of course, take the proper medicines — plain common vegetable treatment, which will not shatter the nerves or ruin the stomach."

When requested for such a prescription for the cure of rheumatism and kidney trouble the answer was, "You must make the kidneys do their work; they are the filters of the blood. They must be made to strain out of the blood the waste matter and acids that cause rheumatism; the urine must be neutralized so it will no longer be a source of irritation to the bladder, and, most of all, you must keep these acids from forming in the stomach. This is the cause of stomach trouble and poor digestion. For these conditions I would suggest the following prescription: "Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Mix by shaking well in bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime, but don't forget the water. Drink plenty and often.

This valuable information and simple prescription should be posted up in each household and used at the first sign of an attack of rheumatism, headache or urinary trouble, no matter how slight.

POLICE

At yesterday's police court William Fallon, Stanley McCabe and James Reynolds, three young men who a week ago pleaded guilty to stealing a quantity of goods from the boat houses of Mr. R. M. Roy and Mr. E. S. Clarry, were allowed to go with a warning.

Mr. Reynolds, father of one of the boys, paid $40 into the court. Mr. R. S. Wood was present for the Crown, and Mr. G. N. Gordon appeared for the prisoners.

Mr. Wood, County Crown Attorney, put up a strong argument for a severe sentence for the lads. Mr. Gordon, however, pleaded as strongly for their being let go lightly. His Worship, after Mr. Reynolds, paid in $50 towards recompensing Messrs. Roy and Clarry, gave the boys a heart to heart talk and let them go.

Messrs. Roy and Clarry handed a large amount of the money to Mr. Reynolds.

Yesterday the police court was crowded from the front railing to the rear wall. Drunks and disorderlys seemed to be the main grist for the grinding. Over $85 was collected during the session.

Three young men were charged with being disorderly on Monday night. Two pleaded guilty, and the evidence against the other one was taken. Two witnesses stated that between 11 and 12 o'clock the boarders at the Y. W. C. A. were aroused by swearing and quarrelling. Other witnesses gave evidence in this case going to show that there had been foul language and disorderly conduct on the street.

His Worship imposed a fine of five dollars on each, said fines to be paid forthwith.

To detail the "D. & D.'s" tried yesterday would be to give away more young men known about town than the average man has corns on his—well, on his knuckles. However, the defendants were all handed out strict justice, and after paying their fines may be calculated on not to be guilty again.

Mr. Beaman's Body Recovered in River

Yesterday Mr. W. Taylor, known locally as "Dad" Taylor, the caretaker of the Customs House, was one of the busiest men in the city. The cause of this was that the body of the C. P. R. pumpman, Edward Beaman, of Manvers, was discovered floating in the Little Lake during the morning.

It will be remembered that during last December Beaman was supposed to have fallen off the C. P. R. bridge whilst trying to get aboard a freight train to ride to his home in Manvers. A diligent search was made but in vain for his body.

Yesterday morning about 11 o'clock Mr. Dan Holland of the McDonald Company's employ, saw gulls hovering about a certain spot in the lake, and wondered why the birds gathered there. A later investigation showed that a human body was floating. He at once notified the company's officers. A punt was quickly manned and the body of the late Mr. Beaman was recovered. The body, although having been so long in the water, was still recognizable. The men towed the body to McDonald's wharf, and it was later removed to Belleghem's undertaking rooms.

The funeral will be held to-day under the auspices of the Sons of England.

The late Mr. Beaman is survived by his widow and two children, Mr. Thos. Beaman, a C. P. R. brakesman, and a daughter, Miss Mary J. Beaman.

Five-Year-Old Girl Burned to Death Near Huntsville

Viola Fletcher of Ravenscliffe Played with Fire and Died an Hour Later

Children Were Alone

Huntsville, Ont., March 26 — Viola Fletcher, the 5-year-old daughter of Mr. W. J. Fletcher, who lives at Ravenscliffe, six miles from Huntsville, lies dead this morning, the victim of a distressing accident that occurred about five o'clock last night.

The father was absent from home, and the mother had gone to the barn to milk the cows. She left the two little daughters, Viola, aged five, and Mary, aged three, in the house. But a few minutes after she left the older girl ran screaming to her mother with her clothing on fire. The frenzied parent carried her back to the house, and exhausted every effort to extinguish the flame and relieve the child's sufferings, but the little body was so terribly burned that death followed an hour later.

The lid of the stove was removed, and it is supposed that the little girl was lighting paper when the accident occurred.

The greatest sympathy is felt locally for the bereaved family.

Mr. Conners Wants License Transferred

Mr. Martin Conners, who for many years has carried on a hotel business under the name of the City Hotel, has now asked for a change of the name of the license. For years the City Hotel has had its license under the name of the former owner and manager, Mr. James Dolan. Now Mr. Dolan has joined the great majority and Mr. Conners wants the license in his own name. It might be said that neither under the late Mr. Dolan's administration nor under Mr. Conners' control has any breach of the license law been noticed. There is no reason to suppose but what this license will be transferred.

Knight's of Pythias Hold Banquet

The local lodge of Knights of Pythias have paid full honor to a member of their order, Mr. A. J. Gibson, previous to his leaving for Regina, Sask. The "send off" accorded to this brother of the order was a dinner at Long's Palm Gardens after a meeting of the lodge, when Dr. J. E. Maddicton occupied the position of toast master. Short speeches were made by Messrs. T. Wilson, C. M. Blewett and others. The guest of the evening made an appropriate reply. The speakers expressed regret at Mr. Gibson's departure. Mr. Gibson has been a member of the real estate firm of Wilson and Gibson.

In the Realm of Sport

LINE UP FOR GAME WITH UNIVERSITY OF VIRGINIA.

University of Virginia, Charlottesville, Va., March 26.—After to-day's practice, Manager Kelley of the Toronto club selected a team to play the first game of the season to-morrow, with the University of Virginia. Kelley will not play himself, but will direct the game from the bench.

Neither Kilroy nor Phyle turned out to practice this afternoon, though both had a good work-out in the morning. Kilroy's left ankle is very sore, and Phyle has a bad cold. They will be out to-morrow. The pitchers will work three innings apiece.

The team is very shy on twirlers for a training trip. Kilroy, Mitchell and Connolly are the only ones to report so far, and they let themselves out to-day for the first time. Nothing has been heard from Toronto or Blachford. Moffat wants to stay with South End, but the house has work is ill. Rudolph and Applegate will join the team next week at Norfolk and McGinley is holding out for more salary.

Weather to-day sunny and windy. The infield got together to-day and practiced well. For the first time out Schardy is in great shape.

Guttman, Mertes and Wotell played a little-ridge ball outside the diamond.

Wotell-mania has notified Kelly that he has retired from baseball and will not play this season for Toronto.

WALKING.

Port Hope Star: Jimmy Reynolds, the Port Hope barber-pedestrian, says, "I intend to begin my Port Hope to Toronto and return walk on June 15th," he said, "and I have two bets, $25 to $50 and $600 to $300 that I do the distance in 33 hours, 3 hours and 18 minutes later than my best up-to-date. I think I'll win, because a specialist is looking after my feet, and I'm in good shape. I'll be 57 years old on June 10th. I weigh 150 pounds, and will take off 10 by have made the small wager with a Hamilton doctor and the other with a Port Hope syndicate."

LACROSSE.

The Capital lacrosse team was banqueted at the Russell House, Ottawa, last night by the new president, Dr. Christie. Not all of the players were present, but the gathering was most enthusiastic. A feature of the evening was the offer of Controller Davidson to take the team to the Old Country in the spring of 1909 if they succeeded in landing the Minto Cup during the coming season. The players all had a say, Billy Fagan making a strong plea for the abolition of the residence rule.

A Hamilton despatch states that Ben Clarke, last year's goalkeeper for the Tecumsehs, has signed with the Hamilton team, for the coming season. Two other N. L. U. players are being sought after, one of whom, it is whispered, is Sport Murron, who is to be the manager of the team.

HOCKEY.

The Renfrew hockey team, which cleaned up the Upper Ottawa championship for the past couple of years and this season made a name for itself as a professional organization, is said to have gone a little too deep in securing a team this winter, and as a result is $3,000 to the bad. The executive, however, is composed of wealthy townsmen, and they have made good the deficiency without any squealing. It is, moreover, said that Renfrew will be professional again next winter, and try to get into one of the big leagues.

BASEBALL.

The new International Baseball League was organized at a meeting at the Waldorf Hotel this evening. The following officers were elected: George H. Long, London, president; W. K. Murray, Niagara Falls, secretary-treasurer; Fred Paige, Hamilton; Hal B. Wraith, London, and John E. Murray, Guelph, directors. Application for protection will be made to the National Baseball Association. The schedule calls for 100 games. It will open on May 20 with Hamilton at Niagara Falls and London at Guelph. The local season will open May 22, when Niagara Falls will play here.

Jack Thoney, the former Toronto player, now with the Boston Americans, is making the best showing of any of the youngsters who went up for tryouts by the majors. At Little Rock yesterday against Mike Finn's Southern League team, he was five times up, getting three hits, one of them a three-bagger. He accepted two difficult chances in the field with perfection. He shows far ahead of his mates, Gessler and Mollalie, who are considered two brilliant fielders.

The contracts of the Boston Club with Beaumont, Boultes, Dahlen, Dorner, Flaherty, Graham, Hoffman, Lindaman, Pfeiffer, Ritchey, and Swacher have been promulgated.

Malachi Kittredge, former manger at Montreal, is this year managing the Scranton team of the York State League. He has up to date signed 20 players, mostly green men.

Earl Moore, a former pitcher of the Cleveland American League team, has signed a contract to play with the Skeeters this season. He will report at once.

At Sherman, Tex., yesterday, the New York Giants, in a game with the Austin College nine, lost 24 bases. This is a record, as only eight innings were played.

The Chicago White Sox have been marooned at a little side track down in Alabama for the past twenty-four hours on account of a washout on the M. and O. Railway.

During the month of April the baseball season will open in a score of different leagues, and the enthusiastic fans will be in their glory. Never in the history of the game had a season given greater promise before its inception than this one.

If Monte Cross means what he says when he announces that he expects to get the pick of the Boston American outfielders, it probably means also the passing of Danny Kerwin from American Association baseball. Cross will doubtless keep Hill and Hallman. Kerwin slowed up very much last year, and unless he shows his old-time form this spring he will probably have to go.

OCCASIONS WHEN OWNERS OF WINNERS DIDN'T HAVE THEIR BETS DOWN.

It is not often in these days of scientific dope sheets, never-sleeping railbirds and cheekers, and bookmakers with an ace in the hole, that a 300 to 1 thing gets by.

Arcite, an unconsidered two-year-old, did that at one of the New York racks the other day.

After the race Arcite's owner, a horseman in such chronic hard luck that if he saw the rainbow of prosperity only twenty yards away he wouldn't be able to blow a piece out of it with a sword-gift shotgun loaded with slugs, crawled off into a dark corner of the paddock when his baby horse's number went up. Some friends found him gibbering there, and making strange, clutching motions with his hands at his hair, about half an hour after the race.

"D'je go to it, old man" they asked him.

Unmindful of their presence the owner of Arcite went on muttering things that weren't English at all, but sounded like muffled Zambesi.

"D'je get 300 to 1?" his friends pursued, "We did, for a little piece."

Arcite's owner gazed at them piteously, and, without a word, turned his back on them and slunk away like something that had been whipped.

The answer: Arcite's owner had bet $100 of his slender hoard on the favorite in that race (which his baby Arcite favorite had connected. Then his own colt, at 300 to 1, opening odds, had streaked home in front of the favorite, when his owner, only entering Arcite in the race for experience and seasoning, had won. The favourite's price was 2 had confidently looked for him to be beaten o'er. The $100 on his own colt at 300 to 1 would have—however, these "would haves" don't get the turf follower anything. The wonder is not great, however, that Arcite's owner went off by himself and gibbered. The brutal part of it was that a whole lot of low foreheads around the ring had taken that top 300 to 1 price for little junky lots on pure hunch. A waiter in a beefsteak hill eight-cents-a-meal grub honkatonk on the Bowery had bet $10 velvet money, straight, on Arcite at the long price, and at least two dozen unkept ones in the cheap field betting ring had stuffed in $2 and $5 notes on the winning rancid outsider at the top chalk. In fact, the pikers had knocked Arcite's price down to 100 to 1 at post time. The last report had of him states that Arcite's owner is still talking weirdly to himself (and that the language he uses toward himself is unfit for publication.

Tom Mannix, a famous trainer and one of the shrewdest manipulators of inside things on the whole turf, had a similar experience at Benning a few seasons ago, when his maiden three-year-old Princelet merely buck-jumped to the wire, beating the best field he had ever met by six lengths and with an apprentice boy up, at that, with 100 to 1 quoted against him all over the ring. Mannix didn't have the price of a pair of second-hand shoestrings on Princelet that day.

Mannix had paid a good figure for Princelet. The colt, by His Highness, was looked upon as a comer when a yearling, and Dave Gideon, his owner then, had predicted great things for him. Gideon gave the colt a thorough trial as a two-year-old, getting nary a race out of him, and then he unloaded him at a pretty stiff figure, for an unsuccessful two-year-old, Tom Mannix being the purchaser. Mannix pampered and petted and coddled the disappointing colt month in and month out, vainly hoping to get at least one race out of him, with a chance to win out with a gamester. But when the hour came that Princelet took it into his compassionate head to stretch himself and get his number up as a winner for the first time, Mannix had lost confidence in the colt, and he didn't, as stated, have a nickel on him at those heart-breakingly juicy odds. Yet Princelet was nibbled at all over the ringside by the piking brigade that day, and many a Washington pony-player diked himself out in a new overcoat and put gum money by for the winter on the strength of that victory. The thing that caused Mannix to use the most horrible language was the publication of a yarn in the New York papers to the effect that he'd bet $800 straight on Princelet at 100 to 1 in the western pool rooms, thus cleaning up $80,000 on the event. To the present hour none of Mannix's friends dare to even whisper the name of Princelet to him.

Canadian Youth Declares That He will Shatter Confession

Detroit, March 26.—"You want to remember that many a guy has pleaded guilty to something that he wasn't no more guilty of than a rabbit, and by the time we get through with this here case, you may find another one of them," says Percy Bowin, the Canadian boy charged with murder, who declared he'll leave the recorder's court a free boy when the jury returns its verdict in his case.

Bowin claims to have some testimony of a startling nature, wholly unexpected, which will be the saving clause for his life.

"They haven't got nothing on me," says Bowin. "All they got is them earrings I sold in Buffalo; that kind of looks bad for me, and then they got that there confession, but wait till you hear all about that deal.

"But I'm going to have witnesses on the stand to show some things in a mighty different and correct light. You see, they had me all up a tree there at one time and everybody telling me things I was willing to do most anything.

"Yes, sir, there's going to be some things sprung on the stand that'll surprise you all. I'm going to take the stand myself and I'm going to straighten out this matter. I see my girl's on the list of witnesses, but my lawyers don't call her. The State did. I don't know what she's going to testify to."

The witness list bears 43 names. Ten of them are women. The women represent various classes. Their testimony will cover several phases of life, several manners of living it.

OBJECTED TO WORK.

Witness will be called to show that Bowin was averse to manual labor. Judging from the examinations of talesmen testimony will be produced to show that Bowin lived on the financial resource furnished him by a woman. The next few years of his life will be barred.

Attorney Ed. Kinney, counsel for Bowin, has exhausted all of the challenges privileged him, while Assistant Prosecutor Gross has used 11. It is not probable that the state will challenge more than two more of the talesmen in the jury box.

A sensation was caused in the court room for a brief time to-day when a young woman entered.

"There's Kitty Smith," went from lip to lip. When court adjourned at noon, however, it was discovered that the young woman was not the daughter of the man acquitted of the charge of slaying his wife.

Monaghan Man Moves Here

Mr. Jos. Green, of North Monaghan, who is moving into the city to locate here, sold out his stock at the farm at high prices. Mr. Leary, of this city, bought a team of Percheron colts for $452. This team consisted of one horse five and the other four years old. Mr. Green's many friends in the city will welcome him as a permanent resident here.

Very Successful "At Home" At St. Andrew's Manse

Mrs. (Rev.) J. D. Potter, president of St. Andrew's Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, gave a most successful "at home" at the manse yesterday between the hours of four and six, to the members of the society, and their friends. About one hundred took advantage of the occasion, and a very pleasant afternoon was spent.

A Coming Event

—Mrs. Scott Roff, assisted by local talent, will give a vocal concert under the auspices of the Fraser Mission Band in St. Paul's Sunday school room on Monday evening, April 6th, at 8 p.m.

Chinaman Requested to be Buried Alive

Rough justice as it is administered in most parts of China is sometimes tempered by individual caprice, as an incident printed in one of the China sort journal attests. A man in Suchow, condemned to die, preferred to be buried alive, and his wishes were carried out to the letter.

During the famine two brothers who lived in Suchow found it impossible to stave off starvation from their families and laid aloof, arose between them. At last the eldest brother sold his father's coffin for food. When he refused to divide the proceeds with his younger brother, the latter cut off his head with a cleaver.

Because it was too expensive to carry the murderer several scores of miles to the nearest yamen of justice, the local elders, including the father of the murderer, whose coffin had been sold, sat in justice upon the culprit and condemned him to death. He asked that he be buried alive instead of undergoing the horrible torture of the "thirty slices." The father entered into the other elders to get him to grant his son's request.

A grave was dug and the victim, with his arms and feet securely bound, was trundled in a wheelbarrow, to the edge of the pit by his wife. There, upon the murderer's own request, his bonds were loosed and he walked to the grave, lowered himself into it and was ready.

The victim's wife put a felt hat over his mouth at his request, and then she helped the elders to fill in the grave with six feet of earth.

Splendid Program Given at Y.W.C.A. Closing Exercises

The gymnasium room of the Y. M. C. A. was packed beyond its capacity last night, the occasion being the closing exercises of the Y.W.C.A. The programme consisted of matches, fancy drills, songs and piano solos. The gymnastic part of the programme was under the direction of Miss Ivy Coventry and the accompanist was Miss M. R. Rennie. A number of little tots posing as "trained rabbits" made the hit of the evening, and brought forth many rounds of applause.

Mr. W. Mortimer Johnston rendered a couple of vocal solos, which were greatly appreciated by the large audience. Miss Greta La Barr gave a recitation entitled "Because I'm Fat," which was well received. Master Ewart O'Shea in highland costume danced the highland fling, while the tambourine drill by the senior girls completed the programme.

Sincere Appreciation of Letters of Condolence

Mrs. Hugh Harper, 334 Downie street, wishes to express publicly her sincere appreciation of the letters of condolence received from the members of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society and the Ladies' Aid Society of St. Andrew's Church, in her recent bereavement in the death of her mother, Mrs. John Allen, of Orono, and to express her best wishes to these societies and hopes to again at some time join them in their work, from which she was compelled for a time to give up.

The Death of Mrs. John Allen

Concerning the death of Mrs. John Allen, Orono News says: "We are called upon to note the death of the last old member of the Presbyterian church, Mrs. John Allen, who passed away peacefully at her home on Wednesday morning in her 85th year, the members of her family being present at her bedside. Deceased led a quiet, retiring life, living with her son since the death of her husband, who preceded her by ten years, and they leave an unbroken family to mourn their loss."

Settlers Pouring in from States

North Portal, Sask., March 26.—Nearly one thousand land seekers and prospective settlers came in at this point over the Soo lines yesterday from the United States and it looks as if the total number for the week will form a new record for this port of entry. Fifty cars of settlers' effects were passed through the customs, chiefly belonging to men from the American middle west, who had taken up land along the Soo line and west of Moosejaw, last fall.

Indications are that so far from immigration being checked, it promises to assume record proportions so far as the States are concerned. The movement is starting unusually early owing to the mild weather, and so far compares favorably with the big movement of two years ago.

The class of settlers is very superior, and the money they are bringing in must greatly relieve the financial stringency.

Social Dance

A very successful social dance was held on Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. A. B. Dawser, Auburn, about 20 couple waltzing to the strains of the music which was supplied by Mr. Wilfrid Dwyer of East City. Messrs. Walter and Frank Bates acted as floor managers.

PETERBOROUGH, MARCH 30, 1910

Teachers in the boys' schools throughout Greater New York are planning to send 3,000 boys into the country next June to spend their vacations as farm laborers. Over 2,500 boys, it is said, have already been enrolled in an organization formed for this purpose. The plan is the outcome of an experiment tried last summer, as an indirect result of which one of the boys sent out at that time is now taking a course at Cornell University, and others have induced their parents to buy farms. This not only bids fair, apparently, to become a popular phase of nature study,—for this will furnish the boys with an exceptional opportunity for studying nature at her very best—but as well may help to solve some social problems which are now commanding the attention of social reformers. It will also serve as a practical demonstration of the opportunities that farming offers, and may lead to the occupation of unoccupied or abandoned farms in the not very distant future.

The Outing Magazine for April

The Outing Magazine for April is an editorial achievement. Not only are some of the best names of magazine writers found in it, but several subjects of the utmost concern to Americans are handled here with an incisiveness of style, a vigor of presentation and a mastery of picturesqueness that is unusual, even in this day of magazines.

In the April issue Miss Agnes C. Laut, shrewed and experienced observer of current affairs, writes upon "The New Spirit of the Farm." The author vividly shows how Science, by its discoveries, has made farming a profession, and has rung the knell of the old-line farmers who refused to tolerate "book learning". While she incidentally tells of the work of the agricultural colleges and of the government experiment stations, she devotes the most of her article to the human story of what the new farming is and what it means to present-day life.

Mr. Vance Thompson, globe trotter and student of men, contributes an article called "The Vagabonds of France". Mr. Thompson mingled with the French tramps for a period and found them to be unique among the hoboes of the earth.

Mr. Robert Dunn, in an article entitled "Saving College Graduates", describes the work of the University Clubs in New York City, such as those of Columbia, Yale, Cornell, Harvard, Princeton, Brown and Pennsylvania.

"The Practical Motor Boat", by H. P. Birrell, will be found of value to any who are interested in the cost of journeying comfortably by water.

Mr. Ralph D. Paine in his April instalment of Old Salem Ships and Sailors", presents some new facts and several new true stories of personal achievement bearing upon the topic of privateering in the Revolution.

THE DRAGON FLY.

Singularly Adapted to Its Life of Aerial Piracy.

No one could fail to be struck with the singularly perfect adaptation of the dragon fly's structure to a life of aerial piracy. The four wings are large and in proportion to their weight enormously strong. Each is supported by a wonderfully arranged network of slender ribs, which give the necessary rigidity to the thin, transparent membrane forming its basis. The muscles by which the wings are moved are massive and powerful and are so arranged among themselves that the animal is capable of steering its course with an unerring accuracy which any bird might envy. In this power it is largely aided by a marvelous keenness of sight, for in addition to the two great, gorgeously colored compound eyes which make up so much of the head the insect possesses three smaller "simple" eyes, making five eyes in all. The prey when overtaken is seized and devoured by means of powerful, sharply toothed jaws.

An animal which lives such an active life naturally requires a very perfect breathing apparatus, and this is amply provided by a system of holes on the sides of the body which open into an elaborate network of air tubes, supplying every part of the system. The air in these tubes is constantly renewed by the regular compression and dilatation of the body by special muscles.—Chambers' Journal.

HIBERNATION.

How and Why Some Animals Exist All Winter Without Food.

The philosophy or nature of hibernation and why and how it is that the hibernating creatures can go so long without food are interesting studies.

In the first place, the creature in order to enable it to sustain life throughout the long winter during which it hibernates is endowed with the capacity of accumulating within its body a large quantity of fat. This fat is to the animal what a well stocked coal cellar is to a fire, and until the whole of it has been consumed the tissue of the body proper remains untouched. It has been ascertained that animals can endure the waste of tissue until it amounts to 40 per cent of their normal weight. Should the weight be reduced beyond that point the result is death. But nature comes to the rescue of the hibernating creatures in another way. When the hibernation begins, respiration and digestion almost cease (in some cases they cease absolutely), and the circulation is only just active enough to sustain life. As a consequence of this the wear and tear is reduced to the minimum, and the creature is enabled to pull through.

Horses and Music.

Regimental horses have been the subjects of musical tests, and nearly all enjoyed the experience, only a very small percentage of the animals remaining indifferent to sweet harmonies, while equally few showed active dislike. The great majority were soothed, inspirited or excited by music. Most of the horses, like the war chargers one may suppose them to be, enjoyed the bugle above any other instrument and neighed gallantly when it was sounded, but thoroughbreds and colts generally were found to prefer the shrill treble of the fife, which roused them to great and sometimes unmanageable enthusiasm. This was the more significant because the fife was an unfamiliar instrument to them, not being generally used, as is the bugle in the French army.—Paris Cor. London Telegraph.

Model of Economy.

A certain farmer who lives out in the county and who is noted for his closeness in money matters has a twelve-year-old son, who is as industrious as his father is penurious.

Recently the father and son made a compact whereby the latter would receive 10 cents for every cord of wood he sawed and piled in the wood shed. Immediately the boy became very busy at the wood pile, and his earnings have been piling up at a rapid rate, his mother keeping her son's hard earned savings for him.

"What are you going to do with all your money?" the thrifty youth was recently asked.

"Goin' to buy a new saw with it," was the reply.

Benjamin Constant.

Benjamin Constant, having sided with Napoleon during the hundred days, felt the need of justifying himself when Louis XVIII. returned to power. He wrote the king a letter with that end in view and called upon Mme. Recamier to discuss the subject. She asked him quietly:

"Have you finished your letter?"

"Yes."

"Are you satisfied with it?"

"Entirely satisfied. I have almost persuaded myself."

Marrying.

Everybody is expected to marry once, and there is not much talk when you marry the first time, but people look wise when you marry the second time and roar when you marry the third time.

Very Interesting.

"What do you find so very interesting about society?" asked the ordinary person.

"Watching people trying to get in," answered Miss Cayenne.

"REINCARNATION" IN INDIA.

Weird Stories That Babies Have Souls of British Officers.

Within the last few weeks a most extraordinary case of alleged reincarnation—claimed to be the soul of a British officer—has made its appearance in Burmah. It is the second of its kind in recent years, and has accordingly attracted widespread attention.

Reincarnation is a fundamental doctrine of Buddhism, and a reincarnation of a human identity, in human form, though changed in outward aspect, is called a "minsa." As a rule, the "minsa" is an ordinary looking child, in no way different from his childish companions.

A few years back A. W. Tucker, district superintendent of police in Peru, was killed by a gang of dacoits whom he rashly attacked at close quarters after discharging his revolver and without waiting to reload it. His call to his orderly to fetch ammunition gave the clew to the dacoits, and they killed him.

Just about the time this tragedy was being enacted in one part of the district a humble Burmese woman gave birth to a baby boy who in time, before the days of his babyhood were well over, claimed to be no less a personage than the murdered police officer. So circumstantial were his accounts of the encounter with the dacoits as to appear the narrative of an eye-witness, and when questioned on various other points in connection with the life of the deceased officer he is asserted to have answered with such exactitude that the Burmese people who flocked to hear him discourse were convinced of the truth of his assertions. Peculiarities of action and speech were faithfully reproduced, and, generally, quite a sensation was created.

Within the last few weeks a still more interesting case of "minsa" has made its appearance, and I cannot do better than quote the account of a Rangoon Times correspondent from Meiktilla:

"There is a little blue-eyed, light-haired boy here, between 3 and 4 years old, the son of hard-working and matter of fact Burmese parents belonging to the laboring classes, who until quite recently prattled like any other child of that age. The other day, however, he astonished his mother by gravely claiming that he was the late Major D. J. Welsh, Border Regiment, come to life again, and went on to describe the house where he had previously lived, the number of ponies he had, and other personal matters.

"His mother was frightened, and called in the neighbors, to whom the queer albino repeated his story, describing how he and two others—a lady and a gentleman—were drowned in the Meiktilla lake in a boating accident during a storm at night in March, 1904, when the three and only occupants of the boat perished.

"That is the year in which Mrs. Reade, Lieut. A. W. Quinlan, and Major Welsh, both of the Border Regiment, did lose their lives in this manner (as a consequence of omitting to put down the centreboard of their sailing boat).

"Large crowds assemble daily to hear the little child-man speak. Of course, skeptics will say that it is a 'put up job.' The answer to this is that Burmese coolies are not given to romancing to such an extent. Several methods have been applied to test the genuineness of the child's utterances, and people are satisfied that he has not been tutored.

"The parents would have to be wideawake sharpers indeed to succeed in foisting such a story on the public through the instrumentality of a mere infant, and there is no suggestion that they are not what they appear to be—viz.: simple-minded folk."

MISERABLE AND UNTRUTHFUL.

Countess Says She Never "Squealed" on King Edward.

"A miserable and untruthful story has been running in the American papers about me for 12 years," said the Countess of Warwick to a reporter recently when interviewed at the Hotel Webster, New York.

"Twelve years ago there was a baccarat scandal in England, in which the present King was mixed up. Ever since then, at stated intervals, the American press has connected me with it, referring to me as the 'Babbling Brooke.' Just before my arrival it was printed again.

"I want to say there is not the slightest truth in it. At the time I was in mourning for my stepfather, and knew nothing about it. I never played cards in my life. I don't know one from another, and I have never been inside the house where this game occurred. It is the work of enemies who dare not publish it in the English papers, so get the American papers to injure me."

English Sunday Condemned.

Germans have no more friendly feeling towards the English Sabbath than Britons entertain towards the Continental Sunday. Just recently a conference was held at Frankfort, which had for its object the promotion of the observance of the Sabbath and the introduction of the rigid laws which prevail on that day throughout England.

The very idea seems to have set the Germans' teeth on edge, for in the same town recently a mass meeting was held to protest against the introduction of the English Sunday into Germany. The meeting was characterized by great enthusiasm, Herr Steinbach, the principal speaker, declared that the "English Sunday" would drive the population of Germany, which was now extremely sober, into the public-houses to drown the Sabbatarian dullness in beer.

Herr Hessenberg, another speaker, declared that even one Sunday in London brought on a severe attack of melancholia, necessitating a "cure" in order to restore his balance of mind.

In the opinion of Herr Steinfurth, the observance of Sunday in England was purely external. German people would rise up in thousands to resist any attempt to foist the "English Sunday" upon them.

A strongly-worded resolution to this effect was unanimously adopted.

El Paso, Texas, March 24. — Two mounted customs inspectors, Charles Logan and Charles Jones, fought a pistol duel in the dry bed of the Rio Grande river in this city, and both were killed. Their bodies were found to-day.

It is supposed that each mistook the other for a smuggler. At first, it was believed that the two officers had been killed by smugglers, but this theory is discredited, as tracks around where the bodies lay all fit the shoes of the dead men. Three shots were heard by people in the neighborhood. The revolver of one of the officers held two empty shells, and that of the other one empty shell.

NOW LISTEN!

Please read carefully what follows, and if you decide to take advantage of what the "Canada Southern Oil & Gas Co., Limited," of Tilbury, Ont. (no personal liability), is now offering you, the result will be that instead of getting 3 per cent. for your savings, you will get at least from 10 to 25 per cent. that others are harvesting.

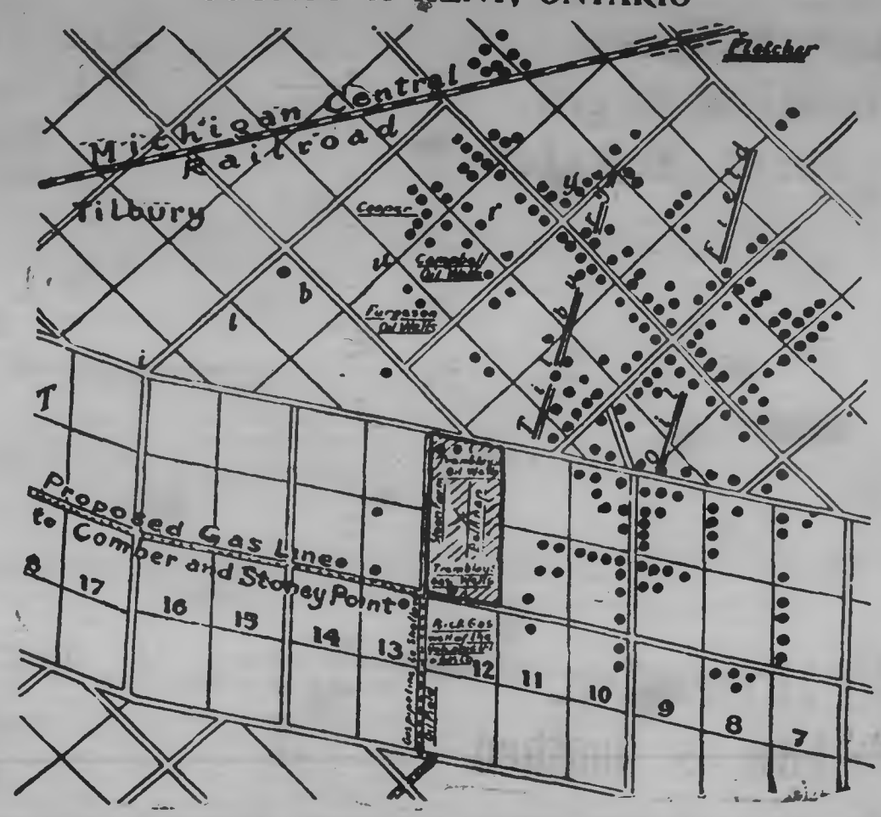
Your savings will be eight times more than the original amount by the mere fact of the higher rate of interest you will get.

Remember that this is no wildcat scheme, as you can see by the facts hereinafter mentioned.

Dr. Bell, the famous Canadian geologist, early in 1878 reported that there was an oil and gas field in the Townships of Tilbury and Romney, County of Kent, Ont. As soon as the discovery of the oil was made in Tilbury in 1906, our American neighbors, who are experts in good things, did not hesitate to invest hundreds of thousands of dollars, and now, in fact, control the two-thirds interest in our oil field of Tilbury; and this happened because we Canadians hesitated to invest a few thousand dollars in the exploration of the oil mines of Tilbury, which already give a monthly production valued at $75,000, without adding the revenue derived from the gas.

We have said that this is not a wildcat scheme, because the "Canadian Southern Oil & Gas Co., Limited," has secured an option at a very moderate price on properties situated in the oil and gas field of Tilbury, upon which three successful tests have been made, being Lot No. 12, M. R. N., Tilbury East, 200 acres, indicated with a cross upon the map of the field.

COUNTY of KENT, ONTARIO



Three wells only have been drilled at an average depth of 1,400 feet.

The first one proves to be a rich gas well, the two others are good oil wells, combined with a strong production of gas.

The Company has also secured the franchises for the distribution and sale of natural gas into the Townships of Romney, Tilbury East, North and West and also into the thriving villages of Comber and Stoney Point.

The gas well is properly equipped and already is supplying the motor power to the Romney oil field and is getting one-third of the gross revenue of the gas sold.

The oil wells are completely equipped with one 15 h. p. gas engine, derrick, tanks, boiler, pumps, tubing, pipe-line, jerk-line, jack, etc., and are producing daily. The oil is sold to The Imperial Oil Company, Sarnia, and is delivered at the tanks and shipped through its pipe-line to Pere Marquette R. R. Station at Merlin, a distance of 3 miles.

Our properties are already giving daily a net revenue of about $85.00—that is to say, more than 10 per cent. of the whole capital stock of the Company.

This revenue may be made four times greater by the drilling of other wells and the construction of the gas-line to Comber and Stoney Point.

Fritz Cirkel, Esq., of Montreal, consulting mining engineer and mining expert to the Dominion Government, who lately made an inspection of the said property, concluded his report as follows:

"In summarizing the actual results already obtained from the operations of the Sloan wells the writer is forced to the conclusion that the property under consideration is a very valuable one. Located as it is in the western extremity of the producing Tilbury oil field, in close proximity to wells which produce from 40 to 50 barrels of oil (and even more) per day of 24 hours (I refer to the Ferguson, Campbell and Cooper properties, located about 2,000 feet distant to the north, see plan attached hereto), it bids fair to become a producer of oil and natural gas of no small measure.

The Tilbury field has already the reputation of being a large producer and powerful companies have entered the district with a view of securing properties of known and established value.

There is one factor to which I would like to draw your special attention and that is the future of natural gas. To-day, the market in that in that part of the country, for this commodity is not sufficiently large to dispose of all the gas the wells can produce but there is no question that in the near future factories will be established on central points, which will eventually consume for various purposes, especially for power, all the gas which can be produced in the field.

Besides this there are quite a number of towns and villages in the western part of the Niagara Peninsula, which may use the gas for heating, lighting, and also for power purposes and it is only a question of time when this will be realized.

The economy of the application of natural gas to power purposes is already evidenced all through the field, as coal or any other power cannot be regularly obtained, and that at high figures. Having therefore, a powerful gas well on the (Sloan) property, it is evident that a great saving is effected from this source alone; for instance, for the operation of ten oil wells, the cost of power required per day would amount to between twenty and twenty-five dollars, which, in 300 working days per year, would represent a saving of from six thousand to seven thousand five hundred dollars.

In conclusion, I may say that this property, with proper and economic management, can be made highly remunerative; I entertain, no doubt, that if properly developed, it will show similar results as those of so many other locations in the vicinity, whose developments have of so many other locations in the vicinity, whose developments have been so vigorously pushed in the past.

Respectfully submitted,
(Signed) FRITZ CIRKEL.

They have four vertical seams of coal traversing their property, aggregating over 40 feet in thickness. with which they strangled their victims. All this was information culled from Colonel Meadow Taylor's book by the accomplished detective. "Well," said Hurd, smoking placidly, "what have you to say, Mr. Hokar?"

"I know nossin'," said the man sullenly, but in deadly fear.

"Yes, you do. Sit still!" said Hurd, with sudden sternness. "If you try to run away I'll have you arrested. Eyes are on you, and you can't take a step without my knowing."

Some of this was Greek to the Indian, owing to his imperfect knowledge of English, but he understood that the law would lay hold of him if he did not obey this sahib and so sat still. "I know not anysing," he repeated, his teeth chattering.

"Yes, you do. You're a thug."

"Ize no thug."

"I agree with you," said Hurd. "You are the last of the Mohicans. I want to know why you offered Aaron Norman to Bhowanee?"

Hokar made a strange sign on his forehead at the mention of the sacred name and muttered something—perhaps a prayer—in his native tongue. Then he looked up. "I know nossin'."

"Don't repeat that rubbish," said Hurd calmly. "You sold boot laces in the shop in Gwynne street on the day when its master was killed, and he was the husband of the lady who helped you—Mrs. Krill."

"You say dat," said Hokar stolidly.

"Yes, and I can prove it. The boy Troy—and I can lay my hands on him—saw you; also Bart Tawney, the shopman. You left a handful of sugar, though why you did so instead of eating it I can't understand."

Hokar's face lighted up, and he showed his teeth disdainfully. "Oh, you sahibs know nossin'!" said he, spreading out his lean hands. "Ze shops—ah, yis. I there, yis, but I use no roomal."

"Not then, but you did later."

Hokar shook his head. "I use no roomal. Zat sahib one eye—bad, ver bad. Bhowanee no have one eye. No Shungoos, no Bhats, no"—

"What are you talking about?" said Hurd angrily. His reading had not told him that no maimed persons could be offered to the goddess of the thugs. Shungoos meant sweepers, and Bhats bards, both of which classes were spared by the stranglers. "You killed that man. Now, who told you to kill him?"

"I know nossin'. I no kill. Bhowanee no take one eye mans."

For want of an interpreter Hurd found it difficult to carry on the conversation. He rose and determined to postpone further examination till he would get some one who understood the Hindoo tongue. But in the meantime Hokar might run away, and Hurd rather regretted that he had been so precipitate. However, he nodded to the man and went off, pretty sure he would not fly at once.
